Whether the murder had been premeditated for any length of time the evidence gives no clue, but the circumstances which surround the transaction would lead to the conclusion that it had not been, but that it was the result of an ungovernable and fiendish disposition, as the murderer had the day previous bargained with Mr. Sexsmith, a carpenter, to build him a barn, and had advanced him $100 to begin with. He had also, his brother says, a quantity of money loaned, which there is no evidence he had tried to collect, except from one of his brothers. A number of other little circumstances would lead to the conclusion that whatever he may have made up his mind to do, he had not made any preparations for leaving.

The deceased was the mother of nine children, and bears the name of a kind and affectionate woman, having nursed her murderer with a mother's kindness some years ago, when he was laid up with erysipelas.

The murderer is 46 years of age, was born in Senten, in the district of Quebec, is of a dark, swarthy complexion, thick set, about five feet six or seven inches in height, with black hair intermingled with grey, wears a whisker on the side of his face and chin, dark, heavy eyebrows, a large Roman nose, which had been broken at the end, making it crooked, had the marks of the erysipelas on one of his legs, which was somewhat smaller than the other. The man once seen would not be forgotten.

At the inquest, Dr. Hudson testified that he had made a post mortem examination of the deceased, and found—

1. A bullet wound about one inch above the left orbit; entrance and exit about one inch apart; the exit being about one inch higher than the entrance.

2. A large, ragged, star-shaped wound, situated near the bullet wound first mentioned. Apparently inflicted by a blunt weapon. A heavy blow sufficient to cause death from concussion of the brain.

3. A large wound above the right orbit, presenting the appearance of a bullet wound, carrying away all the intervening soft structures between the entrance and exit.

4. A bullet wound, entrance and exit about two inches apart, situated in the right temporal region.

5. A bullet wound, entrance and exit about three-quarters of an inch apart, on the occipital region.

6. A large wound, apparently made by a weapon with sharp corners or angles, corresponding with the leg of the stove spoken of at the inquest. This wound is situated in the left parietal bone.

7. On the centre of the forehead was an indentation with discolored spots surrounding it, resembling the marks of a spent bullet.

8. On the left shoulder were marks looking like stabs inflicted by a blunt knife. On the right side of the neck from the ear, the lower part of which was cut, an extensive incision of six inches in length, extending from the ear downward, forward and inward to the centre of the throat, accomplished apparently by the dull knife produced at the inquest.

9. A bullet wound entering on the left side of the neck, about one inch below the mastoid process, following the direction of the posterior border of the sterno cleido mastoid muscle, severing in its course the left external jugular vein, passing under the inner extremity of the lavicle and upper part of the sternum, entering the right side of the chest, wounding the right lung in its course, causing death. The trachea was filled with blood from the wounded lung.

Other witnesses were called who testified that deceased and Charles Maurland had not been on friendly terms for years, and that Charles Maurland was the possessor of a revolver, which he was in the habit of sometimes carrying.

The evidence having been closed, the jury brought in a verdict of wilful murder against Charles Maurland.

A special telegram from Tweed informs us that the murderer was arrested this morning in his brothers barn, at half-past six o'clock, and that he has confessed the crime. The funeral of the murdered woman took place to-day and was attended by a large concourse of people.

The Jew and His Daughter.

As I was going through the western part of Virginia, says an American writer, an old clergyman gave me a short account of a Jew, which greatly delighted me. He was preaching to his people, when he saw a man entering, having every mark of a Jew in his face. He was well dressed, and his look seemed to tell he had been in great sorrow. He took his seat and listened in a serious and devout manner, while a tear was often seen to wet his cheek. After the service, the clergyman went up to him, and said: "Sir, I am [illegible] speaking to one of the seed of Abraham?" "Yes sir!" "Pray, sir, how is it that you [illegible] Christ as the Messiah, when you have not the New Testament?" "Sir, I have one book." He took from his pocket a small Hebrew Bible, and with an humble look, said, "This is my book." He had lost his wife, and his only daughter, a young and beautiful girl, was sick, and he feared she would die. He had been to the physicians, and they had given her up. He had been to the priests, and they could do nothing for her. He had been to the rabbies, and they could do nothing for her. He had been to the synagogue, and prayed that God would spare her life, but she grew worse and worse, and he feared she would die. He said, "Sir, I have been to the Lord, and I have asked him to spare my child, but he will not hear me. I have been to the Lord, and I have asked him to spare my child, but he will not hear me. I have been to the Lord, and I have asked him to spare my child, but he will not hear me.

PETERBORO, AUGUST 27, 1874.

A NUISANCE ON BROCK ST.

We invite the special attention of the health officers to a nuisance on Brock St. From the last Review it will be seen that some filth from this street reached as far as that office and besmeared the whole paper: and hence our appeal to have the proper steps taken to remove it. It must have occurred in this wise: Dr. O'Sullivan was down at the small pox hospital, and on his return home, while contemplating the loss of $25 a day, caused by the EXAMINER article, he took ill, and had to take an emetic and also a dose of laxative medicine. Both operating freely, he had to stop at the Review office till relieved, and while there got rid of the bile and filth of several years' gathering.

He was then removed home to Brock St., and, we are glad to say, is improving. But in order to prevent a return of the billiousness, we say that it is necessary in the interests of the public, and especially in the interests of the Review newspaper, that the Dr's. inner house be cleansed and disinfected, and properly fumigated: that an extra tonic of aqua-vitae be administered, accompanied by an opiate, under medical direction of course; and that the patient be confined to his rooms till it is known how the medicine may operate.

There are seasons of the year when rabies is more prevalent than at other times, it is said. During the dog days, therefore, the doctor may have been avoiding water; and using tonics, and in mistake, may have taken a dose intended for one of his patients. And this may have produced the overflow of filth which appeared in the last number of the Review. If he would dilute his potions, his nausea would cease, and thus prevent a repetition of his malady; if not, warm fomentation in the region of the spleen, or a blister from the EXAMINER in the shape of loosing $25 a day might have a calming effect.

THROWING FILTH.

Dr. O'Sullivan is an adept in Billingsgate, equal to O'Connell's fish woman. Just read the last Review. We do not intend to sink to the level of this professor of Belles Lettres, nor shall we dirty ourselve by rubbing against him. He is affected with something that robs him of what little judgement he got credit for, and appears to be applying himself to the study of bar room rubaldry. When natural or artificial means dethrone reason, even Doctors become ridiculous.

We can assure the Doctor that ever since he left our office about a week ago, the atmosphere is pure, the disagreeable fumes from the Doctor's volcano have been dissipated by a pure air around us.

The Doctor is sensative on a whiskey question. This is his tender spot. When he made his nonsensical harangues in the Council Chamber, would he be kind enough to tell the people how many believed him simple or something worse? when he said: "Mr Mayor and Gentlemen,—I'm no alarmist, sir: the people say I am, and I have been injured. One man says: 'If you say I have got the small pox, I'll shoot you, sir!' Another says: 'If you say the small pox is in my house, your life is in danger, sir!' But, sir, I am no alarmist, sir, for I knew the small pox was in Mr. Cavanagh's house eight or ten days before I told it! So I am no alarmist, sir!" and a deal more of such unmingled ravings followed.

Perhaps the doctor does'nt wish people to know that there was whiskey at the hospital, or perhaps Laymen cannot tell when learned doctors make fools of them selves! But it is far more difficult to tell when some doctors don't do it.

The doctor is good on small pox, so much so that it's a monomania with him. On the matter of veracity few would care to enter into such questions with Learned, the profound, the refined, the accomplished Doctor of Brock street. Let the doctors answer. The following note will explain itself.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR.—Your note addressed to me this morning, requesting me to give you the "number of patients treated by me in hospital for small pox in 1873, and the number of deaths."—Answer:

I treated 11 cases out of whom one—an infant at the breast—died, and the immediate cause of it's death was congestion of the teeth, brought on from cold and exposure.

Yours,
D. KINCAID.

Peterboro', August 25th, 1874.

Our information we received from the chief Constable as to the number of patients in 1873. The number of deaths in the Hospital to get from the Town physician, and any honest man will be able to see that our report was in full accord with what they told us.

We have never met any slanders against our own personal character, during the fourteen years of our residence in this place. We have our character to be judged by acts, without one word of self defence.

THE VOTERS' LISTS.

The appeals against the Voters' Lists of the Township of Smith were heard on Monday, before Judge Dennistoun. The appeals of the Conservatives were heard first, Mr. Scott appearing. Of those appealed against, the following were HELD GOOD.

James Middleton, Wm. Paul, J. D. Tully, James McCall, Stephen Boyce, James Davidson, jr, W. A. Hall, John W. Moore, Wm. Nicholls, Benjamin Nicholls, Thos. Nicholls, James Stabler, jr., Nathan Taylor, James Taylor, Hugh Duff, Wm. Northey, Robert Northey, Michael O'Neil, James Kearney, William Graham held good but reserved as to evidence of John Carnegie.

HELD BAD.

Thomas Hall, Andrew Hall, William Preston, John Preston, Robert Bay.

RESERVED.

Joseph Mills will be heard on Monday, Lewis Hunter will be heard on Monday, Robert Moore decision reserved, William Pearson decision reserved, Samuel Duff decision reserved, Henry Pearson decision reserved. Lewis Ayotte didn't appear,—tried next Monday.

The appeal to have John W Graham put on list was held void, as it was intended for William Graham, not John W. That of——Nugent was withdrawn.

Against the Conservatives. James and Joseph Nugent were held good; R. A. Strickland, H. J. Strickland, and C. A. Boulton, reserved.

The Court will sit on Monday again.

THE WAY CONSERVATIVES DO THEIR WORK.

The Bien Public says:—"It turns out that the author of a certain correspondence in the Courrier du Canada in reference to a political meeting at Kamouraska, and dealing with party political topics, is neither more nor less than the Hon. Judge Routhier. This looks strange, but it is not more indelicate for a judge to commit such an error than to write to the papers trying to show that he was right in calling black white and white black in the same judgement. The late Dominion Government having appointed Mr. Routhier a judge as a recompense for his opposition to Mr. Pelletier according to promise made before the election. Mr. Routhier desires to show his gratitude to Mr. Langevin,—the more so as it is believed he had a tidy share of the $32,000 given by Sir Hugh Allan to Mr. Langevin to help good friends like Mr. Routhier."

It is of little consequence how power is secured or retained, if it be but retained. The Lower Canada Government has succumbed under the weight of its own sins, just as John A. was forced to give way. The vilest means have been used to keep the party in power, but their crimes have reached their greatest length and new they are overcome by their magnitude. It is hoped that better men will be brot forward in Quebec, and that a purer system of Government will be inaugurated in that province, as has been in the Dominion.

MT. JULIEN EXCURSION.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—As many of your readers are doubtless aware, a few weeks since the Midland Railway Company and the proprietors of the steamer "Chippewa" completed arrangements to run an excursion train from Port Hope to Lakefield every Thursday during the summer months, connecting there with the steamer for Mt. Julien. Several of these excursions have taken place, and were very well attended by the people of Peterboro, and, as far as we can learn, were enjoyed very much by all. But last Thursday morning rather a sudden check was put upon the anticipations of quite a number of our townspeople, who had gathered with lunch basket in hand at the station, as the train arrived with four excursionists from Port Hope, when shortly the news was announced by telegram from Mr. Taylor, the Superintendent at Port Hope, that the train to Lakefield was cancelled. And why? Because the conductor telegraphed to Port Hope, (the contents of which your readers can readily surmise, by the answer), to cancel the train to Lakefield. It is true the morning was dull, and prevented many from deciding to go till about the time of the arrival of the train, consequently only a few had purchased their tickets. Now we ask the people of Peterboro, is this the kind of treatment we should expect at the hands of the Midland Railway? Are the Railway Company, by such conduct, keeping faith with our townspeople, the proprietors of the "Chippewa," or the public generally? We need not answer. In the first place, it was a disappointment to those unfortunate four from Port Hope: and fully thirty passengers at the Peterboro station were deprived of the days pleasure. The proprietors of the steamboat fulfilled their part of the agreement at some loss, while many who had been staying at the Mt. Julien Hotel were put to considerable inconvenience and expense in procuring carriages to convey them from Lakefield to Peterboro If we have no guarantee from the Railway Company that they will do better for the future—and we speak advisedly when we say it—we are satisfied it would be much better to depend on our own town for conveyance to Lakefield. It is quite as cheap, and much more pleasant, for we know of a party of some twelve or fifteen who, rather than be robbed of the days pleasure, obtained an omnibus and drove up in time for the boat. We do think this is shabby treatment on the part of the Midland Railway Company, but presume it is the only way they have of paying us the interest on the large amount paid by the Town of Peterboro to assist in building the road.

Yours, etc.,
ONE OF THE DISAPPOINTED.

Peterboro, Aug. 24, 1874.

RIEL IN MANITOBA.—The people of Provencher met a few days since and unanimously agreed to nominate Riel as the candidate to represent the constituency in the Dominion Parliament. The nomination is to be held on the 26th prox. A telegram states that in dissidence of difficulties appeared among the former friends of the ex-President. The French press of Quebec is almost a unit in favor of Reil's re-election. A Reil is declared an outlaw by the courts of Manitoba, his election may lead to serious difficulties in the Prairie Province."—Record.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

SPECIAL SESSION.

The County council met in Special session on Tuesday, to consider the propriety of borrowing a by-law to grant aid by way of bonus to $150,000 to the Huron and Quebec Railway.

Present—J. Garbutt, Esq., Warden, and Messrs. Moloney, Choate, Brown, Birdsall, Blewett, Wells, Rogers, Collins, Sanderson, Millar, Blezard, Pearce, Golborne and McCarthy.

The Clerk read the Minutes of the previous meeting of the Council, when they were confirmed.

The Warden then addressed the Council.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

You will no doubt all recollect that the Committee appointed by you in the June session, to meet a Committee of the Town Council, to discuss the propriety of submitting By-Laws, granting aid to the Huron and Quebec Railway Company, recommended in their Report, which Report was adopted by you, that in event of Mr. Fowler depositing with the County Treasurer a sum sufficient to cover the expenses attending the submission of a County By-Law, that such By-Law be submitted. The Town By-Law having carried, and Mr Fowler having deposited $250 with your Treasurer, to cover the expenses of the submission of a County By-Law, it became necessary for me to call a special meeting of the Council. The By-Law has been drafted by Mr. Scott, and it now remains for you to discuss the several conditions, and carefully study each clause, so that in event of the By-Law being carried, we may have guarantees that if called on to pay the money, we shall not only get a Railway, but such a railway as will meet the wants of the County.

Jointly with the Warden of Victoria, I have arranged for the making of the necessary repairs, as also for the rebuilding of the Forest House Bridge, and the repairs of the Lancaster Bridge.

I would suggest that before this session closes, you again memorialize the Provincial Government in reference to the repairs required on the Burleigh road.

In the matter of changes recently made in the territory of the County, I would suggest that you appoint a Committee to meet the several Committees appointed by the Town, the County of Haliburton, and the village of Hastings, to arrange as to the amount of the indebtedness of the said several Municipalities to the County.

In compliance with your instructions, your Treasurer applied to the Executors of the Estate of the late Captain Rubidge, for $11.10, the amount claimed to be due to the County for proportion of Registry Fees. Messrs. Dennistoun Brothers & Hall, on behalf of the Estate, decline to make payment, and request that should the claim be pressed, you will take proceedings at once, so that the final winding up of the Estate may not be delayed.

It was moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Blizard, that the Warden's Address be referred to Messrs. Rogers, Sanderson, Choate and Birdsall.

On motion of Mr. Collins the Council adjourned for half an hour, to allow the Committee to report on the Warden's Address.

The Council resumed.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson, Mr. Rogers read the Report of the Committee on the Address.

REPORT ON WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

The Committee on the Warden's Address beg leave to report—

That the Warden, in calling the Council together at present, is no doubt acting in accordance with the Report adopted by this Council at its last session, viz.: that a By-Law should be submitted in aid of the Huron and Quebec Railway, under certain conditions. But that since the last session the statutes have come to hand, and it appears from section 23, cap. 47 of the Huron and Quebec Railway Act, that, before a By-Law on this case can be submitted, it is necessary to have a petition signed either by a majority of the Reeves and Deputy Reeves of the Council, or by twenty voters from each municipality, duly qualified under this Act; and until the statute is complied with in this respect, your Committee cannot see how a By-Law can be legally submitted.

Your Committee understand that arbitrators were appointed at the last session of this Council to settle the financial matters between the several Municipalities and this Corporation, but understanding that Committees have been appointed to confer with this Corporation, we would recommend that corresponding Committees be appointed to meet them.

The Council at its last session having decided that there was an amount due this corporation by the Estate of the late Charles Rubidge, we would recommend that the said claim be prosecuted.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed), R. D. ROGERS,
Chairman.

Mr. Pearce thought the Report was not correct as to the reception of the statutes, as they were in receipt of them at last session. It also required amendment as to arbitrators: it was a Committee that was asked for, and he thought it ought to be amended in these respects, so that Committees be appointed to settle, if possible, amicably, with the parties concerned. It was referred to the Committee, and amended.

On motion to adopt the Report, Mr. Pearce held that the Council had expressed a determination to assist this road if the Town should pass a By-Law for $100,000. The Town had done so, and the consequence is that the Council was morally bound to submit the By-Law.

Mr. Birdsall read from the statutes to show that the By-Law should be petitioned for by a majority of the Reeves and Deputy Reeves, or by twenty ratepayers of each municipality.

Mr. Pearce still held that the Report of the last session of the Council bound the Council to submit the By-Law, as they had the power.

After discussion, the Report was adopted as amended.

The Warden recommended that as Mr. Scott was present, he read the By-Law, which he did. He also remarked that the law did not prevent the Council from submitting a By-Law without a petition, as the Act did not take away that right, but only provided means of compelling the Council to submit a By-Law, if they so desired it, and the Council were unwilling.

Mr. Pearce was of opinion that the Council should go into Committee of the Whole on the Report.

Mr. Millar thought the Report was adopted, and the whole matter disposed of.

Mr. Pearce had not heard it carried.

It was then agreed that the Council go into Committee of the Whole to discuss it.

Council in Committee, Mr. Millar in the chair.

Mr. Pearce referred to the state of the Grand Junction Railway By-Law, and that it would be decided soon whether the Council will be held responsible for it, and urged the Council to submit the By-Law, as the County was still in as great need of railways as when the Ontario and Ottawa Railway By-Law was voted on. He also contended that the law was not that a petition must be presented to the Council, but was intended to compel the Council to submit such if a majority of their number so desired it. He also thought that the By-Law should be submitted to the people, and let them decide.

Mr. Rogers spoke in favor of a railway from east to west of this Country, but this charter does not provide for a road from east to west of the Country, but only to the County. He wanted a railway, but he did not see that this railway was intended to be built. The charter only provided that the engineer give a certificate stating that the money is required, etc., and the money could be drawn, and the engineer get his share of it, while the people would get no road, notwithstanding the provisions of the By-Law.

Mr. Garbutt thought it strange if the Council could not fix conditions and provisions in their By-Laws that would be binding. He believed they could.

Mr. Collins was in favor of the Railway, but he thought it better, perhaps, to leave the matter over, and have all doubts removed, so as to commence right when they did commence.

Mr. Millar asked Mr. Scott if it was necessary to include in the By-Law the indebtedness under the Grand Junction By-Law.

Mr. Scott said it might be, but only in such a way as not to admit the legality of that By-Law.

Mr. Brown never thought that it was no use in putting conditions in a By-Law. He thought, and still thinks that the By-Law is an agreement binding according to the conditions contained in it.

Mr. Rogers thought if the By-Law be passed, and not ratified by the Legislature, then it would come under the charter, and compel the money to be paid under the charter.

Mr. Scott being appealed to, said it would not come under the charter if not ratified by the Legislature, but would become so much waste paper.

Mr. Fowler, on motion, addressed the Committee, and urged that he had acted on a former Report, in good faith, and spent a great deal of money, and thought the Council ought to submit it in good faith, according to their former Report.

Mr. Choate urged that the first clause of this Report be put.

Mr. Pearce again strongly urged the submission of the By-Law, so as to keep faith with Mr. Fowler.

On motion of Mr. Pearce the Committee rose, asking leave to sit.

Mr. Collins moved, seconded by Mr. Golborne, that the advice of Mr. Scott be obtained respecting the By-Law, and that he be requested to report to-morrow at 10 o'clock a.m., in writing, for the information of this Council. Carried.

WEDNESDAY.

The Council met on Wednesday. All the members present, the Warden in the chair.

The minutes were read, amended and confirmed.

Mr. Scott read a written statement as to the right of the Council to submit the By-law without a petition, and also as to whether it would be competent for the Council to pass a By-law with conditions not provided for in the Charter, and giving it as his opinion that the council has a right to submit the By-law, to include such conditions as they may think right, and also showing that the 21st section of the charter establishes the fact that council can include its own conditions.

Mr. Collin's moved, seconded by Mr. Pearce, that a By-law to give the Huron and Quebec Railway to the amount of $150,000 be read.

Moved by Mr. Choate, seconded by Mr. Sanderson,—That while admitting the necessity for more extended railway facilities, and while expressing an intention to aid any through or trunk line of railway running from Toronto or other western points, via Peterboro to Ottawa, yet in view of the fact that the Huron & Quebec Company's Charter does not cover the whole of the line from Peterboro to Ottawa, which portion would be of most advantage to the county of Peterboro: This Council do not feel fully warranted in submitting a By-Law for $150,000 or any other sum in aid of the said railway, until such legislation is obtained as will enable the company to build the whole line.

After considerable discussion the motion was lost, and the amendment carried by 8 to 6. On motion of Mr. Pearce,—The Treasurer was instructed to refund Mr Fowler the $250 deposited to pay expenses.

On Motion of Mr. Golborne seconded by Mr. Blezard the Warden and Messrs Pearce, Rogers and the County Treasurer were appointed a Committee, to meet a Committee from the County of Haliburt on to settle financial matters between the two Counties, and also to meet a committee to settle matters as to the indebtedness to be assumed by the Town, on account of the portions of the County annexed to the town, and a by law was passed confirming the appointment.

A motion of Mr. Golborne to memorialise the Government of Ontario for aid to repair the Burleigh road was lost, as it was held that the Council had twice this year applied for aid for the same purpose.

A motion of Mr. Choate to allow the Township of Dummer to apply its share of the Municipal Loan Fund to pay its debenture indebtedness to the County was lost.

The Council adjourned.

The St Thomas Home Journal of last week, in support of a portion of the charges preferred against Lieut. Rykert by Hon. Mr. McKeller, published copies of official documents from records of the courts, proving that Mr. Rykert in different cases was ordered by the courts to pay over moneys which he had embezzled from clients, or else he would be stripped of his gown. As to the remaining charges, says the Journal, "they have been made by Mr. Kellar on his responsibility as a member of the Legislature and a Minister of the Crown. He has declared his readiness to prove them either before a court of law or before a committee of the House. Mr. Rykert, if he wishes to clear himself of the odium which attaches to his name can choose his own course. We have no doubt but he will find Mr. McKellar ready. And until he has cleared himself his friends in this county and elsewhere would consult their own political welfare best by leaving Mr. John Charles Rykert at home."

Mr. Marshall Wood, who wanted $90,000 for his masonry's work at drafting plans for the ornamentation of the front yard of the Parliament square, seems to have a weakness for extravagant charges. A bust of Sir John A. Macdonald, which he had set up, has been thrown back upon his hands, and the tories howl with rage on account of the refusal to pay for it. One organ paints a beautiful word-picture of the contrast between never-fading flowers and perishable marble, which is most pleasant read. Mr. Wood will have to find another market for his wares, as the contractors now in power at Ottawa do not appreciate Sir John or his busts sufficiently to pay more than the prices demanded by ordinary artists. Cowan, Grimes and Bell (or small) served in Mr. Wood's case.—Hamilton Times.

THE COBOURG RAILWAY.

The Sentinel of a week ago contained an article severely commenting on the management of railway matters from that town to Peterboro, and ridiculing our Mayor of the Company's Board, going so far as to state that the Company had succeeded in securing the agreement between them and the Town with a view to deprive the latter of any means of compelling the Company to carry out an agreement to construct the road to Mud Lake. We were surprised at the statements, but thought it best to await the reception of better information on the subject. The World has since come to hand, and so completely sets at naught the Sentinel's article that we cannot do better than give it.

RAILWAY MATTERS.

FROM THE COBOURG WORLD.

In making a few remarks upon certain statements in the last number of the Sentinel, we do not wish to be understood as finding fault with any writer for advancing opinions which, however disagreeable, may be fairly claimed to be in the public good. The liberty of the press is a necessity for the welfare of the people; but the ill-use of that liberty, in the placing of persons or institutions in an unfair light before those whose confidence is required, is certainly detrimental to it. To warn the people when any grievance or calamity threatens their interest, is the imperative duty of a journalist; and the performance at that duty is praiseworthy in the highest degree. But to excite suspicion, and to destroy confidence by a misrepresentation of facts, or by the circulation of rumours which have no foundation in truth, but is in every way harmful to the public interest.

Having premised this much, we desire to refer to the statements in question, for the purpose of correcting certain wrong impressions which they produce, and of allaying an uneasiness for which existing facts do not furnish any ground.

It is well known that the present principal proprietors of our railway property did not some years ago contemplate the re-opening of the road to Peterborough or its extension beyond; and when they did undertake that enterprise it was after much hesitation, and on the urgent representations of the Managing Director of the road. Their interest was large,—not a general railway or lumber business. As an inducement and condition of their entering upon the work, certain advances were made by the Town of Cobourg; and it is in these advances, beyond the general desire for the promotion of the work, that our special interests lie. The drift of the Sentinel's articles is to make the people of this town fear that they have not only expended the advances they have made, but that they have lost all security, and all prospect of the completion of their work. This is manifestly unfair and incorrect. We have not lost either. We have full security for the iron and the money which we gave to the company; and even if we hadn't, a Court of Equity would certainly protect us from fraud. One of the articles in the Sentinel declares that the Agreement between the Savings Bank Directors and the Railway Company is bad, and he writes in a manner to impress the people with the idea that some huge collusion exists, by which one man shifts the responsibility of its not being forthcoming upon another, and then, as the champion of the people, he is going to see to it that the document is forthcoming. Well, we beg to say to the people of Cobourg that the document in question is not lost; that we have seen it and read it, and taken a copy of its provisions, since the appearance of Mr. Rattan's confidence-destroying article last week. The agreement was entered into on the 21st of August, 1872, and on condition of the surrender of the railway iron then purchased by the Savings Bank Trustees, and of the existing balance of $8,500, and the remaining balance at the end of five years, binds the Railway Company to expend the same in the construction of the railway from Cobourg to Chemong Lake. The particulars of the Company's covenant are, that they bind themselves to reconstruct the road to Ashburnham, to continue the same to Chemong Lake, and to construct the Rice Lake embankment and bridge, and to complete the same in five years, according to Mr. Walter Shanly's plans; the dates and times at which the other several portions of the work are to be completed being given in the Bond, together with the Company's covenant to run one train a day, each way, for passengers and freight business, forever. If Mr. Rattan had applied to the Solicitor of the Savings Bank, or to the Secretary of the Railway Company—the parties to this covenant—he might have had a copy; but he must needs assume such an air of mystery, and profess such a dread of fraud and municipal ruin, that those whom he asked could but refer to their next neighbor. We suspect, from the names of the parties to whom he applied, that he has got the document to which he refers mixed up with another one, made between the Railway Company, the Commissioners, and the Town. This, on condition of the Company rebuilding the road, as stated, binds the Commissioners to grant them a perpetual rate of ten cents a ton harbour dues. This document is also in safe keeping, and we have read it this week.

So much for the Covenants. If the Company do not fulfil their part of the contract with the Savings Bank Directors, the remedy is at hand; and if they do not fulfil that with the Commissioners and the Town, the first thing they know they will have to pay twenty-five cents on every ton of their ore which they ship over our harbor. We hold them, therefore, in just as firm bonds as is necessary for our own safety in our advances to them.

Let us here say a word as to their probable intentions. We have referred to the covenant with the Savings Bank. The adoption of that covenant, and its terms, was moved in the Board by Mr. G. K. Schoenberger, one of the principle proprietors of the road, and was unanimously carried. Since that time the Company have done an immense amount of work in the direction sought. They have regraded the portion between Rice Lake and Peterboro and made it ready for the ties; they have constructed a new bridge at Ashburnham; they have built an entirely new road from Peterboro to Chemong Lake, putting on the ties and iron complete, so that it has been accepted by the Government Inspector; they have put the balance of the iron on the road between Peterboro and Rice Lake; and, under direction of their Superintendent, they have spent a large sum of money on the Rice Lake bank and bridge. They proceeded while they had any money left; and they expected to apply the profits of the mine to the completion of the work. But, last fall, as everybody knows, a great stagnation took place in the iron trade, and this Company's interests suffered with all others. Therefore, they were unable to continue operations upon the road, and are now desirous of securing legislation to enable them to issue bonds, to get money, and to go ahead. And why should they not have legislation? The Sentinel says that by the Act for which they will ask, the town stock will be "cut out." Is Mr. Rattan so ignorant that he does not know that Cobourg gave up its deferred stock to the Company two years ago, as one of the conditions of the Directors for rebuilding the road? Why, then, does he seek to alarm the people by the burbear that this dreadful Company is going to gobble up stock which we have already put into their mouths, and which would never be worth a cent to us in any case? And why, we ask, should not this enterprising Company take full charge of the work? They are the only liable persons; the "stockholders" will never build the road; and if the American Capitalists—the de facto Company, do not build it, it will never be built. Why, then, should a few stockholders, under the old regime, come in and divide profits which accrue only by the enterprise and the expenditure of money of the liable persons? If they own the property, surely, if the Legislature allows it, they have a right to issue new bonds on their own property,—just as much right as a man has to mortgage his house to build another. There were many "stockholders" present at the late meeting, when this proposition to issue new bonds was carried; and yet not one of them objected to it. Why, then, should Mr. Rattan eternally try to make it appear that he is the only man who has the interests of the town and the railway at heart or who has a weather eye to keep open? The new proposal is the only way to complete the work; and if that is the fact, surely it is not for the interests of Cobourg that suspicions should be aroused, that obstacles should be thrown in the way, or that the good faith of an enterprising Company should be called in question. The town may suffer from adversity, or possibly from a failure of the Company in ability to fulfil their obligations; but, certainly, in such adversity, and in such failure, the suspicion-catching course of Mr. Rattan is the very shortest cut.

We now refer to the "rumours," which Mr. Rattan declares have "unlimited currency in town, "but which he graciously announces that he does not believe. Why, then, publish them? we go a little further, and—not only say we do not believe them, but we deny that before Mr. R. gave them birth, they had any currency in town.

The fact is, that Col. Chamberlain and Mr. Armour have been "negotiating with Rattan with a view to amalgamation" we emphatically deny. They have had no communication of any kind with the Grand Junction people for two years; and the reply to a question propounded by the latter, and not bearing on the issues at stake.

The second is, that the iron made over to the Savings Bank has been sold or lent to another Company. This is absolutely false. The iron is laid upon the Glamorgan branch above Peterborough, and upon the upper part of the old line, their other holding to Peterboro.

The third is, that the Company will issue a million of dollars of bonds, and these, and "let the road go to pot." In other words, they are pack of swindlers, who would raise money on an undertaking which they would never make good for the amount borrowed by completing it. In other words, again, those to whom they would sell the bonds are a pack of fools, who would give their money to those operators without assuring themselves of the safety of the investment. We say that the "rumour" defeats its own purpose by its own absurdity; and we say shame upon the man who would thus rush into print with such a wild and injurious statement.

We have no favors to seek from the Railway Company. In making these observations and by a truthful statement of the position of things, we claim to be just as good a friend to the interests of Cobourg as the writer in the Sentinel. We say it is better to trust and to assist honorable men than to drive them away from us by impugning their motives or misconstruing their good faith. Give them time, and we believe they will redeem their pledges. If they give signs of failure, after fair chances, we shall not be one whit behind any in our remonstrance,—not even behind some who seem to think themselves the conservators of the town interests, and at whose death all shrewdness and honesty are to lie down in the grave.

UNION LEAGUE MEETING.

A meeting of the Union League was held in the Temperance Hall, Port Hope, on Saturday, August 15th, in response to invitations from the Executive of the Ontario Temperance League—Mr. John Read in the chair, and Mr. W. Thornhill acting as Secretary.

Moved by Mr. P. R. Randall, seconded by Mr. R. S. Libby, and Resolved,—That this meeting, in response to invitations from executive of Ontario Temperance League, recommends that the following parties attend the Annual Meeting in Temperance Hall, Temperance Street, Toronto, on Tuesday and Wednesday, 1st and 2nd of September next, with such others as may be appointed by the various societies:

PORT HOPE—P. R. Randall, S. Lelean, C Quinlan, R. S. Libby, J. Hooper and Rev A. T. Green.

HOPE—James Gray, Samuel Colwell, John Colwell, James Corbett, Charles Mountcer, Thomas Tamblyn, George Salter, and Rev. Mr. Browning.

CAVAN—Wm. Might, Dr. Jas. Might, Alex. Brown, Wm. Best, Jas. McLean.

MANVERS—J. Gardiner, Bethany; H. Kennedy, Bethany; John Westlick, Bethany; Wm. McGuire, Franklin; and Rev. Mr. Robinson.

Moved by Mr. J. Hooper, seconded by Mr. S. MARTON.—That this meeting approves of the proposed extension of the basis of the League by recognizing every member of existing Temperance societies as a member thereof, it being understood that all other abstainers may become members on payment of one dollar per annum to the funds.—Carried.

Moved by Rev. A. T. Green, seconded by Mr. E. Taylor, and Resolved,—That this meeting deems the time has arrived when the question of temperance should be agitated at every election, both municipal and parliamentary, with the view of securing the enactment of wholesome restrictive and prohibitory laws.

Moved by Mr. James Gray, seconded by Mr R. S. Libby, and Resolved,—That the following gentlemen be a Committee to meet together on Tuesday, 15th day of September next, in this hall, and then issue a circular, summoning a Union Convention of leading Temperance men of this Riding to meet at the Town Hall, in the Village of Millbrook, to nominate a candidate in the interests of Temperance at the ensuing election for the Legislative Assembly, namely: Messieurs John Read, C. Quinlan, James Gray, P. R. Randall, Aaron Choate, Wm. Bett, J. McLean, Wm. Russel, Wm. McGuire, J. Gardiner, Archibald Woods, —Carr, Drs. Corbett and Might, and Rev. Messrs. Browning, Mitchell, and Barker.

Moved by Mr. P. R. Randall, seconded by Mr. J. Hooper, and Resolved,—That this meeting recommend that said Committee adopt the following basis of representation at the Convention, viz.: "Each Temple and Division to send two delegates, and each municipality to send at least five delegates, who are abstainers, and to be selected at an open meeting held at some central place in the municipality."

It was then moved, seconded, and resolved, that the Minutes be published, and five hundred copies circulated in the Riding, after which the meeting adjourned.

PARIS GREEN.—Parties while rising potatoes should be careful not to throw the tops, if they have been dusted with Paris green, where cows can get at them. Many valuable animals in Guelph have been poisoned in this way.

The Menonites who went to Manitoba are highly pleased with the land of their reservation, and also much struck with the liberality of the Government shown in the grant of a pre-ement right in addition to a Homestead for each settler. The probabilities now are that the Province will obtain the settlement of the whole number of 40,000 of these interesting and industrious people.

Information has reached the Dominion Government of the formation of an illegal trading company which has erected a fort at a point within Canadian territory in the North west. Their trade is of the most atrocious character and is calculated to demoralize the wild tribes and create Indians wars. Col. French, who had arrived at last accounts 220 miles west of Dufferin, will have to deal with these outlaws. He reports his force in excellent condition.

THE POLAR AND TROPHICAL WORLDS."

The following additional testimonials have been received of this popular work:

Burglars.

The Free Press says:—That early last Thursday morning, burglars entered the residence of J. B. Taylor, New Edinburgh, and took $1,000 worth of plate. They entered by a window that was slightly fastened. They made a complete job, not leaving a fork behind them.

North Monaghan Council.

We have been requested to state that there will be a meeting of the North Monaghan Council on Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock, in the Town Hall, to discuss the time and way of letting contracts in connection with the expenditure of the Municipal Loan Fund Money, coming to the Township. We have been further requested to state that all ratepayers interested in the proposed works or repairs are invited to attend the meeting.

Asphodel Taxes.

The Register says:—"At the meeting of our Township Council on Saturday last, the rate of assessment for the ensuing year was levied. The County and Township rate was fixed at eighteen mills, and the rate for S. S. No. 8 at about 30 mills on the dollar, making a total of 48 mills, an increase of 3½ mills over the rate of last year. Our taxes are now very high, and on the increase; therefore some steps ought to be taken by those who have it in their power to decrease them."

Great Pic-Nic of the Season.

The townspeople, appreciating the effort of the Wesleyan Methodist's in erecting a magnificent church on George sreet, have determined to assist in the enterprise by joining in a large pic-nic to Stoney Lake on next Wednesday. The tickets for the round trip are $1; proceeds to be applied towards the Building Fund. We hope the people of Peterboro will show their Catholic spirit in going to this pic-nic. The railway and steamboat authorities have generously arranged so that the proceeds will be in aid of the church. Let none stay at home thinking there will be plenty without him, when arrangements are made to carry a large number. The train will start at 8 a. m., on Wednesday morning.

Washburn's Last Sensation.

The Rink last night was again crowded with an audience composed of the leading people of the city, who went away from the hall throughly well satisfied with the entertainment provided for them by Mr. Washburn. A larger number of persons have seldom been assembled in the Rink, and a more enthusiastic auditory could scarcely be found. Each act was perfect, and each artiste received the applause really well deserved. The St. Felix children did a most charming ballad performance, and taking what they did last night as a criterion, old play goers predict for them a most successful career in the profession. Altogether the entertainment was a first-class one, and to-night Mr. Washburn gives an entire change of performances, and we believe it is a good one. Those who want to have a really pleasant night's enjoyment should not fail to put in an appearance. Mr. Campbell, the business agent, is entitled to credit for the excellent manner in which the arrangements especially inside the hall were managed. There was no crowd and no confusion.—Ottawa Free Press.

Useful Invention.

On the 12th inst., to witness a trial of a new paddle wheel for steamers, invented by Mr. E. Bentham, of this town. The wheel is intended to do away with the back water, with which the wheels now in use have to contend, and we are of the opinion that the inventor has succeeded in his object. The wheel is exceedingly simple, and of as easy and cheap construction as those now in use. By getting rid of the back water, the inventor claims that the saving in the motive power thus obtained will be added to the propelling power of his wheel, and that the result will be much greater speed of the vessel, and a greater saving of fuel labor and expense. We are inclined to think, so far as we have been able to judge by the trial above referred to, that the expectations of the inventor will be realized. If this be so, then this new wheel must come into immediate and general use. It is admirably adapted for canals, as there is but little disturbance of the water, and consequently there will be little or no injury to the banks. The inventor claims that the propelling force of his wheel can be largely increased without any drawback, by means which he will impart at the proper time. As soon as patents are obtained the inventor proposes to place the wheel upon one of the large lake steamers, and upon the Erie canal.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, August 24, 1874.

The Council met.

Present his worship the Mayor, in the Chair, and Messrs Toole, Rutherford, Dixon, Robertson, Dunne, Paterson, Romaine, Helm, Cahill, and Hamilton.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications were read from W.H. Scott, Town Solicitor, as to a statement made before the Council in the case of Donnelly vs Cummings. Received.

From Dr. O'Sullivan tendering his resignation as physician to the small pox patients. Received.

From J. W. Fitzgerald complaining of the state of Smith St., and asking for repairs thereon. Referred to the street and bridge committee.

From Wm. Montgomery asking to be re-embursed for work done on Dalhousie street, referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

A Circular from the Babcott Manufacturing Company, was read and received.

The clerk read and received a certificate to the council, of the approval by the Ratepayers of the By-Law submitted to them on Friday 14th inst., to grant a bonus of $100,000 to the Huron and Quebec Railway.

The return of expenditure since the last meeting was also submitted by the clerk.

Accounts from McKee & Davidson, $66,20, Sundries for Hospital $15 57; George Hilliard, $1022,99; John Doharty $27,90; all were referred to the Finance committee, except Mr. Doharty's account, which was referred to the Fire department.

Mr. Romaine as chairman of the special committee appointed by the Council at the last meeting of the Council, on the petition of E. Moir, Managing Director of the Auburn Woolen Mill Company, read and submitted a report which was received and left over for discussion on Thursday evening.

On motion of Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Toole was added to the Finance Committee.

On motion of Mr. Mr. Romaine, it was agreed that the council meet on Thursday evening to discuss the report as above.

A by-law was introduced and passed providing for the expenditure of the Municipal Loan Fund, from portion of South Monaghan and Douro, setting it a part for building a Bridge at Judge Dennistoun's.

Mr. Rutherford was anxious that the matter of Hose Tower and Engine House be disposed of, and moved that the clause of the last report of the Fire Committee be adopted recomending the purchase of Sharp's pound, on which to erect an engine House and Hose Tower. This was left over.

On motion of Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Paterson, the Street and Bridge Committee were instructed to have put down two short crossways of Stone on George Street, where they think best for a trial of the merits of Stone Crossways.

The Council then adjourned.

SAD DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

A YOUNG LADY ACCIDENTLY SHOT BY HER BROTHER.

Yesterday morning considerable excitement was caused by a rumor that on the previous evening a young lady, daughter of Rev. Edwin Day, of the Holy Trinity Church, had been shot by her brother, and upon a reporter visiting the residence of the reverend gentlemen, it was found that such was indeed the case, but that the occurrence had been purely accidental. The facts will be best understood by a perusal of the evidence given at the inquest, which was held by Dr. De La Hooke yesterday afternoon:—

Walter Henry Day said—Deceased was my sister; while lying ill in my own room last evening she came to me about 7 o'clock and I suggested that I should be moved into her room. She did so and she, I and my little brother Charlie sat talking for about an hour. She and he then went over to my room to make my bed. After they had been there a few minutes I heard a bang, which I did not take very much notice of, as it was not at all loud, and I was more than half asleep. After a few seconds my brother charlie made some noise, which attracted my attention. I asked him what was the matter and he said he had fired off the gun and hit Mary. I then rushed into the room., and found my sister lying in a pools of blood. I raised up her head but found no life left. I then rushed down stairs after my brother Charlie. We both went back to the room together, and I put on some clothes I and my brother Charlie both went down stairs closing the door after us. A crowd being collected round the door, I went to one of them up to Mr. Eddie's house, and told them what had happened. I then went straight back, but several were standing round the door, outside the fence, amongst them Dr Berryman, whom I asked if he had been up stairs. He said he had and found the young lady was dead.

Charles Edwin Day; sworn, said—The deceased was my sister. Last night, at about eight o'clock, I and my sister went into my brother's room. While my sister was making the bed I took up the gun and said to her in fun, "Do you want to see me shoot you?" She did not take any notice of it. I then cocked the gun without looking at it, and pulled the gun up to my shoulder and fired it off, thinking the hammer would only just click. I saw the charge hit my sister on the head. I was not two or three yards away from her, and did not take any aim. I was so frightened that for some seconds I did not know what to do. My brother Walter then called out to me, and I said, "Oh! Walter, I've shot her. He then said to me "Run across the road to Miss Jarvis' house and call Dr Ledyard." I went, but Miss Jarvis was not in,

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtue of its own. Eminent physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed preparations of greater power and combining effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by sufferinr and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious choile, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

PROSTATION, resulting from the effects of the intense heat of the summer months, is dr-ipooting cases of so many of the diseases peculiar to hot weather. The stomach partaking of the loss of vitality pervading the whole system, is unable to complete digestion the food passing undissolved through the bowels, irritates the lining membrane, and Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, and when prevailing Asiatic Cholera, may be excited. Attention to diet, moderate exercise, bathing and regular habits must be observed. To establish the vital forces and prevent incipient and epidemics, Dr. Hunter's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is unquestionably reliable, as it invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies material for generating nerve force.

Choice Poetry.

TIRED.

BY WILL ROSSE DAVIS.

The bells of day ring out over,
And the flights of twilight fall,
The birds weary in the wildwood
Is weary, weary sounds call;
The hand that is tired and worn
And restlessly longing for rest,
Finds a shield in the shadows of home,
Calm as gold clothed sun in the west.

Our life is a wonder of questions,
With mysterious ins and outs,
With its ebb, determined function,
And its many dim dull doubts.
But the lights of the day are fading—
So gradually overhead,
That we see with prophetic vision,
Our ideals of happiness.

As the traveller wors and wea—
e gladly hastens the flagging day,
For the f-st glim. ering of rest he,
That tells him rest is nigh,
So we feel the weight that is pressing,
And purposeless and weary and sore,
But we feel when twilight falleth,
A peace never felt before.

Tired! Tired! and yet yearning!
Hind sympathy would have now;
A voice, with pleasure is needing,
And tears are bending our brow.
Angels, in numberless numbers,
Are waiting to hear us sorry,
Where the tired and weary are resting—
When twilight is robbed of day.

The Qu'Appelle.

There is a tradition among the Indians concerning the Qu'Appelle: A solitary Indian was coming down the river in his canoe many summers ago, when one day he heard a loud voice calling to him: he stopped and listened, and again heard the same voice as before. He shouted in reply, but there was no answer. He searched everywhere, but could not find the tracks of any one. From that time forth it was called the "Who Calls River."

The Qu'Appelle flows into the Assiniboine, distant from this city about two hundred and twenty miles. The great pow-wow will probably take place at the mouth of the Qu'Appelle. In Fleming's Itinerary the following distances are given: Fort Garry to White Horse Plains, 53 miles; thence to Rat Creek Camp, 37 miles; thence to Three Creeks, 24; thence to Camp Assiniboine, 40; thence to Salt Lake Camp, 41; thence to Qu'Appelle, 45, making a total of 220 miles.

The Qu'Appelle River and valley have a remarkable peculiarity. The river is 270 miles long, course nearly due east and west, and at one time is united the South Branch of the Saskatchewan with the Assiniboine River. The valley is from half to a mile and a half wide, and from 110 to 320 feet deep; it is a gigantic canal which has been excavated in ages long since past by the hand of Nature. Since then the South Branch has made a new outlet, and, in place of continuing eastward, its general course thus far, it flows northerly 250 miles and unites with the North Branch at the Grand Forks, from which it proceeds in a combined stream easterly to Lake Winnipeg. The valley contains two streams, which take their origin in some small lakes at the highest part, distant but twelve miles from the South Branch of the Elbow; from this the Qu'Appelle, or Calling River, runs easterly to the Assiniboine, and the short stream, "The River that Turns," flows to the Elbow. The elevation of the highest part of the valley above the level water in the Saskatchewan is but 84 feet, and 73 to 78 at spring floods; at but twelve miles distant from this there is a gradual descent of 13 inches per mile to the Assiniboine.

Prof. Hind, who surveyed this thoroughly, says that it is practicable to turn a part or the whole of the water of the South Branch through by this valley and thus make an unbroken water communication to the foot of the Rocky Mountains, which would be at least 400 miles shorter than that at present employed, and would be open less than a month earlier in spring, while passing through a splendid agricultural district the whole way, and would avoid the rapids on the other route at which portages have to be made. He says that there is one place where a dam could be built across the South Branch sufficiently high to throw the water into the old channel or a cut might be made that would greatly diminish the height required. The water has flowed naturally by this route within the memory of the Indians and hence the reason for the name of the short stream, "The River That Turns," as it has been known to flow both into the South Branch, and also to convey the waters of this stream into the Assiniboine.—The Manitoban Free Press.

Formosa.

ITS GEOGRAPHY, CONDITION, ETC.

Formosa, the scene of present difficulties between the Chinese and Japanese Governments, is an island of 15,000 square miles in the China Sea. It is about 245 miles long, and 100 miles wide at its broadest part. The whole coast of the island facing the mainland, and a considerable distance inland, belongs to China, and forms part of the province of Fokien, from which it is distant about ninety miles. The remainder of the island is occupied by aborigines. A ridge of snow-capped volanic mountains called Muh Ran Shan, the highest summits of which are supposed to be 12,000 feet above the level of the sea, intersect the island from north to south. The declivities are clothed with luxuriant trees and pasture grounds, which give the island a very beautiful appearance, from whence is derived its Portuguese name signifying "beautiful." On the west side of the island a number of mountain streams run down to the sea, and the soil on the mountain slopes is extremely fertile and well cultivated. The trade in rice, which is of superior quality, between Formosa and the main land, employs about three hundred vessels. Wheat, millet, maize, sugar-cane, oranges, pine-apples, guavas, cocoanuts, areca-nuts, peaches, apricots, figs, grapes, pomegranates, chestnuts, and vegetables of various kinds, are also grown in large quantities. In addition to rice; camphor, salt, sulphur, maize, fruits, timber and other produce are exported from the island. The commerce of Formosa is confined chiefly to Fokien, and a few other eastern provinces of China, from which it imports green tea, raw silk, and woolen and cotton stuffs. The domestic animals of the island are buffaloes, horses, asses, goats, sheep, hogs, and cattle, and the eastern part is said to be infested with tigers, leopards and wolves. In 1848 a large area of coal of excellent quality was discovered near the village of Kilon, in the north eastern part of the Island. The aborigines, who are slenderly shaped, and of olive complexion, wear long hair and blacken their teeth. They are divided into different tribes, have no written language, and are said to be honest in their dealings, but revengeful when provoked. The Chinese portion of the Island is divided into four districts, and the capital is named Tai-wan-foo. The Chinese did not know of the existence of Formosa until the year 1403, and their authority over it was not established until 1683, since which time it has progressed satisfactorily under their rule. Large quantities of land have been purchased by speculators, who encourage emigration from the mainland, and offer considerable advantages to settlers. The wealthy colonists are dissatisfied with the Chinese Government, to which they are a fruitful source of uneasiness from the frequency of their revolts. Literature flourishes on the island, and many of the residents of Fokien send their sons thither to be educated. Formosa has few available harbors, and the southern channel is remarkable for its violent northern winds and heavy seas. The Dutch became masters of the island in 1632, but were expelled by the famous pirate Coxinga, whose followers ruled until the Chinese obtained possession. The climate of Formosa is salubrious, and its population is estimated at 2,500,000.

Education in Europe.

An Italian journal contains some interesting reports as to the educational condition of different European countries:

In Saxony education is compulsory; all inhabitants of the kingdom can read and write, and every child attends school.

In Switzerland all can read and write, and have got a good primary education. Education is obligatory, and greater efforts in proportion to its means are made to impart primary instruction than in any other European nation.

In all the smaller States of North Germany education is compulsory, and all the children attend school.

In Denmark the same is true. All the Danes, with a few exceptions, can read, write, and keep accounts. The children all attend school until the age of fourteen.

In Prussia almost all the children attend school regularly, except in some of the eastern districts. An officer who had charge of the military education of the Landwehr, in twelve years had only met three young soldiers who could neither read nor write. An inquiry having been instituted, it was found that those three were the children of settlers, who had been born on the river, and had never settled in any place. Instruction is obligatory.

In Baden every child receives instruction; and in Wurtemburg there is not a peasant or a girl of the lowest class, or a servant in an inn, who cannot read, write, and account correctly: every child goes to school, instruction being obligatory.

In Holland public assistance is taken away from every indigent family that neglects to send their children to school. It is estimated that the number of illiterate is three per cent.

In Norway almost all the Norwegians can read, write, and account passably well. Instruction obligatory.

In Bavaria, among 100 conscripts, but seven whose education was incomplete, or entirely wanting, were found. Instruction obligatory.

France, with its twenty-three illiterate conscripts in a hundred, comes next, and is followed by Belgium, Italy, Austria, Greece, Spain, Portugal, in order named.

Food for Pigs.

There is no doubt in our mind of the benefit from feeding crude carbonaceous matter to swine when they are kept in close pens. The avidity with which hogs eat rotten wood is well known. Charcoal is but another form. The utility of feeding wood has long been recognised. We some years since substituted the ordinary Western stove coal with the best results, where from two hundred to five hundred hogs were kept in close pens, on the refuse of city hotels. Something of the kind seems as necessary to them as salt does to herbiverous animals. We have known them to consume a pound in the course of a day, and again they would not seek the coal for some time. Just what the particular use coal is in the animal economy, is not so easy to answer. Swine are especially liable to scrofulous and inflammatory diseases. Carbon, in the shape of coal, is an antiseptic, and the probability is that it acts in this way in purifying the blood.

Facts for Farmers.

If you invest your money in tools and leave them exposed to the weather, it is equal to loaning money to a spendthrift without security—a dead loss in both cases.

If you invest your money in books and never read them, it is the same as putting your money into a bank and never drawing either the principal or interest.

If you invest your money in fine stock and do not feed and protect them and protect them and properly care for them, it is the same as dressing your wife in a silk dress to do kitchen work. If you invest your money in choice fruits and do not geard and give them a chance to grow and their value, it is the same as putting a good hand into the field with poor tools to work with.

If you invest your money in a good farm and do not cultivate it well, it is the same as marrying a good wife and so enslaving and cheating her as to crush her energies and break her heart.

If you invest your money in a fine house and do not cultivate your mind and taste so as to adorn it with intelligence and refinement, it is as if you were to wear broad cloth and a silk hat to mill

If you invest your money in fine clothes and not wear them with dignity and ease, it is as if a ploughman were to sit a jeweller's table to make and adjust hair springs.

If you invest your money in strong drink, it is the same as turning hungry hogs into a cornfield—ruin will follow in both cases.

If you invest your money in every new wonder that flaming circulars proclaim, it is the same as buying tickets at a lottery office where there are ten blanks to one prize.

The following is a simple method of rendering water almost as cold as ice. Let the jar, pitcher, or vessel used for water be surrounded with one or more folds or coarse cotton kept constantly wet. The evaporation of the water will carry off the heat from inside and reduce it to a freezing point. In India and other tropical regions where ice cannot be procured this is common. Let every mechanic or laborer have at his place of employment two pitchers thus provided with lids or covers, the one to contain water for drinking, the other for evaporation, and he can always have a supply of cold water in warm weather.

Drink as little as possible in warm weather. This simple rule will prevent almost all discomfort from heat. It is the sturtorous people who go about puffing and blowing like steam-engines and taking in about as large an amount of fuel at every street corner who complain, probably suffer more from the summer warmth, and are most liable to be attacked by summer disorders. Incessant thirst is indeed partly by habit, partly by the quantity of salted food—bacon mainly—which is used during the warm weather. Abstain from salt food, eat fresh meat, fruit and vegetables, and drink as little as possible. So will you be happy.

HOUSE TO RENT.

The new brick dwelling house, lately occupied by me, in the Village of Ashburnham, is to rent. It is in excellent order. Possession will be given about the 1st of October. Apply to

GEORGE BROWN.

Ashburnham, July 24th, 1874. 21-tf.

Johnson's Force Pump and Fire Extinguisher.

For cheapness, durability, ease of working, and general efficiency, the above little article cannot be surpassed. It can be used as a PORTABLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, a splendid article for washing Carriages or Windows or by changing the nozzle it can be used by a Lady or a Child to water a flower bed in the genteelest and most beautiful manner. Only a bucket or tub of water required. No chemicals used. It is claimed for this Extinguisher that the stream of water thrown from it appears to be fluffy as different in the results as the said thrown from a Babcock Extinguisher. Every house should have one. The beginning of a fire frequently occurs in such a place that it cannot be reached by water thrown from a pail or dipper, this Pump will throw a fair stream of water 45 ft. horizontally, or will drench a wall to the height of 35 ft.

ROBERT A. BROWN, Agent.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURE VEGETABLE FAMILY MEDICINE

Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

MONTREAL, 3rd February, 1874.

MESSRS. FOSTER, WELLS & BRINLEY:

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to acknowledge cheque from the Travellers' Insurance Company, for seven hundred and fifty dollars, in full of my claim for indemnity, under Policy No. 206,331; resulting from injuries received the 28th of August last. In bearing testimony to the prompt manner in which the Company have settled my claim, I consider it a duty as well as a pleasure, to recommend Accident Insurance as one of the most valuable systems of underwriting of the present day, and the Travellers as a Company deserving of the highest confidence and enjoying a reputation for solidity, promptness and liberality.

I remain, yours truly,

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine has anything won so widely and deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as has Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the civilized men it has risen higher and higher in reputation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various complaints of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While it yields to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for confirmed consumption, and in dangerous affections of the throat and lungs, as a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where this disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound healthy the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, in order to assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and it never fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Iodine, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is powerless to injure any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the sparsely settled districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the [illegible] we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residents in, or travelling through unhealthy localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy action.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

THE REASONS WHY

LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's

CELEBRATED

Perfected spectacles,

AND EYE GLASSES,

have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:

1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.

2nd. Because they will restore sight abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.

3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.

4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.

5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.

6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

Choice Poetry.

THE LOTUS PLANTER.

BY THEODORE TILTON.

A Brahmin on a lotus pod
Once wrote the holy name of God.

Then, planting it, he asked in prayer
For some new fruit, unknown and fair.

A Slave near by, who bore a load,
Fell fainting on the dusty road.

The Brahmin, pitying, straightway ran
And lifted up the fallen man.

The dead scarce done, he stood aghast
At touching one beneath his caste.

"Behold," he cried, "I am unclean:
My hands have slasped the vile and mean."

God saw the shadow on his face,
And wrought a miracle of grace.

The buried seed arose from death
And bloomed and fruited at His breath.

The stock bore up a leaf of green,
Whereon these mystic words were seen:

"FIRST COUNT ALL MEN OF EQUAL CASTE—THEN COUNT YOURSELF THE LEAST AND LAST."

The Brahmin with bewildered brain,
Behold the will of God writ plain.

Transfigured then in sudden light,
The slave stood sacred in his sight!

Thereafter in the Brahmin's breast
Abode God's peace, and he was blest.

Canadian Pacific Railway.

The following is the specification on which contractors for the Pembina Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway have to tender:

SPECIFICATION.

1. The work at present proposed to be executed is the grading of the road bed of the branch railway intended to run from the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to some point on the International boundary east of Pembina.

2. Until the point of intersection with the main line of the Pacific Railway and with the railway projected south of the southern boundary of Manitoba be determined, the work on the branch will begin on the allowance for road between Townships I and 2 and terminate at the allowance for road between Townships 9 and 10, lying east of Red River.

3. It is intended that the branch shall be located from a point a little to the west of the centre of the southerly side of Township No. 2 in the Third Range east, and extend across Townships Nos. 2, 3 and 4, to a point near the line between the Third and Fourth Ranges; thence to extend due northerly across Townships 5, 6, 6, 0 and 9, to the allowance for road between Townships 9 and 10.

4. The work is divided into two sections, viz: The southern section embracing that portion of the branch passing through the Townships Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 4—in length about twenty-four miles. 2. The central section embracing that portion of the branch passing through Townships Nos. 6, 7, 8, and 9—in length about twenty-four miles.

5. The work now to be placed under contract is the excavation and grading required in the formation of the road bed, or so much thereof as the Minister of Public Works may determine, within the limits of the two sections referred to. It will consist chiefly of earthwork obtained from side ditches and borrowing pits, and placed as may be directed on the line to be staked out.

6. The road bed will be raised above the general level of the prairie to an average height of thirty or forty inches as circumstances may require.

7. At all stream crossings, openings will be left as shall be directed for such structures as may be found necessary, but the present contract will not embrace such structures.

8. On some portions of the prairie there are occasional groves of light poplar, willow, or other timber; whenever the branch line crosses any such groves they will be cleared to the width required. This class of work will be such trifling that it will not be necessary to embrace clearing in contracts for grading.

9. The width of road bed at formation of level shall be 18 feet. Any line cutting that may be necessary must be formed to a sufficient width to admit of ditches on each side, of such dimensions as may be directed. The slopes of embankments and excavations will generally be made one and a half horizontal, to one perpendicular.

10. The material to be placed on the road bed must be approved by the engineer.

11. The road bed must be raised to such sufficient height and width in embankments as will allow for the subsidence of the same to the inbed grave level, and the whole shall be trimmed up by the contractor before it be finally taken off his hands, and left at such heights, levels, widths and forms as intended by the engineer and as he may direct.

12. A beam of at least ten feet shall be left between the bottom of slopes of embankments and all side ditches, or borrowing pits.

13. All side ditches shall be made continuous, so as to effectually drain off water, and in cases where the flow of water would at any season of the year be so great as to create a wash as ultimately to endanger road bed, they shall be formed at such a sufficiently safe distance from the line of railway as the engineer shall direct.

14. The work shall invariably be measured in excavation and paid for by the cubic yard as measured.

15. In commencing work at any point, the contractor must be subject to the direction of the engineer in charge, so that the latter may have accurate measurement made.

16. The price for excavation given in tender shall be the total price for excavating, loading, moving and depositing all material, excepting only when the haul of earth used in forming road bed shall exceed 400 feet. In the event of the haul exceeding 400 feet, an allowance of 1 cent per yard wherever 100 feet of haul over and above 400 feet will be made.

17. The prices referred to in last clause, viz., the price in tender in each case and fixed rate or price for hauling material more than 400 feet shall be understood to cover the furnishing of all labor, material, power, and plant, the dressing of slopes, the cost of finishing up work in a workmanlike manner all contingencies connected with the contract, and the completing of everything under the contract in accordance with the directions and to the satisfaction of the engineer.

18. Tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signature and occupation and place of residence of each member of the same.

19. For due fulfilment of the contract satisfactory security will be required on real estate or by deposit of money, public or municipal securities, or bank stock, to the amount of $5,000 for each section.

20. Ninety per cent only of progress estimates will be paid monthly until the completion of the work.

21. To each tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become securities for the carrying out of these conditions as well as the performance of the work embraced in the contract.

22. The works are to be commenced immediately after the person or persons whose tenders have been accepted, shall have entered into the contract, and must be proceeded with in such a manner as to satisfy the Department of Public Works.

Merit vs Mere Pedigree.

If all that is to be aimed at is obsequiously to copy the herd of some dead breeder who earned a reputation, it would seem more rational to adopt the dead man's method rather than to scramble for what are left of his tools in the condition that he left them. Both the national benefactors, the late Messrs. Bates and Booth, tried with such powers as they had, (and these were large), to establish a distinct type of shorthorn. Both succeeded, and the moulds they left behind are deservedly much prized. But it should be the object of the admirers of each to reproduce the forms of the animals which won distinction for their original breeder, and not to reproduce pedigrees on paper, varying as little as possible from those which their fore-runner left. It is quite well known that the animals which most resemble the original Duchesses have been found in tribes crossed with Duchess blood, but not of Duchess descent, and that cows reproducing the model of Bracelet and the Blossoms, or the four sister Queens have occurred at intervals in very obscure families which have had the advantage of crosses of Killerby or Warlaby blood. Such re appearances are more to the credit than animals which, having a pedigree almost a facsimile of original Bates or Booth pedigrees, are yet weedy or unsightly. Yet the tendency at the recent sales is to encourage young beginners to neglect the former, and to half ruin one another in the frantic effort to restrict the number of the possessors of the latter. It is a matter of common talk that at some not far distant auctions the best butchers' beasts have scarcely made butchers' prices.

No doubt for several purposes 'pure' animals have a special value. But it must not be forgotten that the result of 'pure' breeding has been that some most valuable families are fewer in number now than they were ten years ago. Is this a recommendation to land occupiers to set up for keeping 'pure' herds? The object of the land is to feed the people; and the really good stock are they which year by year contribute the largest proportion of the best food for English families.

There is a tendency in much that is said and written about short-horns to obscure the fact that no breed when really in a natural condition, will milk longer, feed quicker, or give more saleable carcasses than good short-horns. The Irish and Scotch farmers, both of whom of late years have bred with greater intelligence than their English brethren, have never joined in the hunt after this 'pure' will-o'-the wisp, as we must needs regard it. Messrs. Cruikshank offer every year, at Sittyton, not far short of a hundred yearling short-horns, and eager competitors buy them at remunerative prices to use them to produce beef. Their tribes are not pure, and don't wear out. The Dublin yearling show of bulls is larger still, and all, to our gain, find occupation, but not in 'pure' herds. The English press should encourage the English farmer to do likewise, and not to join in flattering the owners of 'pure' animals in the esoteric sense of the word—which produce a good many more paragraphs than beefsteaks.

Don't be Discouraged.

Don't be discouraged, if in the outset of life, things do not go on smoothly. It seldom happens that the hopes we cherish of the future are realized. The path of life, in the prospect appears smooth and level, but when we come to travel it, we find it all up hill, and generally rough. The journey is a laborious one, and whether poor or wealthy, high or low, we shall find it so to our disappointment, if we have built on any other calculation. To endure cheerfully what must be, and to elbow our way as easily as we can, hoping for little, striving for much, is perhaps the true plan. But don't be discouraged if occasionally you slip by the way, and the neighbors tread over you a little; in other words, don't let a failure or two dishearten you; accidents happen; miscalculations will some times be made; things will often turn out differently from our expectations, and we may be sufferers. It is worth while to remember that fortune is like the skies in April, sometimes clouded and sometimes clear and favorable, and it would be folly to think of never again seeing the sun because to-day it is stormy; so it is equally unwise to sink into despondency when fortune frowns, since, in the common course of things, she may be surely expected to smile again. And again, don't be discouraged if you are deceived in the people of the world; it often happens that men wear borrowed characters as well as borrowed clothes, and sometimes those who have long stood fair before the world are rotten at the core. From sources such as these you may be most unexpectedly deceived, and you will naturally feel sore; but to those you will become accustomed; if you fare as most people do, they will lose their novelty before you grow gray, and you will learn to trust men cautiously, and examine their characters more closely before you allow them great opportunities to injure you. Don't be discouraged under any circumstances. Go steadily forward. Rather consult your own conscience than the opinions of men, though the last is not to be disregarded. Be industrious, be frugal, be honest—deal in perfect kindness with all who come in your way. Exercise a neighborly and obliging spirit in your whole intercourse, and if you do not prosper as rapidly as any of your neighbors, depend upon it you will be as happy.

A German Burlesque.

The Germans are not considered a humorous people; but a Berlin paper has the following very good burlesque on the American tendency to vast enterprises: The latest American progress in building will be the "Mammoth Hotel," soon to be erected in Chicago. The enormous hotel is to have a frontage of three English miles long, and a depth of six miles; the height of seventy-seven stories will measure 3,480 feet from the ground floor to the roof. The hotel will have no stairs, but five hundred balloons will always be ready to take visitors up to their rooms. No room waiters are to be employed, but visitors will be served by a newly patented automatic, put up in every bedroom, who will do all shaving, shampooning, etc., to the guests, by a very simple and ingenious mechanism. Supposing the guest requires hot water, the automatic will be able to call down the pipe, "A bucket of water to room No. 1,002,107," and the water will be up in seven seconds by a patented elevator. Half an hour before table d'hote, instead of the ringing of bells, a gun—twenty-four pounder—will be fired at each floor to call the guests to get ready for their meals. The tables in the dining-rooms will measure four miles each, attendance to be performed by twelve waiters on horseback on either side of the table. Music during table d'hote will be played—gratis—by eight bands of twenty-seven men each. For the convenience of visitors a railway will be built on each floor, as well as telegraph offices. The price of one bedroom will be from one dollar to ten dollars. The cost of this building is estimated to be $80,000,000. The billiard room will contain nine hundred American tables, ninety-nine French, and one English table, and as most of the visitors are expected to be Americans, the billiard room will be fitted out with a spittoon of one hundred feet in circumference.

THE LIBEL of the "NATIONAL.

The application of Hon. Geo. Brown for a Nili Nisi, in the case of Brown vs. Thompson & Smallpiece for publishing a libel against Mr. Brown, took place before Messrs. Justice Haggarty, Justice Guynne and Justice Galt.

Hon. J. Hilliard Cameron and Mr. Edgar appearing for Mr. Brown, M. C. Cameron and Mr. Harrison for defendants. Mr. Brown put in affidavits denying the charges and declaring them false, malicious and utterly without foundation.

The publishers of the National try to justify their course by saying their articles were in the interest of the public, and with a view to counteract certain articles in the Globe against Dr. Sangster. The Judges appear to have been decidedly of the opinion that because the Globe might have libeled Sangster, the National had no legal right to libel the Globe, and the court said they had no more to do with Dr. Sangster in this case than they had with the Mikado of Japan. Judgement was reserved.

THE AUBURN WOOLEN MILL.

As our readers are aware, the Auburn Woolen Mill Company are asking the Town to relieve them of some of the conditions of the By-law passed some time since, granting them $10,000 of a bonus on certain conditions, namely, that they increase the mill to a "Ten Sett Mill" and employ 200 hands yearly.

The Company have enlarged their buildings to the required size, and have prepared their shaftings and water power. They have also steam power for dyeing, &c., and are working at the rate of 6½ setts, or what they say is equivalent to a 7½ sett mill. They have spent in building $37,000, and expended on machinery purchased in town $6,000, and also on machinery imported $67,000, and we are assured that they are this year paying at the rate of about $18,000 more than last year—employing 124 to 130 hands. Mr. Moir managing director, stated in committee on Friday evening last, that only some additional looms and carding apparatus were wanting to have complied with the original by-law. But one draw back was that if they had the machinery, there are not houses around the place for the accommodation of an increased number of hands, until erected.

They ask now, on the grounds that they have done so much, and further, because of the drawbacks caused by the death of two of the former Company, causing delay in the formation of a new company in time to be able to carry out their part of the conditions, that they be permitted to retain $2,500 and so be allowed an abatement of their whole taxes for ten years, and the town to be relieved of paying the remaining $7,500 not yet paid. An additional reason used by them is that if in Douro their taxes would be a mere trifle compared with what they will be in the town.

Taking these things into consideration, and also the fact that that portion of the town does not receive proportionate improvements to the taxes paid on account of their separation by the river, the committee were of opinion that it would be just to allow them a reduction of taxes for eight years, for which period they would only have to pay $100 a year.

According to Mr. Moir's idea, the Company would have to pay taxes on the old property only; last year this was $397.27. If taxed this year for the whole property they would have to pay about $1,500 of taxes, from that take the $379 or $400 leaves $1,100 of a yearly abatement for 8, or about $8,000; this with what they have got would be a little over the $18,000—to get which they have spent about $100,000, and they employ a largely increased number of hands.

A very large petition was presented to the Council on Monday evening against granting them anything except in the terms of the old by-law, unless after submitting the proposed changes to the people. This is fair enough, as the people would not fail to make every reasonable allowance for the position of the Company, and the difficulties they have encountered in the death of two members of the former firm.

The principle of granting bonuses to companies, except for railway purposes, is not a sound one, and cannot be defended on principles of justice to every ratepayer, but in this case a bonus has been granted. The Company has fulfilled the greater part of the conditions on which the bonus was granted. That portion of Douro has been annexed to the town, and an increased number of hands has been employed, hence there is a semblance of justice to the Company in granting them a reduction of taxes for a few years.

In view, however, of the position taken by some of our citizens, the council could not err in submitting any proposed change to the people who have to pay the taxes, and bear the burden or reap the advantages.

HURON & QUEBEC RAILWAY.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—Any one reading the Report in the Warden's Address, presented to that honorable body—the County Council—at its last Session, would be under the impression that the Council at its Session last June had been mislead as to the above-named railway enterprise, so as to induce them to pass the Report of the Special Committee appointed to confer with Mr. Fowler and the Town Council, on the subject of granting aid to this scheme. The Committee say, that "since last Session the Statutes have come to hand, and it appears from section 23, cap. 47 of the Huron and Quebec Railway Act, that before a By-Law can be submitted, it is neccessary to have a petition signed either by a majority of the Reeves and Deputy Reeves of the Council, or by twenty voters from each Municipality, duly qualified under this Act, and until the Statute is complied with in this respect, your Committee cannot see how a By-Law can be legally submitted." In order to set the matter fairly before the Rate-payers of the County, allow me to give a short statement of the facts as they really exist.

At the June Session of the County Council, of the present year, Mr. John Fowler appeared before the Council, and addressed that body, asking them to submit a By-Law to the Rate-payers of the County, to give a bonus of $150,000 to aid in the construction of the proposed railway, presenting the Council at the same time with several copies of the Railway Act, and stating that it was the intention of the Company to endeavor to form a connection with the Ontario and Quebec Company: failing in this, to apply at the next Session of the Ontario Parliament for power to extend their road to Ottawa. The County Council appointed a Committee, as already stated, and this Committee reported in favor of submitting a By-Law under certain conditions. These conditions having been complied with, eight out of the fifteen members of the Council deliberately repudiate their act of the previous Session, under the plea as stated in the extract of the Report above quoted. If those gentlemen, who are so anxious to guard the By-Law, and have all things done according to law, had taken the trouble to read the 21st and 22nd section of the Huron and Quebec Railway Act, they would have found it to read as follows:

"The said Company may receive from any Government, or from any persons or bodies corporate, municipal or politic, who may have power to make or grant the same, and towards the construction, equipment, or maintainance of the said railway, by way of bonus, gift, or loan in money, or debentures, or other securities for money, or by way of guarantee, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon," and the latter part of section 22 provides that "no such aid shall be given by any Municipal Corporation except after the passing of a By-Law for the purpose, and the adopting of such By-Law by the qualified rate-payers of the Municipality, as provided in the Municipal Acts for the creating of debts." Yet the Committee state in their Report that before a By-Law can be legally submitted by the Council, a majority of the Council must first petition themselves to submit a By-Law, or at least twenty resident freeholders in each of the Municipalities in the County must first present it before a By-Law can legally be submitted. Surely, Mr. Editor, there must be a misunderstanding of the Act by the learned members of the Committee, or am I so obtuse as not to be able to read the 21st section aright?

Now let us look at the result of the final action of the Council in this matter. On Wednesday last the Council had full power to pass a By-Law, imposing such conditions as they thought necessary to suit the interests of both County and Town, because the Managing Director had consented to accept the By-Law presented to the Council for their approval, in which it was provided that the debentures to be issued should remain in the hands of their Treasurer, and only be handed over to the Company as the work progressed. Whereas, should the proper petitions be presented—as I have no doubt they will be—the Council must submit a By-Law within six weeks after the receipt of the said petitions "in the way, and for such an amount, and to the effect petitioned for." This was very strongly pointed out to the Council by the Reeve of Belmont before the final vote was taken; and yet, in view of all this, the Council refused by a majority of one, because the Warden was in favor of submitting the By-Law to the people, the County has been put to the expense of the last Session, and the rate-payers prevented for a time of pronouncing either for or against the By-Law.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

The Board met on Tuesday evening.

Present the Chairman, and Messrs Edmison, Davis, J. M. Smith, Retherford Hilliard A Smith and Edwards.

Mr. Perry put in his books as Secretary Treasurer, and on report of the Finance Committee they were accepted as satisfactory.

The minutes of last meeting not being entered it was agreed to dispense with reading them.

An application from Mr. McKee Teacher, for an increase of salary, was read and referred to the committee on appointments.

Applications to be appointed to the South Ward School were read from Mrs. Hunt, and Miss Leonard, also referred.

The books and papers of the late secretary were referred to Mr. Edwards to see them and report, as they are now being handed over to the new secretary; some of them being in the hands of the Auditors.

The resignation of Miss Stratton was read, no cause being assigned several members expressed their regret, on account of her resignation, and enquired if she could be induced to reconsider it. Understanding that it was not at all likely, the resignation was accepted and the secretary instructed to convey to her an expression of the regret of the Board, on account of her resignation.

Mr. Edmison enquired as to the state of the New Building for the South Ward School.

Mr Rutherford, said he understood that it would be finished in about 2 months, as the contractor had been delayed in getting brick to please the Architect.

At this stage of the meeting there was an irregular discussion in reference to funds to meet the cost of the building, and at the end Messrs Edmison Hilliard, McClelland, and J. M. Smith, were appointed a committee to wait on Council in refsence to obtaining money for the purpose.

Mr. Rutherford begged leave to ask the Principal through the Chairman, if pupils were obliged to take up all the subjects in the different classes whether willing or not.

The Principal said they were obliged to follow the programme provided by the Council of Public Instruction, and there were very few optional subjects, these they were not required to take up unless they were willing to do so.

The Board then adjourned.

TOWN COUNCIL

Monday, August 31, 1874.

The Council met on Monday evening, Present, the Mayor, and Messrs. Hamilton, Cahill, Heim, Romaine, Paterson, Denne, Hopkins, Dixon, Rutherford, and Toole.

The Minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication was read, from the Mayor of Port Hope, informing the Council that the Governor-General would be in Port Hope on Thursday, and that the Council could have an opportunity of presenting to him an address. Received, and the Clerk instructed to respectfully decline the favor under present circumstances.

The Clerk read a Report, showing disbursements for the past week—from 24th to 31st August, $1,074.70.

R. W. Roddy presented a petition, reflecting on Mr. Beavis as Inspector of Licenses. Not received.

Accounts from S. W. Johnston, $14.7½, and D. Henthorn, $23.50, were referred to the Finance Committee.

A petition from J. T. Henthorn and 96 others was read, praying that the petition of the Auburn Woolen Company be not granted, unless submitted to the ratepayers. Received.

Mr. Rutherford reported as Chairman of the Fire Committee, but could not recommend the purchase of any of the "Fire Extinguishers" at present.

Mr. Hamilton, as Chairman of the Small Pox Committee, reported as follows:

REPORT OF SMALL POX COMMITTEE.

The Small Pox Committee beg leave to report to this Council that they are happy to say that the Hospital has been closed, and the inmates are returned to their homes. They have also to report the following accounts, which they find correct, amounting in all to $1,609.48. The lumber in the buildings erected, and some few other things, will reduce the amount.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

P. HAMILTON,
Chairman.

Mr. Denne asked what was the Doctor's bill, and said that he understood the doctor to say at first that as Mr. Cavanagh would have him attend his family, he would pay half the bill

Mr. Hamilton explained that Mr. Cavanagh had given all the mattresses and beds used, and had paid everything else connected with his own family except the doctor's bill.

Mr. Johnston remarked that the brother-in-law of P. Casey had agreed to pay his expenses.

On motion of Mr. Toole, the Report and papers were referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Romaine, Chairman pro tem of the Finance Committee, reported as follows:

REPORT OF FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The Committee on Finance and Assessment in submitting the estimates for the finance year, beg leave to say that they regret to have to recommend a higher rate of taxation than they desire. At the same time they are anxious that the demands upon the Corporation be fairly and fully met. Several causes for the advanced rate can be assigned. First, a deficiency for 1873 of over $5,000 for municipal purposes, then a deficiency of some $3,600 in the school estimates for that year which should have been included in the year's taxation. Then there is the fact of a large portion of the adjoining townships having been added to the town, which, while paying only a comparatively small amount of taxes, require a considerable outlay to say nothing of the general extent and progress of the town, requiring with its growth additional outlays, under the general heads of expenditure.

The school rate for this yerr is unprecedentedly high, caused by the deficiency aforesaid, and by the arrangements sanctioned by the council of last year, of charging to the Public school debentures to the amount of $19,400 which are to be entered in the books of the Commissioners as Public school monies, thereby abating the difficulty and dissatisfaction heretofore experienced in this matter. It is to be remembered that while the Public school ratepayers pay the interest and sinking fund of these debentures, the amount so paid is deducted from the general claims of the Commissioners.

Another source of extra outlay this year is caused by the introduction of the small pox, amongst us involving a large outlay. Your committee while making the necessary provisions for the several items of expenditure in accordance with the estimates are pleased to have a general expression on the part of the council of a determination not to exceed the amount appropriated, which determination, if adhered to, will exhibit a pleasing state of affairs, experienced only once before, of closing the year's account without a deficiency.

After carefully going through the several items and keeping befor them the economy consistent with the efficient conduct of all the affairs of the town, they recommend the following as the estimates for 1874, viz:—

EXPENDITURES.

Administration of Justice	$1,500 00
Assessments	72 42
Charities	1,000 00
Commissioners	3,676 00

Leaves	$36,273 70

To be raised by taxation, and requiring a rate of 17 mills in the dollar, which rate your committee recommend to be adopted by the Council and the requisite amount put on the Collectors Roll, under the separate headings and the proper By-law passed without delay.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. ROMAINE,
Chairman Pro. Com.

August 31, 1874.

On motion the report was received and adopted.

On motion, Mr. Belcher was appointed Engineer for the Town, to be paid when employed.

On motion of Mr. Romaine, seconded by Mr. Paterson, a By-Law was read a first time, to fix the rate for the year.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the By-Law, Mr. Helm in the chair.

On proposition to fix the rate at 17 mills, Mr. Cox asked if the Railway Company did not owe the Town $6,000; and if so, he thought this sum might be used to lessen the rate this year, as owing to the deficiency of last year, the Council had to provide $9,000 over the year's expenses, and he thought if one half were provided for this year, it would be as much as should be done under the circumstances, and while they are expecting a dull season.

Mr. Romaine was anxious that the Council should pay its way every year, and to do this a rate of 17 mills was necessary.

Mr. Rutherford favored a rate of 15 mills, and let the Council get and use the Railway money.

Mr. Edward's drew the attention of the Council to the fact that the Town Trust Commissioners had notified him that they would not lend the Council the money required to build the South Ward School and that the Council should provide for it

Mr. Dixon understood that the Commissioners had got three years interest on the Municipal Loan Fund Debentures, that they had not paid the Government, and he thought that the money belonged to the Council, and not to the Commissioners.

Mr. Toole explained that the money was used to pay outstanding debentures, and that a part of it was now lent to the Council. He further said that last year it would have required a rate of 16½ mills, while only 12 mills were levied, and this deficiency came on this year, together with $3,600 of a mistake in the estimate put in by Mr. O'Beirne.

The rate this year was high but he would vote for the Report as it stood.

Mr. Romaine again defended the Report and thought the Council should sustain it.

On a vote Mr. Cox's motion to fix the rate at 15 mills. Carried.

Messrs Romaine, Paterson, Dixon and Toole voting nay.

The By-law was as amended, and the blank was filled with 15 mill. This will raise $32,011, nearly. The only change is in reference to the deficiency of 1873. The By-law only provides for $980, instead of $5245,78.

There was then considerable discussion over the Street and Bridge expenses. Mr. Toole said the expense of this year did not exceed $4, 835, and would not at its close exceed $6600, and that $1000 in the account belonged to last year. He also said he would expend no more than $6,000, unless ordered by the council.

Mr. Stapleton Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, was heard before the council as to getting 25 leather pails and some few things for the department, and exhibited a pail in use in Rochester, which he recommended. The cost is about $3 a piece.

A Notice of motion was given by Mr. Retherford that he would ask to be permitted to spend $100 in getting those things needed for the department.

The council then adjourned for two weeks.

THE BROWN SLANDER

CRIMINAL ACTION AGAINST THE 'NATION.'

In the Court of Common Pleas, Toronto, on Monday, present,—Mr. Justice Gait, Hon. John Hillyard Cameron, Q. C., moved for a rule nisi for leave to file a criminal information against Thompson and Smallpiece, proprietors of the National newspaper, for libel. In doing so he said:—

I am about to move for leave to file a criminal information on the application of the Hon. Geo. Brown against Thompson and Smallpiece, proprietors and publishers of the National newspaper, published in Toronto. The information is for a libel of a very gross character which has been published against Mr. Brown, and continued in several numbers of that paper, since the sitting of this Court last term. Mr. Brown was anxious to take the very earliest opportunity of appearing before the Court and asking leave to file the information because he must, before the Court could grant it it by the practice which was invariably pursued in such cases, make a clear and distinct statement on oath that the charges on which the application was founded were utterly and absolutely untrue. There had been a persistent and determined attempt on the part of the parties against whom the application is made to continue these libellous attacks from the time when the first paper which contained one of them was issued, and not only in the paper brought before the Court now on affidavit, but in several other issues of the National were statements of this libellous character made. It was known Mr. Brown was one of those appointed by the Ontario Government to advise as to the establishment of the Model Farm near Guelph, and the charge that was complained of as libellous is, that he had placed there and was maintaining at the public expense his illegitimate son, the child of a woman whom he had seduced in Bothwell, and to whom or to whose friends he had paid the sum of $3,000 to hush the matter up. The libel has been so persistently continued, and has been, in consequence of the action of the National newspaper, so extensively circulated and copied in all parts of the country, that I am sure that the Court will not, under the circumstances, hesitate for a moment in granting the application.

Mr. Edgar, who appeared with Mr. Cameron, then read the affidavits and the libellous portion of the paper, and the Court granted the rule asked for.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS.

Having disposed of my Tin and Hardware Business to Mr. HENRY BEST, I would take this opportunity of thanking my old customers for the liberal patronage extended to me during the last twenty-five years. Mr. Best, who recently carried on an extensive Tin and Hardware business in Lindsay, and who thoroughly understands the trade succeeds me. I can confidently recommend him to my former patrons.

The Cornwall Election.

The Cornwall election trial opens to-day, before Chancellor Spragge.

Fall Shows.

The Smith, Monaghan and Ennismore Fall Show will be held this year at Bridgenorth, Thursday, 1st October.

Young Canadians L. O. L.

The regular monthly meeting of the above Lodge, for September, will be held next Tuesday evening, 8th inst.

The Union School.

On passing through the Union School Building during the late rains, we noticed pails and pans set to catch the water coming through the roof. Should this be so?

Cricket.

The Lindsay and Peterboro Clubs played on the Cricket ground on Monday & Tuesday, Peterboro won easily. We did not receive the score up to going to press. We will give a full report next week.

Wesleyan Methodist Pic-Nic.

The Pic-Nic in connection with the W. M. Church, yesterday, was a grand success. It is said that not less than 400 persons went from Town—others would join them at Lakefield.

Auburn Mills Pic-Nic.

The President, Managing Director, several members of the company, the employes had a grand excursion and pic-nic on Saturday last. The day was fine and they had a pleasant time.

Correction.

In copying Dr. Kincaids note in reference to the immediate cause of an infants death in 1872, the compositor made him say "congestion of the brain," it should have been "congestion of the lungs."

The Steamer Whistle-Wing.

Will leave here on Thursday Evening, at 7.30 o'clock and proceed to Harwood, in order to afford an opportunity of seeing the Vice-Regal party and suite, to any who wish to go from Peterboro'.

Bible Christian.

The Anniversary Services in connection with the B. C. Sabbath School, Ashburnham, will be held on Sunday, the 6th instant. There will be a Tea in the Drill Shed opposite the Church on Wednesday, the 2th instant.

Fall Assizes.

This Court will be held this Fall before Hon. Mr. Justice Morrison, as follows:—Brampton, Tuesday, Sept. 22nd; Whitby Monday, Sept. 28th; Cobourg, Monday, October, 5th; Lindsay, Tuesday, October, 13th; Peterborough, Tuesday, October, 20th.

Smith-Sangester.

Professor Goldwin Smith, as it is well known, was elected over his opponent by 77 votes. The vote in the county was for Smith, 16; Sangster, 13. In the town—Smith, 5; Sangster, 2. It was a small vote, with majorities on the right side.

Saw Mill Burned.

Mr. Lawson's steam saw and shingle mill on Pigeon Lake Narrows, was consumed by fire on Monday morning, 24th instant; the origin of the fire is unknown. Mr Lawson will be a loser to a considerable extent; he has an insurance of $4,000 on the whole.

Essex Election.

Mr. Wm. McGregor, member for Essex, has been unseated on the gronnds that an agent paid $8 for teams, with intent of securing the vote of the teamster. As it was done without Mr. McGregor's knowledge, and contrary to his instructions it does not preclude his being a candidate in the approaching election.

The Governor-General.

Will visit Rice Lake on Friday, and after spending a short time there will proceed by way of Hastings to the Iron Mines, Blairton. The Indians are expected to present him with an address; he will also be addressed at Hastings, the Mines and other places. Grip's Cartoon representing him wading through addresses and more pouring in, is being fully realized.

Voters List.

The judges Courts of Revision of the List of voters not yet revised, will take place as follows: South Monaghan, at Centreville on the 11th instant, at 11 o'clock a. m. Town, Monday 14th instant at 11 a. m. An adjournment meeting to decide on reserved cases in Smith and North Monaghan lists, on the 17th instant.

What's the Matter.

The Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee reports several bridges on the creek in need of attending to. He ought to make himself certain what is wrong with them before taking further steps. It would be well to have the opinions of some professional men as to what should be done. It is not now permitted to common mortals to form any opinion on any thing.

Personal.

J. W. Fitzgerald, Esq., has returned to town, and intends again taking up his residence in his old home. We are glad to see him looking well and enjoying good health.

Mr. E. Lawder, is also again in Peterborough. Mr. Dolan having severed his services as cutter. Mr. Lawder is one of our best cutters, and guarantees a perfect fit.

Personal.

Doctor Davies, Professor of Philology, Regents Park College, London, England, paid a visit this week to his brother, Lewis Davies, Esq., of Smith. He left on Tuesday for Rochester, on his way homeward. He visited Canada about fifteen years ago. He appears to be enjoying good health. We understand that the Doctor is at present publishing critical text book on the Greek and Hebrew Languages, and hence his return home through the United States in connection with his new works.

Kinston.

On the 31st ult. an inquest was held in the General Hospital on the body of a dead child, when the following verdict was returned: "We, the Coroner's Jury, sworn to determine the cause of the death of an infant, the body of which we have seen, do believe that the death of the infant was caused by premature delivery, produced by instruments used by David Spencer on the body of Rebecca Thompson, and that the said instruments were used under instructions from Dr. Nash, of Picton, and we hereby recommend that the Coroner do issue his warrant for the arrest of the parties concerned."

The Christain at Work.

Mr. Heathfield is now getting subscribers for an excellent family paper, called the Christain at Work. Is edited by Dr. De Witt Talmage of New York, whose name is a guarantee of style and contents of the paper. The Number before us consists of 20 pages of reading matter of the highest religious tone, both as to the editorial and selected matter. Subscribers to the paper receive choice of two Chromas ready for framing, worth from $1.00 to $1.90. According to the style of chromo selected. As Mr. Heathfield is now calling on our citizens they will have an opportunity of seeing paper and pictures, and selecting. This is the eighth year of the publication of the CHRISTIAN AT WORK. Mr. H. will, no doubt get a large number of subscribers in Town.

Y. M. C. A. Lecture.

The celebrated lecturer Professor Allan Curr, of London England will deliver a lecture under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, in the Music Hall, on Tuesday evening the 8th inst at 8 o'clock, in aid of the funds of the Association. Subject "The Storming of the Bastile." Admission 25 cents, tickets to be had from members of Association, and at the Bookstores. The Scottish Press says:—Prof. Allan Curr is a Scotchman, possessed of most wonderful gifts as an orator, and is as safe as he is amusing, and as truly touching and pathetic as he is humorous. His lectures are a rare intellectual treat. The Choir of the W. M. Church George street, will give a Musical Entertainment under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, in their Rooms, on Thursday evening, the 10th inst. Admission free.

Dismissed.

Estate of Whyte & Davis against J. R. Davise. This case was heard before Jas. Edwards Esq. last week. On which Mr. Davis was charged with applying money of the estate to his own use. It appeared from the evidence that on the Saturday evening previous to the Firm making an assignment, Mr. Davis got about $200 or upwards. On that evening he paid the men and had $19 38 left. This sum he kept, and the bookkeeper took a note of it. On Monday Mr. Davis had the sum charged to himself, and during the day he got $26 of a cheque and made some settlement with Mr. Menzies during the fore part of the day by which (on that day) he got about $39.68. This sum he also had charged to himself. These several sums received made $50.06. And because it amounted to more than 50.00, the assignee had him tried for an attempt to defraud the estate. The Magistrate not thinking that the charge of Fraud under the Insolvent Act was established dismissed the case. There are other cases of similar nature pending, but as they are not disposed of, we must wait till next issue before reporting them.

A Curiosity.

Mr. John O'Neil, of the Township of Smith, showed us, on Saturday, some potatoes which grew out of the ordinary way. In this case the whole produce of the hill, over forty in number, grew on the vines, extending to the top. Only two or three were found under the soil. They were of all imaginable shapes, as if Nature had made an extra effort to exhibit variety. Two or three of them had assumed very peculiar figures, and one bore the lineaments of a deformed creature of the human species, with a small head and neck, arms well developed, with apparent fingers, five in number on each; and the chest marks were easily seen, as well as other marks of the human body. The question would naturally arise, in examining these vegetable productions, whether or not Mr. O'Neil has found the missing link? and that man after all is of vegetable origin. But as Laymen must not form any opinions even on subjects so closely concerning themselves, it may be wiser and better to await an examination by some experts, when the mystery may be unfolded. In the meantime, Mr. O'Neil intends planting some of these new shapes, and see what they may bring forth, or send forth next year.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE LICENSE QUESTION.

A correspondent of the Mail, writing from Peterborough, complains of the difficulty often experienced in that neighborhood in getting marriage licenses, and the occasion is used as an excuse for an attack on the Local Government. One case is mentioned of two persons desiring to get married and coming to Peterborough from opposite directions. On their arrival they find the Issuer absent, and from enquiries learn that he "has gone fishing." They are obliged to wait all day, and do not get married until 5 p. m. Every one will sympathize with the anxious couple under circumstances of this kind, and readily recognize good ground for complaint. The Mail sees further than the rest of us, however; and Mr. Mowatt and Mr. Fraser have done a grevious wrong to the country by appointing a single Grit even to an office of this kind. It is only about a year ago a person came to Orillia for a license, and had to wait quite as long as the Peterborough man, and for the very same reason. Our lessee, Mr. Stephenson, a Tory and appointed under the old order of things, had gone fishing, and the only thing to be done was to quietly wait until he came back. Of course this proved that the Tories were as great knaves then as the Grits are now. But really how contemptible it is to see the miserable chicane Conservative papers do not hesitate to resort to in order to injure the Government. Surely educated, intelligent men do not need these silly shadows.—Orillia Times.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six or some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtue of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Pothisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by sufferine and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious choilc, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

NOT KNOWING.

I know not what shall befall me:
God hangs a mist o'er my eyes,
And at each step on my onward path,
He makes new scenes to arise,
And every joy he sends to me
Is a strange and sweet surprise

I see not a step before me
As I tread on another year;
But the past is still in God's keeping,
The future His mercy shall clear,
And what looks dark in the distance
May brighten as I draw near.

For perhaps the dreadful future
Is less bitter than I think;
The Lord may sweeten the waters
Before I stoop to drink:
Or, if Marah must be Marah,
He will stand beside its brink.

It may be that he was waiting,
For the coming of my feet,
Some gift of such rare benedictness,
Some joy so strangely sweet,
That my life shall only tremble
With the thanks they cannot speak.

O! whistful, blissful ignorance!
It is blessed not to know!
It keeps me still in the arms of God,
Which will not let me go,
And hushes my soul to rest
In the bosom that loves me so.

So I go onward, not knowing
I would not if I might;
I would rather walk in the dark with God,
Than walk alone in the light;
I would rather walk with Him by faith,
Than walk alone by sight.

NEWS ITEMS.

The shore end of the United States direct Atlantic cable has been landed at Cahirciveen, near Valentia.

It is sated that August 27th has been fixed for the visit of His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, to the Earl of Kenmore

A sensation has been caused in Rome by the conversion of a parish priest, Alceste Lanna, to the Evangelical Church. He is a doctor of Divinity, and has been Professor of Philosoph at the Vatican Seminary, and teacher of mathematics at a polytechnic school.

An occasional correspondent of the Times, writing from Rome, on the 6th inst., draws a terrible picture of the lawless state of Sicily. In the Island, he says, "for a matter of 25f per head, one can rid oneself and the world of those objectionable to you, and rely on the connivance of the authorities for the means of escaping punishment.

The Protestant clergy of Germany number 16,000, while the Roman Catholics have 20,000 priests, 800 monasteries and convents, 20 Bishoprics 5 Archbishoprics, and 3 Vicars Apostolic. Of the 21 Universities, Berlin heads the list with 3578 students, Leipsic standing next with 2032, Rostock with 135, being the smallest.

The Electoral Reform Association of Great Britain has published what it calls "six points of the new charter of British liberty." The points are uniformity of suffrage in borroughs and counties and a genuine lodger franchise; equality of representation, to be secured by a redistribution of seats, and a rearrangement of electoral districts; compulsory registration of voters by parochial officers; extension of the hours of voting in populous towns; shorter Parliaments, and the relief of candidates from the expenses growing out of their candidature. In some respects these points resemble the demands made by the Chartists over a quarter of a century ago.

The Turf, Field and Farm to-day enters into a lengthy discussion of the Beecher scandal, to prove the absurdity of Tilton's charges. It argues that the wrong charged upon Beecher and Mrs. Tilton, if ever perpetrated, would never have been divulged by these two. No one alleges that Beecher ever gave information except Moulton, and he withholds the occasions and conversations; nor does he give the terms on which the alleged confession was made, so that one might judge how far Moulton's interpretation was correct. In all probability the confession was a strained and unjust inference, and no confession at all.

The pursuit of knowledge under difficulties, and the triumph, are illustrated in the career of Michael Leahy, who recently graduated at the Pittsburg (Massachusetts) High School, at the age of twenty one. When a child, while playing on the railroad track, he was run over by a train, and was obliged to have both arms amputated so close to the shoulder that no preserved stumps are left. But he has persevered in his studies has not been absent or tardy once in his four years course, and has become proficient in all the branches taught, turning the leaves of his book with his tongue. He has also acquired a legible and handsome penmanship, which he executes with his mouth.

A few days since a man named Sackrider, near Norwich, says the Ingersoll Chronicle, fired at a couple of boys who were taking some of his cherries, of which he had an immense quantity, many of them hanging over the road. He fired at them with a smooth-bore rifle loaded with buckshot, and one of the shot penetrated the lungs of one of the boys, named Albert Smith, who died from the effects of the wound. The other boy was wounded in the leg, but not seriously. Sackrider was taken before a magistrate and remanded to Woodstock jail for trial.

The grasshopper is committing great ravages in the western section of the Province. It is stated that in Onsowa, all the crops with the exception of potatoes have been completely destroyed. From Palestine the same complaint comes. There the ploughed ground is said to be almost covered with them. Totogon was visited by the marauders on the 5th inst. They remained for about four days, and in about ten days all had disappeared, leaving, however, myriads of eggs behind them. Many of the settlers in the latter place, it is said, find themselves because of them, face to face would take a journey for pleasure, leaving her husband to toil in a close shop or office, and have an eye, when at home, to the servants and children? Has she a call to be a wife to whom a good husband's society is not the greatest of earthly blessings, and a house full of rosy children its best furnishings and prettiest ornaments?

The education of the girl, as a housekeeper, should begin by the mother early, and be continued until the marriage of the daughter; and no other duty of the mother nor of the daughter should interfere with it. This and the school education should go on simultaneously. If anything is to be postponed, let it be music, and drawing, and philosophy, which, as experience shows, are usually unattended to and unpracticed after "the happy event." The more and higher the education, the better; but let us have a real and practical instead of a sham education.

Sum Total of a Lord Mayor's Talents.

King James the Second, passing through Colchester, it was resolved that the Mayor should compliment him on his arrival.

It so happened that this chief magistrate was eminently stupid, which is looked upon as no strange thing in England.

The town clerk was appointed to attend him at his back, and whisper what he was to say to the king. When they came into his Majesty's presence, the clerk, desiring to encourage the mayor whispered in his ear—

"Hold up your head and look like a man!"

"Hold up your head and look like a man." did the mayor bawl out to the king.

The clerk astonished whispered—

"What the devil do you mean?"

The mayor bawled out—

"What the devil do you mean.

The clerk, sweating with fear and vexation, whispered—

"You will ruin us all!"

The mayor immediately repeated—

"You will ruin us all!"

The clerk, in a violent rage, said—

"Oh! you blundering puppy. I wish you had never come here!"

The mayor again bawled—

"Oh! you blundering puppy, I wish you had never come here!"

The clerk, on this, immediately took to his heels, and the mayor followed him, leaving the king in a violent fit of laughter, though not without rage.

Earl Dufferin on the Education o Young Ladies.

The following is the Governor-General's reply to the address presented upon the occasion of Her Excellency, Lady Dufferin, laying the foundation stone of the Presbyterian Ladies' College in Brantford on Monday last:

Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen—I consider it a very high privilege that I should have been commissioned by Her Excellency the Countess of Dufferin to reply in her behalf to the interesting address which you have been good enough to present to her. There are few subjects which present greater interest to Lady Dufferin and myself than that of education of the female portion of the leading classes of Canada, as it so intimately connected with the future fortunes and status of this country, because it is on the proper education of our girls that we must depend for that high tone of moral feeling, for that delicacy of sentiment, and for that freedom from whatever is meretricious, frivolous, and base, which more than anything else are the essentials of a nation's glory. (Applause.) I am the more inclined to rest more strongly upon this point because we must all be aware that female education is a subject with respect to which we are liable to fall into error, and over which, therefore, it is incumbent for the people of Canada to watch with the greatest jealousy and attention. In Canada, as in every new country, there are of course circumstances and considerations which in some degree militate against that which ought to be a leading and principal feature of all education, namely, its domesticity. In a new settled country, where the scattered habitations militate against education, and where even in towns a very considerable number of the inhabitants are driven to live less in private than is the custom in Europe, it is of course more difficult to maintain unimpaired those home influences which are so essential, especially in the training of young girls. Now, I confess that I am strongly of opinion that we cannot keep our girls too long from coming out into the world and becoming young ladies. (Applause.) In other countries we sometimes see the contrary occur more frequently than is to be wished, but I am hopeful that in Canada we are so convinced of the desirability of maintaining amongst us simplicity of manners, simplicity of dress — (hear, hear) — simplicity of thought and feeling—(applause)—that we are determined to prevent the youthful members of our families from becoming prematurely sophisticated. (Applause and laughter.) Even if we middle-aged men can carry into the occupations of our maturer years the freshness, the liveliness, and the innocence of boyhood, we feel it to be so much gained. (Applause.) And this truth of course is infinitely more applicable to those who are to be the ornaments of our house and the mothers of our children. However, it would be presumptuous in me to do more than simply glance at these topics. I am sure that every experienced person present will be able to gather from what I have said the full meaning I desire to convey, and that freshness and that simplicity which I am proud to think are among the noble characteristics which distinguished the Canadian nation at large, will also long be maintained the prominent attribute of the manners and of the tone of thought and feeling of our woman kind. (Applause.)

Who Should Not Be a Wife.

Has that woman a call to be a wife who thinks more of her silk dress than of her children, and visits her nursery no oftener than once a day? Has a woman a call to be a wife who calls for a cashmere shawl when her husband's notes are being protested? Has that woman a call to be a wife who sits reading the last new novel while her husband stands before the glass vainly trying to pin together a buttonless shirt bosom? Has that woman a call to be a wife who expects her husband to swallow diluted coffee, soggy bread, smoky tea and watery potatoes six days out of seven? Has she a call to be a wife who flirts with every man? Has she a call to be a wife who comes down to breakfast in abominable curl paper, a soiled dressing gown, and shoes down at the heel? Has she a call to be a wife whose husband's love weighs naught in the balance with her next door neighbor's curtains or velvet carpets? Has she a call to be a wife who with hard times if not actual want. The greatest difficulty is to find bread and seed for planting. To remedy this all look forward to the railway, and urge its immediate construction.

An Election Bet.—A suit at the next sitting of the Division Court in this town is likely to be one result of the late election contest. A bet B a certain amount that Mr. Macdougall would be elected by 200 majority. B accepted the wager, and the stakes were placed in the hands of C. When the official returns were made public both parties claimed the money. A said that he had bet on 200, and his candidate was elected by 215, he (A) had won the money easily. B claimed the money on the ground that he had bet on even 200. The stake holder (C) decided in favor of A and handed over the money. B now sues C to recover the amount he staked. This is how the case stands at present, and there is considerable speculation as to how it will be decided. Both parties are bound to fight it out.—St. Thomas Journal.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from the cures, some of which are truly marvellous, in the worst cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed corrupted with corruption, has been purified and cured by it. In scrofulous affections and diseases which were supposed to be beyond the reach of medicine, and which had baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians, it has proved itself radically and permanently efficacious. Almost every neighborhood in the country has the publication of some of its remarkable cures, and the public are familiar with the facts of its virtues.

Sarsaparilla has long been one of the most celebrated remedies for the cure of the many diseases originating in impurities of the blood, but until the introduction of this SARSAPARILLA, it was unsatisfactory to the afflicted. Even the most concentrated extracts of the drug, while they relieved, rarely cured. Powerful as they were, they were inadequate to expel the subtle poison of scrofula from the system. Combined with other substances, more searching in their effects upon the blood, and more controlling over the diseases originating there, the full value of Sarsaparilla is for the first time developed. Hence the effectiveness of this SARSAPARILLA in the cure of the following complaints, which it is daily curing:—Scrofula, Erysipelas, Ringworm, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other affections of a scrofulous character, such as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Tits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the female and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these ultimate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will eradicate the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are equally soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when minor, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Dyspeptic, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them.

Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills speedily cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Gloom Sickness, Bilious Colic and Attacks Prevent, they should be judiciously taken for each case to produce the desired effect or remove the complaint which causes it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued [illegible] such change of disease as may be required to effect a cure.

For Fever and Ague and Intermittent Fever, they are the best medicine that can be used, as they will soon break the paroxysms of the most obstinate case.

For Worms of all kinds, they should be taken for Children or Adults, as required.

For Erysipelas, Blotches, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scurfiness, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and Skin Diseases of whatever name or nature, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to cleanse the blood from all impurities, when a healthy skin will follow.

For Scrofula or King's Evil, Ulcers, Tumors, Glandular Swellings, White Swellings, Hip Joint Disease, Fistula, Sore Throat, Mercurial Disease, Female Complaints, Dropsy, Neuralgia, Gout, Erysipelas, Heart Disease, Tits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the female and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these ultimate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will eradicate the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are equally soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when minor, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. Select Poetry.

How the Thorn Came to the Rose

In the garden once there grew
Thornless roses not a few,
Deepest red, pink and white
Oh! it was a lovely sight,
Sweet their smell, who can tell
How much sweeter than to-day?
Fairer also to the view
Were the roses then they say.

Soon attracted by their scent
All to gather rosebuds went,
Some by passing feet were trod
As they trailed upon the sod;
First in scorn burst a thorn
From the tender bark so green,
Then in pride, still by side,
Soon a hundred more were seen.

Bristling now and wounding all
Grew the rosebush stout and tall,
It would shield its flowers from harm
But alas! they'd lost a charm.
Beauty waned as they gained
Self-defence that did avail,
With it went half their scent,
So tradition tells the tale.

Angry little words we speak
Oft in self-defence to speak,
But like thorns they beauty mar
And it would be better far
If we sought gentle thoughts
And the mild and soft reply,
Which o'erturns wrath that burns
Till it passes harmless by.

—Spirit of the Age.

Coral and the Coral Fishery.

The immense extent of coral formation found in various parts of the world is seldom fully realized by the many millions of people who only see many fragments of this substance fashioned into ornaments, and exposed either for sale or the gratification of vanity.

When we reflect that the great "Barrier Reef," one thousand miles long, on the north-east coast of Australia, and many other reefs nearly as great in extent in other places, are the growth of animal life, we might almost excuse the belief of the ancient Greek philosopher, that the whole world is either one animal, or a mass of insects.

The growth of what is erroneously called 'coral plant,' assumes many forms. Sometimes they resemble a gigantic plant, with flowers and leaves. Often they grow like a large tree with leafless branches. Sometimes one stem spreads out into a broad, flat surface, in shape of a fan. Whatever shape the growth of coral formation takes, there is an astonishing regularity in maintaining an equilibrium, each branch being balanced by another opposite, and each stem or main body growing perpendicular to its plane.

Coral, as we see it here, is the bone or shell of an insect, from which the flesh or living substance has been removed.

A living branch of coral, when first taken from the sea, has a rough, irregular surface, covered with a slimy substance, and dotted with little spots of what appears to be red jelly. These spots are the coral insects. Examined minutely when growing in the sea, the insect is seen in thousands, each having a room of its own, which it never leaves.

In many kinds of the polypi, or coral insects, the head has a little parasol-shaped cover. The arms, which are furnished with eight claws, are long in comparison with the body, and are generally seen extended for the supposed purpose of gathering food; but what that food is, I am unable to say.

It is generally supposed that the coral insect is industrious; that it is a builder; and that by its labors commenced at the bottom of the, the coral islands have been formed. This is only partly true. They live and multiply—that is all; and in doing this, a family that starts a habitation at the bottom of the sea, in time reaches the surface at low-water. The structure they form is not elevated one inch above the sea level, for the insect can only live in the warm salt water.

The older the coral shells or bone, the stronger is the color, and the more difficult it is to procure. The money value of coral depends wholly on its scarcity, or the difficulty of obtaining it, although, as far as use or ornament is concerned, one kind is worth in reality us much as another.

At Honolulu and other places on the Pacific Islands, I have seen houses built of coral, which was as common as granite or sandstone here, and was worth no more. If the many-headed public, who suffer the sorrows of following fashion, could be made to believe that this common coral was seldom found, and was procured with great danger and difficulty from a depth of five hundred feet under water, it would immediately discover some heretofore hidden beauty in that particular kind of corel, which would become a valuable article of commerce. Those who are enslaved by fashion are very sharp in learning from others what is common from what is rare; and, without the slightest regard for the use of an article, the merchants who live principally by the vanity of others, regulate their prices.

To witness the forms of coral structures, one would think that the insects must have some means of communicating with each other at a distance, although they cannot leave their shells. Naturalists may be able to account for some of their peculiarities, but to me there is a mystery in the way they manage to construct formations of coral rock on mathematical principles. When growing in the shape of a tree, what teaches the insect to withold extending its branches farther in one direction than another? When one tribe of insects commence a structure in the bottom of the Pacific, what enables them to extend it in two directions in a perfect circle until the two ends meet, forming a ring from half a mile to ten miles in diameter? What tells these insects, working in opposite directions, as generations after generations are moving farther from each other, that the circle they are building shall be a large one or a small one? These things, to an observing sailor, unacquainted with the theories of the learned, are always a mystery.

Amongst the South Sea Islands there is a little moth for coral; you not much is done by fishing for it in the manner I have seen followed in other places. Most of the coral gathered there, of a quality valuable in the market, is obtained in small quantities from the shores of islands surrounded by a coral reef. Fragments of the reefs become detached from the main body, and in violent agitations of the sea by storm to pieces of the right kind are sometimes thrown within the view and grasp of man.

The only opportunity I have met for seeing the coral fishery conducted on what may be called an intelligent manner, was off the coast of Africa, where for a few days I was near some natives of Algiers, who were fishing for coral line plants in the same manner pursued in the Strait of Messina. The coral fishery I witnessed was carried on from three feluccas anchored in about seventy fathoms of water. A felucca is the largest and fastest boat used. It has three masts with lateen sails, and a jib on a short bowsprit. It is also furnished with long strong oars. During the time I remained near those engaged in the fishery, all three were visited, and I became familiar with the mode of gathering coral; but, being unable to converse with the men, I could learn nothing about the trade.

Two strong poles, about twenty feet long, are firmly fastened together at the middle, and at right angles to each other. On the under side of the poles is a net made of strong cord, and fastened to the extremeties of the poles. A heavy stone for the purpose of sinking the poles, is fastened where they cross each other, and a strong line is also tied at the crossing. One end of the line is held aboard the felucca, and the net is launched over where the coral branches are supposed to be growling beneath. The net sinks slowly to the bottom; and should it fall over the spot where coral is growing, some of the branches generally become entangled in its meshes, and are broken off and hauled up.

When the net and poles become firmly entangled with large branches of coral, much force has been used in freeing them, and often the end of the line has to be fastened to the windlass, and a few turns given to bring the net from the bottom. Only small portions of any large mass brought up on such occasions are of any value. Some times the net is so firmly fastened below, that it is torn in pieces in extricating it. It not unfrequently happens that the line by which the net is drawn up breaks, although, to avoid this, it is always made of larger and of stronger material than the net. Often the net is pulled to the surface and not the smallest fragment of coral is found attached to it. On one occasion I saw, as the net was brought near the surface a large branch of bright red coral, which was hailed by the Algerine fishermen with shouts of delight. The instant the poles spreading the net touched the felluca, the branch, which was only hanging by what is best described as a twig, broke away and was lost. There was a sudden transformation of Algerine features from expressions of joy to those of anger and disappointment.

Notwithstanding these little misfortunes, the coral fishers are engaged in a profitable business, and make during the season, which last from the middle of April to July, enough to keep them, with a little economy, the remainder of the year. Should they be successful at every cast of the net, the coral, such as they procure, would become too common to please those affected with an insane desire for anything that requires time and toil in procuring.

The price of rough coral varies according to its quality and colour. The whims of changing taste, or want of taste, and the quantity in the market, have much to do with its value. I have seen it sold for about two shillings per pound, and have seen some sold for more than fifteen shillings. The great market for all the cheaper kinds of coral sold, is Africa, where it is an important article of commerce, finding its way far into the interior of the country, and is eagerly purchased by the natives for ornaments.

Professor Huxley on Higher Education for Girls.

A public meeting, convened under the auspices of the Woman's Education Union, was held at the Eyre Arms, St. John's Wood, London, recently, for the purpose of promoting the establishment of a girls' public day school in that district. Prof. Huxley, who occupied the chair in the absence of Lord Aberdere, introduced the subject by referring to the three courses open to a man who desired to educate his daughters. First, there was the boarding-school, but there was few thoroughly good ones, and those were expensive; and the ordinary boarding school was the last he should select. The next alternative was home education, which had a great deal to recommend it, but it was a costly process, and moreover, deprived girls of the healthy influence of coming in contact with other young minds, and different teachers. The day school was the third and best course, combining, as it did, both the advantages of thorough school and home teachings, and the object of the Women's Education Union was to establish such schools, not as they are, but as they ought to be, in all the great suburban districts of London. No object, he conceived, could be calculated to exert more beneficial influences upon the welfare of the community than that. The company in association with the union had already founded schools at Notting-hill and Chelsea, which were exceedingly flourishing, and considered to be a great boon to the residents of those neighborhoods. It was now proposed to establish another for the district of St. John Wood, where the education to be given would be equal to that provided for the boys at University College School. It was said girls were physically, morally and intellectually unequal as a rule to such an education, and though he did not believe in the equality of a woman and man, he yet disputed this position. Experience proved that success in every station of life was less the result of intellectual and moral strength, than the exercise of patience, industry and temper, qualities very much dependent upon healthy organism. Taking, then, the broad average, the central point of moral and intellectual capacity was rather higher in the male than the female group, but though man was higher in that respect than woman, he would not go so far as to say that the lowest of the women group was lower than the lowest of the men group. Both however, stood on an equality in the matter of patience, industry and temper, and as the capacity for eduction rested upon those qualities, he could discover no reason why bringing up the educational standard of girls to the same level as boys should be calculated to endanger their physical welfare. He should, therefore, conclude by moving—That this meeting affirm the provisions for the higher education of girls is inadequate and unsatisfactory, and that measures should be taken for effecting on improvement.

SELF DEPENDENCE

Many an unwise parent works hard and lives sparingly all his life for the purpose of leaving enough to give his children a start in the world, as it is called. Setting a young man afloat with money left him by his relatives is like tying a bladder under the arms of one who cannot swim; ten chances to one he will lose his bladder and go to the bottom Teach him to swim and he will not need bladders. Give your child a sound education. See to it that his morals are pure, his mind cultivated, and his whole nature made subservient to the laws which govern man, and you have given him what will be of more value than the wealth of the whole Indies. You have given him a start which no misfortune can deprive him of. The earlier you teach him to depend upon his own resources and the blessing of God, the better.

No more Emigrants

A number of American exchanges have within the last year, taken a stand against the wholesale importation of foreigners into the United States. Their reason or this course lies in the evil effects which they consider have been produced by the too rapid growth of foreign power among them. In many communities the foreign element can out vote the native Americans, and all the offices of reponsibility are controlled and filled by those whose habits and principles are contrary to the genius of the American people. The feeling may be illustrated by the following extract from a Michigan paper, which demands the recall of the State Immigrant Agent, now on duty in Europe:

"If ever an immigrant agency was necessary, that time has gone by. We would not close our ports or our doors against foreigners of whatever nationality who voluntarily seek our shores, and come prepared to labor and maintain themselves and families But there has been for years a disposition to invite immigrants in advance of the need of them, and faster than they could be worked over into American citizens. It is time to call home our agents, and also to give sharp notice to foreign rulers, of whatever title, that they must provide for their pauper and criminal classes at home. Our forests and prairies can wait for settlement without defriment, and a normal and healthy growth is much better than the growth which has been our boost."

When to Cut Grain.

The period of ripening of grain is that at which the grain contains the greatest portion of nutrement. It is not that at which the grain is hardest or of the brightest color, or parts most readily from the capulse or envelope in which it is contained. Indeed, a considerable part of the ripening process should take place in the shock or the stack. If it is allowed to ripen, or, in other words dry and harden completely while stand

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

RUMOUR has it that Mr. Cockburn, the late Speaker of the House of Commons, has been selected as the Opposition candidate, at a recent caucus held at Ottawa it being the intention to throw Mr. O'Donohue overboard.

THE Mail says it is "none too soon for the friends of good and honest Government throughout the Province to be on the move." The advice is good, and we hope the friends of Mr. Mowat's administration will act upon it.

Lord Dufferin's visit to Chicago has left a favorable impression with the good people of that city. The Chicago Tribune pays him a compliment for his courteous and dignified behaviour, and says "the "public men in the United States, who "would appear to equal advantage as "the guests of Lord Dufferin might be "counted on the fingers of one hand.

THE Brockville Recorder published the names of the school teachers who voted for the respective candidates—Smith and Sangster. We find that of 30 votes cast for Mr. Smith 21 were lady teachers and 9 gentlemen Prof. Goldwin Smith has long been an advocate of female suffrage. It would be a strange coincidence if it should turn out that the Prof is the first man elected to office by such suffrage.

A despatch from Fort Garry contains the news that M. Masson, M. P. for Terrebonne, and joint leader of the Opposition, has arrived at Fort Garry, and is the guest of Archbishop Tache at St. Boniface. Riel is on his way to St. Boniface, to meet M. Masson, whose visit is to aid in his election. A correspondent, however, says: "Leading men of the French party here admit that Mr. Masson's presence is unnecessary, as the whole French people are determined to elect Riel without opposition."

Good Retort.

Listen to this from the London Advertiser: "No one knows better than the editor of the Free Press that the whole list of charges against Mr. McKellar which appeared some time ago in the Mail newspaper were manufactured out of whole cloth by a young Bohemiam Irishman named Farrar."

"This is the same Farrar who was appointed Emigration Agent to Ireland by Mr. Mackenzie's Government a few weeks after it succeeded to office. Was it his ability to manufacture charges out of the whole cloth that attracted Mr. Mackenzie to him?"—Spectator.

"The above retort well illustrates the folly of appointments of the Farrar stripe."—Brockville Recorder.

The Barley Crop of 1874.

Henry A. Homeyer & Co., of St. Louis write as follows concerning the probable yield of the barley crop of 1874:

California—Large crop and fine quality fine.

New York State—Quality good; yield fully an average.

Canada—Better in quality and quantity than any crop of the last four years.

Ohio and Indiana—Winter barley good quality but light in berry; hardly an average crop.

Kansas and Nebraska—Sound and bright, but rather light in weight: three quarters of an average crop.

Missouri and Southern Illinois—Very little sown: bright and light.

Iowa (northern part)—Fair crop in quality and quantity; average No. 3, and somewhat below an average in yield.

Minnesota—Good quality and bright; two-thirds to three-quarters of an average crop.

Northern Illinois—About the same as last year.

BOBCAYGEON.

Mr. Fowler was at Bobcaygeon last week, and while there the people called a meeting to hear if he could do any thing to revive the idea of getting the Cobourg road extended to the village. Mr. Fowler addressed the meeting, and at its close it was agreed to get up a petition and submit it to the Council of Verulam, to grant the company a bonus of $25,000, the village to increase it to the old promise of $15,000 more. Then if Harvey and Ennismore would so something additional, Mr. Fowler would be in a position to go to the Company. A By-law is being prepared for the purpose, and a large petition is already signed, and Mr. Fowler feels confident that if the people be but united they will now succeed.

The trouble before was the people were divided—one party looking to the Midland, and one party looking to Cobourg and Peterboro. Mr. Boyd's influence looked toward the Midland, and hence the delay in getting a road to the village. He is satisfied now that he was mistaken in his confidence, or at least, was led astray, and now he may cast his weight and influence with the only road that is ever likely to go to his village.

Let our advice be now taken. "Be not divided." The foolishness of abusing the company should not be indulged in. The people of Peterboro', too, must not allow themselves to be led away by the whims of disappointed office-seekers, or would be railway presidents. We have Lindsay mocking us, our interests scoffed at, our divisions gloried in, and our trade injured. If any thing can be now done, let it be done in earnest, and we may yet succeed, at least, in part.

Murder at Belleville.

On the 3rd instant, a most deliberate murder took place at Belleville, in an hotel at the race course. The place is noted for dances and rough crowds. While one of these dances was going on, it seems that two young men, named John Josey, about 24 years of age, and Johnson Blythman, aged 19 years, both of Belleville, hired a rig of one of the livery stables there, and drove down to the tavern at the race course, reaching there about five o'clock. They remained there about two or three hours, taking tea at the tavern, and drinking more or less liquor. After tea, Josey was in conversation with the servant girl, named Boulton, who was rather a prepossessing looking girl, about nineteen years of age, and with whom it is said he had been previously intimate. From the nature of the conversation, as overheard by some parties standing near, it seems as if he wanted the girl to go out riding with him. She refused to go. He then swore that he would shoot her if she refused to go. She still refused, and at that instant he drew a revolver, and shot her down like a dog. The ball entered her right temple, and she fell to the floor like a stone. He then fired a second shot, and immediately sprang to the buggy, which was standing by the platform, cut the halter with which the horse was tied, and jumped into the buggy. In turning, the buggy upset into the ditch, but the murderer fearing that something about the conveyance was broken, took to his heels and made away in the direction of Belleville.

The bloody deed was witnessed by the landlady of the house, Mrs. Vandusen, and also by a young man named Richard Hudson, at whose feet the poor girl fell when shot. She remained in an unconscious state for about two hours, and then breathed her last.

Both Josey and Blythman have been arrested, and committed to jail. Josey has not borne a very bad character, but has been two or three times before the Police Court on a charge of drunkenness. He did not deny having shot her, nor did he confess to the deed, but said if it had not been for whiskey he would not have been there. Fortunately for the ends of justice there were eye witnesses of the bloody tragedy, and the murderer will not likely go unpunished.

THE GLOBE IN CORD WOOD MEASURE.

A correspondent of the Napanee Beaver in speaking of the Napanee paper mills.

"The Napanee Mills have been completed and in operation for only three months. The capital is $125,000, controlled by some thirty-five stockholders It runs day and night and the number of operatives is but twenty, and the laborers hands ten more. Girls and boys are competent to manage the cutting, folding and bailing. The steam or waterpower, when adequate, does nearly all the work, continuously and without handling, from the clipping of the cordwood sticks till the white sheet falls on the package ready to be bound for market. This wood is chipped to fragments, then subjected to steaming under a pressure of 140 pounds to the inch. It comes from these boilers soft as the flock of cotton. After this it is spread in layers and dried partially, and in this state resembles buckskin with fibre rotted. The folds made from pine wood show a fibre, when rent, far more tenacious than those made from bass or Whitewood.—This material is then bleached, mingled with a very small proportion of rag pulp, spread, dried and rolled, much as ordinary paper, and has a capacity of fifteen tons per week. They have just received a standing order for six tons per week from the Toronto Globe which has been using it. The timber spread out in the issues of the Globe each week is fifteen cords. The price of the paper was stated to me by another party at ten cents per pound."

Only a few rods east of the mill is a kill for the reduction of water lime; the stone for it having been lately discovered in unlimited quantity."

The Globe therefore each year spreads before its readers 780 cords of wood reduced to paper.

CANADA'S indefatigable agent, Mr. Jenkins, has a long letter in the Times of the 13th of August, pointing out the absurd untruths and misstatements of a previous writer over the signature of "Bohemian" in the same journal. As a sample of his letter, one of his statements is that a number of skilled workmen had been guaranteed by agents 50 cents per hour, which of course they could not get, while another was that the Grand Trunk paid their navvies in depreciated currency, worth only 3s. 8d. in the dollar. In concluding his letter, Mr. Jenkins states that there is still a disgraceful ignorance of the colonies their resources, their products, their geography, and their history, in the mother country, giving as instances the statement by a clergyman that men had gone out to Canada Christians, and there been turned into infidels, and the enquiry of a well educated young lady by letter to a friend in this country if there were any pianos here. And he appeals to the School Board to take the matter up and see that British children are instructed in some of the facts concerning the greatness, the glory and the progress of the Empire to which they belong. That there is dense ignorance of Canada amongst well educated people in England who ought to be better informed cannot admit of a doubt. Only a week or two ago an English clergyman, now on a visit to this country, informed an astonished Sabbath School in this city that he was so dazed by the magnificence of Montreal, where he had only expected to find a collection of wooden houses, that he hardly knew what to say to them. It is much to be desired, therefore, that the School Boards should act on the hint given them, and see that the present generation of British children are better instructed as to the actual condition of other parts of the Empire than their fathers, have been

THE GLOBE IN CORD WOOD MEASURE.

D. H. Hays, writing to the Chicago "Times" says: "The Irishman or woman must be very ignorant indeed who has never heard of the name of Lord Dufferin. In the counties of Tyrone, Down and Antiam, where he is best known, his name is a household word. He is a noble specimen of his class, for noblemen (as they are called) in Ireland even though of Irish birth, are invariably the greatest oppressors of their fellow-countrymen; the actual bloodsuckers of the tenent farmers. Lord Dufferin is a noble exception to this rule. He and the late lamented Earl of Massereene and Ferrand were the only two noblemen in Ireland who openly preached and practiced tenant rights. Even apart from his lordship, but intimately associated with him, there is a strong link that will bind the Irish heart to the Dufferin family. There are few Irish so ignorant as not to remember the name of Lady Dufferin in connection with Irish music, the authoress of the sweetest and most heart touching Irish ballads ever sung.

THE MARQUETTE CONTESTED ELECTION CASE.

FORT GARRY, Man., Aug. 28.—The Controverted Election Court, which sat at High Bluff on the 25th instant, have decided in favor of Jos. Ryan, who contested Marquette last election against the late Mr. Cunningham. Chief Justice Wood presided. Sixty-two of Cunningham's votes were struck off, leaving Ryan in a majority of twenty. Chief Justice Wood severely reprimanded the returning officers and poll clerks of St. Francois Xavier, east and west; the evidence showed the grossest fraud. There was no respondent. Ryan is a Reformer.

The Scott Murder Trial.

Hon. Mr. Dubuc, the successor of Mr. Clarke in the Manitoba Attorney-Generalship, and a partisan of the halfbreeds, had been retained for the defence of Riel, Lepine and others in their forth coming trial, for the murder of Scott. Now, however, that he has succeeded to Clarke's position, and become the prosecutor, it is said he will be obliged to engage a substitute to continue the proceedings, if the Court of Queen's Bench, which alone has authority in the matter decides that the trials must go on.

DUMMER COUNCIL.

August 22, 1874.

W. M. CHURCH PIC-NIC.

A most successful pic-nic and excursion came off on Wednesday last, the 2nd inst., in aid of the Building Fund of the magnificent new church now in course of erection in the Town of Peterborough. A special train, provided by the generous authorities of the Midland Railway, free of charge, conveyed the excursionists to Lakefield, thence at 9:30 they proceeded en route to Mount Julien's Landing in Stoney Lake, remaining at that delightful watering place some three or four hours. The leading spirits of this expedition and enterprise were, the Rev. C. Fish, our indefatigable superintendent minister, and the man on his right hand, W. Clurton, Esq.

Apprehensions concerning rain, which were felt in the early morning and the evening previous, were happily dispelled, and the hazy morn gave place to a noon of cloudless splendor. Altogether it was one of the most delightful days in the annals of summer weather.

"Sweet day, so cool, so calm, so bright,
The pride of the earth and sky!"

Thorough enjoyment marked the whole of the day's proceedings. The company was unexceptionable. The religious element of happiness was in the ascendant, and upon this particular day it was as joyous as the glad sunshine, for it found expression not only in kindly words and greetings and innocent mirthfulness, but also in "psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." "The joy of the Lord was their strength." Not a single mishap occurred to mar the harmonious completeness of the day's enjoyment, or cast its upas shade over the days pleasing record.

This is matter of devout thanksgiving in so large a company. "God resides among his own, God doth in his saints delight."

SCENERY.

The scenery of these series of lakes is surpassingly beautiful, rivalling, according to competent observation, the far-famed "Lake of the Thousand Islands." The view from the summit of Mount Julien is indescribably lovely, realizing all that a poetic and luxuriant fancy would pourtray. Conceive the lake stretching away before you in the summer's sun. The breadth of the lake is clearly discerned, but in the length of it there lie numerous islands of every conceivable shape, from the size of a centre table to the extent of many and broad acres, till in number and variety they seem interminable in the dim distance. Some are rocky, presiptous and bold and of a purple red and pink hue, which imparts to them a peculiarly picturesque and luminous appearance. Some are gently sloping to the waters edge, covered here and there with patches of variegated green moss. From between the rocks, out of the crevices, there springs forth trees and shrubs of sturdy growth, till they excite your wonder how they can exist and thrive in so unpromising a situation. Others of the islands apparently have some depth of earth, and are clothed in richest verdure, and in some instances crowned with tall and stately pines. As you gaze upon these islands lying in such profusion and forming a labyrinth of bays and channels and inlets, with the sunlight warm and bright pouring its rich effulgence upon the waters, till they sparkle like burnished gold and silver set with gems, the whole scene seems like one of enchantment, and presents a picture seen only in dreams or in tales of fairy land. One feels inclined to say as the child did who warmly welcomed her father's guest, "Won't you take a seat, sir? and won't you stay for ever, sir?" No, we cannot linger. Life's ending toil and endeavour calls us away. There is no permanent rest here till we enter and rest on the eternal shore. But in truth, the devout heart is stirred at this beautiful scene in nature, and we look up from nature to nature's God, and say,

"Thou are Thy works, Parent of good;
Almighty! Thine this universal frame
Thus wondrous fair, Thy self how wondrous then!"

The Excelsior Band, under the leadership of Mr. Walker, accompanied the excursion and discoursed sweet music at intervals. Various choral harmonies were also performed by the George Street Church Choir; Mrs. Bradburn presiding at the Melodeon. It is expected that at least $400 will be realized by this excursion, but how much more good has been accomplished by it, cannot at present be computed. Certain it is that mutual kindliness, sympathy, fellowship and love, have been promoted, and the cause of the new church has received a fresh impetus and inspiration. An enthusiasm begins to prevail and spread with reference to the new building now being erected to the honor of God's great name. As the noble pile ascends, a feeling akin to that which possessed the minds of the Jews in the time of Solomon's temple, takes hold of the people, and they look admiringly, approvingly, as the stately proportions of the house, and its architectural beauties are being more and developed.

May a noble and worthy ambition ever be the characteristic of this people. And may these children of a pious ancestry emulate the deeds of their forefathers and excel more and more in every good word of work.

OUR CALIFORNIA LETTER.

ANAHEIM, LOS ANGELOS CO., California,—Aug. 25, 1874.

DEAR EXAMINER,—Since my last letter nothing of much importance has transpired in this locality. The hills and plains have now doffed their garments of green and assumed their uninviting buck skin appearance. The threshers are yet busy at work: each one employs from 18 to 20 men, the grain being stacked on the ground where grown, in large stacks or, I might say, hutches, as little attention is paid to that part — the grain, in most cases, being merely thrown together off the wagons, without shape or top, the weather being so fine it favors this mode of work. Last summer about the end of July we had a smart shower; this year, so far, none. When it does rain in this season it does no good, and much harm, everything being, so to speak, without its coat. You, I dare say, will think it strange when I tell you that when people get their threshing done they find board only, as for beds, each one carries his own blankets, and roosts about the stack, under a very high ceiling. When setting the machine, they drive into the open space left between the stacks, and work from both sides. The separator is generally driven by belting, and the grain is sacked and sewed up, and goes to market direct from the machine—and you may depend upon it, some is pretty rough.

This summer has been warm at intervals, I think more so than last; and although this place is very healthy, yet there has been considerable sickness, with several deaths. Diseases, such as inflamation or fevers, seem to soon run their course here, and hence a small per centage of mortality can be attributed to having emanated from this somewhat alarming source. Several suicides—for shooting is seemingly a very popular method of ending life here — have taken place. Since my last, two young men ended their days in that way in town — one of them an Irishman, little over 20 years of age, who was on a visit to some friends here, and while out on horseback, on a native animal, he received wounds of such a painful nature, from being thrown, that he took the fatal leap into eternity by committing suicide. The other was also a young man, a stranger likewise, stopping with a friend. He, it seems, got discouraged about his affairs, and took the same method of ending his days. And very recently, a constable, in trying to arrest a native Mexican, who had been charged with an assault upon a very respectable lady, was fired upon. A scuffle ensued, and in the melee the Mexican was fatally wounded, dying soon after. The coroner's jury exonerated the constable from all blame. You cannot believe with what indifference such doings are looked upon here—nobody seems to care for his fellows.

We are now sure of the Southern Pacific Railway reaching here this fall, the operatives being now at work about 16 miles from here The same farce is playing here as with you about the selection of a site for the depot. This line, when finished, will cause some competion with the steamers on the ocean, yet I am inclined to the belief that should the projected wharf be built, the heaviest part of the freight will go by sea.

Grapes are now getting ripe, and the yield promises to be abundant, the wine men, as a natural sequence, being in high spirits.

In religious matters we are not progressing much. There is only a Presbyterian church, Episcopal, Roman Catholic and Methodist churches here as yet, and it seems hard to make converts. The Germans, by whom the town was first settled, although a quiet, industrious class, partake nothing of the spirit of their honored countrymen—the Leaders of the Reformation. The Presbyterian church is now without a pastor, yet the members meet every Sabbath as usual, and one of the members leads the exercises. There are now no less than four vacancies in this Presbytery, and I often wish some of your young men in Canada would visit us. There is here a great work to be done in the cause of the Gospel. The salary paid, in most instances, is about one thousand dollars gold per annum, and the climate is most delightful being a perpetual summer.

Trusting some one may read these lines, and pity us, I remain,

Yours, etc.,
J. HUNTER.

RAILWAY MATTERS.

Bobcaygeon, Sept. 3, 1874.

At a meeting held in Orr's Commercial Hotel, at which a large number of influential ratepayers were present, Mr. W. B. Read in the chair, Mr. J. Junkin acting as Secretary, it was—

Moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Harlow, That the Reeve, W. B. Read, John Petrie, and Joseph Graham be a Committee, with power to add to their number, to consult with the Peterboro people, the Cobourg Railway Company, and J. Fowler, Esq., to have a proper By-Law drawn up and submitted to the people of Verulam without delay, and otherwise to further the interests of this vicinity in railway matters. Carried.

Moved by Mr. J. L. Read, seconded by Jas. Green, That this meeting strongly disapproves of the course taken by the editor of the Independent, and of the editorial articles appearing in the issue of the 5th inst., reflecting on Mr. J. Fowler, and believe such a course is eminently prejudicial to the best interests of the place, and deserving of our severest censure, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Fenelon Falls Gazette, Canadian Post, Peterboro EXAMINER and Times, and the Bobcaygeon Independent, for publication. Carried unanimously. —COM.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR.—An old man named John Hawthorn died here about the 1st of August last. On the evening previous he was at my house till late, arranging to get my team to take shingles to Lakefield for him. My wife and son went to Lakefield next day, Saturday, with a grist, and did not return untill about ten o'clock at night. Two of my sons went over to Hawthorn's shanty next morning to tell him that he could not go with his shingles for a while as the bridge was not safe, on entering the shanty they found him dead.

Some days after, I had a family quarrel when my wife accused me of murdering the man. When in a passion, I struck her: on this account, she has now left me, and my object in asking you to publish this, is to counteract her reports. Hawthorne was about 70 years old, and lived alone, having never been married.

JOHN STONE.

Burleigh Sept. 4 1874

ANOTHER REFORMATION WANTED.

The Bocaygeon Independent of last week contains an extraordinary article anent the Beecher scandal. It is he writes thusly:—

"But what was the condition of those exalted Christians? It was one of the most shocking depravity—a depravity that sought to reconcile itself with religion, and blended the most abominable practices with fervent prayers to the Diety. There is something peculiarly horrible in the manner in which these exalted Christians speak of their sins. Mrs. Tilton, in the document in which she admitted her guilt, says she "carried her life record to her Saviour" Beecher says he was borne above the scandal by the power of the Holy Ghost, and the various members of the Church, among whom a relationship subsisted similar to that which exists in a rabbit warren, talk of their experience "in the higher ranges of Christian life." It is quite evident that the congregation had fallen, "in the exaltation of piety," to a depth of degradation far lower than was ever suspected, and that Plymouth Church itself is nothing more than a religious club house, where religious emotion and sentiment are supplied in place of alcoholic drinks. In this respect, Plymouth Church is only the advanced representative of other Churches. The Rev. Mr. McGarthy thus describes the various churches of America:—

"In the Baptist, Presbyterian, and Methodist Churches, religion means to-day tenderness of heart on religious subjects. It does not mean a sweet temper, a forgiving disposition, practical benevolence, honesty in business, or purity between the sexes. It means a tear under a powerful sermon on the crucifixion, or at the recital of a pathetic story about a dying girl committing herself into the hands of her saviour. The pious man is the man who cries, whether he swindles his workmen and breaks every commandment in the decalogue or not. In the Episcopal, Congregational, Unitarian, Universalist and Swedenborgian churches, religion consists in the contemplation and admiration of beautiful ideas and principles. He who goes into the greatest ecstacies over pulpit essays or orations on the beauty of heroism, of benevolence of unselfishness; on the beauty of the heavens, on the beauty of the mountains, the beauty of the ocean, the beauty of the flowers, the beauty of beauty, is the burning and shining light of the church, though he frequent the theatre and faro-bank though he be a confirmed toper, and have a decidedly bad name on 'Change."

The Churches of to-day have reached a point of degradation so low that a new Reformation is almost a necessity, and the preachers who fill their pulpits, though they expatiate in choice language on the sweets of immortality, are studiously careful to avoid reference to such unpleasant subjects as lying, thieving, hypocracy, drunkenness, or indeed to any topic that would be disagreeable to the feelings of their sentimental listeners. When Mr. Beecher expressed his readiness to "step down and out," he was pointing the way that many another parson ought to take. An expurgation of the Church, a cleansing of the Temple, and a return to the old fashioned morality of the last century, must sooner or later be brought about, and the sole comfort that can be obtained from the sad exposures which have lately taken place is the hope that they may hasten the inauguration of a Christian movement what will terminate only by a thorough purification of the Sanctuary—by the expusion of the heathen from the Temples they have defiled.

The writer must be in a state of mental elation, which renders him incapable of discussing subjects relating to the churches with candor. Our churches consist of an individualism that cannot be rolled on to the collective body. The church is what this individuality has made it, and if any one thinks he can reflect on the church without reflecting on himself (if he professes membership with any) he is greatly mistaken. This wholesale condemnation of all the bodies of Christians in the world may please the writer, but it is only because he does not fully comprehend his own responsibility, or must have cast off a connexion not congenial to his mental elation; and, perhaps, is now revelling in fancies somewhat akin to that Paul referred to in the Twenty first verse of the 1st chapter of his letter to the Romans.

Gents Attention.

Thompson & Bros. call special attention to their fine and carefully selected stock of English, Scotch, and Canadian tweeds, Gents' Underclothing and Furnishings generally. Give them a call before laying in your stock of winter and fall clothing.

Ottawa.

Was the scene of a queer funeral of late, when about 50 raftsmen followed the funeral of one Luby about ten o'clock at night. The man died of delirium tremans and Paul Favreau was instructed to see him interred in the Catholic Cemetery. This he did, but he did not like the crowd that accompanied him. He felt in danger of his precious corpus, as the raftsmen manifested a desire to take the body away and do as they wanted with it. Detective Hamilton happened to be at hand, and acting under the advice of that officer, Paul navigated his subject to the cemetery unmolested.

THE CARS ON FIRE.—On Monday last the first car on the Orillia mail, Midland Railway, containing freight, was found to be an fire The fire was discovered near the Perrytown crossing and the train was immediately stopped, and after several buckets of water had been thrown on the car by the conductor and other officials, the fire was subdued, and what might have been a most serious accident prevented.—Port Hope Times.

A mass for the dead was lately celebrated in St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal Church Soho, London over the body of J. C. Chambers. All in the church were dressed in black. This is the first instance of such a service in a Protestant church.

And so it turns out after all that the small picture in the Speaker's room, which was to have served as a plank in the Opposition platform at the coming elections, was really purchased by the late Mr. Sandfield Macdonald. The following correspondence explains itself.

"DEAR SIR: I see a letter in the St. Catharines Journal, from Mr. J. C. Rykert, referring to the chromo of 'Little Mrs ——,' which he stated he found charged in the public accounts of 1872, page 33—' Ewing & Co., $227.45.'

"Will you have the goodness to let me know, as soon as you conveniently can, by whom and when the account was opened, and, if possible, who selected the picture in question, if such there be, as well as the other items contained in the account. Your obedient servant,

"A. McKELLAR

"R. D. Ewing, Esq.,
Ewing & Co., Photographers, Toronto.
Chatham, August 21, 1874.

Mr. Ewing makes the following reply:

Toronto, August 24, 1874.

"To Hon. A. McKellar, Chatham:

"DEAR SIR.—In reply to yours of the 21st., enquiring "by whom and when the account for chromos and pictures was opened, and who selected the pictures." I may state that two or three days after the House opened in the fall of 1871, Mr. Scott, the then speaker, called in, and saying that his room looked very bare, and that a few pictures would improve it, bought fifteen chromos and five mottoes, ordering them to be framed. Next morning he called in with Mr. Sanfield Macdonald, and asked me to show him his purchases. After looking over them and rejecting two, they proceeded to select a few more. One standing framed, entitled "The Reaper," after a painting by Adams, attracted Mr. Macdonald's attention, who said, "Ewing, how much for Little Mrs.——?" I stated seven dollars. Turning to Mr. Scott, he said, "Scott, that will just suit you; you had better have that," and ordered it to be placed among the list. There were a great number of frames to make, and they were not delivered till the 27th of January, 1872. We have a copy or two of Little Mrs.—— on hand, and will be glad to let you or Mr. Rykert have as many copies as you wish to supply your friends.

I am, truly yours,
R. D. EWING,
(Of Ewing & Co., Toronto.)

To this the Mail replied that Mr. Ewing must have taken over a year to fill an order of a few pictures. The Sandfield McDonald government resigned on the 19th of December '71, and on Jan. '72 in less than a month the pictures delivered. But the candor of the Mail made it a year.

Terrible Accident.

On Thursday afternoon last a most painful accident happened at the east end of the town. Some men were engaged in digging a well for Mr. Henderson, and a few days since had succeeded in reaching a depth of 22 feet, when unfortunately Mr. Henderson decided to try some nitro-glycerine for blasting. Several unsuccessful attempts were made, and one charge had to be drawn, which is a very dangerous operation. Another attempt was then made, proving unsuccessful like the other, and Mr. Harrison, who was digging the well, and who had drawn the first charge, refused to risk his life in attempting to draw a second, consequently the charge remained in the rock for some hours before the accident happened. Mr. Henderson, in company with two men named Quaill and Hackett proceeded on Thursday afternoon to blow out the charge with some gunpowder. They succeeded in firing the charge and as soon as it was off rushed up to the spot to see the result.

Henderson and Quaill succeeded in getting on to the ladder, and it is supposed got a considerable distance down before they were overpowered by the gas which had not time to clear off. Hackett, however, was not so fortunate, as immediately on his reaching the well he was seen to totter and fall heading into the excavation. A Mr. Cunningham, who was looking on, saw the accident and ran to the rescue. Upon reaching the mouth of the well, he met Quaill coming out in a state of stupor, and looking down saw Henderson sitting on the apparently dead body of Hackett. Quaill, on getting out into the open air, appeared to go entirely out of his mind, and ran around the field in which they were working several times before he came to himself. Mr. Cunningham, having obtained the assistance of some neighbors, succeeded in bringing Henderson and Hackett out of their low and damp quarters. Henderson soon came to himself and did not appear to be very seriously injured, but Hackett was in a very different condition, blood pouring from his ears in large quantities. Drs. Gascoigne and Brouse were called, and did all in their power for the poor fellow. Quaill and Henderson are said to be almost as well as ever this morning, but Hackett is in a very precarious condition, having fractured the base of his skull. Dr. Gascoigne informs us that there are but slight hopes of his recorder.—Brockville Recorder.

The Controverted Election Court, which sat at High Bluff, Manitoba, on the 25th ult., decided in favor of Mr. Jos. Ryan, who contested Marquette last election with the late Mr Cunningham. Chief Justice Wood presided. Sixty-two of Cunningham's votes were struck off, leaving Ryan in a majority of twenty. Ryan is a Reformer

THE Mail says, "it is reported in Ottawa that Mr. Mackenzie has declined the offer of the Colonel Minister to arbitrate in the difficulty arising out of the Grit Government's breach of faith with British Columbia." As the "Grit" Government did not commit a breach of faith with the Columbians, we think it very probable that Mr. Mackenzie would decline such an offer with thanks.

The Montreal Gazette, the most respectably conducted, and the ablest of the Opposition journals, says of the slanderous attacks on Mr. Brown:—"The attack on Mr. Brown is one greatly to be regretted. It is a style of warfare which cannot be pursued without injury to the country and degradation to the press. In Canada we are above all things concerned in having in public life men of honesty and character, and such men are but two frequently sensative to attack. A man who has no motive for entering public life than that of serving his country, is apt to shrink from a position which will subject him to such attacks as that which is now to be answered for before the Courts. Political controversy is not only legitimate but necessary."

The King of the Sandwich Islands is favourable to the establishment of reciprocal commercial relations between his dominions and the United States.

Scotland consumed nearly seven million gallons of British proof spirits last year, more than Ireland, and more, in proportion than England. But as the Scotch are frogal and Scotland is advancing in wealth and prosperity the fact does not furnish much of an argument for prohibition there.

The mayor of Southampton, England believes in pleasure by the wholesale. He recently gave a tea to ten or twelve thousand sunday School children, six thousand teachers and several thousand visitors in addition to the ten five bands performed sacred music and the entertainment finish with a display of fireworks.

The Examiner.

PETERBORO', SEPTEMBER 10, 1847

Lakefield Bible Christian Church.

The anniversary services of this church will be held on the 20th instant.

The Johnston Property.

Ashburnham, was not sold yesterday: $1600 was the highest bid for the whole lot. It is worth more.

Leeds.

In Leeds 21 lady and 10 males teachers voted for Smith: and 15 lady and 22 male teachers for Sangster.

Another Argument.

The murderer at Bellaville had taken several drinks before he did the deed, and was given to drink.

Minden.

A new school house is being built at this village. The contract has been awarded to Messrs. Neale and Brown, at $1,300.

By-Law.

Mr. Fowler is getting up petitions to compell the County to submit the By Law.

The "Guide."

The Port Hope Guide is reduced in size and improved in appearance. There is no less reading matter than when four columns larger.

The Sale of Town Lots.

At the sale of Corporation Property last week six lots were sold at $305, $265, $325, and $300, respectively for four lots; two at $380. and one at $130. In all $1,750.

Port Hope Markets.

Fall Wheat, $1.10 to $1.15; Spring Wheat, $1 to $1.05; Barley, 60 to 65 cts. Oats, 35 to 40 cts.; Butter, 20 to 25 cts.; Lamb, 8 to 10 cts.; Chickens. 15 to 25 cts.; Cheese, 11 to 12 cts.

In Europe.

We received a Belfast paper last Saturday from Mr. Jas. Jack, at present on a trip to Auld Scotia. He must have paid a visit also to the Emerald Isle, although perhaps a short one.

School Burned Down.

The school house in S. S. No. 9, Dummer, was burned down on the night of the 29th August. The Trustees are now asking for tenders to erect a new one. We have not heard particulars of the fire.

Fire in Dummer.

The dwelling of Mr. W. R. Howson of Dummer, was consumed by fire on Friday last. Not a particle of furniture nor of apparel was saved except what the family had on them at the time. No insurance we learn.

Dyeart.

The rate this year will be twenty mills on the dollar, or thereabouts.

The Provisional Council of Haliburton have appointed the Rev. Mr. Burt P. S. Inspector. Some of the teachers are dissatisfied.

County By-law.

Mr. Fowler has obtained the requisite number of names to his petitions in several Townships. We understand it is the same by-law presented to last meeting, that he intends presenting at next meeting of Council.

South Monaghan

Judge Dennistoun has appointed the 11th Friday, for hearing the appeal against the voters list of this Township.

The Municipal Council will meet on the 14th at ten a. m. When all accounts should be presented.

A Grievance.

The Mail is much disturbed because the Hon. O. Mowat does not attend horse races. What poor creatures the Grits must be? they neither gamble nor bet, and won't stake a red on a race! What will this Canada of ours come to! Not a single Minister attended the Toronto races.

Earl Dufferin.

The Governor-General visited Rice Lake and Hastings on Friday last. At Hastings, T. Coughlin, Esq., Reeve, presented an address to him to which he replied in appropriate terms He afterwards visited the Blairton iron mines. The people of Cobourg got up a Ball for the occasion it is said, and had a gay time generally.

Fort Garry.

The Typhoid fever is now doing its deadly work in the Capital of Manitoba. The causes assigned are stagnant water in cellars, and other nuisances in the way of slaughter houses and filthy yards.

Riel has been again elected for Provencher. Mr. Masson, one of John A's old friends, has been up there lest he might fail.

Rosa D'Ernia.

Ireland's prima donna, Rosa D'Ernia, will visit Peterborough on the 16th inst., under the auspices of the St. Patrick's Benevolent Society and Young Irishmen, of this town. Her fame as a cantatrice & pianist is sufficient to secure immense audience. All who desire to hear classic and popular music beautifully rendered, should not fail to secure a seat early.

New Paper.

The first number of the Ontario Tribune has been received. It is published in Toronto, and in the interest of Roman Catholics alone. It professes no shade of politics, but will place the interest of the Catholic people above the interests of party, supporting only the party that supports them Evidently it will not go in with the "Canada First Party." The Tribune is neatly printed and its articles well written, and certainly will deserve the support of the Catholic people if it maintain its first principles, Corner Stone.

The Corner Stone of a New Wesleyan Methodist Church was laid in Port Hope on Wednesday last, by the President of the Conference. It is only a week since their old church was consumed by fire.

M. Boyd.

Contractor for the new bridge at Bobcaygeon, is pushing the work forward with energy.

The Indians of Mud Lake have gone to a camp meeting on Lake Simcoe.

An Entertainment

In aid of the Building Fund of the South End Mission School, will be given on Monday evening, 21st inst., in the Music Hall. Mr. Templeton Brown, and several lady and gentlemen amateurs, have kindly consented to take part. An attractive programme is promised.

New Firm.

Messrs. Brock & Johnston have started business as Family Grocers, Tailors and Clothiers, and caterers for General Varieties, in the store recently vacated by Messrs. Cain & Sleeman, one door south of the EXAMINER Office. We wish the new firm every success. and have no doubt they will receive a share of public patronage.

Port Hope.

On the occasion of the Governor-General's visit to Port Hope on Thursday last a woman named Mrs M'Nall was killed while in the act of crossing the street in front of a restive team. She was knocked down, and one of the horses in passing over put his foot on her neck, and the carriage passed over her body. She survived the injuries a very short time.

Kinmount.

Mr. Clarton is laying out building lots at Kinmount. One of the streets passes through the village graveyard. and the people are opposed to this. They should it possible, remove the burying ground, before the village increases, to some place outside of the limits. If they cannot remove it, then no street should be forced through it.

Town Engineer.

Mr. J. E. Belcher has been appointed Town Engineer. He is the right man, and careful estimates by him may save some useless outlay, such as was reported about a street in the south of the town, on which it was said the work could have been done for $60, while the party who did it claimed $100, because the Committee set apart that sum as a nomine amount for the work.

Cobourg Railroad.

We have good authority for stating that the Cobourg Road and Rice Lake Bridge will soon be commenced again. The Company is arranging for what iron is needed to complete it. Our town contemporary appears to glory in anything that would prevent the consummation of this desirable work. Water Works or any thing else would satisfy, but no Rail way horte except a wooden one. Nothing like wood and water.

Barley.

This market is not yet settled at any price. Buyers here are giving from 50 cts. to 60cts. at present. Port Hope market quotations are 60 cts. to 65 cts. Prices are not likely to be much higher, it is thought. Oats sold here last week for 30 cts. while 60 cts were refused in the spring. That's the way to double the penny. Potatoes were sold on Saturday last at 60 cts. a bag. They will be less.

Time Changed.

The Steamer Chippewa will leave Lakefield on the arrival of the train on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays for the Mount Julien Hotel at 11 o'clock to connect with the train for Peterboro' and Port Hope. Passengers by this arrangement can have through connections to the Hotel from Peterborough three times a week, and from the Hotel twice a week, Monday morning and by the Thursday evening excursions. Thursday excursions will continue until further notice it given.

District Lodge O. Y. B.

We understand that the delegates of the several Lodges of Orange Young Britons in this District, arrived in Town on Friday last, and met in session at 2:30 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of forming the lodges of Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay and Peterborough, into a District Lodge, to be called the "Union District Lodge of Orange Young Britton's. In the evening the Peterborough Brethren entertained their guests to a supper, got up in the very best style by Mr. Morgan, of the Commercial House. The following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year:—Bro. Wilson, Worship Master; Bro. Lee, Deputy Master; Bro. Chas. Richards, Secretary; Bro. A. Proud, Treasurer; Bro. Thomas Lyons, Chaplain; Bro. A Ayers, Director of Ceremonies.

Allow it in Whiskey.

A story is related of a person who had rashly promised against whiskey unless ordered by the doctor. In a month or so he became unwell and sent for the family physician, whom he met at the door, and urged that whatever medicine he prescribed should be "allowed to him in whiskey." During the few days of the small pox hospital, not less than 40 gallons were consumed in it, or near it. All the medicine must have been recommended in whiskey—old rye, malt, or cherry whiskey. It is pleasant to the eye, and to be desired to make one wise. Indeed it can be safely tasted before administering it, affording a double pleasure. Forty gallons would be sufficient for meat and drink for the patients for forty days. This estimate is given by one who had a good right to know. It would be a God-send to some persons to have a small pox visitation every season.

Cornwall.

Mr. A. F. McDonald, M. P., elect for Cornwall has been unseated, for the free use of money by his friends to secure his election. Dr Bergin was his opponent. Both are Reformers, and the key to the whole matter is this: Dr. Bergin or his riends had said a Sandfield McDonald fman could not be elected in Cornwall, whereupon the whole McDonald party went to work, and by expending over $1,500 elected their man, Mr. A. F. McDonald. The whole vote was only 476 or thereabout. Dr. Bergin has succeeded in unseating him however, and there will be a new election. Both parties would have supported the McKenzie Government, and the contest was a mere personal one, in which the most money it was expected would prevail. The persons who used the money, H. S. McDonald and others, should be punished also. Very little will be gained by unseating a member for the use of money of which he knows nothing, unless the spender be punished also.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtue of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single care of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpesse in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Dompiaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious cholic, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

VILLAGE TATTLING.

O ! could there in this world be found
Some little spot of happy ground,
Where friendship, love and truth abound
Without the village tattling !
How doubly blest the spot would be
Where all might dwell in liberty,
Free from the bitter misery
Of gossips' endless prattling !

If such a spot was really known,
Dame Fame might will it as her own,
And in it she might fix her throne,
Forever, and forever ;
There like a queen might reign and live,
While every one would soon forgive
The little slights they might receive,
And be offended never.

To mischief-makers then remove
Far from our heart the warmth of love,
And lend us all to disapprove,
What gives another pleasure ;
They seem to take sad's part—but when
They've heard our sins unkindly, then
They soon retell them o'er again,
Mixed up with poisonous measure.

And then they're such a cunning way
Of telling ill-meant tales—they say :
Don't mention it, O dear'n, I pray,
I would not tell another ;
Straight to your neighbors then they go,
Narrating everything they know,
And break the peace of high and low,
Wife, husband, friend and brother.

O that the mischief-making crew
Were all reduced to one or two !
And they were painted red or blue,
That every one might know them !
Then would our villagers forget
To rage and quarrell, fume and fret,
And fall into an angry pet,
With things so much below them.

For 'tis a sad, degrading part,
To make another's bosom smart,
And plant a dagger in the heart
We ought to love and cherish.
Then let us every one be found
In quietness with all around,
While friendship, joy and peace abound,
And angry feelings perish.

ODDS AND ENDS.

About women—Men.

A paper containing many fine points a paper of needles.

Gild a big knave and honest little men will worship him.

Pottsville rats twirl their fore-legs against their noses sarcastically at rat-traps.

A long-winded orator is said to have a sleeping car attached to his train of thought.

It is a strange fact that wise men learn more from fools than fools learn from wise men.

Note shavers succeed financially because they "take so much interest" in their business.

Dayton, Ohio, has 308 grain elevators. The grain, however, is elevated in its liquid form.

Somebody has noticed that nineteen out of every twenty newspaper men have straight noses.

"One-car Fool-some" is the way Buffalo spells the name of the President of its consolidated street railways.

The fool seeketh to pick a fly from the mule's hind leg. The wise man letteth out the job to the wisest bidder.

"Can't they train Chinamen to eat grasshoppers?" is the conundrum propounded by interested parties in the West.

A Chicago paper thinks that a recent published ballad, "Oh, speak no more," should have been dedicated to Anna Dickinson.

"I wouldn't have left, but the people kinder egged me on," said a man who was asked why he quit his Kansas home in a hurry.

The Milwaukee man who tied his dog to a waggon-wheel to learn him to be a coach dog, is disgusted with the whole business.

A stout old woman in Detroit got mad lately, because a photographer wouldn't let her fan herself while she had her picture taken.

A Buffalo paper announces that by the recent burning of an ice house there, twenty thousand tons of ice were "reduced to ashes."

A chap who spent $1,500 to graduate from Harvard, is Postmaster in Iowa at $25 per year. Where would he have been but for his Latin and Greek?

Rector's daughter to Sunday School—"Oh, you have an elder brother; well, how old is he?" Schoolboy—dunno, miss, but he has just started o' swearing."

The log cabin which Mr. Lincoln made when sixteen years old, stands in seven different counties in Illinois, and they haven't got through counting yet.

The first musquitto of the season was captured near Newark, N. J., recently, after killing two dogs and bit ing off nine inches of his captor's ear. N. Y. Mail.

"Sam, why don't you talk to your master and tell him to lay up treasures in Heaven?" "What's de use of him laying up treasures up dar? He never see um again."

It is said that Barnum has offered Weston $600 to walk against time. "Why can't some one offer him $3,000 to walk against a stone wall or a buz saw?" asks the Boston Globe.

One reason why Indianapolis has so man burglaries is because a fellow has to "crack" from six to twelve houses to get money enough to pay his railroad fare out of town.

Engaging candor: Papa—"And pray sir, what do you intend to settle on my daughter? and how do you mean to live?" Intended—"I intend, sir, to settle myself on your daughter, and live on you!"

"My son, now that the boys have won at Saratoga, and thereby shown the mental superiority of the college faculty, I would like to send you to Columbia, but it's too near Brooklyn; too near Brooklyn."

What brought you to prison, my colored friend?" said a Yankee to a negro. "Two constables, mah 'a' "Yes but I mean had intemper,nce any thing to with it?" "Yes sah dey was bof of 'em drunk."

The boy who, when asked to what trade he would wish to brought up, replied, "I will be a trustee, because ever since papa has been a trustee we have had puddings for dinner," was a wise child in his generation."

A Pennsylvania boy got so homesick that he walked seventy-eight miles, without eating, in order to sit down once more at the family hearth-stone. he was received with such warmth by male parent that it was several days before he could sit down anwhere.

The Milwaukee Sentinel is authority for the statement that the grasshoppers on their way South stopped a railroad train, and got copies of St. Paul papers. when they read that only a small portion of the crops had been destroyed, they started back to finish up the job.

DOMESTIC.

For Good Whitewash or Coloring.—Take a bucket of lump lime and put it in a barrel; cover with water; when it begins to get hot pour in half a gallon of linseed oil; take care not to let the lime 'burn;' let it stand until cool, then add two pounds of alum dissolved in warm water; thin with water to work easy. This will wear for a long time, and for outside work longer than lime and alum simply. The above mixture can be colored to suit, by lampblack, Venetian red, yellow ochre, etc.

Cheap Vinegar.—Take a quantity of common potatoes, wash them until thoroughly clean place in a large vessel, and boil them until done. Drain off carefully the water that were cooked in straining if necessary, in order to remove every particle of the potato. Then put this potato water into a jug or keg, which set near the stove, or in some place where it will be kept warm, and add one pound of sugar to about two and one-half gallons of the water rouse hop-yeast. Let it stand three or four weeks, and you have excellent vinegar.

A Pound Plum Pudding.—One pound of suet, one pound of currants, one pound of stoned raisins, eight eggs, half of a grated nutmeg, two ounces of sliced candied peel, one teaspoonful of ground ginger, half a pound bread crums, half a pound of flour, half pint of milk. Chop the suet finely; mix with it dry ingredients; stir these well together, and add the well beaten eggs and milk to moisten with. Beat up the mixture well, and should the above proportion of milk not be found sufficient to make it of proper consistency, a little more should be added. Press the pudding into a mould tie it in a floured cloth, and boil for five hours, or rather longer, and serve with sauce.

A Good Omelet.—Beat the whites and yolks of three eggs separately, the whites as much as for frosting add a teaspoonful of water and a pinch of salt to the yolks, beat and add to the whites, mixing them lightly. Put a teaspoonful full of butter into a flat frying pan; hold it over till warm, and then pour in the eggs. As the mass begins to cook run a thin knife blade around the edge to keep it from burning. As soon as the surface is about dry, fold one half the omelet over the other, slide it off on a plate, and it is ready to serve, It will cook a few minutes, and should be eaten immediately. Six eggs may be cooked in a few minutes, and should be eaten immediately. Six eggs may be cooked in a large frying pan. While eating its heart of foam, I am sure you will say a better was never elaborated by Prof. Blot himself.

Oceanic Circulation.

The principle of the circulation of the waters of the sea can be very exactly illustrated by a simple and beautiful experiment. A foreign-learned society had prepared recently an iron-framed tank, with bottom, sides, and ends of plate glass, six feet long, a foot deep, and not more than an inch wide. This being filled with water, a piece of ice was placed at one end to represent the frozen Pole, and across the other was laid a bar of metal, with its projecting end over a spirit lamp, to represent the heated tropics. Red coloring matter was then put in at the warm end and blue at the cold end, so that the currents could be traced. The blue water chilled by contact with the ice, immediately fell down to the bottom, crept slowly along and gradually arose toward the surface of the equatorial end, after which it gradually returned along the surface to the starting point. The red water first crept along the surface to the polar end, then fell to the bottom just as the blue had done, and formed another stratum, creeping back again along the bottom and coming to the surface. Each color made a distinct circulation during the half hour in which the audience viewed the experiment.

Protecting Fruit from Birds.

A correspondent of the London Field says that this method has proved entirely efficacious. "And what," you will say "is my talisman?" Simply a ball of gray, white, or brown linen thread. I take a ball of this in my hand, fasten the end of it to one of the twigs of the gooseberry or currannt bush, and then cross the thread backwards from twig to twig, in perhaps a dozen different directions, fasten off and the thing is done, and it will last two years—the thread on the trees I mean. It is not necessary the thread should be white, of course; it ought rather to be fine and dark—a thing to be felt, not seen. I have watched the birds, after performing the operation; they come boldly to settle on the trees, and they strike these, to them invisible snares, for such, no doubt, they seem to be; they fly off in a terrrible hurry, and settle on the walls and trees around about, long and getting hungry, until they disapper and you see them no more. As regards peas and other seeds, which I always sow in drills, I simply stretch a thread, sometimes two along each drill, at about two inches from the ground, supporting it at that height by little forked sticks, If you put it much higher than this the birds do not seem to care for it—it does not touch them; this is the grand secret, something they do not see, nor know what it means. I have seen people put a thick white string, with feathers tied to it, and perhaps two feet from the ground. The birds soon understand these, and care little for them; in short, I know, to my cost, it sometimes acts as a lure, as a notice to the birds that there is something to be had worth looking after. I will answer for it, any one adopting the plan I recommend will never complain of the birds, however numerous they may be.

What shall we have for Dessert.—Let me suggest to your readers a few ways of varying the desert at dinner—changes from the inevitable pie. They may not be new, yet I never see them at any table besides our own.

Make a dough as for biscuit; roll thin and spread with currants, cherries or any kind of berries. Roll it up like jelly cake and steam it till done. To be eaten with sweetened cream.

Another is:—To one pint of sour milk add one teaspoonful of soda, flour to make a batter, and a handful of dried cherries or currants. Pour into a basin and steam until done. To be eaten with sweetened cream.

Instead of sweetened cream for the above pudding, a sauce made of half a pint of wine, half a cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter boiled and thickened with a little flour, might be used. Cider is a very good substitute for the wine. Or instead of the sauce, a syrup of sugar and water boiled is good with either of the puddings.—Cor. Ohio Farmer.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL
D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.
No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.
Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.
Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.
Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.
Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.
Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.
For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.
Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.
For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

MONTREAL, 3rd February, 1874.
MESSRS. FOSTER, WELLS & BRINLEY:
GENTLEMEN—I beg to acknowledge cheque from the Travellers' Insurance Company, for seven hundred and fifty dollars, in full of my claim for indemnity, under Policy No. 236,131: resulting from injuries received the 28th of August last. In bearing testimony to the prompt manner in which the Company have settled my claim, I consider it a duty as well as a pleasure, to recommend Accident Insurance as one of the most valuable systems of underwriting of the present day, and the Travellers as a Company deserving of the highest confidence and enjoying a reputation for solidity, promptness and liberality.
I remain, yours truly,
(Signed) H. HOGAN, Late Proprietor St. Lawrence Hall.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.
Probably never before in the whole history of medicine has anything won so widely and solidly upon the confidence of mankind, as has our present remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known, its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.
Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the diseases of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.
Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.
Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.
Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.
So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.
As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no wise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgement we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, about to visit, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.
For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.
For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.
Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all around the world.
PRICE, $1.00 PER BOTTLE.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently premature baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but harm it. If wanted merely for a
HAIR DRESSING,
nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white muslin, and yet lasts long on the head, giving it a rich glossy tint and a graceful pliancy.

Johnson's Force Pump and Fire Extinguisher.
For cheapness, durability, ease of working, and general efficiency, the above little article cannot be surpassed, it can be used as a FORCIBLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, a splendid article for washing Carriages or Windows or by changing the nozzle it can be used by a Lady or a Child to water a flower bed in the gentlest and most beautiful manner. Only a bucket or tub of water required. No chemicals used. It is claimed for this Extinguisher that the stream of water thrown from it appears to be fully as efficient in the results as the acid thrown from a Babcock fire extinguisher. Every house should have one. The beginning of a fire frequently occurs in such a place that it cannot be reached by water thrown from a pail or dipper, this Pump will throw a fair stream of water 45 ft. horizontally, or will drench a wall to the height of 30 ft.

THE TRAMP.

BY ROU BOSTON.

On a morn in dreary winter
Came a worn and weary printer,
With his bundle on a splinter
O'er his back;
Travel-stained, he went, and needy,
And his appetite was greedy
For a "snack."
For the printing office steering
Till within the door appear ng,
Where he bowed, as one reversing,
When he spoke,
Saying, in a voice as solemn
As a gratis Beebe column,
"I am broke!
In your city I'm a stranger,
Dusty, seedy as a Granger—
For I slumber in the manger
Of a barn—
I desire a small donation
And some easy transportation"
For my CORE.—
Beat! I tried to work my passage,
Moving freight and rough expressage
Living on bologna sausage,
Dry and poor—
But they found I was a printer
And they hustled me instanter
To the shore.
Then I sadly recollected
Days when printers were respected
For their skill. Now I am ejected
Fore and aft.
Just because some have my drinking
Set the steamboat-man to sinking
All the craft.
Thus do sober workmen suffer
By the vices of the leader
Till indeed whene'er I go for Work I shrink
Lest another's imposition
Throws on me a foul suspicion
That I drink.
Deeply does it wound and grieve me,
When a man will not believe me,
But, dear sir, if you will give me
Fifty cents,
I will, by its proper using,
Show you I'm above abusing Confidence."
By his doleful conversation
Roused he our commiseration,
And we made the "small donation,"
Which he sunk;
But while going to our dinner
We observed that hardened sinner
Beastly drunk
Thus do sober workmen suffer
By the vices of the lodge—
Beapet coin will often go for
Purest stamp,
Kindest ones who most have trusted
Are most thoroughly disgusted
With the Tramp.

JOHN WESLEY'S WIFE.

SCANDAL AGAINST A GREAT PREACHER A HUNDRED YEARS SINCE.

From the Boston Advertiser.

The assault upon the name and fame of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher recalls the story of a similar attack upon the apostolic and saintly man, John Wesley. The charges were similar and groundless beyond the shadow of a doubt. They were occasioned by the senseless jealousy of Wesley's ignorant wife, and were caught up by rival sectarians, and even entertained by the public press. Wesley disdained to notice the slanders, notwithstanding the agitation and distress of his brother, Charles Wesley, of a number of the other members of the family, and of the disciplinarians of the church. We find our narrative in the "Life and Times of the Rev. John Wesley," by the Rev. E. Tyerman, published by Harper & Brothers in 1872, in three volumes, and reprint it for the purpose of showing that men of spotless lives and the most exalted character are liable to the same abuse and slanders as have befallen the pastor of Plymouth Church. Sarah Ryan, who is mentioned in the narrative, was housekeeper in one of Wesley's denominational asylums. She had been married to three men successively, who in turn abused and deserted her. Her station in life was low, her education limited, and at times the obligations of duty lay loosely upon her. Under the preaching of the Methodists she became a convert, and won the great preacher's confidence. Wesley was undoubtedly imprudent to confide his domestic troubles to her as he did, but there is not the least atom of evidence of any other indiscretion on his part.

In February, 1756, Wesley wrote to Sarah Ryan:

"Your last letter was seasonable indeed. I was growing faint in my mind. The being continually watched over for evil; the having every word I spoke, every action I did, small and great, watched with no friendly eye; the having a thousand little tart, unkind reflections in return for the kindest words I could devise—

'Like drops of eating water on the marble,
At length have worn my sinking spirits down.'

"Yet I could not say, 'Take the plague away from me,' but only, 'Let me be purified, not consumed.'"

In another letter to Sarah Ryan he writes as follows:

January 27, 1758.

MY DEAR SISTER,—Last Friday, after many severe words, my wife left, vowing she would see me no more."

Wesley and his wife, however, were again united, but were far from being happy. On one occasion she seized his letters and papers and put them in the hands of such as she knew to be his enemies, that they might be printed as presumptive proofs of illicit connection. She even interpolated letters which she had intercepted, so as to make them bear a bad construction, and then read them to different persons in private for the purpose of defaming him. In one or two instances she published interpolated or forged letters in public prints. She accused Charles Wesley of idleness, and declared that his dearest Sally had been John Wesley's mistress. Charles danced with rage at this imputation cast upon his wife; but his Sally calmly smiled, and said, "Who will believe my sister now?" Frequently she would drive a hundred miles to see who was in the carriage with her husband on his entering a town. Sometimes her passions hurried her into outrage or indecency. More than once she laid violent hands upon his person, and tore his hair. "Jack," said John Hampson, junior—one of Wesley's biographers—to his son, "I was once on the point of committing murder. Once, when I was in the north of Ireland, I went into a room and found Mrs. Wesley in a fury. Her husband was on the floor, whose she had been thrashing him by the hair of the head; and she herself was standing, still holding in her hand venerable locks which she had plucked up by the roots. I felt," continued the gigantic Hampson, who was not one of Wesley's warmest friends, "as though I could have knocked the soul out of her."

In volume three, pp. 232, 233, and 234, it is recorded that the "Gospel Magazine," edited by the famous Toplady, reviewed an extraordinary and infamous burlesque pamphlet on Wesley, and commended it as "a delicate satire on Wesley," and hoped that the "cream of tartar so administered by the anonymous physician will prove a sweetening of the patients crudities, and conduce to carry off some of his self-sufficiency." Wesley, however, had been so "severely peppered and salted of late years" that the considerate editor of the "Gospel Magazine" benevolently intimates that he shall on that account refrain from adding pepper and salt reasoning which must often make Wesley smart and wince like an eel disposed of its skin."

This was bad enough but there was other things even worse. Wesley's wife (originally a not too respectable servant girl) stole a number of Wesley's, letters and interpolated words and misrepresented spiritual expressions, so as to make the letters bear a bad construction. She read them to an elect party of Calvanists, and agreed to send them to the Morning Post for publication. Two masked assassins, who the not inappropriate names of "Scornpinion" and "Snaedragon" previously assailed him in the London newspapers, professing to ground their charges against him upon his own private papers, which the woman who was legally his wife, had put into their hands. A more infamous episode does not occur in Wesley's history. The charges were cruel insinuations, founded upon interpolated letters, stolen by a faithless woman, who in order to defame a husband of whom she was entirely unworthy not only committed the theft, but forgery and then put herself in the hands of asset of holy Calvanists, who employed her perfidy and meanness in injuring the man whom at the altar of Most High God she had sworn to love, honor and obey. This is strong language; but the writer, knowing more then he chooses to make public, uses it with deliberate design.

Irish Bulls and Blunders.

The Irish have achieved a great celebrity in the matter of bulls and blunders. By the uninitated those are terms which are constantly confounded; but, when they are looked into, it will be seen there is the greatest difference bethem. Blundering arises from stupidity, and the stupied are a race who are found all over the world: but the bull—peculiarity that belongs exclusively to Ireland—is always connected with thought, and originates in the imaginative power of its people. It is not at all a dull absurity which no one can compreh end—it is always comprehensible even when it is most confused. It proceeds not from want, but the superabundance of ideas, which crowd on each other so fast in an Irishman's pericianium that they get jammed together, so to speak, in the doorway of his speech, and only tumble out in their ordinary disorder.

Confusion may, indeed, be called a national characteristic. It provides all Irish history. If the stream of the latter in early days has its gleams of bright tranquility, sorely troubled does it become as it descends the steps of time, till, as it flows on in the latter ages, in encounters obstructions, political and religious, which give it turmoil and perplexity that we cannot survey without deploring. As with the affairs of unhappy Ireland, so has it ever been with the peasantry. Public and social disorders have communicated a jar to the brains of Pat; and, if he can be accused now and then of being a little erratic in his sayings and doings, he can at least console himself by pointing to a long historical authority. He may say:

"Arrah! now, why wouldn't I be confused! Wasn't all of us confused, and from the earliest times, and isn't a man to be consistent! Would you have him turn his coat when scarcely a rag of it is left him?"

A good example of a bull may be cited in the case of two Irishmen, who, fancying that they know each other, crossed the street to shake hands On discovering their error;—"I beg your pardon," cried the one.

"O, don't mention it," said the other. "It's a mutual mistake; you see I thought it was you, and you thought it was me, and after all it was neither of us."

A good pendant to this is told of two friends who met, and referred to the illness of a third:

"Poor Michael Hogan! Faith I'm afraid he's going to die."

"And why should he die?

"O, he's got so thin! You're thin enough, and I'm thin; but, by my wolen, Michael Hogan is thinner than both of us put together!"

A bull is sometimes produced by the fals use of a word, as in the case of an Irish watchman giving evidence at a police office:

"What is the man's offence?"

"He was disorderly, your worship, in the strates last night."

"And did you give him warning before you took him into custody."

"I did, your worship, I said to him, "Disparse!"

Again, a bull may be occasioned by a confusion of identities, as when it was said of an ugly man that he was handsome when an infant, but he was unluckily changed at nurse; or, as it was shown in the favor of a girl who, desiring her lover's miniature, and he fearing it might lead to discovery:—"O, it needn't," she exclaimed; "I'll tell the painter not to make it like you!"

And again, a bull may be owing to a limited amount of knowledge, as in the case of an old woman going to the chandler's for a farthing candle, and being told it was raised to half-penny on account of the Russian war: "Bad luck to them," she exclaimed; "and do they fight by candle-light?"

Apart, however from all these, the ordinary sayings of the Irish have an imaginative quality which is found in no characteristic, and not all confusing. As, for instance, when they say of a poor who is irretrievably ruined: "Saltpetre wouldn't save him, and that is a strong pickle:" or when they would advise another to avoid arrest: "Be off while your shoes are good;" or, as they delicately say of an elderly lady whose number of years they forbear to mention, "A kitten of her age wouldn't play with a cork."

And apart from all these, again, is the genuine humor of the Irish, which has nothing of the bull in it whatever, but, on the contrary, the clearest notions, and very often the shrewdest sense. We will only cite a couple of instances, which will not be the less welcome if they happen to have been heard before:

A gentleman seeing an Irishman staggering home from a fair, observed to him:

"Ah, Darby, I'm afraid you'll find the road you're going is rather a longer one than you think."

"Sure, your honor," he replied, "it's not the length of the road I care about; it is the breadth of it is destroying me."

And again, in the bog of Aughrim, in the last century, plenty of gun-barrels used to be found as a memento of its great battle, and there was a blacksmith who dug them up, in order to make use of their material. On one occasion one of them exploded in his furnace, when he exclaimed:

"Bad luck to your love of murder, isn't the battle of Aughrim out of you yet!"

ANCIENT ROME.

Excavations made in Rome during the last twenty years have unburied the actual foundations, and more than foundations, of enormous works, which show that at the period of the kings, Rome was a fortified city of very great importance, and that it contained an immense population, governed by despolic monarchs. The fact that special fortifications were commenced, and discontinued after some important event is established beyond a doubt. The wells which were constructed by the chief—when we may as well call Romulus as anything else—for the use of the garrison when driven to their last resources, are still in existence, and in their construction, are unlike any others in Italy, ancient or modern. The peculiarity of construction of these wells lies in their termination at their lower extrem

PETERBORO, SEPTEMBER 10, 1874

Concert.

Remember the entertainment in the Music Hall on Monday night, the 21st instant, in aid of the South end Mission School. Mr. Templeton Brown having kindly consented to take part with our local amateurs, we have no doubt it will be one of the most attractive entertainments this season. Tickets 25 cents, to be had at the Book stores, and at the door.

The Town Rate.

At the last meeting of the Town Council, Mr. Romaine stated that the Council would pass away with a deficit of $9.000 The rate is fixed at 15 mills, and several members of the council wished to amend this by fixing the rate at 17½ mills, and this we are told would still leave a deficit.

The correct and just way is, for every council to meet its own expenditures, and it would perhaps be wise to levy an extra rate this year, and wipe off all the old deficits. It would be wise if succeeding Councils would watch their expenditures. But experience teaches that each council vies with the preceding one, in spending all they possibly can, but claiming that it is all necessary to keep pace with the growing demands of the Town. The expenditure has been increasing yearly, and this may be expected to continue; but it should be kept within reasonable limits. The present council has discovered the trouble,—are the members seeking to reduce the cause of it?

The Streets and bridges require large expenditures, might not the sum to be expended be fixed at, say, $4,000 to $5,000 and the sum fixed early in the season, and not to be exceeded.

The small pox item of $1629 (as $20 have been added to it) is an extraordinary expenditure not occuring every year; but even this sum might have been made much less. The [illegible]inary item of $800 to a Physician for visiting the hospital 40 days, once or twice a day, is double what it should be, while there was a Town Physician already paid: $400, can be saved here, and in other items about $100 to $200 more.

The item Miscellaneous is also large, and could be kept down with care.

The true expenses of the Schools for the year is, $8,082 as placed in the estimates. There was a mistake made last year of $3,600, which should not be included in any account of this year, except as a deficit. This item can not be much less in future, no matter how economical the Board may be, as with increased population there must necessarily be increased expenditure. If this council leaves a legacy to its successors of $9,000 of a deficit, it may induce a more careful policy, and secure a return to economy. Mr. Ormond and Mr. O'Beirne in their turn kept their expenditures and income equal while at the head of the Finances. We hope their good example will be returned to by all future town financiers.

BOBCAYGEON.

The people of this Village are again bestirring themselves in reference to a Railway to that place.

A Committee has been appointed to consult with the Cobourg R R. Company and the Town of Peterborough, so as to secure the extension of the Cobourg road to the Village, or perhaps farther. But the Independent is still foolishly abusing the parties who first took an active part in endeavouring to get a road for them, and who are the only parties who are ever likely to do anything in that direction. This was the course pursued by the Independent before, and there can be no more suicidal policy. Personal ill-will should not be allowed to interfere with public progress. If the Editor of the Independent has a quarrel with any one, and because of his quarrel he must throw cold water on the only railway scheme that can be used for the good of the Village, then he mistakes his mission while sinking the general good in his own feuds.

The Cobourg railway is the only one one that appears ever likely to reach that Village, and Mr. Fowler is at present the best man to work up the enterprise.

Would it not, therefore, be wiser to do what is reasonable to induce the Company (whether through Mr. Fowler or any one else) to complete the work at once. There is now a prospect of the road being completed to Peterborough, early this winter, The timber for the Rice Lake Bridge passed down the River on Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday last. Orders we understand have been issued for the completion of work, the Iron necessary is purchased, and soon the portion referred to will be in operation. There will then be only 14 miles to construct to reach Bobcaygeon. Why do not the people decide what they will do and make their offer to the Company? Then they will speedily find out what really will be done. Every man in Bobcaygeon who may be instrumental in driving away the Company or their friends, is an enemy to Bobcaygeon. The Company is not a Railway Company, and will not be abused, while merely according to a request of the people of the Village to build them a road.

If our advice had been taken when Mr Fowler was promoting the extension two years ago, if the people had then offered their bonus to the road: if they had ceased their slandering the company and listened to reason — and wise councillors, they would this day have the road, and its advantages. They pursued the opposite to all this, and they have the consequences. It will be so again. The course of the Independent is the same as that pursued by our Town contemporary, and we know where we are, while Lindsay is reaping the benefits arising from our divisions. So, Fenelon Falls, Kinmount and Minden will laugh at the divisions in Bobcaygeon, while the latter place will be left out in the cold to use a common phrase. The wise course for the citizens of Bobcaygeon to pursue is to assist those who are able and willing to assist them, and the most simple of them must see that the Cobourg Company is the only one to which they can look, or that is at all likely to bring them a railroad. And as Mr. Fowler is now negotiating with the company to that end, he should not be repelled by personal abuse to gratify private spleen.

TOWN COUNCIL

The Council met on Monday evening. Present—Messrs. Toole, Beal, Rutherford, Robertson, Denne, Hopkins, Paterson, Romaine, Cahill, Hamilton.

In the absence of the Mayor, Mr. Dixon was called to the chair.

The Minutes were read and confirmed.

A letter from Mr. F. E. Burnham was read, in reference to injury done to the property of Dr. Burnham and A. W. Kempt, on Brock street, and threatening legal proceedings if not remedied.

A communication was read from Mr. Bradburn, asking leave to use the tank on the Market Square while building.

On motion of Mr. Beal, seconded by Mr. Toole, The petition of Mr. Bradburn was granted.

The petition granted.

David Doig asked to open a butcher shop on Townsend Street. Granted.

A communication from A. Dawson, asking to have a platform put opposite his new building on Hunter Street was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

A communication from Mr. Geo. Tighe in reference to putting up street signs on street corners was received.

A letter from Col. Haultain, Registrar, was read, stating that he had examined Mr. Romaine's map of the Town, and considered it a good one, but requested that the Council name some streets on it not yet named. Referred.

A communication from Wm. Hamilton, asking the use of McDonald Street while rolling a large boiler from his works to the cars. Request granted.

A letter was read from D. G. Hatton in reference to costs in the case of Donnelly vs. Cummings collector was referred to the Finance Committee.

A letter was received from Wm McDonald, asking for a transfer of license from Mr. Buller to him, was referred to the Committee on Licenses.

A petition was next read, from J. P. Metheral, asking for the use of the instruments of the Independent Band, as that band is now broken up, was referred to a special Committee.

From A. Morton, asking for repairs on Hunter Street between George and Water Streets. Was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Accounts from Messrs. Boyd, Smith & Co., $282, from A. Comstock, for funeral expenses of A. Maher, $18; Estate of the late S. Dickson, for lumber, $375.43; and from J. E. Belcher, $10, for plans of hose tower for Fire Committee. Were refered.

From John Mitchell and others in reference to injury done to property on Brock and Chambers Streets. Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Mr. Toole referred to the account of Boyd, Smith & Co., stating that the lumber had not been ordered by the Committee. Mr. Smith, who was present, explained that Mr Cummings had ordered the lumber. Mr. Beal also corroborated this statement, Mr. Cummings denying it.

The accounts were referred to the Street and Bridge Committee, except A. Comstock's, which was referred to the Finance Committee, after considerable discussion.

The petition of Mr. Hopkins, asking for a platform opposite his new dwelling in the South Ward was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Mr. Edwards put in a statement, showing expenditures since last meeting, $520.83: of this, $384 were for streets and bridges

Moved by Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Cahill,—That the communication of the Registar be refereed to the Street and Bridge Committee with Mr. Romaine with power to act. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Beal, The Clerk was directed to give notice that this Municipality will apply to the provincial Legislature for the passage of an Act during its next session for permission to issue debentures to the extent of $12,000 to aid in the purchase of sites and for the erection of Ward Schools.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Rutherford the petion of J. P. Metheral and others was referred to a special committee of Messrs. Romaine, Hamilton, Beal, Robertson and the mover to enquire into the matter and report to the Council at the next meeting.

On Motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Beal,—That as John Kennedy is suffering from paralysis the Treasurer be, and he is hereby directed to pay the family to the extent of three dollars a week during the pleasure of the Council.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Robertson, that the services of Thomas Beavis, Esquire, are now no longer required as assistant Health Inspector, and in dispensing with his services the Council have to thank Mr. Beavis for his very efficient services as rendered by him.

A motion to introduce a By-Law to amend the By-Law striking the rate for the year so as to fix the rate at 17½ mills was lost.

The Chairman of the School Board, Mr. Stevenson, on motion, addressed the Council, asking them to provide funds for the completion of the South Ward School. After discussion, in which all the members took part. Mr. J. M. Smith suggested that they could borrow from the banks till debentures could be issued to meet the amount.

Moved by Mr. Beal, seconded by Mr. Toole,—That the Treasurer be, and is he hereby instructed and directed to borrow from the Banks such sums as may be wanted from time to time, upon production of certificates from the architect to pay the orders of the chairman of the School Board for the erecting of the new school now being in No. 1 Ward, and not to exceed $4,500. including what has been already paid by the Treasurer; such sums to be repaid by debentures to be issued so soon as necessary permission be granted by the Legislature for the purpose. Lost on a division.

In amendment, Moved by Mr. Romaine, seconded by Mr. Patterson,—That the Treasurer be, and is hereby authorized to pay the Chairman of the School Board the balance required for the completion of the southward School, be repaid by Debentures to be issued for that purpose. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Denne, seconded by Mr Hopkins, Mr. Bradburn was allowed to build the East and West walls of the New Town Hall one foot each farther out than his limits, with a view to placing his iron pillars on the centre of the walk, the extension of the walls not to rise above the platforms.

The Finance Committee beg leave to report, and recommend the payment of the following:

George Stethem	$18 00
Wm. Croft	50 00
M. Davidson	81 59
D. G. Henthorn	36 00
John Doherty	27 90
W. S. Johnston	14 76
Pat Conway	6 00

(Those below are items of the small pox accounts)

A. Clegg	$ 3 00
O. Giles	77 00
H. C. Winch	1 40
J. Madden	10 00
Geo. Johnston	19 00
T. W. Heather	54 35
A. Comstock	13 00
John Sullivan	6 25
J. Haggart	6 60
Hall & Innis	5 65
W. H. Green	20 25
R. W. Thompson	1 20
John Beavis	48 40
W. Beal	8 39

As to the claim of James Navin for sheep destroyed by dogs, it appears that the said sheep were running at large, and as such the Council are debarred by the Statute from allowing him anything in the way of remuneration.

Your Committee, after considering all the small pox accounts referred to them at the last meeting of the Council, have decided to leave over some of the most important ones, as the meeting of your Committee on their discussion was not a full one.

(Signed), W. Beal.

John Beavis handed a letter to the Clerk, which was read. It complains that, as a ratepayer he had sent his child to school that day, and that it was refused admittance for want of room, the Principal stating that it should enter at the first of the month. Referred to the Chairman of the School Board.

Moved by Mr. Beal, seconded by Mr. Toole, that taking into consideration the affliction which has fallen upon Col. Barret, resulting in the loss of his wife, after protracted ill health, the expense of which he is unable to defray, the Treasurer is hereby instructed to pay to Mr. D. Hopkins the sum of twenty dollars to aid in paying the said expenses. Carried.

Mr. Toole moved to introduce a By-Law to amend the By-Law fixing the rate for this year. He said that the rate was 15 mills, but this would leave a deficit of eight or nine thousand dollars, which ought not to be, and hence his desire to amend the By-Law and fix the rate at 17½ mills.

Mr. Romaine supported the motion.

Mr. Hamilton was in favor of letting the By-Law alone, as it was frivolous to be tinkering a By-Law only passed at last meeting.

After full discussion, the motion was put, and declared lost.

Here a mixed discussion arose, after which Mr. Toole moved his resolution again, by permission of the Chairman, but it was again lost, six voting for it; but the Chairmon held that it required seven votes to carry it.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

HORTICULTURAL SHOW.

The Fall Show of this Society was held yesterday in the Music Hall. The show was an improvement on former shows. The exhibition of flowers was not any better, but this may be accounted for from the late drought. Fruit and vegetables were good; fine arts not largely represented, Ladies' work, on the contrary, was much in advance of some of the late shows.

Conversaz one.

The teachers of St. Andrew's Church Sunday School are making arrangements for a literary and musical entertainment, which they confidently expect, cannot fail to be unusually attractive. They are to be favored with readings from the Rev. D. J. McDonnel, of Toronto; W. H. Scott, Esq., and in music, the old popular favorite, Mr. Templeton Brown, will appear, aided by vocalists and instrumental performers, well and favorably known to the community. Fuller particulars will be given in a later issue.

Bishop Cummins.

Bishop Cummins, now so well known in the religious world as the founder of the Reformed Episcopal Church, was born in the State of Delaware, Dec. 11, 1822. His early religious associations were with the Methodists. He graduated at Dickenson College, Carlisle, Pa., in 1841, was ordained a deacon of the P. E. Church in 1843, and a priest in 1847. Princeton College conferred upon him the degree of D. D. in 1860. He had successively charge of parishes in Norfolk, Va., Richmond, Va., Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Md., and Chicago, Ill. Whilst in charge of Trinity Church, Chicago, he was elected Assistant Bishop of Kentucky, receiving consecration in Christ's Church, Louisville in that State, on the 15th of November, 1866. The ritualistic tendencies and practices of certain churches in the See of Kentucky were censured by him, and finding that neither his example nor influence was sufficient to effect a Reformation within the Episcopal Church, he and a number of other clergymen, who, in other parts of the country, had a similar experience, met some months ago in New York and organis d the Reformed Episcopal Church. This movement, which had for its object the purification of ritual from certain tendencies, and the establishment of fellowship with other Christians, was one of very great significance, and the manner in which it has spread shows that many had felt the need of some such change.

Bishop Cummins is at present in Ottawa where he laid the corner-stone of the new Reformed Episcopal Church on Tuesday last, a ceremony which was largely attended by ladies and gentlemen.

The basement of the church is already nearly finished, and the ground plan shows that the church will be in the form of a cross, with a gable front facing to the eastward. The style of the architecture is Gothic, and the front gable will be surmounted by a very neat spire, 88 feet in height. The height from the floor to the apex of the building will be about 56 feet; the length of the body of the church will be 90 feet by 60 across the widest part of the chancel, viz., that part of the church which corresponds with the arms of the cross. The church is to be built as a frame with a veneering of brick, but it will have a solid basement of Gloucester stones.

The corner stone is placed at the north-east corner, and in the cavity covered by the stone has been deposited, a tin box containing the coins of the Dominion, viz, 50, 25, 10, 5, and one cent pieces. Also copies of the Ottawa daily newspapers, the Montreal Daily Witness, the Episcopalian the Toronto Sunday Times, an account of the proceedings of the second General Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church held in May, 1874, copies of correspondence relative to the formation of the new Church, and the sermon preached by Dr. Cummins on the occasion of the consecration of Bishop Cheney. In addition to these documents there was enclosed in the cavity a brief resume of the proceedings in connection with the formation of a Reformed Episcopal Church in Ottawa, which was read by Mr. Alexander, Vestry Clerk, at the conclusion of the religious services.

Inconsistently Illustrated.

At the late general election Mr. A F. Macdonald, brother of the late Mr. Sandfield Macdonald, was a candidate for Cornwall and received the Mail's earnest and unqualified support. The organ sneered at his opponent, Dr. Bergin, and called him "that nonentity and political clown, Darby," and did all in its power to forward the cause of "the brother of Sandfield" Sandfield's son also assisted his uncle, all the Tories voted for him, and a special train was run from Kingston to Cornwall to convey electors who voted for John A. in Kingston, Shanley, (Tory), in Prescott, and Macdonald in Cornwall. For this train young Sandfield paid $160.

Mr. A. F. Macdonald was unseated the other day, and now the Mail holds him up as a terrible example of "Grit" corruption. His election is alleged to be another proof that the "Grits" carried the country by bribery, and the headings which the consistent organ puts over its report of the election trial are something unique in their way, and under the circumstances, ludicrously absurd. Now we don't mean to say that it takes even average cleverness to detect such idiotic raving as this in the organ, and we don't claim credit for showing up the organ's clumsy slanders. We simply point out a flagrant example occasionally of the organ's stupid inconsistency, so as to let our Tory friends see the sink of misrepresentation from which they get their information. We hope they like it—Stratford Beacon.

From Quebec.

THE POLITICAL CRISIS.

Under date of September 11, a press despatch says: Of the many rumors current yesterday there was one to the effect that Mr. Courcel had advised Mr. De Boucherville to communicate with Mr. Joly, as under the existing state of things a Coalition Government alone will command the respect of Parliament.

Last evening, while the express train from Montreal was nearing Danville depot, a Swedish woman on board went upon the platform and jumped off. She fell under the train, and was immediately killed, her left leg being cut off, and her head crushed like a nutshell. The unfortunate woman was considered weak of mind, and on a number of other occasions attempted to destroy herself.

NO RESSURECTION.

The Canadian Monthly for September thus comments upon the downfall of the Quebec Government and the general collapse of the Conservative Party in Canada:—

"The 'landswap' affair in Quebec is evidently black, too black to be defended even by the fidelity of party; probably it will lead to the fall of the Conservative Government, for the two bad bricks can hardly be taken out without bringing the edifice to the ground. Thus perishes the last remnant of that powerful and ably led, though artificial combination which so long governed the country, and which consisted of British Toryism, Orangeism, and Downing street connection, curiously united with the Anti-British and Roman Catholic Separatism of Quebec. That this combination had no natural basis, or real ground of existence under the circumstances of that period of our history which has just closed, it would be rash to maintain; but its days were evidently numbered; it rested on nothing which was "truly Canadian; what was not French of it was merely Colonial, it appealed to no sentiment in the hearts of the rising generation, to whom Canada is not a colony, but their country. Thus, destitute of genuine support, saving the equivocal allegiance of the French Catholics under Sir George Cartier (whose influence had failed before he died), it was reduced at last to intrigue and corruption, by which it protracted its existence long enough to compromise gravely, in its North-Western operations, the destiny of the country. It is now dead, and for such a party there is no resurrection."

There are more Small Pox accounts coming in. Mrs. Higgins filed one on Tuesday, for $20, which was paid. She earned it.

Smith.

On the 10th the thermometer registered in the shade, S. S. No. 4, 108° from 2 till after 4 o'clock, and next day 104°. On no previous occasion did we ever notice it higher than 96° in the same place.

London the Less.

Mr. Walker's election cost $5,000. He will be unseated. He was a Conservative, but the Reformers voted for him against John Carling. Carling's Committee also spent large sums.

The Stewart House Property.

This property was sold on Tuesday by Auction. The three highest bids were: Timothy Cavanagh.....$15,000
Thos. Donnelly..... 15,100
W. Cluxton..... 15,150

Mr. Cluxton becoming the purchaser.

Another Victim.

Thomas Prout, four months from England, had been working with Mr. R J. Winch near Cobourg. On Monday last after tea, he went to Cobourg and got drinking, drank at several saloons got a bottle of whiskey, on his way home at a saloon, drank a tumbler full, became so helpless he fell on the floor, was drawn home stupid and died through the night He had lately sent home for a wife and family.

Brockville and Elisabethtown.

At a Convention of Reformes held in Brockville last week, Col. Cole was elected Reform candidate in the approaching contest Hon. Mr. Frazer was unanimously nominated first, but declined the honor, as he was desirous to stick to South Grenville, which has placed him where he is. Mr. Wylie and Mr. Cole were afterwards nominated, and consented to the nomination, each binding himself to support the strongest man. The lot fell on Col Cole. Mr. Fitzsimmons the Conservative candidate. The Recorder bets two to one on Cole.

Organize! Organize!

In the heading of a leading article in last Review. The watchward has been given; a great Convention is to be held on the 23rd instant in Toronto. Yes! the Conservatives are to hold a Convention:—Yanke importation, to organize against the cliques and factions now in power; so says the Review. They must be up and doing. The friends in this county have taken action to have a full and efficient representation at this Yank Convention on the 23rd. Reformers should take the hint, and do their work wisely and well. There is not a shadow of a chance for the Conservatives in this County if reformers will but stand by each other.

Another Lesson.

The Cobourg Sentinel say: On Friday last James Shippeco arrived at Harwood evidently the worse of liquour. Late in the evening he was turned off the platform by some of the railway employees and went up the hill toward the tavern. Nothing more was seen of him till about 11 o'clock, when the train started to come into Cobourg. It was then found that a man was under the last car of the train, which was at once stopped and the man taken out. He proved to be poor Shippego and he had evidently gone under the last car to sleep, not knowing that the train was to leave that night. His injuries were of a fatal character, his ribs being crushed in and one foot and the toes of the other foot cut off. He died on the following day. There is no question that his death lies at the door of the man who sold or gave him the liquor, and if the temperance societies in that locality are worth a rush they will find out and punish the offender. To give or sell liquor an indian is punishable by heavy fine and imprisonment, and, in addition, his widow can claim heavy damages at law.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—Since my return to Peterboro', a couple of weeks ago, I learn from many of my friends that an erroneous impression prevails regarding my dismissal from Service on the Intercolonial Railway. It is, I understand, sought to attribute it to the result of an investigation by a Committee of the House of Commons in May last, into the contract I had charge of. This is untrue. The official notice of my dismissal by the Dominion Government bears date 19th March, about two months before the investigation was held or thought of. The EXAMINER, I am told, being the only Peterboro', paper that published the Report of Committee referred to, I must ask you to insert this contradiction of the false impression it is tried to base upon it. As it is probable I shall have more to say on this subject very shortly, I will for the present close further reference to it.

I am, Sir,

Yours truly,

JAMES W. FITZGERALD

Peterboro', 15th Sept., 1874.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

The following letter appeared in the Globe of Tuesday: It explains itself.

FILING OF OBJECTIONS TO VOTERS LISTS.

(To the Editor of the Globe.)

SIR,—In your paper of to-day you publish an extract from the Act respecting Voters' Lists, showing when and how notice of voters' lists and copies thereof s all be published and delivered.

Sec. 6 of said Act you have not published. It says any person complaining of errors may within 30 days after the Clerk has posted the said list in his office and transmitted or delivered the said copies, give notice of his complaint, &c.

Sec. 7 says, if no complaint is received by the Clerk within 30 days after the first posting up of the same, he shall apply to the Judge to certify one of the copies received by the Judge, &c.

Now, Sir, suppose the Clerk has served or mailed his copies fourteen days after he posted up his copy in his own office, when do the thirty days for filing objections count from—the posting up or the service? If the former, suppose the Clerk does not serve or post copies until twenty-nine days after posting up. Shall he, nevertheless, be entitled to get the Judge to certify his copy thirty days after the First posting up? I presume it was intended that the posting up and delivering or mailing should be on the same day, but in one municipality in this Riding objections were filed within thirty days from the posting up and delivery of copies, but one day too late, counting from the posting up, yet the County Judge rules that, notwithstanding the plain language of the 6th section of the Act, objections must be filed with the clerk within thirty days of the posting up, and states that at a meeting of the Judges, eighteen out of twenty were of the opinion. Perhaps you can reconcile the sixth and seventh clauses of said Act. It certainly was not intended that the delay or conivance of the clerk should oust people of the right of objection, and thus nullify the Act.

LEX.

Peterborough, Sept. 12th, 1874.

(THE GLOBE'S REPLY.)

In reference to the letter of "Lex," which will be found in another column we have to say that an appeal embracing the whole case was heard before and decided by Chief Justice Richards on the 8th of the present month. It seems that in the county of Peel the notices were first posted up in the Clerk's office on the 14th of July and that as alleged, the various parties mentioned in the Act had their copies either delivered or mailed to them at the same time. This, at any rate was what the Clerk affirmed. The defeated candidate however Mr White declared that he never got his copy, and as the Clerk had not sent it by registered letter nor delivered it personally. There was by and by delivered to Mr. White on the 29th of August, weeks after the thirty days had expired counting from the first posting up of the list in the Clerks office. It was held and argued before the County Judge that the thirty days had to be counted from the first posting up of the notice and that consequently Mr. Whyte and his objections had no standing. The Judge hald however that the fair and reasonable reading of the law required the "thirty days" to be counted from the last delivery of the list to any one of the parties mentioned in the Act, whether that was done by personal service or by mail through a registered letter. This decision was appealed against, but was confirmed by Chief Justice Richards who ruled accordingly that the thirty days in the county of Peel should count, not from the 14th of July when the Clerk first posted up the notices in his office but from the 29th of August when the last list was transmitted as the Act directs. This decision is evidently in according with both the letter and spirit of the Act. It will not do for a clerk to evade his responsibility by merely affirmig that he transmitted or posted the list at such a date. He must have means of proving that this was done and can only effect this by having registered the letters of transmitting in such cases as he could not overtake by personal delivery.

If such there is a single case in any county of the Province where any one of the parties mentioned as having a right to lists of voters has not received them even yet, the legal thirty days for receiving objections will not be till after the last of these parties have been duly served and inconvenience or loss arising from the delay or non transmission of the necessary documents must be borne by the Clerk.

SMITH COUNCIL.

Smith, Sept. 7, 1874.

The Council met. All the members present. The Minutes of last meeting were read and signed.

The Quarterly Report of the Inspector was received, read, and adopted.

The Treasurer rendered an account of his receipts and payments up to date, and also an estimate of the probable receipts and payments during the remainder of the year. After a careful examination of the same, the Council deemed it inexpedient and unnecessary to levy any rate for municipal purposes for the current year.

The sums directed to be levied by the County Council are for general County purposes—$3,349.16 debentures; debt and interest, $1,287.13; and for school purposes. $350.

A By-Law, providing for levying and collecting a rate of one cent in the dollar, for payment of the same, received its several readings, and passed—as did also a By-Law to levy and collect the following sums on all ratable property, situate in the several School Sections in the Township, for scholastic purposes for the present year: On School Section No 1, $325; No. 2, $220; No. 3, $280; No. 4, $280; No. 5, $270; No. 6, $280; No. 7, $280; No. 8, $230; No. 9, $250, and on No. 10, $200.

The Treasurer was instructed to pay the following sums: to Robert McKibbin to cut down a bill on the 5th concession line, $30; to Peter Morrison for repairing road scrapers, $12; to R. Romaine, for minute book and advertisement $8 92. and to James Stratton, for printing, $31.

The police pick up hundreds of little waifs in the streets that have been abandoned by their parents of which the public never hear. A Myrtle Brooklyn officer yesterday handed over to the public nurse a child which he had found on the stoop of a private residence. Pinned to the little one's clothing were the lines: "Be kind to the little darling and God will reward you From a heart broken mother. I am in poor circumstances. May it please the good Lord to take it to His bosom. If you do not want this little one please find a Christian home for it."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtue of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Where ever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious cholic, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

PROSTATION, resulting from the effects of the intense heat of the summer months, is dr-iposing cause of so many of the diseases deculiar to hot weather. The stomach partaking of the loss of vitality pervading the whole system, is unable to complete digestion the food passing undissolved through the bowe's, irritates the lining membrane, and Diarrhœa, Dysenkery, Cholera Morbus, and when prevailing Asiatic Cholera, may be excited. Attention to diet, moderate exercise, bathing, and regular habits must be observed. To maintain the vital forces and prevent lassitude and exhaustion, Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is unquestionably reliable, as it invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies material for generating nerve force.

FALSE PRIDE.

False pride is a terrible affliction. The person that suffers from it is as surely to be pitied as one who is subject to toothache. Can I say no more than that? Yes, there is a great advantage on the side of the martyr who has an aching tooth: he is only too glad to be rid of it. He will endure the torture of extraction, and gulp with relief when it is out. But who ever knew a victim to false pride who desired to be rid of his torture? No one. The people who are crushed most cruelly beneath that tyrant's heels call him Proper Pride, and rejoice in him.

A sense of respect for the opinion of others is a great protection to us when we are only ashamed of doing what is wrong, and base, and contemptible, and when conscience is the judge before whom we stand. But there are many people who would defy conscience who will even obey her dictates, lest they should offend the omnipotent Mrs. Grundy at her meanest.

It is false pride that keeps many a man always in anxiety. His income allows a moderate style of living, but he is ashamed of living within it. He must be stylish or die. So there is neither peace in his heart nor rest in his brain, and bills he cannot pay are forever becoming due, and duns are at his door perpetually. Providence is accused of his sudden death. Providence has arranged that he should live long and comfortably: false pride has worried him to death.

False pride causes men and women, too, to cut their friends when they wear shabby clothes; to tell dreadful fibs with the view of making themselves greater than they are; to hide their virtues and boast of their vices; often to restrain the best feelings of their natures. None of us but have suffered little from these feelings—if only to the extent of withholding an opinion that is just and true, or assenting to something with our lips which our heart refuses to sanction.

Three Score and Ten.

That age, when it is reached with a comfortable exemption from earth's trials, is about as happy as any other. When the old frame is literally free from infirmities, and the mind is clear, and faith strong, and temporal wants supplied, and family ties pleasant, and the retrospects of life peaceful and no hopeless grief for the dead or living of kindred is upon the soul, and there be peace with God and man, there is a condition of things that leaves no room to envy the young or the middle-aged, or the most prospered of earth in mid-career of success honor. It is a period full of ripe experiences, usually also of calm passions, of enlarged charity, of deep humility, and of growing heavenly-mindedness, the reflex of a nearer approach to a better land. And then death usually comes easier to the aged than to others, as ripe fruit is readily plucked, and as the worn-out laborer soon falls asleep when the day's toil is over.

Our Lord says the old cloth must be put away with the old garment, as matching best therewith, and so the old age of the Christian joins in happily with the olden eternity. God himself gives the promise, with long life will I satisfy him and show him my salvation, as a reward and favor,—and so it is. Happy are they who have reached a serene, peaceful, religious three-score and ten. Let them render thanks to the God of all grace, who has brought them through in the wilderness to that Nebo on its border; let them stand there and look awhile on the goodly land he yond, and then yield up their soul into the hands of a most merciful God and Saviour, and the body to His keeping far the Resurrection of the just.—The Churchman.

COMMON MISTAKES.

What a common thing it is, amongst even some of our most intelligent men, to select low, sheltered, warm places, if possible, whereon to lay out their orchards, quite forgetful of the fact that by so doing they are laying their fruit and other trees all the more liable to the ravages of frost. On hills, where the wind blows freely, it tends to restore to plants the heat lost by radiation, which is the reason that hills are not so liable to sharp frosts as are still valleys. When the air is cooled it becomes heavier, and rolling down the sides of the valleys, forms a lake, so to speak, of cold air at the bottom: this adds to the liability of frosts in places. The coldness is frequently still further increased by the dark and porous nature of the soil in low places, radiating heat faster to the clear sky than the more compact upland.

A knowledge of those properties, therefore, teaches us the importance of selecting elevated localities for fruit trees and all crops liable to be cut off by frost; and it also explains the reason why the muck or peat of drained swamps are more subject to frosts than other soils on the same level. Therefore, corn and other tender crops upon such porous soils must be of the earlier ripening kinds, so as to escape the frosts of spring by late planting, and those of autumn by early maturity.

NOT THE RIGHT STRIPE.—An amusing instance of a crushing reply is given in a recently published work called "Old Times in Ireland." An Irish post boy was one day driving an English traveller. During the journey the Englishman kept abusing and making fun of the Catholic religion, much to the annoyance of Mick, who belonged to the Romish Church. He however, was obliged to keep his feelings to himself, until at last an opportunity came for giving vent to them. They came to a dead donkey on the roadside, and the traveller, thinking he would be very clever, said, with a lisp, "Dwiva, did that jackath retheive eethween unction pweviouth to bweathing hith lath?" Mickey's reply was brilliant, "He did not, your honor. The bast died a Protestant."

ANOTHER SCANDAL.—The Picton Times of the 8th inst. says:—"About a week ago the Town was again scandalized by the rumor that a well-known individual had committed, at his rooms, a grossly indecent assault upon a little girl of nine years—the child of a neighbor.—On Friday last the person implicated—(Ichabod Smith Bowerman, Dentist)—was examined at the Mayor's Court, on a charge preferred by the father of the little girl. Messrs Allison and Merrill conducted the case for the Defendent, and Mr. Low on behalf of the girl and public morality. After a patient investigation, the Mayor dismissed the case by requring Ichabod to enter into bonds—himself in four hundred dollars and two sureties of two hundred each—to stand his trial either before His Honor Judge Jellet or at the Queen's Bench. Before going to press, we learn that I. S. B., has left for parts unknown.

Select Poetry.

ON BURNS ANNIVERSARY.

Our thoughts run on to-day upon
Our poet, Robert Burns;
It brings to min' days O' Lang Syne,
When it aroun' returns.

Backward we cast upon the past
Our thoughts when he was young,
When on the braes his rustic lays
Ploughmen and shepherds sung.

We think on one upon the hill,
The flood in pensive air,
A magpie' skrw, an' steepin low'
To pass' the dasses hair.

Or on him gang the woods among,
Where ancient forests stood,
Nature to view—an' listen to
The birds in cheerful mood.

Or think we see, up wi' the hoe,
Him in the morning gray,
Ere workin' hour a season o'er
His study for the day.

Or eventide by Ingle side,
When it did brichtly burn,
There sit an' write, by sonsy light,
When now our shelves adorn.

Or on the hill, where quiet and still—
Where natures beauties spread;
At leisure hour—a burnin' o'er
The strains he'd lately made.

Or when that he plow'd on the lea,
Or wrought wi' grape an' spade;
For he wrought hard, tho' Scotland's bard,
Wrung his daily bread.

An' how he was white'er the cause,
Like poets everywhere—
Often in need in mournin' mood,
To cheal his rhymin' wears.

Where will ye find amang mankind,
A mind like Burn's stored;
Like him there's not a brither Scot,
We claim as Scotland's Bard.

How gentle, kind, his generous mind,
E'en for the brute creation;
How grieved was he, the pain to see
O' monsies habitation.

The wounded hare—how it did stir
An' raise his feelings so;
Had he them got him who it shot,
His feelings he would know.

Things said an' new he could see threw'
The rustic Bard O' Doon;
This oft the cause he condemned was,
An' on'd a skeptic loon.

If living now, many I trow
There are who would incline
Bath far and near, to see an' hear,
The author O' Lang Syne.

If living noo he'd been'seen too
Wi' many a ransom boon:
But Burns' gone we look upon
As born an age to soon.

For when alive how few did strive,
To help the poet on,
But like the rest before him past,
They praise him when he's gone.

What they've spent on his monument,
The one-half would him blest,
But poets lot is most forgot,
When they should be caressed.

Thoughts of his mind he's left behind,
Times wheel while roun' it turns.
Will n'oer blot out what has been wrote,
By Poet Robbie Burns.

HINTS ON POLITENESS.

My little girl told me last night to give her some rules on politeness. I promised to indicate some very plain rules which govern well-bred persons in their intercourse with the world, promising what I think Harlitt said to his son, that true politeness requires more than a desire to make those in or presence happy.

1. Girls should rise when an elder person of either sex enters the room.

2. If a gentleman calls upon you, do not hesitate once in a while to ask him into the family room, or give your parents to understand that you want them to come into the parlor to see your company. The young gentleman who does not wish to be occasionally in the company of your parents is not worthy of your society.

3. Be a true lady at home, especially at the table, else you will forget to act the lady abroad. Sit straight: eat deliberately. Don't bow your head too low to eat or drink. Don't pick your teeth or pare your nails in the presence of others. Don't rock or put your feet on another's chair, or look at a persons manuscript while he is writing, or take a book from him, or ask him what he has in a package. Every exhibition of idle curiosity is annoying to a refined person.

4. Do not address a person without speaking the name. Some persons will take hold of your arm, or simply touch your shoulder, or look at you. This is impolite. Speak out the name: Mrs. A., or Mr. B., or Miss C., or the given name.

5. Don't speak in a loud tone unless your friends are deaf. Do not whisper in company unless it becomes necessary to say something of importance to your mother. If an old gentleman offers you his easy chair, don't take it; and be sure not to let your mother do anything for the comfort of visitors if you can do it yourself.

6. You will of course never look behind you to notice a person who has passed, nor stare at any one on the street, or in stores. If you have fine clothes, do not be ambitious to display them on the streets or in the church.

7. Fix an hour for retirement, and do not deviate from it except under an extraordinary pressure of circumstances You need not hesitate to tell your friends that you must be at home at ten o'clock. They will excuse you, for you must have rest, and have it regularly, in order to pass the coming day cheerfully and profitably.

A REPROOF OF FOPPERY.

Dean Swift was a great enemy to extravagance in dress, and particularly to that destructive ostentation in the middle classes, which led them to make their appearance above their condition in life. Of his mode of reproving this folly in those persons for whom he had any esteem, the following instance has been recorded:

When George Faulkner, the printer, returned from London, where he had been soliciting subscriptions for his edition of the Dean's works, he went a pay his respects to him, dressed into lace waistcoat, a bag wig, and other fopperies, Swift received him with the same ceremony as if he had been a stranger.

"And pray, sir," said he, "what are your commands with me?"

"I thought it was my duty, sir," replied George, "to wait upon you immediately upon my arrival from London."

"Pray, sir, who are you?"

"George Faulkner, printer."

"You George Faulkner, the printer! Why, you are the most impudent, barefaced scoundrel of any impositor I ever met with! George Faulkner is a plain sober citizen, and would never trick himself out in lace and other fopperies. Get you gone, you rascal, or I will immediately send you to the House of Correction!"

Away went George as fast as he could, and having changed his dress, returned to the Deanery, where he was received with the greatest cordiality.

"My friend George," said the Dean, "I am glad to see you return safe from London. Why, there has been an impudent fellow with me just now, dressed in a lace waistcoat, and he would fain pass himself off for you, but I soon sent him away with a flea in his ear."

STEPPING down and out—He who is hanged.

Chicago Child.—"Oh! ma. Theres an angel with wings." Chicago Mother "Fshaw! that's only a Louisville girl with her ears spread."

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS
Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.
No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.
Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.
Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.
Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.
Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.
Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.
For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.
Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.
For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.
Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won as widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this unrivalled remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.
Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. No complaint is its master over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.
Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.
Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.
Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.
So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.
Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.
As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral poison, no substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the Ague districts, are literally beyond all account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our pride is gratified by the unsolicited testimonials we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.
Unacclimated persons, on first exposure to, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.
For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.
For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.
Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold everywhere around the world.
PRICE, $1.00 PER BOTTLE.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvelous. Invaluable diseases of Scrofulous disease, where the system, severed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by its Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.
Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworms, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous Disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pile, Kidney, Neuralgia, and the various Glandular affections of the muscular and nervous system.
Syphilitic or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are posed by it, though a long time is required for resisting these obstinate conditions by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Floodings (Hæmorrhage), and Painful Menstruation, are speedily cured by its purifying and invigorating power. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, which we give away. Ask your neighbors what it has done for them. Get the Almanac and read it. Then buy Ayer's Sarsaparilla and give it a fair trial. It will not disappoint you.

Johnson's Force Pump and Fire Extinguisher.

For cheapness, durability, ease of working, and general efficiency, the above Hose article cannot be surpassed. It can be used as a FORCIBLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, a splendid article for washing Carriages or Windows or by changing the nozzle it can be used by a Lady or a Child to water a flower bed in the quickest and most beautiful manner. Only a bucket or tub of water required. No chemicals used. It is claimed for this Extinguisher that the stream of water thrown from Hompayes to be fully as efficient in the results as the acid thrown from a Babcock Extinguisher. Every house should have one. The beginning of a fire is small, occurs in such a place that it cannot be reached by water thrown from a pail or dipper, this Pump will throw a fair stream of water 45 ft. horizontally, or will drench a wall to the height of 35 ft.

GLENCOE DEMONSTRATION.

Great Speech by Hon. Mr. Fraser,

AT GLENCOE.

(From the Globe.)

The Reform Demonstration held at Glencoe on Tuesday, of which a condensed report appeared in the following day's Globe, was chiefly remarkable for two circumstances—the delivery of a most comprehensive defence of the course of the Ontario Government and their management of public affairs by the Commissioner of Public Works and the announcement of his return to the Reform ranks by Mr. Hawkins a leading Roman Catholic of Brantford, who has been estranged from his old friends since 1867, and opposed Mr. Hardy in the contest for last year.

On the arrival of the procession at Mr. Thomson's grove shortly before 3 o'clock, Mr. W. W. Watterworth, M. P. P., took the chair in the absence of Mr. Charles Murray, and expressed his pleasure to see so many distinguished gentleman present on the occasion.

Mr. G. W. Ross, M. P., made a few brief remarks, in which he referred to the evidence which had been given in West Middlesex of the progress of Reform principles in the Riding since 1871, when it had elected Mackenzie, who paved the way for the subsequent triumphs. In 1872 he was himself elected, in the fall of that year Mr. Watterworth was returned, and at the last election he (Mr. Ross) was re-elected by acclamation. He believed the gentlemen whose intention to hold a meeting in that place on the following Friday (Messrs. Rykert and Lauder) was announced by a bill on a neighbouring tree, would find that the backbone of Toryism was broken in West Middlesex, and he had no doubt that when the next election came round, the constituency would again show their Reform friends throughout Ontario their determination to sustain good government. He expressed his pleasure to see so many well-known and able politicians present, and and no doubt they would all be thoroughly impressed with the fact that the best interests of Canada were identified with the principles which the Reform party had advocated for so many years.

The band then performed a selection of music.

The Chairman read letters of apology for unavoidable absence from Hon E. Blake and Mr. J. S. Smith, M. P. P.

Hon. C. F. Fraser then came forward and was received with loud cheers. He said he had been thinking what an admirable fellow Mr. Ross would be in the eyes of those who were to be there next Friday, if he only called himself a member of the the party of "Union and Progress," or a "Liberal-Conservative," or even if he but went so far as to call himself a "Baldwin Reformer." (Laughter.) He had also thought what admirable fellows those gentlemen would consider the present Grit party of Ontario if they called themselves by names similar to those by which they designated themselves. (Hear, hear.) If they considered that, no matter what the Liberal Government in Ontario were to do, no matter how meritorious might be their actions or how honestly they might look after the interests of the Province, there was still a large minority in the Province who would determinedly find fault with them unless in simple fact they chose to call themselves by the political names of that minority, they would realize how much of the opposition to them to-day had no honest or solid foundation. (Cheers.) A mere change of names would be sure to make matters all right, if in addition these opponents of the Government could get back to their fishes. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) These two things, after all, made up in the main the platform on which the Government was opposed by the Tory party in this Province. If those corruptionists, Mowat, McKellar, Crooks, Pardee, and Fraser, would but clothe themselves in Tory feathers and open the public crib to the hungry ones in the Tory ranks, not a word would be said in condemnation of the Government, but the Mail would tell its readers every day: "See how admirably these gentlemen manage the affairs of this province; see how public-spirited they are; how liberally they distribute the public money amongst you for public improvements." Instead of condemnation they would hear nothing but praise and laudation; and instead of the wailings and bemoanings to which they were now entertained they would have songs of triumph. There were a few however, who would perhaps not be satisfied with so simple a thing as changing titles, or with the distributing to the party at large whatever benefits from patronage might be at the disposal of the Government. Among the malcontents there surely would be Messrs Rykert and Lauder, because these gentlemen want to hold the baskets from which the loaves and fishes were distributed—laughter—and that was why they were so pertinaciously distributing themselves over the province and telling the people what they pretend were facts about the present Government. He had read a good many speeches delivered lately—more, perhaps, by Mr. Rykert than by any other member of the Opposition in Ontario. He had had the pleasure of going over some of his figures, and trying to make up his mind how it was that he was trying to make the people believe that those things which he alleged against the Government had any foundation in truth or fact. He (Mr Rykert) said they were simply a party of professions, that when they were in Opposition they argued and urged one doctrine and another which, when they came into power, they abandoned. Among other instances, not to take up too much time, it was stated that they had been opposed to collations and to Sandfield Macdonald's railway and policy, and had violated their professions in both instances. He could quite understand Mr. Rykert's position if he had changed his mind and thought that political matters today were to be dealt with differently from the time when he and his friends were in power. If a man being convinced that he was wrong abandoned a certain principle, but found that his friend who formerly held the principle, to which he was converted had changed to the opposite side, he could understand his condemning him and telling the people that he ought not to have their confidence because he was not doing right. But Mr. Rykert was seeking to condemn them for doing what he thought right. He said—"When we were in power we formed a coalition, we were in favour of aid to railways, and so on, and we were doing what was right: then you were opposing us, and now you are doing the very things you condemned us for, and although it is right to do those things, I say the people of this province ought not to give you their confidence for doing what is right in its, but wrong for you as Liberals to do." He (Mr. Fraser) was only putting it in this form for argument's sake, as he was going to show that they were carrying out in power what they had advocated in Opposition. But what would they think for instance of Mr. Ross if he told them not to believe him (Mr. Fraser) if he found he had become a total abstainer, because at some former time he had defended moderate drinking? (Laughter.) But he proposed to show them that, taking the two subjects to which he had referred as samples, the Reform party had not done what they were accused of doing. First came the question of Colations. He had with him a copy of the resolution passed at the Reform Convention of 1867 on this subject. It was as follows:—"That the coalition of opposing political parties for ordinary administrative purposes invariably results in the abandoment of principle by one or both parties to the compact, the lowering of public morality, a lavish public expenditure, and widespread corruption, and no Government will be satisfactory to the people of Upper Canada which is formed and maintained by coalition of public men holding opposite political opinions." The very corner stone of that resolution was in the words "a Coalition of public men holding opposite political opinions." Let them test the Reform Party of Ontario to day by that resolution. Their opponents said that the fact of Mr. Scott being taken into the government made it a Coalition, Mr. Scott, as they alleged, being a life long Tory. A few days before Mr. Scott joined the Blake Government. Mr. Sandfield Macdonald had, in proposing him for this, told the house that he was a most honourable, high-minded man, well fitted to become the first Commouer of the Province, but when Mr. Scott joined himself with Mr. Blake, against whom none could rightly say anything which was reproachful, he became the worst of men in the eyes of his quondam friends, one in whom no one ought to have confidence—a man who was actually dishonest, and prepared to plunder the public purse in order to satisfy his own ends and those of his private friends. What did these people tell us at the time of Confederation? Was it not that we were starting out with a new slate, that there was nothing any longer to divide political parties, that new parties might be formed, new leaders chosen and old leaders abandoned, that we were all to form one political happy family? This was the cry which these gentleman then raised and kept up as long as John A. Macdonald had his Coalition at Ottawa and John Sandfield Macdonald his Coalition in Ontario. It was dished up in all kinds of shapes to make it palatable to the people of this Province. Let them test Mr. Scott by that. If every one was at liberty to form new alliances whould a different rule exist for Mr. Scott? They said, however, that Mr. Scott voted for the Macdonald Government during the whole of that first Parliament, and was, therefore, a Tory, and the new Government was a Coalition. Now Mr. Lauder had often said that he never gave a Tory vote in his life, and yet all these votes which Mr. Scott gave were the same as those Mr. Lauder gave, and not only so, but they had heard Mr. Sanfield Macdonald and his organs declare that not only was the Government not a Tory Government, but the majority of its members were good sound Liberals. He (Mr. Fraser) did not believe Mr. Sandfield Macdonald ever was a Tory. It was true he got into very bad company and it was not the first time a good man had fallen among thieves. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) But down to the day of his death he always denied that he was a Tory. Putting their own test fairly, then, if they could not call Mr. Sandfield Macdonald a Tory, neither could they call Mr. Scott a Tory simply because of supporting him. This was looking at it from their opponents stand-point. But let them look at from Mr. Scott's own standpoint. When he went back to his constituents in 1871 he told them he was not going to be returned as a pledged supporter of Mr. Sandfield Macdonald, but intended to return to Toronto an independent member. In other words, if he had been considered a Tory before he was no longer to be considered. This, let them bear in mind, was before the election, before it was known that the Reform party would be successful, and long before Mr. Scott could have had any notion that he or an anyone from the Reform side would be called upon to enter a new Government, because they all heard it declared in 1871 that Mr. Sandfield Macdonald would return to the House with a larger majority than before. Mr. Scott was therefore either at liberty to oppose or to support the Government. Mr. Sandfield Macdonald chose so nominate him as Speaker, but simply because it was known that if he were nominated by that party he would have been proposed by the other side, and Mr. Macdonald did not want to be defeated on the first vote, to which a sort of prestige always attached. Mr. Scott held out no inducement to Mr. Sandfield Macdonald to believe that he would be a supporter of his. Then Mr. Blake was called upon to form a Government he asked Mr. Scott to join him. Mr. Scott had over and over again asserted that at that time he held the same political views as Mr. Blake, and he (Mr. Fraser) therefore asserted that there was no word of that resolution which was contravened in the formation of the Ontario Government (Cheers.) Of course their opponents did not say that the present Government of Ontario was a Coalition, but they still asserted that Mr. Scott, after remaining two years in the Government, went he to Ottawa was still a Tory. (Laughter.) Some men might think that public men never did and never ought to change their opinions, but he should be very sorry to say that they wanted no converts but only the old dyed-in-the-wool fellows. Nor would Mr. Rykert or Mr. Lauder on Friday next say any thing of the kind either. They would say they wanted the Reformers to be converted and to join them to purge the public affairs of the Province. Did any one pretend to say that it was logical or sensible for a public man to declare that he would never change his opinions? He had once heard a public man say that, but he did not think he would ever say so again. (A Voice—Is he dead?) No, he was living, but living in penitence and sorrow. (Laughter.) He had said he would vote with his party right or wrong, but then he was one of your dyed-in-the-wool-Tories. (Laughter.) When a public man conscientiously believed himself to be wrong he was in duty bound to change, and the man who did not was a moral coward, and not worthy of confidence either in public or private. In Mr. Scott's case there was no "coalition with men of opposite political opinions," but on the contrary a union of men with precisely the same political opinions, and no sacrifice of principle was made on either side. (Cheers.) There was another matter which their opponents also dragged up, and upon which at the first blush they made a case of it. Only at the first blush, however, because no one who had read at the time the discussion on the Railway Aid question and now heard the statement made that Mr. Blake in Opposition urged one thing and condemned Sandfield Macdonald's policy in reference to aid railways, and when he came into power not only adopted Sandfield Macdonald's acts, but went beyond them, thereby stultifying himself and his friends could be led astray by such a statement. The public man who made the assertion on a public platform must be either a knave or a fool. It was said, however, that when Sandfield Macdonald proposed in the last session of the first Parliament of Ontario to set aside a million and a half to aid railways, Mr. Blake opposed the measure. He (Mr. Fraser) denied the assertion, and was prepared to prove the contrary from the records of the House. Mr. Blake said—"You are proposing to take a million and a half out of the surplus to aid railways; we say that is but a half-hearted scheme; why don't you come down and propose to deal with the surplus altogether, giving to those counties that will derive no benefit from the railway aid scheme their share of it at once? You have been in power four years, and ought to have matured a scheme in that time." Mr. Blake nowhere said railways ought not to be aided, and he would read his resolution to show what he really did say. They must judge Mr. Blake his resolution, and not by the garbled statements of Mr. Rykert or Mr. Lauder, or any one else. (Hear hear.) It was a very easy thing for a man without any responsibility to get up and make statements without any truth in them, and it was therefore very easy for these gentlemen to do so, but it was very different for a responsible Minister of the Crown to make untrue statements. A man who on a public platform told them what he knew to be untrue, was quite as bad as the man who put his hand into one's pockets to pilfer their purses. (Cheers.) There was a sad want of morality in both cases. Mr. Blake's resolution was in these words:—"This House feels bound to express its conviction that the country will have just ground for dissatisfaction unless some plan is adopted whereby, while making all just and necessary provision in aid of railways and other public improvements of provincial interest in the thinly settled and unprovided districts, a large part of the available surplus should be apportioned according to population, and expended in such a way as each of the counties cities, and separate towns shall as to its own allotment designate in aid of railways or other public permanent improvements affecting the localities, or towards the redemption of municipal obligations already contracted for such purposes, due precaution being taken for the proper application of the money, and provisions being made that the allotment to any municipality indebted to the Municipal Loan Fund should be applied on equitable terms towards the satisfaction of what may be found due by the municipality on an adjustment of the Municipal Loan Fund indebtedness." He (Mr. Blake) wanted the House not only to set apart a sufficient sum to aid railways and other public improvements but he wanted it in addition to aid the older counties, and to have a fair and equitable distribution of the surplus. (Cheers.) In doing that he did not oppose aid to railways, but acted as a man who had the ambition of being a statesman in his Province, and sought to lead public affairs as they ought to be led, and saw that the proper way was to distribute as much of the surplus as possible at once. Mr. Blake failed to get that resolution passed, and then he further opposed Mr. Sandfield Macdonald's scheme, because he said it was a cardinal principle of responsible Government; that before a Government should take into its hands any sum of the people's money, the people's representatives should have the means of knowing to what particular work it was to be devoted. If the appropriation were for public buildings, they wanted to know what they were and what road was to be aided before the money was gone. In that also he was defeated, and then he said, "If you won't do that, at least, before you give the money away, let the Orders in Council be published in the Ontario Gazette." Mr. Sandfield Macdonald's answer in effect was—"We are an honest Government, and therefore we will honestly distribute this million and a half in aid of railways, and the people will be satisfied." Mr. Blake answered they were not dealing with the honesty or dishonesty of the Government, but a principle which should bind any Government whether honest or dishonest, and all Governments are not honest, and the people are not fools." PETERBORO, SEPTEMBER 24, 1874

THE COMING STRUGGLE.

There will be but one Session of the Local Parliament of Ontario, until the Electors will be called upon to make a selection of members to represent them in a third Parliament. The Government now in power—the Mowat Government—has the confidence of the people, and in their choice for the next parliament, they will more fully and practically declare this. The super-human efforts the opposition are making to arouse the Conservative feeling, and get their supporters into line, proves their earnestness to regain the control of provincial affairs with a view to using the position and means for the same purposes that they did when in power heretofore, to corrupt the people and bribe the electors. But we mistake the intelligence of the people and their honesty of purpose, if they will permit themselves to be duped by the carping of demagogues, or by the unmeaning and unfounded abuse that they are heaping upon members of the present Government.

The Country is not prepared for being handed over to the opposition quartette Boulbbee, Rykert, Lasder and Cameron—men—who have made themselves the laughing-stock of the Legislature, and who have proved themselves unfit for even conducting an honorable or efficient opposition.

The present cry of the Boulbee, Rykert faction about purity and bribery will only recoil with double force on themselves. Just think of men, who followed John A. Macdonald through all the mire of the Pacific Scandal, and the use of $360,000 of Sir Hugh Allan's money to corrupt the Dominion carping about A. F. Macdonald and Major Walker's friends spending money in the late contest. Why both these men were old Conservatives who went into the contest to defeat their opponents on personal grounds. A quarrel of old friends had to be revenged, and hence the candidature of Mayor Walker and also of A. F. Macdonald. And who are the men who spent the money. Mr. Harris of London a Conservative, who was not in the Reform Committee rooms, who indeed, would not enter them, and who, also, had a quarrel with Mr. Carling. In the Cornwall case Mr. H. S. McDonald, son of the late Sandfield McDonald, and the bitter personal enemy of Doctor Bergin spends the money. And yet the Mail and the Herald and the Conservative press cry out "the party of purity," while the bribery in these cases was the work of their own friends and former allies—confederates we should say.

That bribery should have existed in a single instance is too bad. But we feel certain that it will soon not have an existence under the healthy and efficient laws, which Reformers in so short a time have placed on our statute books. In all their tirades about bribery, not a word of condemnation of the crime is uttered—not a syllable written to try to crush out the monster evil that had gained such a hold on the people, after twenty years education in all the arts and appliances that could be invented or used to propagate the crime. Not a word is said of the sin of bribery, the shame and disgrace that follows the vile use of money and whiskey at elections, or of the sorrow that should cloud every face when it is known to have so inwrought itself into the body politic that even the fear of the law could not deter some from the use of it, nor did the fear or disgrace for being unseated prevent them continuing the hydra-headed serpent, so calculated to blunt the moral susceptibilities of the people. But this will not prevent the people seeing the hollowness of the hypocrisy of those who would heap disgrace on their opponents, but not say a word against the crime that has corroded the conscientiousness of the people to such a degree that their sense of right or wrong is measured by the amount offered them, or their wives or daughters, for votes.

The present Reform government, in the space of three years, has secured the passage of good laws, by which our judges are now enabled to punish the violaters thereof, without waiting two or three sessions as was done in the Cluxton-Bertram outrage, and allow him in the meantime to vote for the Pacific scandal, or a greater scandal if need be, to sustain the party.

In a very short time—perhaps in next January—the present House will be dissolved, and an appeal will be made to the people, on the record of the past history of the Mowat Government, and of Opposition and their party. To avoid the concomitants of haste, and to secure the best men for the approaching contest, Reformers must not allow the matter to go till the last moment. Our Conservative friends are already at work. This week they hold a great Convention in Toronto, and on their return they will be busy in every possible way doing their work. Let the friends of good, honest principles take a hint, and be doing. To this end each township should have its delegates selected for a general meeting These delegates should be in proportion to the Electors, say one for every fifty electors, or one for every one hundred. Then a general meeting could be called and united action taken. If Reformers will only act as Conservatives do, they have nothing to fear in the contest. Ours is the side of right and justice, and honest government, and success must assuredly attend us. The struggle to obtain power will be desperate. Let Reformers be prepared to do their duty, honestly, faithfully, earnestly, and abide results.

THE CONTESTED ELECTIONS.

The new Election Law is doing good service in bringing to light the deeds of those who seek to obtain honor and influence by means of bribery. In the past these were the means of reaching those who were guilty of buying or selling votes. The tedious and expensive process of a Parliamentary Committee of Investigation, and the uncertainty of obtaining redress, owing to the party and partizan influences brought to bear on the Committees, prevented honest men from appealing to Parliament, believing it to be useless to do so. This has been removed by Reform legislation, and Judges now do the work of years in a few hours, or a few days at most.

It is found, however, that the cancer of bribery has gained such force that even the dread of punishment, or of shame, will not prove effective at once. The disease has become chronic under Conservative auspices, and the sore so deeply seated that its cure or eradication need not be expected until the strongest remedies have been appealed to, and due penalties meted out to offenders.

London, the seat of John Carling's operations for years, has exhibited the worst symptoms of the effects of the undue use of beer and money. Mr. Carling had rendered himself obnoxious to several of his former Conservative friends and they, knowing the power of money, determined to turn his own guns on him. They brought out Major Walker, a Conservative, to oppose honest John, as he was ironically called. The Reform section of the Electors joined to defeat Mr. Carling, and it was done. But it now turns out that Mr. Carling's own old friends used his own old weapons too freely. Mr. Harris, the solicitor of Mr. Walker and an old friend of Mr. Carling's, supplied the funds. A partner of the Major and old associates aided in expending it. It has not been shown that a single Reformer either took or got any of it. Yet from the Mail down they lay the whole to the Government party: it is easily seeing with what unreasonableness.

Mr. A. F. Macdonald is another unseated member, whose agents used money too freely. But Hugh McDonald, a son of John Sandfield, was the instrument here, and his only object was to defeat Doctor Bergin, because of personal illfeeling. Part of the money was used to hire trains to bring electors to vote for Mr. Shanley, a Conservative candidate in Leeds. Mr. White of South Renfrew has also been unseated on account of bribery—his clerk, and nephew, spending money without stint, and without simple Mr. Whyte's knowledge (!) of course. Now, in all fairness, two of those are disaffected Conservatives who went in to defeat their opponents on personal grounds, and Mr. Whyte is a genuine Tory, spending money by his agents, but keeping his own hands clean (!) Then follows Mr L. S. McDougall, of North Renfrew, Mr. Norris, of Lincoln, and one or two others who claim to be old Reformers. The bribery, in all the cases, was the work of agents. All the principals are exonerated from complicity, and many of them will again be candidates.

It has been held that no weapon of warfare against a powerful enemy is effective as the one he uses himself, and several over-zealous men have therefore acted on this, and used money against money: for in no instance has a Conservative claimed the contested seat, proving conclusively that he dare not stand a scrutiny of votes and acts. Reformers deplore the evil, and have provided a specific for it. Far from glorying in the evil, they deplore it, and have honestly set themselves to work to eradicate it. The trials now going on will do much to effect a cure, and their results will have a healthy effect on future elections. But the law that is to put down bribery is a law asked, and petitioned, and moved for by Reformers for years, but Conservatives would not grant it. As soon as Reformers got into power they secured its passage, and hence the honor of unearthing this chronic corruption, and of applying a remedy belongs to Reformers. They do not complain that it works equally on both sides. That is what is sought, and we trust has been obtained. The Mail and minor organs try to turn the cry of corruption against Reformers on account of this; but so long as Sir John's entreaties for another $10,000 remain, they only add to their own shame by crying "Party of Purity." They supported John A. in all his bribery: he is still their "greatest living statesman." They have made him, with all his corruption, their leader: they still glory in their own shame, and only whine about Reform purity, uttering not a word of sorrow for past errors of their own enacting. They are still as fondly attached to their idols of Money and Influence as ever, and are as deserving of execration, and no one imagines that the disgrace, and sin, and shame of twenty years of evil doing can be expiated in four years. They are doomed to the cold shades of opposition until they learn to respect truth and uprightness, and do right rather than worship the golden calf, or fall down at the shrine of ambition.

Sabbath Desecration.

Farmers down the Otonabee River complain that their quiet homes are no little disturbed with parties from town shooting, and engaging in other unchristian acts and noise. It has become so common that they cannot put up with it longer, and hence intend citing the troublesome and sporting characters offending in future of before some magistrate. We only withhold the names now in the hopes that they will take the hint in time.

A Great Inconvenience.

The people of Galway, it appears, have to come all the way to town for a magistrate, as there are no magistrates who act nearer, except in Harvey, and they are so far from the leading road that it is about as convenient to come to Peterboro, this must be very inconvenient. A case of this kind occurred on Friday, when parties from Galway were brought before Mr. Edwards for an aggravated assault. The case was sent up to the assizes.

A Word of Warning.

Mr. McBain, Market Clerk, complains that many parties having articles to sell avoid the market place so as to avoid paying the fees. In future, however, they would do well to change their ways, as he says he will put the By-law in force against every one infringing it. Better to pay Mr. McBain the fee, than pay the police magistrate it and additional costs. A word to the wise, &c.

(Concluded from First Page.)

have been as outrageous as could be imbibing that fluid. (Laughter.) The Government as a matter of course, did not remain quiet and allow these gentlemen to bring only their own witnesses. No, the Government brought forward the Stewart men in Toronto in their trades, and they put their prices upon the work, and they could find in the public records the whole investigation, and a full justification of the Government. The Opposition members of the Committee were the whole cause of delay. They endeavored to find something on which they could fasten, and failed most ingloriously in doing it. But what he wished particularly to call their attention to was Mr. Cameron's statement that there should not be political partizans on these Committees. He supposed it would be all right if those Committees were composed of Tories such as Mr. Rykert, Mr. Lauder, Mr. Boulthee and Mr. Cameron. Of course they would not be partizans. (Laughter.) If these were any doubt they would be sure to give it in favor of the Government. Did they not always pursue that course? Mr. Rykert was reported in the Mail of the 20th of August to have said at the Burford meeting:—"Moreover, those now in office had every year exceeded their appropriations. In 1870 Sandfield Macdonald asked for $126,970, and exceeded $114,800, thereby keeping within his appropriations, but the moment Reformers got to work they exceeded their appropriations every year." He (Mr. Fraser) said it was a deliberate misstatement to say that Sandfield never exceeded his appropriations. Mr. Rykert did not say to what items he referred, whether to Civil Government, Legislation, Immigration, or anything else, but (Mr. Fraser) had looked them up and found that they referred to Civil Government. Mr. Rykert's object was to make the people believe that the present Government alone had exceeded their appropriations, and were to be condemned because they were violating a well understood principle of responsible Government that no money should be expended upon any particular work unless it was first voted, or in some manner assented to by the people's representatives in the House. This was a well-understood principle, but at times an excess of expenditure was necessary. In making the comparison Mr. Rykert was misquoting the Public Accounts. Besides, he lumped together all the items under the head of Civil Government, and said the total appropriation had been exceeded by the present Government. It would be just as logical to have lumped together the whole expenditures of last year, and have said that the present Government had not exceeded the total appropriation, as to lump only the departments together after Mr. Rykert's fashion. The true way was to take each particular item of appropriation as shown by the journals, and show the over or under expenditure upon it, for, suppose they had a public building for which $100,000 was appropriated, and they discovered when it was about being concluded that it would require $5,000 or $600 more, who would say it was really a violation of the principle just mentioned to expend that amount? Or suppose $50,000 was voted for Civil Government and they require a little more, were they to stop the distribution of the statues, for instance, till the next year. To what absurd folly it was to make a principle of that kind a cast iron rule, never, under any circumstances, to be set aside. Suppose they took $100,000 for the law courts and $10,000 or $15,000 more were required, it was always taken by Governments. He did not condemn Sandfield Macdonald for exceeding his appropriations when he did, but he condemned the man who deliberately misquoted the Public Accounts in order to make an unfavorable comparison with the present Government. If they turned to pages 53 and 54 of the Public Accounts of 1868, they would find that Sandfield Macdonald exceeded his appropriations by only $6,500. In 1869 (pages 105, 106, and 109 of the Public Accounts) he exceeded his appropriations by $59,426, in which there was excess on Legislation alone of $27,000, and on Immigration of $15,300. And yet Mr. Rykert said it was only when the Reformers came into power that the appropriations were exceeded. He did not think, however, that Mr. Rykert would have the audacity to say that John A. never exceeded his appropriations. In 1870 (pages 112 and 113 Public Accounts) the total excess over appropriations was $48,469, that on the London Asylum being nearly $30,000. In 1871, the last year of Mr. Macdonald's Government, the excess (pages 130, 131, and 133 Public Accounts) amounted to $22,980. At the Clifford meeting, too, Mr. Boultbee was reported to have said—"The annual expenditure had increased from about $1,800,000 under Sandfield Macdonald's Government to about $2,700,000 under the present men." That was a very reckless misstatement, but not so bad as Mr. Rykert's, who, at the Burford meeting, said, as reported in the Mail—"The first year the Reformers took office, 1872, they spent $1,947,956; 1873, $2,560,212; and in 1874, $2,833,286." Now that was a more reckless misstatement than Mr. Boultbee's. He would say deliberately, and with a full strength of (the) words he used, that a more gross misstatement was never made by a man professing to have the affairs of the country at his finger tips. The actual expenditure of any year was always less than the appropriations. Every year that Sandfield Macdonald was in power he spent less than he took by way of appropriation at the commencement of the year, and every year that the present Government had been in power they had done the same thing. They had saved an average of about half a million dollars on every year's appropriations; and yet, in face of this fact, in making their comparisons between 1871 and 1874, Mr. Rykert and Mr. Boultbee took as the actual expenditure for this year every single dollar of the estimates, and told the people of this Province what they knew would not turn out to be the case—that the expenditure would be the whole appropriation and even more, for Mr. Rykert put into the amount $100,000, being the annual sum which was appropriated three years ago for aid to railways. What did they think of public men who discussed public affairs in that style? If he caculated in the same way he would take Sandfield Macdonald's expenditure for 1871, and add to it the million and a half he took for aid to railways. They might take even the amount which the present Government were distributing among the municipalities, and claim that to be a part of the year's expenses. Mr. Rykert not only added that $100,000 to the estimates for 1874, the expenditure of which was not yet completed, and no doubt would leave a saving of at least half a million of dollars, but he deliberately added a like sum of $100,000 to every years expenditure since the Reformers came into power, 1872 and 1873, in order to swell up his figures. The entire Supply Bill of 1874, if every dollar were expended, only amounted to $2,672,296. So Mr. Rykert's figures should have been for 1873 not $1,947,000 but $1,847,000, for 1873 not $2,560,000, but $2,460,000, and in regard to 1874 he should not have said the expenditure amounted to the whole of the estimates, when every one knew it was always largely within the amount appropriated. The same action of both of these gentlemen amounted to this, that the Government were largely increasing the expenditure of the Province, that between 1871 and 1874 the increase had been so large and so rapid that the Government deserved condemnation for it. He (Mr. Fraser) desired to point out to them that the expenditure every year from the time Sandfield Macdonald took office had been on the increase. At page 135 of the Public Accounts they would find that in 1868 the expenditure was $1,183,853; in 1869, $1,444,608; in 1870 $1,580,663, and in 1871, $1,816,896, being an increase between 1868 and 1871 of $663,934. In 1872, the first year of the present Government, the expenditure, as shown on page 151 of the Public Accounts of 1872, was $1,847,956, an excess over 1871 of only $31,070. In 1873, page 159 Public Accounts, the expenditure was $2,460,212, an excess over 1872 of $612,256. The estimates for 1874—not the expenditure—including $60,000 for services and accounts of 1873, amounted to $2,893,296, and if a fair average deduction were made for the probable saving on the whole estimates of the year, the actual expenditure for 1874 would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $2,150,000, or on the whole only about $300,000 more than that of 1871. So that every year from the time we went into Confederation the expenditure had been increasing, and the estimates had also been increasing. The estimates for 1868, page 54, amounted to $1,353,677; the amount expended was $1,183,386, and unexpended $170,289 In 1869 the appropriations, page 108, were $1,623,914, the expenditure $1,444,605, and the saving on the whole amount $247,903, or allowing for the amount held that year for the Municipalities Fund, $176,366. In 1870, page 114, the appropriations reached $1,900,577, of which $1,580,663 was expended, and $319,914 saved. In 1871, page 133, the appropriations were $2,581,569, the expenditure $1,816,866, and the saving $764,694. In 1872, the first year of the new Government, the appropriations, as shown at page 160 of the Public Accounts, were $2,215,523, more than $350,000 less than Sandfield Macdonald asked in 1871. The expenditure was $1,847,956, and the saving on the whole year $446,617, or nearly half a million. That was the year in which the expenditure was only $30,000 more than Sandfield's in 1871. In 1873, page 157, the appropriations were $3,-944,061, and the expenditure $3460,312, showing a saving again of about half a million —$483,749. The Supply Bill of 1874 amounted, as he had already said, to $2,672,296, and he was safe in stating that they would save at least half a million of money on it; and if from the whole Supply Bill of 1874 was deducted what was paid for services of 1873, the aggregate would be within a few thousand dollars of what Sandfield Macdonald asked in 1871. The appropriations in 1871 amounted to $2,581,569, and all that was asked in 1874 was $2,672,296, of which nearly $60,000 consisted of items properly chargeable to 1873. Thus the expenditure had from the first been gradually increasing, and the present Government had not been the foremost to increase it. The estimates had also been increased in the same way, and those gentlemen should have said that both were increasing just as Sandfield Macdonald's time. At the St. Thomas meeting, Mr. Rykert, as reported in the Mail of the 5th of August, said with regard to legislation: "In 1871 the expenditure was only $93,177; in 1872, $99,559; in 1873, $129,408." The curious would find that the true figures of the actual expenditure for 1871, page 33 of the Public Accounts, was $94,177, and he (Mr. Fraser) explained that the item for 1872 included $10, 00 expended on the library, no expenditure of a similar kind having taken place in 1871. In reference to the item of Legislation for 1873, they had what he ventured to say Mr. Rykert said nothing about, and what his friends would say nothing about —they had to increase the expenditure because each member of the House was paid an additional $150 of indemnity money and sessional allowance, and these gentlemen who were drawing them comparisons had each been annually jingling in his pocket $150 of that money, and saying nothing about it. Each of them, except Mr. Cameron, signed a round robin to the Government, asking that the indemnity, and consequently the expenditure, should be so increased. That alone amounted to $12,300, and another addition to the expenditure under that head for that year was on account of printing, stationery, and distributing the statutes, which in 1873 cost $27,910, as against $13,350 in 1871, or more than twice as much. He alleged that it was right to increase the sessional allowance, which before was too small, but he did not hide the fact from the people, as those gentlemen did while they were receiving the benefit. At the St. Thomas meeting Mr Rykert was also reported to have said: "In the Crown Lands Department Mr. Sandfield Macdonald spent $95,000, and obtained a revenue of $676,193. In 1873 the Grits spent $161,000 and obtained a revenue of $900,000. Last year they spent $178,000, and realized only $619,000, in other words double the expenditure realized less than in 1871. The salaries of the Crown Lands Department cost in two years Coalition $52,317, and in two years of the present Government $102,60 ." That statement was simply startling with untruths. It was true that Mr. Sandfield Macdonald only realized a revenue of $676,193 in the last year of his Administration, but it was quite untrue that the revenue of the year following only amounted to $900,000. It amounted to $1,166,407. In 1873, instead of being only $619,000 from the Crown Lands Department, it amounted to $889,988. The three items from which this of revenue was derived for these three years were Crown lands, woods and forests, and mines, and would be found in the opening statement of the Public Accounts for each of those years. So with regard to the salaries. Mr. Rykert stated that "The salaries of the Crown Lands Department cost in two years of Coalition $52,317, and in two years of the present rule, $103,600." He would give the salaries year by year to 1873. The Crown Lands' salaries amounted in 1868 to $38,119, in 1869 to $34,872, in 1870 to $30,273, in 1871 to $29,884. For these four years the items would be found in the comparative statement at the end of the Public Accounts of 1871. By turning to the comparative statement at the end of the Public Accounts of 1872 and 1873 it would be found that the salaries for those years were—in 1872 $32,563, and in 1873 $36,430. He need scarcely defy any one to verify Mr. Rykert's figures from these statements. (Cheers.) What did they think of a man who tried to condemn the Government, not upon truthful statements of fact, but upon broad misstatements of fact? The whole departmental expenses properly chargeable to salaries, and taking all the departments together, had been as follows: 1868, $81,316, 1869, $73,250, 1870, $81,231; 1871, $85,512; 1872, $88,727; 1873, $99,332. These amounts for each year included the salaries of Auditor, etc., and Inspector of Prisons, etc., but in the amounts for 1872 and 1873 were included for the first time, chargeable as salaries against the Public Works Department a total sum of $5,312, being the salaries paid to the architectural draughtsman, engineering draughtsman, assistant draughtsman, first, second, and third clerks, and carpenter, the salaries of all which were in Sandfield's time charged to the different Works of the Province and nowhere appeared as salaries, so that for fair comparison the aggregate for 1873 ought to be $93,428—actually less than that of 1871—and for 1873, with all the increase of salaries added, only $94,030, or an increase on the whole of $8,518. It was also charged against the Government that they had increased almost every salary of the subordinates in these departments but it could not be charged them that they had done what Mr. Rykert had never condemned in the case of Sir John Macdonald's Government—increased their own salaries. (Cheers.) The only result of the discussion last year upon this question of salaries was that before the session closed the Opposition were endeavoring to get the Government to make further additions to the expenditure by other increases (Laughter.) It was only fair to say that Mr. Cameron supported the increases, and voted for every one of them except in the case of the Inspector of Prisons, and so did Mr. Richards. The Government had the support of every member of John Sandfield's Government who was in the House, but these gentlemen—Mr. Rykert and Mr. Lauder—were now above following their leaders. He thought that it was unnecessary to add that the salaries which they wanted the Government to increase were those of very particular political friends of theirs, who they thought ought to have just a little more. (Laughter.) Then there was the item of law costs. Mr. Lander had made a charge in reference to this in the House. He (Mr. Fraser) had corrected them there, but he found Mr. Lauder was repeating the same charge. He believed it was at the Clifford meeting that he made these old misstatements. The real figures were these: In 1869 the amount of law costs was $11,861; in 1870, if they made up the items Mr. Lauder made them up for 1872 and 1873, the amount correctly chargeable to law costs would be $25,430, $16,120 of that being in connection with the costs of the arbitration between the Province of Ontario and the Province of Quebec, for which Mr. Lauder's figures for 1872 contained similar charges. In 1871, the costs actually incurred, though partly paid in 1873 by the new Government, were $18,116; in 1872 the costs incurred by the Reform Government amounted to only $12,6 6; and in 1873, to $11,359. (Hear, hear.) And still Mr. Lauder continued to state that they expended $18,265 in 1872, and to make up that item charged against them what they paid for expenses incurred by Sandfield with reference to the arbitration and the Law Reform Commission, which in his (Mr. Fraser's) amount for 1871 he had added as part of Mr. Macdonald's expenditure. At the Burford meeting, also, Mr. Rykert was reported in the Mail in this way: "Here the speaker alluded to the great expense, or the great amounts that were charged by the officials, in visiting the institutions in Brantford and Belleville, and other places—$300 for a wine supper, etc. Thousands of dollars were spent by them and charged to account of 'scrubbing and dusting.' That's the way the money goes. (Laughter.) The facts about that matter were simply these: During the session of 1873 Mr. McKellar, who then had charge of these institutions, thought fit to let the members of the Legislature to go down to Belleville Every member of the House was invited. Mr. Phillips, who looked after the refreshment room in the House, was the man who went to supply what was considered necessary in the shape of refreshments. Every member of the House knew that Mr. Phillips was the man who was so employed and that he would be paid for it. Mr. Phillips was also the housekeeper of the central building, that devoted to the Legislature alone. He was allowed certain amounts monthly for cleaning the rooms and keeping the whole place in order and also for certain other matters, such as the board of the telegraph operators, who were kept in the building during the session for the convenience of members. No word was asked in the Public Accounts Committee whether anything had been paid for refreshments or not. Mr. Phillips' account for 1873 might be found at page 103 of the Public Accounts, where, under Legislation Contingencies, the proper head, was this item: "Thomas Phillips, office cleaning, etc, $333." Mr. Rykert knew, as every one else knew, that in that item would be found what ever might have been paid for the refreshments, and so he sent for the account and found in it that, out of the whole sum paid for the year to Mr. Phillips by the Government, the amount of $50, all told, was that paid for the refreshments furnished to all the members who went on that trip to Belleville. (Laughter.) Mr. Rykert said the Government were trying to hide that item. What were they trying to hide? Did not every one know that the refreshments were far nished at the public expense, that Mr. Phillips had been paid for them, and that after his name in the Public Accounts would be found the item which included this amount? (Cheers.) Mr. Rykert now said that they had paid $300 for a wine supper! He (Mr. Fraser) did not think he could characterize that statement in terms as strong as it deserved. There was no wine supper. (Cheers) There was nothing but the refreshments supplied on the trip. Mr. Rykert also said, "They spent thousands of dollars and charged them to the account of scrubbing and dusting" No such charge were incurred, and no such item appeared in the Public Accounts. (Cheers.) The item as printed was "office cleaning, etc." These accounts were not made up by any member of the Government, but by the clerks in the office, who put them in the form usually followed and never complained of—and that was the whole explanation. (Cheers.) Was it not a most contemptible Opposition which had to come down to statements of that kind! (Hear, hear.) There was another item of importance to which reference had been made—that for immigration. Sandfield Macdonald

READ THE FOLLOWING TESTIMONIALS:—

Office of Baston & Carrier, Ottawa Steam Mills, Ottawa, September 7th, 1874.

To Mr. J. SHEPHERD, Painter, &c., Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in testifying to the excellence Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint, with which you coated our mills and other building, at Hull. As a preventative against accident by fire, we consider it superior to any other, and would not now be without it for double its cost.

Truly yours,
BATSON & CURRIER.

Ottawa, September 8th, 1874.

Mr. JOHN SHEPHERD, Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—I have great pleasure in testifying that Gline's Patent Slate Paint, with which you painted the roofs of some outbuildings belonging to the Sparks Estate, has given every satisfaction, and I believe it is superior to any other preparation now in use. It appears to harden the shingles almost equal to slate, and must be a great preventitive of fire.

Yours, &c.,
CHAS. MAGEE.

Ottawa, September 8th, 1874.

To whom it may concern.

After having used Glines Patent Slate Roofing Paint on all our roofs, we have much pleasure in recommending it as the best roofing paint we know of for painting roofs of every description. It is without an equal for single roofs, as it stops all leaks, preserves the shingles, and makes the roof fire-proof. We would not be without it on our roofs for three times its cost.

T. W. CURRIER & Co.

Ottawa, August 30th, 1874.

Mr. J. SHEPHERD.

Dear Sir,—In answer to your enquiry as to how I like my roofs now you gave then such a thorough coating of the Patent Slate Composition Paint, I beg to say that I would not be without it for three times the cost, as I can sleep now without fear of any burning shingles or sparks from fires doing me any harm, and I consider that every man who wishes to preserve his property should give it a coat of the Patent Slate Paint either through you or some other equally good painter.

Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM GREEN.

Mr. JOHN SHEPHERD.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in testifying to Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint, with which you painted my roofs, and would say that it has more than met my expectations, being all that you represented it; and now would recommend it to the confidence of the public.

HUGH MASON.

Toronto, June 8th, 1874.

To Messrs. S. A. RUSSELL & Co., Agents, New York Slate Roofing Co. Toronto.

Gentlemen,—We have used your Slate Paint on our roof, and it gives perfect satisfaction, and we deem it superior to anything ever offered to the public in the way of paint; especially for protection against damage from fire and water.

Rosa D'Erina'

The Concert given by this gifted Lady on Wednesday last, was a decided success. The Hall was well filled and the concert was all that could be desired.

Hall & Connor.

Have an extensive assortment of Ladies and gentlemen's boots and shoes of every style, and are inviting an examination; attention is also given to custom work.

Fenelon Falls.

James Bingham, son of Dr. Bingham, of Fenelon Falls, fell from a rope on which he was going through gymnastic performances on Tuesday, and was severely bruised.

New Goods.

Mr. W. G. Thomson has received his new fall goods, and is showing an extensive stock of the most fashionable goods in his line. Intending purchasers will do well to call and examine h is stock.

H. LeBrun.

At the City Clothing Store, has a large stock of the best Cloths, Tweeds, &c., and Ready-made Clothing, and is prepared to make fashionable suits on short notice, and to guarantee a good fit.

Cobourg Railroad.

All the tools which were in use on the Cobourg and Peterborough Railway between here and Mud Lake, have been taken to Rice Lake. This looks like a recommencement of the work there.

Lincoln.

Doctor Jukes is to be the Liberal Conservative Candidate in opposition to Mr. Norris. There was great difficulty in getting his assent. They are somewhat fraid of results.

Medals.

The Ontario Council of Public Instruction offer one gold, two silver, and two bronze medals for competition, to be awarded to the teachers who passed the best examinations in 1874.

Bobcaygeon.

A man named Frank Beaudin was struck on the head with a clever in Montgomery's Hotel, Bobcaygeon, by a man named William Switzer, and almost killed. The doctor's have very little hopes of his recovery.

Haliburton.

The fight over the appointment of Inspector of Public Schools still goes on. The News says potatoes are a fine crop in that section, and are now selling at 25 cts. a bushel, but likely to be less owing to the large yield.

The Lieutenant Governor of Quebec

His excellency has succeeded in obtaining the services of men willing to appeal to the people in the face of the Lauderdup.

Conservative newspapers make little of the corruption of the Quebec Ministry in bartering away the public property

Mr Fowler at Ottawa.

The Ottawa Times, contains a report of a meeting held there by Mr. Fowler on the 21st instant. The Mayor presided, and the hons. Mr. Skead, J. M. Currier, M. P, Judge Lyon, E. M Gillivray and other prominent citizens were present. Mr. Fowler, addressed the meeting on his proposed scheme of the Huron & Quebec Railway. The scheme was approved of, but we have received a the report too late for this issue.

Port Hope Markets

The Times says:—Fall wheat $1.07 to $1.10; spring wheat, $1.00 to $1.05; barley, 75c. to 80c.; oats, (new) 25c.; lamb, 05c. to 10c.; butter (rolls) 22c. to 25c.; hay, $16.00 to $12.00; potatoes, 60c. to 80c.; wool fleece, 30c. to 35c.

West Northumberland.

Mr. Kerr, sitting member, has served the Cockburn party with a notice of admission of bribery by an agent, but denying personal bribery by the respondent and offering to pay expenses this far. This will have the effect of unseating the present member and causing a new election.

Died by the Way side

A colored boy died by the way side near Guelph on Tuesday 15th instant. His father had carried the sick boy 50 to 60 miles on his back when, near Guelph they sat down to rest. and while there, the boy expired. He was about 12 years old, and was suffering from congestion of the lungs.

East Durham.

The Port Hope Times regrets to learn that Col Williams does not intend contesting that Riding in the approaching election. That gentleman has settled that he will not be a candidate again, and he announces the fact before any action is taken to nominate a candidate.

Robbery.

James Brennen of Guelph was robbed near that Town on Wednesday last about 9. p. m. He was induced to take a ride with three men in a waggon, the men turned aside from the way, and and compelled him to fork over $10, all he had about him. The farther West the greater improvement in such acts of mistaken generosity

Concert

The concert on Monday evening in aid of the South End Mission School was highly successful. The pieces, vocal and instrumental, were nicely rendered, and the readings by Mr. Christie well received. Miss Gilmour and Mrs. Rackam, presiding at the piano, aided very much in making the concert a success.

Agricultural Shows.

West Riding of Peterborough, on the 7th and 8th of October. East Riding of Peterborough, on the 6th and 7th of October. Smith, Monaghan, and Ennismore, on the 1st of October. Otonabee, on the 9th of October, at Keene. South Monaghan, on the 13th of October, at Bailieboro.

Cobourg.

A house belonging to John M'Keown, of Cobourg, was burnt on Saturday last. No insurance.

The Cobourg Sentinel is sorry to learn that Mr. John Bowman of Gold Springat whilst engaged in feeding a threshing machine last week, had his left hadncaugh in the cylinder, by which he lost one of his fingers and had another badly injured.

Don't Owe Him.

A person named Philip Williams, from the neighborhood of Peterborough, was arrested at Apto a fewdays ago for stealing a horse and buggy from the stable of Mr. Jeffrey, Pentanquishene. He was taken to Barrie and committed for trial. Peterboro is fast gaining for itself an unenvisible notoriety in this vicinity. Don't know him bear.

A "Problem of History,"

Dr. Donald Fraser, of Mary LeBone St. Presbyterian Church, London, delivered a very instructive looture here on Tuesday evening, on the above subject. The problem refe.red to was the religion of the New Testament, and its progress, which he illustrated, and asked doubters to account for. The Doctor is in Canada to attend the meetings of the Evangelical Alliance to be held in Montreal soon.

The Conversazione

To which we referred in last week's issue will be held in the Music Hall on Monday evening next, when readings will be given by the Rev. Mr. McDonnel. W. H. Scott. Esq., the Rev. Mr. Rose. and Messrs. Christie and Hand. Vocal and instrumental music will be supplied by Messrs. Brown, McClelland and Gallctly, Mrs. Fowler, and others. The entertainment will undoubtedly prove to be attractive in no ordinary degree. The proceeds will be in aid of the Building Fund of St. Andrew's Church Sun day School.

Astrology.

On Thursday evening last a star was seen in close proximity to the moon This is causing some discussion among rural astrologers, where second adventism is being held forth. The cause of the close approach, however, they cannot easily determine, but it must have arisen from the moon in this period of her lunation, having obtained a nearly direct line with the beautiful star. The world will move on.

The late Rain

Came in time to refresh. and prepare the earth for the fall grain. The harvest in this section of the country is about settled, and the Fall wheat is all sown some of it springing up, but the earth was so dry that it could not be expected to come forth equally until rain mellowed the soil. and caused the grain to germinate From every Section of the Country the most flattering accounts reach us of an abundant harvest Hey has been nearly double the quantity of former years, and the same may be said of Wheat and Oats, and the quality is said to be superior. The late drought has injured the root crops a little but not so seriously as to endanger them. Farmers have had to thresh in the middle of their harvest to make room for the superabundant crops. and if the prices are equal to those of past years, the country will be well prepared for any little backset in Lumber or other trades. Farmers however must not be expecting high prices, as appearances are against such anticipations. as very full crops are reported almost everywhere.

In Chancery.

During the week the Court of Chancery has been held in Peterborough, before Chancellor Proudfout Mr. Blake and Mr Moss have also been here since Friday as counsel.

On Friday a case of Spencelly vs Bradburn was heard. Mr. Scott being for Spencelly, and Messrs Dumble & Bleecker, Blake and Moss, for Bradburn. Mr. Bradburn won the suit.

The important case of Martin vs Nicholls or Martin vs the Dickson estate, of which Mr. Nicholls is executor, opened on Saturday morning, and continued till yesterday evening. The complaint is that the Dixon dam backs water on Martin's Mill. No less than 50 to 60 witnesses have been heard. Judgement has been reserved in part, but it is understood to be favorable to Martin. Scott and Blake for Martin; Dunnistoun and Moss for Defendant.

COUNCIL MEETING.

WEDNESDAY, July 15th, 1874.

Council met on call of Reeve. Present:—All the Council.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

The Reeve explained that this meeting was more particularly called for the purpose of receiving tenders for the building of a Town Hall.

Certain alterations in the specification of the Town Hall building were directed to be made. A number of Tenders were then handed in, opened, and taken into consideration.

The treasurer was directed to make the following payments, viz:—James Sullivan for relief, $5.00; Wm. Evens for gravel, $6.50; Robert Hope for gravel, $3.72; J. & J. Dickson for gravel, $2.20; Alex. Graham for extra work on roads, 90 cts.; John Gillespie for cedars, $3.40; John Boyd for cedars, $4.00; T. B. Clementi for surveying, $9.50; James Stratton for printing, $44.45.

The Clerk was directed to give the necessary notices for the establishment of a certain new line of Roads in 13, 14 and 15th concessions.

The Reeve introduced and read a first time a By-law appropriating money to certain roads, which By-law was read a second and third time and passed.

The Council decided not to receive any of the Tenders for the new Town Hall as the Tenders were of greater amount than the Council had contemplated. further alteration in plan and specification were directed, and new Tenders asked for next meeting of Council.

Council adjourned to 24th August next.

MONDAY, August, 24th 1874.

Present all the Council.—Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

The following applications from Trustees of different School Sections requesting the Council to assess levy and collect the sums following for the purpose of paying Teachers salary and other expenses for current year viz. Section No. 1 $160 No. 2 $225, No. 3 $180, No. 4 $170, No. 5 $240, No. 6 $57, No. 7 $400, No. 8 $200 No. 6 $93,77, No. 10 $220, No. 14 $230, No. 15 24,44, No. 16 $200, were received

The Treasurer was directed to make the following payments viz. James Millar for Cedars $7,25 William Landy for Gravel $3,18, William Drummond for gravel $3,87, Peter Moffat for field of grain drawing gravel through it $5,00, Mrs. Erskine for keep of a deserted child $4,60. Hugh McManus for relief $4,00, George Wilson for Cedars $12,50.

Tenders for building the Town Hall were received and opened. Mr. Henry Myers being the lowest, it was resolved that his tender should be accepted. on condition he furnishes security to satisfaction of Council.

A by-law to establish certain lines of New Road in 13. 14, & 15th Concessions, was introduced, read in committee and finally passed on third reading.

The Reeve introduced and read a first time a By-Law to authorize certain assessments on certain School Sections.

The Clerk was directed to notify Mr. John Rubridge to remove his fence off the allowance for Road opposite the West half of Lot 11 in 10th Concession.

Council adjourned to 19th October.

Great Fires

The village of Thurso, 29 miles from Ottawa, is surrounded by fires On Wednesday last a strong wind arose, and drove the fire before it at a fearful rate. By mid day it had crossed the river Blanche and surrounded the houses near, destroyed a barn which contents the property of Mr. Paeut the house which much difficuly was saved After farm houses in line were completely surounded also which fires, but were saved after great exertion. The wine was so high that it caroied fires from these plains half a mile into Mr. John A Cameron fence and nearly destroyed some grain that was still standing.

In another direction the fire swept towards the old Mills on the Blanche, in its course d troying the whole of the outbuildings, and everything raised this year, even to potatoes, owned by a man named Moses eleton, an old sergeant pensioner, leaving house standing. By eleven o'clock night it had burned an old house in tion with the mills, and every stump rning fiercely around every building. k house caught fire several times hill, but was by constant attention has swept Frazer's flats, two ls being caught in the fire and John McEacheren in Lochaber his barns, with their entire

A TRAGEDY.—An account has reached the Journal official of a frightful tragedy on the sea. On teh th of June the vessel Napoleon Canrerro, sailed Macao with a crew of 40 men, coolies for Callao and 8,000 packets of works. after a lapse of two days the cred a plot amoung interpreter discoverize of the ship, emigrants to ly ordered one half to be slain immediately fined in the hold but them to be compelled remained on deck armed those who with knives slaying pisn pieces themselves in short anything they could lay their hands on and attacked the crew who defended themselves with muskets and revolvers. The coolies then massed themselves on the forecastle and set fire to the vessel hoping that the crew would set to work at the pumps to extinguish the flames. During that time they had also freed their comrades and murdered the few sailors they could get hold of. The captain seeing what they were doing ordered the boats to be lowered and left the ship with the remainder of his men. Some sailors who remained on board with the doctor the magazine man and the interpreter were unable to prevent the flames from reaching the fire works and the ship blew up scattering the fragments of the mutineers in every direction under the very eyes of the escaped crew.

Two Italians, recently arrived from New York, decoyed away the little son of Mr. Jas. Patton, and securing him, intended to carry him off, with the evident intention of blackmailing the father. The detectives were upon the track and discovered the little boy in charge of the two Italians, whom they arrested and brought before the Police Magistrate yesterday. The case was taken by the court en deliberé.

We pledge our reputation on the assertion that any educated physician, after a careful examination of the receipe, will say that Parson's Purgative Pills possess more merit than any other pill now offered for sale.

--ELECTRICITY--

THOMAS' EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured broncoitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—I was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H. Cole, of Ione, writes, "please forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out; can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Immeesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well or give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Upton, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoine, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes—"Send us one gross Electric Oil. Need it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. Thomas, Prop., N. Y., and PROSTATION, resulting from the effects of the intense heat of the summer months, is one of the most prevailing causes of so many diseases peculiar to hot weather. The disease which paralyzing the liver, pervading the whole system, is unable to extract from the food passing undissolved through the bowels, irritates the lining membrane, and disorders Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, and Cholera Infantum, which prevailing Asiatic Cholera may be excited. Attention to diet, regular exercise, bathing, and regular habits must be observed. To maintain the vital forces and prevent latitude and exhaustion, Dr. Fowler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is unquestionably reliable, as it invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies material for generating nerve force.

Grafton.

The Roman Catholics of Grafton are about erecting a church at that place.

Lincoln.

Captain Neelands will oppose Charley Rykert in the approaching election.

Brigham Young.

Brigham Young is ill, and his followers are in trouble over him.

Galway.

Is to submit a By-law on the 9th of next month for a bonus of $2,600 to the Victoria road.

Doran & Gibbons.

Are receiving their fall stock, and are prepared to supply any number of customers cheap for cash.

St Andrew's Church

The Rev. D. J. McDonnell, B. D., will hold divine service next Sunday (D. V.) morning and evening.

South Bruce.

D. W. Ross, crown attorney, is spoken of as the Reform Candidate in the approaching elections.

The Weather.

Is now pleasant, refreshing rains having taken the place of the warm dry weather that prevailed.

Dolan

Is receiving an extensive stock of [illegible] fall goods, and others [illegible] and stylish suits—good fit guaranteed.

The Markets.

Farmers are beginning to supply the markets with the produce of the season. A full supply reduces prices somewhat

I. Robinson & Co.

Advertise tents for sale. Now, or soon is the time to go a hunting, when a good tent will add materially to the comforts of the sport.

The "Mail" says:

"We believe the great body of the Reform Party has been earnest and honest in its desire for reform and good government.

Rosa D'Erina.

The Concert given by this gifted Lady on Wednesday last, was a decided success. The Hall was well filled and the concert was all that could be desired.

Hall & Connor.

Have an extensive assortment of Ladies and gentlemen's boots and shoes of every style, and are inviting an examination; attention is also given to custom work.

Fenelon Falls.

James Bingham, son of Dr. Bingham, of Fenelon Falls, fell from a rope on which he was going through gymnastic performances on Tuesday, and was severely bruised.

New Goods.

Mr. W. G. Thomson has received his new fall goods, and is showing an extensive stock of the most fashionable goods in his line. Intending purchasers will do well to call and examine his stock.

H. LeBrun.

At the City Clothing Store, has a large stock of the best Cloths, Tweeds, &c., and Ready-made Clothing, and is prepared to make fashionable suits on short notice, and to guarantee a good fit.

Cobourg Railroad.

All the tools which were in use on the Cobourg and Peterborough Railway between here and Mud Lake, have been taken to Rice Lake. This looks like a recommencement of the work there.

Lincoln.

Doctor Jukes is to be the Liberal Conservative Candidate in opposition to Mr. Norris. There was great difficulty in getting his assent. They are somewhat fraid of results.

Medals.

The Ontario Council of Public Instruction offer one gold, two silver, and two bronze medals for competition, to be awarded to the teachers who passed the best examinations in 1874.

Bobcaygeon.

A man named Frank Beaudin was struck on the head with a clever in Montgomery's Hotel, Bobcaygeon, by a man named William Switzer, and almost killed. The doctor's have very little hopes of his recovery.

Haliburton.

The fight over the appointment of Inspector of Public Schools still goes on. The News says potatoes are a fine crop in that section, and are now selling at 25 cts. a bushel, but likely to be less owing to the large yield.

The Lieutenant Governor of Quebec

His excellency has succeeded in obtaining the services of men willing to appeal to the people in the face of the Landswap.

Conservative newspapers make little of the corruption of the Quebec Ministry in bartering away the public property

Mr Fowler at Ottawa:

The Ottawa Times, contains a report of a meeting held there by Mr. Fowler on the 21st instant. The Mayor presided, and the hons. Mr. Skead, J. M. Currier, M. P., Judge Lyon, E. M. Gilliveay and other prominent citizens were present. Mr. Fowler, addressed the meeting on his proposed scheme of the Huron & Quebec Railway. The scheme was approved of, but we have received a the report too late for this issue.

Port Hope Markets.

The Times says:—Fall wheat $1.07 to $1.10; spring wheat, $1.00 to $1.05; barley, 75c. to 80c.; oats, (new) 25c.; lamb, 08c. to 10c.; butter (rolls) 23c. to 25c.; hay, $16.00 to $12.00; potatoes, 40c. to 50c.; wool dress, 20c. to 25c.

West Northumberland.

Mr. Kerr, sitting member, has served the Cockburn party with a notice of admission of bribery by an agent, but denying personal bribery by the respondent and offering to pay expenses this far. This will have the effect of unseating the present member and causing a new election.

Died by the Way side

A colored boy died by the way side near Guelph on Tuesday 15th instant. His father had carried the sick boy 50 to 60 miles on his back when, near Guelph they sat down to rest. and while there, the boy expired. He was about 12 years old, and was suffering from congestion of the lungs.

East Durham.

The Port Hope Times regrets to learn that Col Williams does not intend contesting that Riding in the approaching election. That gentleman has settled that he will not be a candidate again, and he announces the fact before any action is taken to nominate a candidate.

Robbery.

James Brannen of Guelph was robbed near that Town on Wednesday last about 9. p. m. He was induced to take a ride with three men in a waggon, the men turned aside from the way, and and compelled him to fork over $10, all he had about him. The farther West the greater improvement in such acts of mistaken generosity

Concert

The concert on Monday evening in aid of the South End Mission School was highly successful. The pieces, vocal and instrumental, were nicely rendered, and the readings by Mr. Christie well received. Miss Gilmour and Mrs. Rackam, presiding at the piano, aided very much in making the concert a success.

Agricultural Shows.

West Riding of Peterborough, on the 7th and 8th of October. East Riding of Peterborough, on the 6th and 7th of October. Smith, Monaghan, and Enniskillen, on the 1st of October. Otonabee, on the 9th of October, at Keene. South Monaghan, on the 13th of October, at Bailieboro.

Cobourg.

A house belonging to John M'Keown, of Cobourg. was burnt on Saturday last. No insurance.

The Cobourg Sentinel is sorry to learn that Mr. John Bowman of Cold Springs whilst engaged in feeding a threshing [illegible] had caught in the cylinder, by which he [illegible] one of his fingers and had another badly injured.

Don't Owe Him.

A person named Philip Williams, [illegible] the neighborhood of Peterborough, was arrested at Apto a fewdays ago for stealing a horse and buggy from the stable of Mr. Jeffrey, Pentanguishene. He was taken to Barrie and committed for trial. Peterboro is fast gaining for itself an unenviable notoriety in this vicinity. Don't know him hear.

A "Problem of History,"

Dr. Donald Fraser, of Mary LeBone St. Presbyterian Church, London, delivered a very instructive lecture here on Tuesday evening, on the above subject. The problem refered to was the religion of the New Testament, and its progress, which he illustrated, and asked doubters to account for. The Doctor is in Canada to attend the meetings of the Evangelical Alliance to be held in Montreal soon.

The Conversazione

To which we referred in last week's issue will be held in the Music Hall on Monday evening next, when readings will be given by the Rev. Mr. McDonnell, W. H. Scott. Esq., the Rev. Mr. Ross and Messrs. Christie and Hand. Vocal and instrumental music will be supplied by Messrs. Brown, McClelland and Galley, Mrs. Fowler, and others. The entertainment will undoubtedly prove to be attractive in no ordinary degree. The proceeds will be in aid of the Building Fund of St. Andrew's Church Sun day School.

Astrology.

On Thursday evening last a star was seen in close proximity to the moon This is causing some discussion among rural astrologers, where second adventism is being held forth. The cause of the close approach, however, they cannot easily determine, but it must have arisen from the moon in this period of her lunation, having obtained a nearly direct line with the beautiful star. The world will move on.

The late Rain

Came in time to refresh, and prepare the earth for the fall grain. The harvest in this section of the country is about settled, and the Fall wheat is all sown some of it springing up, but the earth was so dry that it could not be expected to come forth equally until rain mellowed the soil, and caused the grain to germinate. From every Section of the Country the most flattering accounts reach us of an abundant harvest Hay has been nearly double the quantity of former years, and the same may be said of Wheat and Oats, and the quality is said to be superior. The late drought has injured the root crops a little but not so seriously as to endanger them. Farmers have had to thresh in the middle of their harvest to make room for the superabundant crops, and if the prices are equal to those of past years, the country will be well prepared for any little backset in Lumber or other trades. Farmers however must not be expecting high prices. as appearances are against such anticipations. as very full crops are reported almost everywhere.

In Chancery.

During the week the Court of Chancery has been held in Peterborough, before Chancellor Proudfoot Mr. Blake and Mr Moss have also been here since Friday as counsel.

On Friday a case of Spencelly vs Bradburn was heard. Mr. Scott being for Spencelly, and Messrs Dumble & Bleecker, Blake and Moss ,for Bradburn. Mr. Bradburn won the suit.

The important case of Martin vs Nicholls or Martin as the Dickson estate, of which Mr. Nicholls is executor, appeared on Saturday morning, and continued till yesterday evening. The complaint is that the Dixon dam backs water on Martin's Mill. No less than 50 to 60 witnesses have been heard. Judgement has been reserved in part, but it is understood to be favorable to Martin. Scott and Blake for Martin; Dumble town and Moss for Defendant.

OTONABEE COUNCIL MEETING.

WEDNESDAY, July 15th, 187[illegible]

Council met on call of Reeve. [illegible]sent :—All the Council.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

The Reeve explained that this meeting was more particularly called for the purpose of receiving tenders for the building of a Town Hall.

Certain alterations in the specification of the Town Hall building were directed to be made. A number of Tenders were then handed in, opened, and taken into consideration.

The treasurer was directed to make the following payments, viz :—James Sullivan for relief, $5.00 ; Wm. Evens for gravel, $6.50 ; Robert Hope for gravel, $3.72 ; J. & J. Dickson for gravel, $2.20 ; Alex. Graham for extra work on roads, 90 cts. ; John Gillespie for cedars. $3.40 ; John Boyd for cedars. $4.00 ; T. B. Clementi for surveying, $0.50 ; James Stratton for printing, $44.85.

The Clerk was directed to give the necessary notices for the establishment of a certain new line of Roads in 13, 14 and 15th concessions.

The Reeve introduced and read a first time a By-law appropriating money to certain roads, which By-law was read a second and third time and passed.

The Council decided not to receive any of the Tenders for the new Town Hall as the Tenders were of greater amount then the Council had contemplated, further alteration in plan and specification were directed, and new Tenders asked for next meeting of Council.

Council adjourned to 24th August next.

MONDAY, August, 24th 1874.

Present all the Council.—Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

The following applications from Trustees of different School Sections requesting the Council to assess levy and collect the sums following for the purpose of paying Teachers salary and other expenses for current year viz, Section No. 1 $[illegible] No. 2 $[illegible], No. 3 $180, No. 4 $[illegible], No. 5 $240, No. 6 $57, No. 7 $400. No. 8 $200 No. 6 $98,77, No. 10 $220, No. 14 $230, No. 15 24,44, No. 16 $200, were received

The Treasurer was directed to make the following payments viz. James Millar for Cedars $7.25 William Lundy for Gravel $3.18, William Drummond for gravel $3,87, Peter Moffat for field of grain drawing gravel through it $5.00, Mrs. Erskine for keep of a deserted child $4,60. Hugh McManus for relief $4.00, George Wilson for Cedars $12.50.

Tenders for building the Town Hall were received and opened. Mr. Henry Myers being the lowest, it was resolved that his tender should be accepted, on condition he furnishes security to satisfaction of Council.

A by-law to establish certain lines of New Road in 13. 14, & 15th Concessions, was introduced, read in committee and finally passed on third reading.

The Reeve introduced and read a first time a By-Law to authorize certain assessments on certain School Sections.

The Clerk was directed to notify Mr. John Rubridge to remove his fence off the allowance for Road opposite the West half of Lot 11 in 10th Concession.

Council adjourned to 19th October.

Great Fires

The village of Thurso, 29 miles from Ottawa, is surrounded by fires On Wednesday last a strong wind arose, and drove the fire before it at a fearful rate. By mid day it had crossed the river Blanche and surrounded the houses near, destroyed a barn which contents the property of Mr, Paeut his house which much difficulty was saved Other farm houses in line were completely surrounded also which fires, but were saved after great exertion. The wine was so high that it carried fires from these plains half a mile into Mr. John A Cameron fence and nearly destroyed some grain that was still standing.

In another direction the fire swept towards the old Mills on the Blanche, in its course destroying the whole of the outbuildings, and everything raised this year, even to potatoes, owned by a man named Moses Castelan, an old sergeant pensioner, leaving his house standing. By eleven o'clock on night it had burned an old house in connection with the mills, and every stump was burning fiercely around every building. The cook house caught fire several times and the mill, but was by constant attention saved. It has swept Frazer's flats, two head of cattle being caught in the fire and burnt. Mr John McEacheren in Lochaber Bay has lost his barns, with their entire contents.

EXCEEDINGLY AGGRAVATING.—A peculiarly distressing case, says the Port Hope Times, occured here a few days ago, in which the joyous feelings of an expectant bride were quickly changed to grief and dismay. It appears that the lady alluded to was engaged to be married to the the man of her choice her parent approving of the match, but her brother, not having been consulted, resolved to do his little best to interpose disagreeable obstacles. The desired opportunity presented itself when the wedding trousseau was brought home the younger seizing it and decamping. The lady arrived in time to see a mass of muslin and orange blossoms disappear through the doorway. Alarmed at the boldness of the theft, she called to her assistance the whole police force of the town, and Chief Constable Marshall, the full of sympathy for her misfortune, was unable to find the young scamp, who has effected his escape, and no trace could be found of him. This is a most contemptible trick, and it is to be hoped master hopeful will receive the punishment his conduct merits.

A TRAGEDY AT SEA.—An account has reached the Journal Official of a frightful tragedy on the high seas On 16th of June the Italian vessel Napoleon Camrerro, sailed from Macao with a crew of 40 men, 600 coolies for Callao and 8,000 packets of fire works. after a lapse of two days the interpreter discovered a plot amoung the emigrants to seize on the ship. The captain immediately ordered one half of them to be confined in the hold but the day those who remained on deck armed themselves with knives belaying pins pieces of wood in short anything they could lay their hands on and attacked the crew who defended themselves with muskets and revolvers. The coolies then massed themselves on the forecastle and set fire to the vessel hoping that the crew would set to work at the pumps to extinguish the flames. During that time they had also freed their comrades and murdered the few sailors they could get hold of. The captain seeing what they were doing ordered the boats to be lowered and left the ship with the remainder of his men. Some sailors who remained on board with the doctor the magazine man and the interpreter were unable to prevent the flames from reaching the fire works and the ship blew up scattering the fragments of the mutineers in every direction under the very eyes of the escaped crew.

Two Italians, recently arrived from New York, decoyed away the little son of Mr. Jas. Patton, and securing him, intended to carry him off, with the evident intention of black mailing the father. The detectives were upon the track and discovered the little boy in charge of the two Italians, whom they arrested and brought before the Police Magistrate yesterday. The case was taken by the court en delibere.

We pledge our reputation on the assertion that any educated physician, after a careful examination of the receipe, will say that Parson's Purgative Pills possess more merit than any other pill now offered for sale.

--ELECTRICITY--

THOMAS' EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made.' One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H Cole, of Iona, writes, "please forward 3 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out; can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Tanesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never sha any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing take like it." Miller & Reed, Ulverton, P. Q., write—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoine, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., write,—"Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Propr., N. Y., and PROSTATION, resulting from the effects of the extreme heat of the summer months, the depressing causes of so many diseases peculiar to hot weather. The stomach paralyzed by the loss of vitality, the whole digestive system, is unable to digest the food passing undigested through the bowels, irritates it; then comes Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, and when prevailing Asiatic Cholera may be excited. Attention to diet, exercise, bathing, and regular habits should be observed. To maintain the vital forces and prevent lassitude and exhaustion. Hooker's Compound Elixir of Phosphate of Calisaya is unquestionably reliable, and invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies material for generating nerve force.

Select Poetry.

Who Says that Britain's Noon is Over?

DEDICATED TO SIR GARNET WOLSELEY.

Who says that Britain's noon is o'er
That British valor's fled?
Who says that Britain owns no more
Such blood as once she shed?
Yet fools who hate our country ill
Delight her to they sing.
But Britons now are Britons still,
And shall be so for aye.

Then give a cheer for England,
For honest, valiant England!
So much she loves her ledger lore,
Pet, oh, she loves her honor more.
Hurrah, hurrah for England, and
The flag we all adore.

Who says her Isles has learned to bow
To every tyrant crew?
Who says the world may wrong her now,
Nor fear to rend its hue?
The bane of war she nobly shuns,
For men and Him on High;
But rouse her—oh, the British guns
Shall thunder bunk the lie.

Then give a cheer for Scotland,
For brave, for bonnie Scotland;
The land that bred a Bruce of yore,
That glorious Colin Campbell bore,
Hurrah, hurrah for Scotia, and
The flag we all adore.

The blood we shed, like heroes true,
In many a bright campaign
At Inkerman, at Waterloo,
And mid the vales of Spain—
Such blood is yet in British hearts,
As proud, as brave as then;
Let heroic call—the Lion stir's,
And Britain's up again.

Then give a cheer for Erin,
For dear, for dauntless Erin;
In many a radiant scene of yore
The foremost flag that Britain bore
Was carried by an Irish hand,
An Irish regiment o'er.

Who sees not in the little band
That pierced the Afric wild,
And, row to hundreds, hand to hand,
The dark marauders foiled,
True British hearts, like those of old.
That stormed the world herein:
True hearts that can still uphold
The glories of the slain?

Then give a cheer for Wolseley,
Our country's pride, for Wolseley,
And one for all the valiant corps
That Britains flag so bravely bore,
Three cheers for Wolseley, and
And the flag we all adore.

THE MANUFACTURERS AND THE TREATY.

The attempt to anticipate questions of adverse interpretation has been carried very far; but with only indifferent success. The question has been raised whether a manufactured article, to entitle it to pass free under the Treaty, would not require to be made of material the growth of the manufacturing country. It has been questioned whether a Canadian manufacturer could import wool from the Cape of Good Hope, and after manufacturing it into tweed, send it free into the United States, where native manufacturers have to pay a heavy duty on wool. The resolution of these doubts must be sought in the text of the draft Treaty; where there is not a word to indicate that manufactured goods must be made of material grown in the manufacturing nation. Certain articles of cotton are included in the list and as Canada grows no cotton it can never be intended that we should be prohibited from using foreign-grown cotton in their manufacture. It is well that the Treaty should be thoroughly sifted and all its bearings on Canadian interests fully understood; but surely the alarm on this point attests the existence of a suspicion that it is utterly groundless. That the American woollen manufacturers may have reason to fear the operation of a treaty which threatens to make tweeds. While wool is heavily taxed we can understand; and this explains the opposition of that interest in the States. But the difficulty is one with which Congress is competent to deal. It is quite in its power to repeal the duty on wool; and that would be probably one of the results of the Treaty. Of course, if the sacrifice of duty duty were required to extend far beyond the limits of the schedule of manufactures, the House of Representatives might pause before making so great a change in the fiscal policy as the supplying the vacuum in the revenue would simply. In that way the Treaty might be imperrilled.

In view of the opposition that has been elicited in both countries, the draft may have to undergo alterations by which the manufacturers will be left out altogether. There are many things that point to such a result; prominent among which is the opposition of some of the interested American manufacturers and boards the whole of them in Canada. Such a change would not be cause of regret; while it would make the multilated treaty a much more acceptable instrument than it is in its eternity. We have repeatedly expressed the opinion that some concession is due to the manufacturers; and for that reason we have regarded the question of their interests as one that required the Treaty. On the value of reciprocity in raw products there is scarcely any difference of opinion. The general opinion is eminently favorable to such an arrangement. The exception rests with those who see, in the great increase of our trade with the United States during the last few years, a beneficial result of the abrogation of the Treaty of 1854; while it is quite certain that that increase was due wholly to other causes, and that it would have been considerably greater than it was if the barrier of customs duties had not been interposed.

But if manufactures were struck out, the alterations could hardly end here; and we might have something to fear from the additional mutilations. But even if the Treaty should shrink to nearly the dimensions of that of 1854, it would be far better than none. The Americans have always insisted on including manufactures in any new treaty of reprocity: but when they are on the point of applying the extension, they are half inclined to recoil from the possible consequences. We need not conceal that the coasting trade is for us an object of desire; and the Americans ought to have the courage to meet us on the ground of competition. If manufacturers go by the board, the registration article would probably go with them, as ships belong as much to the category of manufactures as Tweeds. But the coasting trade stands on the ground of mutual competition, on which the nation of forty millions should not fear to encounter the nation of four millions.—Nation.

THE TWO SYSTEMS.

Under there are two distinct and separate systems of Christianity at the present day. It is useless to deny it.—There existence is a great fact, and one that cannot be to clearly known.

According to one system, religion is a mere corporate business. You are to belong to a certain body of people. By virtue of your membership of this body, vest privileges both for time and eternity, are conferred upon you. It matters little what you are, and what you feel. You are a member of a great ecclesiastical corporation. Then all its privileges and immunities are your own. Do you belong to the one true, visible ecclesiastical corporation? This is the grand question.

According to the other system, religion is eminently a personal business between yourself and Christ. It will not save your soul to be an outward member of any ecclesiastical body whatever, however sound that body may be. Such membership will not wash any one sin, or give you confidence in the day of judgement. There must be a personal faith in Christ, personal dealings between yourself and God, personal felt communion between your own heart and the Holy Ghost.—Have you this personal faith? Have you this felt work of the Spirit in your soul? This is the grand question. If not, you will be lost.

Reader, this last system is that which who are called evengelical ministers cleave to and teach. They do so because they are satisfied that it is the system of Holy Scripture. They do so because they are convinced that any other system is productive of most dangerous consequences, and calculated to delude men fatally as to their actual state. They do so because they believe it to be the only system of teaching which God will bless, and that no Church will flourish so much as that in which repentance, faith in Christ conversion, and the work of the Spirit, are the grand subjects of the ministers sermons.

The London Election.

For a good many years the city of London has had the reputation of being about as corrupt a constituency as any M. P. could represent. We suppose the Londoners may have been at some time, long since gone by, a politically pure people, but under the control of Mr. John Carling, the loyal supporter of a corrupt Tory party, and educated by Mr. Carling's electioneering lieutenants, their moral sense became considerably blunted; and it seems to have been generally accepted that an election could not be properly conducted without a liberal expenditure in the interests of those having principles and votes for sale.

The trial just concluded reveals the state of the London atmosphere pretty clearly. Mr. Carling very wisely abstained from claiming the seat himself, and thus his friends were not examined, and we have no means of knowing how much money was spent by him and his party. But the examination of Major Walker's friends showed that the expenditure on that side had been of the most generous description. There was no evidence showing that Major Walker himself expended any more than was necessary for legitimate expenses, or that he was aware of any further being spent. But the 10s and 20s, nevertheless, flew around lively. Nearly every active canvasser on behalf of the Major, including on ex-mayor, some aldermen, and other prominent citizens, had cut from $200 to $1000 each—placing the dollars where they thought they would do the most good. About the only one who came out of the witness box with clean hands was Mr. James Durand, who, though he had himself been defeated at a previous election by Mr. Carling's pecuniary tactics, yet carefully abstained from retaliating in kind.

But where did all this money come from? Well, it came from Mr. Carling's old friends and supporters, good old Tories, who, when they opened against Mr. Carling, could not abstain from fighting with the weapons to which they were accustomed. Mr. E. Harris, one of the most "high toned" and aristocratic of the old Tory party in London, provided the main fund himself—over $6,000. Other Conservatives were probably as liberal as their bank accounts would allow. It was a clear case of "dog eating dog."

The Reformers of London were placed in a very peculiar position. A Reform candidate stood no chance against Mr. Carling and they therefore readily agreed to vote for a Conservative, who promised to oppose the Pacific Scandal Party in Parliament. In the heat of the contest many of them caught from the opposite party the bribery contagion and made free use of the money supplied by their new Conservative allies. It is to be regretted that they did so; but having done it, no Reformer will regret that the election has been declared void.—

Ponds' Extract. For bleeding from the lungs, it can be used with any common "tinnier". Try it.

Edward Bayer, Esq., Horton, Kings Co. N. S., writes than an astonishing cure has been effected on his daughter, by the use of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. The whole spine became diseased, and she lost the use of her limbs, and her back was rounded up like a bow, in consequence of taking cold after having been inoculate for the kine pock. She is now well.

The Pain Killer. We have known the high character of this medicine, and that it is used with great success and satisfaction in our very best families. It is the favorite medicine of our missionaries in heathen lands, where they use it more than all else together for the diseases that abound in those warm climates. It should be kept in every house, and be in readiness for sudden attacks of sickness.

The horse. "Of the great number of animals under the control of man, the horse is unquestionably the most serviceable," but is not strange that so many who own horses, and who are dependent on their labor for a living, should neglect to give them that care and attention which their own interest no less than the safety and comfort of the horse demands. The best medicine for horses is "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy;" of there can be no doubt—it is safe and easily given.

Remember the name and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

The British Navy.—The question has often been asked whether the Navy of Great Britain, amounting as it does to over 6,000 thousand guns, and manned by 75,000 sailors, exceeds the navies of France and the United States, or France and Russia, and were it not that it might be considered a little egotistical we should say it did exceed them altogether; but it is useless speculating upon this when there are other questions that do not admit of any doubt—no one after using the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" doubts its being the very best thing for the cure of coughs, colds, sore throat, dipthería, pains in the stomach, aches and back, spinal affections. Sold by all medicine dealers at 25 cents per bottle.

The efficacy of Bryan's Pulmonic wafers in curing coughs, colds, and all bronchical affections, and cheering the afflicted, has passed into a proverb. In the United States, where these marvellous Wafers are known, they bear down all opposition and eclipse all rivalry; the demand for them has steadily increased for the last twenty years, until now the sales average over one hundred thousand boxes a year. Eminent members of the medical profession without number admit that that they know of no preparation professing such beneficial results as these wafers. When taken in season they effect a permanent cure. Sold by all druggists and country dealers at 25 cents per box

Brain Worry. Many of us pray to be delivered from sudden death, and do we not worry ourselves into it. And if we do can we not help it? "Men do not really die of Heart disease as often as it is supposed, but of 'Apoplexy, or Congestion of the Lungs, so they do not die of brain work, but Brain Worry. Scott died of it, Souther, Swift, Horace Greeley, and probably Thackeray."—London "Tuftes." As brain worry produces premature dissolution by its depressing influence upon the general nervous health, by eating the brain faster than the waste is repaired, and as the means of sustaining and increasing nervous health is no longer impossible those who suffer the debilitating influence of mental anguish or extreme mental ague, need only resort to the preparation of Hypophosphites invented by Mr. Fellows as that conduct the subject safely over the rapids of depair, and create in him strength to grapple with every difficulty. This is no idle assertion but an established fact.

VINEGAR BITTERS
VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL
PURELY — CALIFORNIA
WALKER
VINEGAR BITTERS
VINEGAR BITTERS

VINEGAR BITTERS proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigertion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Painters, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Because the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Where the glands can receive life, it can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a
HAIR DRESSING,
nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use. In every country among all classes, for this mild but efficient purgative pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all agree that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and constitutions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relish to the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Choice Poetry.

HINTS FOR YOUNG LADIES.

It's hardly the thing to be witty,
If you are decidedly young,
A girl may be charmingly pretty,
And yet have the droop of a tongue.
Sharp answers are rather ear-aching,
When uttered with piquancy cool;
A girl may be sweetly engaging,
And make a man look like a fool.

To women who hunt and are horsey,
All feminine softness forgot,
A well-behaved man may be saucy—
He's surely a spoon if he's not;
They fancy it very delightful
To strike out a path of their own,
But the world is uncommonly spiteful,
And never will let them alone.

So, though I don't wish to be rude, dears,
To you—by the slangy called "fast,"
Though often the first to be wooed, dears,
You'll find that you're married the last.
Your sentiment's rather too gushing,
Your wit is a little too free;
And women who understand blushing,
Men like for their wives, don't you see?

To try by your airs to out do men
Is really a wonderful plan;
The loudest and fastest of women
Would make such a very slow man!
And 'twould be the same with us men, dears,
If we tried this mistaken poor,
We would be as ridiculous then, dears—
What girls we'd make, to be sure.

Then do not consider it vexing,
Your lives are such different things,
And never attempt an unsexing—
Sure queens [illegible] royal as kings!
You soon would find out what distress is,
Without his strong arm and advice;
Without your quick wit and caresses,
His wouldn't find life half so nice.

Ireland and Her Scenery.

Forty years ago the late W. H. Maxwell told, in his sprightly and pleasant way, how a Londoner, jaded by a wearying season, betook himself to the wilds of Mayo, and pronounced the scenes and sports of the West superior to anything of the kind in Britain. The enthusiasm of the traveller was perhaps due, in some respects, to the strangeness of the feat, for in those days few wanderers from our shores had ever penetrated beyond the Shannon; and between dull stages, slatternly hotels, and postchaises redolent of the manure heap, a journey through Ireland was a long penance which taxed the courage of the boldest pilgrim. We shall not imitate the novelist's raptures, and call Irish scenery the perfection of nature, especially as most of the vexatious obstacles to a tour in Ireland have long disappeared; and probably, indeed, the "first flower of the earth" is to few of our readers quite an unknown land, clothed by ignorance in the hues of enchantment. Truth compels us to say that a great part of the island is, in the words of the old chronicler, but "an ugly picture in a fair frame;" and, not to speak of skies of proverbial wetness, some of the discomforts of Irish travelling unhappily retain a tenacious existence. Nevertheless the home of the Celt is, in simple prosaic Saxon, well worth a visit in many respects; and we are really surprised that so small a part of the immense tide of our holiday-seers finds its way at this time to the Irish shores, though the tendency fortunately is on the increase. From every conceivable point of view, Ireland is a field of interest to English observers, from the mere gazer on the outside of Nature to the man of science, of taste, and of study. No country in Europe presents scenes where majesty and loveliness are so subtly linked with the charm of a tender and graceful melancholy; few can show sights of such imposing grandeur; in none are there more striking constrasts in the form, the character, and the tone of the landscape. The most superficial eye, besides, must feel an interest in the marked differences of culture and progress seen on the face of the country in various parts of the island; and in the distinctions between the North and the South, in the aspect of many a city and town, in the condition of numerous tracts and their people, one can almost trace a living image of a singularly instructive and pathetic history. As for deep observers it is needless to say what attractions Ireland possesses for them. Her mountains and plains have revealed secrets of the highest importance to the geologist; and the peculiarities of her soil and climate, her configuration and her internal structure, attest the wise design seen in the great works of Nature. As for the ethnologist, Ireland is, in a special manner, a theatre for his keenest speculations; and no region, perhaps, suggests problems so curious, so delicate, and so perplexing as regards the qualities and fate of races. Nor are the remains of past ages of man which cover her soil in thick profusion from her mysterious Round Towers to Cyclopean walls and Mediæval ruins, without a strange fascination of their own; and if the clue to her history is hard to follow, the monuments of it are to be found everywhere, and cannot fail to arrest attention. For all these reasons we strongly recommend a visit to Ireland in these long autumn days; and we shall try to speed the tourist on his way, promising that we can only touch the surface of a very large subject. Of one thing we can assure the explorer; he will find nothing in Ireland to fear, and a great deal to admire; and it will be his own fault if Irish hospitality is wanting to him in all its charms and heartiness.

Ireland is accesible by many routes, but the best is that from Holyhead to Dublin, bridged by a line of steamers of rare excellence. Dublin Bay has been linked to that of Naples, and the swelling outlines of the surrounding hills form an amphitheatre of no common beauty; but rains and sea mists too often charge the landscape with sombre or neutral colors. The Irish metropolis at this season sleeps in the silence of the Long Vocation, but a discriminating eye will find much to admire in its ample squares and fine public buildings; a sanitary critic will justly cry out at the evidences of its vile drainage; and the old feudal city, with the dominant Castle, the town of the Protestant colony of the 18th century, and the expanding suburbs of the present age, suggest many thoughts to the historical student. From Dublin the traveller will probably follow the course of the Wicklow and Wexford Railway, to explore the scenes of the favored tract, which, shut in between the Barrow and the sea, forms the fairest portion of the Province of Leinster. Wicklow may be described as the Irish Switzerland, high ranges spreading mile after mile open into recesses of exquisite green, of dense forest, and of many waters; and in no part of Ireland has the industry of man so happily aided the grandeur of nature, or secured the tourist such ease and comfort. A stranger in this district should not fail to visit one of the most striking monuments of old Celtic life, the valley of Glendalough, and its Seven Churches; while the great military road which spans the hills will remind him that these romantic glens were once silent witnesses of a long strife between the Irish and the advancing Saxon. Wexford is a region of lowlands and wolds, not in themselves of peculiar interest, but the old town around the banks of the Slaney, and the social characteristics of the whole country, in many respects deserve notice: while the ruins of Ferns and the Strongbow castles, the peasant farming of Bargy and Forth, and the traces of Norman and Flemish descent which may still be seen in the people of Wexford are severally worth attention. From Wexford a tourist may rapidly traverse the fine districts of plain and upland, now all golden with the wealth of harvest, which stretch from Kildare to the verge of Kilkenny, but the features of these long-settled counties possess little of a distinctive character. Kilkenny, however, more than once the seat of the rude Conventions of the Pale, with its Cathedral rich with Mediæval graves, and the towers of the illustrious House of Ormonde rising over the quiet waters of the Nore, has much to please an antiquarian eye; and the adjoining country is thickly strewed with the remains of Norman abbeys and keeps, symbols of a rule which has long passed away. At Kildare the great Southern and Western Railway leads the traveller into the least cultivated and wildest expanse of this part of Ireland, the vast region which stretches east and west between the Slieve Bloom range and the Westmeath lakes, almost from the Liffey to the distant Shannon. This tract still occupied by the huge Bog of Allen, was once a lad of thick wooded morasses, the barrier of the Celtic tribes against the Englishry of the Eastern sea board and to this day it has, in many places, an aspect of silent and dreary solitude. Yet it is interesting to mark how the labour of man has largely increased the far-reaching wilderness, and raised on it numerous towns and dwellings, and the view over the immense purple plain which spreads out from Rock of Dunamase is very impressive. Meath and West Meath exhibit their superb pastures in marked contrast to this melancholy tract and dull is the spirit which is not stirred by the associations blended with this side of the Pale, the desolate mound of the Hill of Tara, the perfect symmetry of the ruins of Trim, and the hill where the cause of the Stuarts was lost beside the historic waters of the Boyne.

The Great Southern and Western will take the stranger almost to the far verge of the Munster. The first part to be seen of this noble Province is its magnificent central plain, stretching from the Kilkenny hills to the banks of the Shannon, and the lover of Nature and the economic student will alike rejoice at the luxuriance of the Golden Vale and the lofty crests of the surrounding mountains. This also, is a land of Celtic remains mingled with the architecture of the conquering Norman; and Holycross and the Rock of Cashel still attest in their ruins the common faith and long-standing strife of distinct races. This tract was, unhappily, until quite lately, the worst seat of Irish agrarian feuds, and it is worthy of remark that the mass of the people are in a great measure, of an English stock, a significant fact for those who ascribe all the crime of Ireland to "Celtic barbarism." From Tipperary the valley of the Suir leads to the old and curious city of Waterford, and a short journey thence opens the long valley of Blackwater, flowing through rich plains and wild hill rangers. If less cultivated than that of Wicklow, the scenery of this beautiful region has a softness and grandeur all its own, and the emerald splendour of the glowing pastures, the exuberance of the wooped slopes, and the noble outlines of the mountain chains, confusedly tossed in strange forms, make a landscape of singular grace and majesty. Cork should be visited if only to see its admirable haven, and the long lines of its villas along the banks of the Lee and the ancient city, with its fine churches and its narrow streets, is a place of interest, though its glories seem rather to belong to the past. The Western Highlands of Cork may be next entered, and from these an easy approach leads to the hill country of Kerry. This division of Ireland has been often described, so we shall only say that, in many ways, it is one of deep and surpassing interest. For its combination of sylvan recess, of lofty mountain, and of tree-fringed lake, the whole surrounded by a subtle charm of cloud and atmosphere elsewhere unknown, Killarney is unrivalled in Europe, and few can gaze on the cloisters of Muckross, on the fairy islet of Innisfallen, on the waves of foliage which flow down the sides of the Eagle's Nest and the Purple Mountain, without a sentiment of profound emotion. Nor is the scene of inferior beauty as you look from Glengariff over the waves of Bantry, and follow the sweep of those glorious hills, all heather and verdure along their slopes, and with rills like diamond threads in the sunshine. Yet this enchanting land is but one only of many objects which, in this region, should attract the mind of a careful observer. The views along the jagged coast line, where the Atlantic breaks in enormous rollers against precipitous walls of cliff, or eddies in a hundred fords and bays, are sublime and lovely in many spots, and it is impossible not to admire the wise provision by which Nature has fenced this part of the island against the force of the great ocean with barriers of rock extending for leagues. This, too, is, in a special manner, the land of the native children of the soil, though lustrous eyes and most graceful figures tell of a graft in the stock from Spain, and the gleam still abound with strange legends filled with the pathos and weird fancy characteristic of the old Celtic poetry. From Kerry the broad expanse of the Shannon, an almost deserted sea-lake, which, though it seems an avenue to the Far West, never been a highway of commerce, opens a path to the ancient town of Limerick, and even to this day the adjoining scene around with memories of the famous seige.

A sail up the Shannon carries you through a scenery of contrasts till you teach Athlone. On the way you may admire the rich handscape of Killaloe, and the sheet of Lough Derg, but the most striking objects is the waste solitude where the ruins of the Celtic fanes of Clonmacnoise rise beside the dark and mysterious stream. At Athlone the Midland Railway speeds through Connaught, but this Province is, on the whole, less interesting to a stranger than the other three. Still, the mazes of hills which guard the coast, the only desolation of Connemara, the vast expanse of Loughs Mask and Corrib, the half foreign look of the old streets of Galway, and the islets which fringe the shore of Clew Bay, have all attractions in various degrees, and the aspect of the country, with its alterations of stony wilderness and green pastures, has occasionally very curious features. A drive from Sligo across Leitrim still a gap to the Irish Railway system—takes you to the verge of the Province of Ulster, and here the tourist will find nearly as much to admire as in any part of the Island, and more on the whole to observe and study. The scenery of the interior of Ulster, as generally is the case in Ireland, is for the most part comparatively tame, but Lough Erne is a striking exception, and its waters dotted with wooded Islands, and its shores adorned for mile after mile with prosperous farms and fair country seats, form a succession of views of rare beauty. The coast line of the Province is singularly grand; the Donegal Highlands like those of Kerry rise in stern strength to confront the ocean; if their glens want the verdure of the South, the bays of the North are vast lakes of sea embosomed in rangers of noble outline; and to the East the rugged and awful cliffs towering hundreds of feet above the sea or running into zong natural causeways, remind the traveller that he is near the forations which breast apart from the shores Scotland. The coast of Ulster from Lough Foyle to where the Mourne Mountains look over the channel is, we think the finest in Ireland; and here a traveller will of course examine the huge mole which the fancy of the Celt has made the work of past giant race, though the famed breakewater is not in itself as grand an object as might be supposed. Yet the aspect of nature is not that which most strikes or engages the mind as you pass through the division of Ireland. In no part of Great Britain are differences of race so clear

PETERBORO, OCTOBER 1, 1874.

MR. HAWINS.

Mr. Hawkins who came here to do service for Mr. Scott in the late election, has returned to his first Love, the Reformers. At a meeting in Glencoe he spoke for some time, and openly declared he had left the Conservative ranks. He sneered at the leadership of such men as Mr. Rykert, Landes, and the modest Mr Mr. Boultbee. He has become so completely disgusted that he could no longer work with them. His former friends are now throwing dirt at him. Mr. Hawkins is a good speaker, and an intelligent, discriminating gentleman, and will be received by Reformer's of every where warmly, and treated fairly. In his speech at Glencoe he said,—"He believed the Opposition had degenerated into the merest factionness, so that it was no longer entitled to the name of an Opposition, such as they understood an Opposition to mean under British Institutions. In regard to the Opposition to the present Government they were degeneration into the state of affairs in Great Britain 100 since, when there was nothing but libelling, slandering, and villification. He believed the Reform party were about to enter upon a greater field even than that which they had conquered during the past three years of their administration. He could find no ground to stand with the Opposition, but such trival matters as furnishing some of the apartments and paying $200 for a half holiday for a few workingmen. He was convinced that the object of the Opposition was to gain power in Ontario to use it as an engine by which to gain power at Ottawa."

He has left the sinking ship, and will now be found battling on the side of right and honest Government. His speech will be found in another column.

YOUNGS POINT.

Thursday last was a gala day at the "Point." The Roman Catholics of that neighborhood held a pic-nic to raise funds to refit the interior of their church. The day was fine and the place selected beautiful, about 300 persons were present, the youthful portion in their gayest, and the more advanced in years as gay and cheerful as any. The table was neatly arranged in a beautiful shaded place, where nature spread her green foliage to protect the whole from the solar rays, and where the birds could join in their merry lays with the sweet music of the violins which were close by, and to the music of which hundreds were indulging in devotions to the terpsichorean goddess.

One pleasing feature of the gathering was that it was composed of all classes of religion. Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists and Episcopolians, although we would not have it understood that all were equally devout at the shrine of the deity.

The Rev. Father O' Connol, of Douro, was present during the day, and was very untiring in his efforts to make all happy and comfortable. About one o'clock the call for dinner was answered by all with readiness. The tables were literally loaded with abundance of good things, the preparation and bounty of the ladies of the place. The Rev. gentleman being foremost in seeing that all present, especially those from a distance, were well provided for. After having partaken of the bountiful supplies of fat things the young people betook themselves to their favorite sports, and the older heads's to watch the fun, or engage in amusements befitting their age and ideas. The day was pleasantly spent, not a word or act was there to mar its happiness; the best of good nature prevailing everywhere. Father O'Connol had spoken to the hotel keepers in the morning, and they willingly closed their houses during the day, and both Mr. Kearney and Mr. Young gave their time and attention to meeting the wants of the thirsty by giving them nothing but temperance drinks, so that not a creature could be seen affected by strong drink. On the approach of evening, the Rev. Gentleman got all to disperse, all well satisfied with the day's pleasure and their share in it.

During the day we had a stroll around the point to see what was going on. The old saw mill has been completely refitted by Mr. Chalmers who is the present owner, and who purchased it last fall. The whole is now in a state to turn out a large quantity of lumber and shingles. Mr. Chalmers is also engaged in building a bridge across the river near the locks, which when completed, will change the course of travel through Douro to Lakefield, as it will shorten the distance by four miles, at present often by the old road.

Mr. Adam Scott is now making arrangements to build a grist mill at the Old Point, and has purchased land for the purpose.

Mr. James R. Kearney keeps hotel at the Point, and has excellent accomodation for such a new place, and he will be found most obliging and kind to all favoring him with their patronage. His house is just at the junction of the Burleigh road and the road to the village. Mr. Cornelius Young also keeps hotel at the Point.

The Steamer "Skippawa" had a large excursion party on board that day also, bound for Julien's Landing. The 46th Battalion Band, Mr. Philp, Bandmaster, accompanied the party from Port Hope, and were liberal with their enlivening music. This band is acknowledged one of the best in the Dominion. The party arrived in Town about 10 o'clock, and the band proceeded to the Huffman House, discoursing sweet music.

THE COBOURG RAILWAY.

Messrs. Fairbairn, W. B. Read, Mr. Petrie, and Mr. J. Graham, a deputation from Bobcaygeon, and several citizens of Peterborough, Col. Chamblis and Mr. Armour of the Cobourg Railway and Mining Company met on Tuesday at two o'clok in the Council Chamber. Mayor Cox in the Chair. The Mayor explained that during last week, the gentlemen from Bobcaygeon had met him and a few others of the Town, and they had a talk over holding a joint meeting of all the parties interested, the Mayor had telegraphed to Col. Chamblin, and the meeting on Tuesday was the result.

Mr. Fairbairn was asked to address the meeting, and he did so honestly, and fairly. He stated, that they at Bobcaygeon were anxious to get a road to their place. And to this end they were willing to tax themselves to the highest the law would allow them. They were willing to vote that sum, say, $23,000, willingly, and at once if they could thereby get a road. They had (he said) been misled a little imagining, at one time that so many were looking for charters to their village, they would get a road without money, but in this they found themselves deceived, They were now looking to Peterborough and the Cobourg Company to assist them. And he hoped to be successful.

Mr. Read followed, also referring to their desire for a road. He admitted he had not been friendly to the Cobourg Road on account of the Rice Lake bridge and his doubts that it could not be made secure. He was now persuaded that it could be made safe, and he was willing to do all in his power to aid that road in getting an extension to their Village, and he knew they would be willing to grant $25,000. He thought it was to the interest of Peterborough to assist, as the Toronto roads were going in and would take the trade from this place.

Col. Chamblins then being asked to state of the intentions of the Company said he had no views to state, but that he were gladly answer any questions put to him.

Mr. E. Burnham asked then: If they Company would build the road to Bobcaygeon if the people pay them $25,000 in addition to the $20,000 from the Town now promised.

Col. Chamblins said he would state freely what he would say. He had already spent $161,000 in the construction of the road from this Town to Mud Lake, and $52,000 in Rice Lake, for this they did not expect a cent of return He had come when the crisis came, and his money was spent, and ask for the $40,000 from the Town, he was ready then to build, if he had got the money. But instead of meeting him fairly he was told his company was bankrupt, In answer to this he would state that his yearly business was $300,000, and never yet could a man come to him and say after the 15th of the month, that they owed him a cent, and he did not intend to owe any. He had spent all the Statute would allow, $10,000 a mile The company bought the bonds paid the money spent on the road. After spending over $210,000, they asked for $40,000 but did not get it, and hence the road remainded unfinished. Why ask for more road till this was finished to Mud Lake. He then referred to the way Peterboro had treated him, but said I will build the road. I will finish, it because I must, as soon as I get money, but not till then. If I get to Mud Lake, I will then, as soon as I get money, go to Bobcaygeon—but only when I get money.

The Mayor explained that he had always held that the request for $40,000 should have been granted, and he had done his best to that end, but the people would not vote for it.

Mr. Burnham said that he had supported the road northward in the interest of the town, and he thought it should still be promoted, but supposed nothing could be done till the Company took the matter up. The Town of Peterborough, he knew, had not used the Company right, as they ought to have got the money when asked, but it was impossible to carry it. The people had been played with, and so had the people of Bobcaygeon, expecting to get the road any way, but they must now wait their day.

Mr. Peter Hamilton was anxious that something should be done.

Mr. Armour then made a proposition that if the Company got $20,000 a mile of a bonus and the right of way, they would build the road, or they would give $10,000 a mile of bonus to Peterboro if she would undertake to build the road.

This offer led to some cross-firing on both sides, but ended in nothing. Nothing definite was arrived at.

JUST SO.

Newspaper publishers are just now trying to clear their skirts of the sots of a speculative firm lately decamped from Montreal, styling themselves CLEMOWNY, DANIELS, & Co. Now that they have left the country on a visit to Uncle Sam, and in leaving they have duped a few who were so anxious to make an honest bargain with safe profits, as the men who have gone. They expose themselves.

The advertisement sent to the press were much in the style of every week advertisements that may be seen in all the papers, offering splendid bargains cheap.

They sent them just about in the way that respectable merchants have sent their orders. Nothing uncommon therefore appeared in this mode of business. They, we understand, furnished their agents with small bills which were left at peoples dwellings, and these small bills held out inducements thus misled the curious would be purchasers, and in doing this a wrong has been inflicted on some honest people.

But there might be an evil in taking advantage of the honest mistake of people in their dealings, and it was the knowledge of this tendency in human nature that prompted the idea in Clemowny & Daniels' brain of making such offers in their bills, and of taking advantage of those who were caught by the bait.

It is astonishing to most mortals; now that the sharpers are gone, how many hands are clean? In true boy-fashion, each one is crying. "It wasn't me."

To mislead the public is wrong, and worthy of condemnation. But who is deceived by the man who offers goods below their real value.

The man who would offer a pair of boots, coat, &c. for less than half price would be accused of stealing the article even by the buyer, perhaps, but if a whole stock is offered not a word is said, "but people buy until nipped."

But how many hands are clean in respect advertising a trade worse in its effects than Clermont Daniels & Co? What does an honest man get in return for the money he pays for the strong drink that is advertised by many of those who now declare their hands clean of Clermont Daniels & Co?

No publisher considers himself responsible for what appears in his advertisement so long as nothing indecent is included; to hold them responsible in this particulcase is simply ceildish.

There are those who keep an article for sale which they are ashamed to advertize, yet if asked for can be obtained. This is making a distinction in moral responsibility without a difference.

The man who got "nipped" in a sharp attempt to obtain goods at prices ruinous to the seller, may be pitied on account of his pass, but not on account of excessive honesty; and he who desires to wipe his hands of Clermont Daniels & Co, should see if he is clean of the blood of victims sacrificed at the shrine of "Eau-De-Vie" "Usquebaugh or Glen-leevit" with advertisments of which their papers weekly abound.

THE MIDLAND RAILWAY.

The Port Hope Times says: Mr. Hugel will soon leave for England, to raise the money necessary to complete the road to Georgian Bay, or Midland. The Company has been at heavy expense in extending and altering the guage during the season, and Mr. Hugel appears determined to reach the waters of Lake Huron at an early date. He has made a tabular statement of the costs of altering the guage, from which the following items are selected:

Expense of altering track, and Material	$19,008 14
Altering Coaches and Cars	20,470 00
Rebuilding two Locomotives	12,000 00
Altering do	26,700 12
Loss on Locomotive rendered useless	$60,820 26
Loss on Cars rendered useless	18,681 24
	$39,439 02
Loss credit of Depreciated Fund	37,320 00
	$82,320 02
Total Expense and Loss	$160,000 28
First cost of Locomotives on the road	$179,200 00
Present value of do (estimated)	126,400 00
First cost of Cars, etc	$97,151 34
Present value do	191,550 00

There are on the road—

Passenger Cars	6
Baggage, etc., Cars	2
Platform Cars	170
Caboosses	10
Auxilliary Cars	1

The road is in good order, and all that is desired now is to complete the contemplated extension to Midland.

THE UNION SCHOOL.

Yesterday was a day not soon to be forgotten in the Collegiate Institute. It was the resignation of two Lady Teachers, viz.—Miss Borrowman and Miss Stratton, both deservedly popular with their coworkers, and regarded with affection by their pupils.

About three o'clock the pupils of the public school assembled in Miss Blais dell's room, where they presented Miss Stratton with a beautiful Silver Cake Basket and Silver Cream Jug, and the following address:—

DEAR MISS STRATTON,—Our meeting together to-day is one of sorrow and regret at your departure from our midst. This separation is one of those acts that materially detract from the pleasures of things here, but while it marsthe enjoyment of the present and while we regret it, we are glad to believe it its for your happiness.

As pupils, we are sorry that we have so often grieved you by being trouble some and neglectful, and we trust that your memory of all such things will be as short lived as our own, and that you may carry away with you only agreeable recollections of the Peterboro' School.

As teachers, we regret this leave taking for it deprives us of one who has become endeared to us by her amiable manners and faithful labors.

Therefore, in the name of the teachers, your past scholars and present pupils, we ask you to accept these tokens as a slight appreciation of the valuable services you have rendered, and hope that they may continually remind you that you leave behind friends who will sincerely rejoice in all the prosperity that the Giver of all good sees fit to bestow on you in your happy future.

After the reply, they adjourned to Miss Dowling's room, where Miss Borrowman was made the recipient of a beautiful Ice Pitcher, a Butter Cooler and other articles, and one of her pupils read the following address.

DEAR MISS BORROWMAN,—It is with feelings of sincere regret that we, pupils, and fellow-teachers, lately learned of your resignation and of your intention of giving up the onerous and responsible duties of teacher.

As pupils, we have had the pleasure of being under your kind and firm control in other departments, as well as in the one you are now resigning; and we are fully persuaded, that to your efficient and valuable services, our success, whatever it may be, in no small degree, is due.

As Teachers, we feel that in you we lose a faithful and zealous co-worker. We shall miss your valuable counsel and experience, and the the blank your departure will make in our social circle, is one that will not easily be filled. Some of us have with pleasure watched your upward and onward course through the various grades of our Public Schools to the honorable position which you to-day resign; and feel sure that in contrasting the past with the present you must experience no small pleasure in viewing the prosperity of this institution—a pleasure doubly enhanced by the thought that you have been a helper in this great and good work.

We, unitedly, ask your acceptance of the accompanying tokens of our affection and esteem, and pray that your future may be undisturbed and happy; that you may experience your confidence in all your associations; that he who controls all events, may direct this change for your greatest good in life, and for your happiness where changes and adieus are unknown.

To both the addresses suitable replies were made by the recipients. The Inspector made a few remarks in reference to the loss to the Institution on account of their resignation, when the rooms were dismissed.

THE CONSERVATIVES ON THE WAR-PATH.

The Conservatives held a great Convention in Toronto, during the week of the Show, thus taking advantage of the reduced fares, and a desire to go to the Exhibition. That they should hold a Yankee importation is ominous. When they can go this length, another defeat might lead to a second 1848 manifesto. We do not know what may come rather than remain in the cold shades of Opposition. They are making desperate efforts to form a platform on which to appear before the people in the next contest, and we cannot do better than give it to our readers. The planks are as follows:

A convention of the "Liberal Conservatives" of Ontario has been held in Toronto. On Wednesday the representatives of the Liberal press were excluded from the meeting, and yesterday morning they were also not allowed to enter the Temperance Hall, which was the favored building in which the gathering took place. In the afternoon, however, our reporter was allowed to attend the meeting. As might have been anticipated, most of the resolutions submitted were passed unanimously, but differences arose on others which were not allowed to appear publicly, and one was so strongly opposed that it had to be dropped, and thus does not appear in the appended list.

At three o'clock, Mr. Ellis, one of the vice-Presidents was voted into the chair, in the absence of Mr. Skead, the President.

Mr. Merrick, M. P. P., after lamenting the slim attendance, presented, on behalf of some committee a number of resolutions, which were as follows:—

1. That from Ontario's position as a Province under the scheme of Confederation, that which is chiefly needed in our Government is an honest and economical administration of affairs, and no necessity can exist for subordinating this consideration to mere party interests; and, considering the nature of our resources, the subsidy being a fixed amount, and the revenue accruing from Crown Lands and timber being subject to fluctuation and likely to decrease, it is of the utmost importance, as well as necessary in order to avoid direct taxation, that the financial affairs of Ontario should be managed with the strictest economy and prudence:

2. That the rapid and enormous increase of the expenditure which has taken place within the last three years, caused in the main by a subservicency to the exigencies of the party in power, is attended with great danger and should be carefully guarded against in the future.

3. That it is expedient to use great caution and prudence in the disposition of our timber wealth, as a different policy, in exhausting this source of revenue with needless rapidity, is not only ruinous to the country but also to the timber trade itself; and that it is inexpedient and improper for the Executive to sell the right to cut timber upon the Crown Lands of this Province en bloc by thousands of square miles without first having the property properly explored and surveyed, and submitting the scheme to the Legislature for ratification.

4. That the system of letting out the construction of public works without subjecting them to public competition, and without settled contracts or fixed prices, is not only contrary to law but facilitates corruption, jobbery and reckless expenditure of public money.

5. That it is subversive of the rights of Parliament for the Attorney-General to advocate and support the passage of a Bill through the House, thereby affirming its competence to deal with the measure, and then advise the Lieutenant-Governor to reserve it for the ascent of the Governor-General, such a step rendering nugatory the action of the Legislature thereon, and making of no account the expressed will of the majority of the people's representatives.

6. That the practice of exceeding the appropriations for particular service is not only improper, but an infringement on one of our most valuable constitutional safeguards.

7. That it is highly desirable to prevent entangling alliances between the Provincial and Dominion Governments, and that the distribution of either Provincial patronage or money for the purpose of influencing Dominion Elections is to be strongly condemned.

8. That we read with regret the opinion publicly expressed by a Cabinet Minister of our loyal Province of Ontario, that just so sure as we went into Confederation in '67, so sure as will we start as a distinct nation at no distant day; and we characterise such language as both incompatable with the sworn allegiance of a Minister of the Crown, and disdainful to the great body of our people, and that we will spare no effort to maintain British connection in its present integrity animated alike by a sincere attachment to the Sovereign, and by the opinion that the advocates of separation "at no distant day" are, wittingly or unwittingly, befriending annexation.

9. It is the undoubted right of the people, through their representatives in the Legislature, to supervise and control as well the departmental management of the Government as its policy; that in order to exercise this supervision efficiently, it is essential that all means of obtaining truthful information should be within the reach of investigating committees of those representatives, and that such committees should not be forced to accept the evidence of members of the Government and their subordinate without the same safeguard to truth, provided by solemn oath, required from other witnesses; and that the opposition of the Government during the last Session of the Legislative Assembly to, and the rejection by the House of, the following resolution:—

'That in the opinion of this House, it is the duty of a member of the Executive Council to submit to be examined under oath, when appearing before any Committee of this House empowered to examine witnesses under oath, and to give evidence in the same manner as any other witness; but that no such member of the Executive Council shall be examined respecting any matter or thing which by his oath of office he is required to keep secret and not divulge.'

is calculated to deprive the people of their just power of control, and is a dangerous assumption of rights and privileges by Government, totally unwarranted by the constitution nature, and functions, of the Local Government and Legislative Assemblies.

10. That, being called to deal with matters of Provincial interest, this Convention cannot separate without expressing an opinion upon a measure of so much consequence to Ontario as the proposed Treaty of Reciprocity with the United States, and while deprecating the consideration of so important a question from a party point of view, we nevertheless feel compelled to declare that many of its provisions are manifestly unfair to Canada, and are firm in the conviction that without very material changes the proposed Treaty should not be accepted by the Parliament of the Dominion.

11. That we cannot view without alarm the wide-spread system of corruption [so strikingly developed in the recent election trials] practised by the party which has extreme purity; and, believing that the same means will be used by the party in power at the next local elections, would urge that special efforts should be made to detect and punish bribery and corrupt practices of every kind.—Globe.

The different resolutions we propose discussing seriatim, and intend demonstrating the hollowness of the principles of the Rykert-Boultbee-faction We are fully persuaded that thousands of honest Conservatives are sick of the factious ravings of the quartette, and only require to see matters in their right light to join themselves to the ranks of Mr. Mowat.

CHEAP MONEY ORDERS.—Money orders for the sum of four dollars and under are now granted by all money order Post Offices in the Dominion at the low prese of two cents. By this means a cheap and safe mode, of transmitting small sums through the post offices is provided, which will no doubt be largely taken advantage of.

The Martini-Henry small-bore rifle is about to be issued to the whole of the infantry regiments of the line without any further delay. Armourers of special character are being constructed at the Royal Laboratory Department, Royal Arsenal, Woolwich; for this purpose. The number ordered is sufficient for the issue of 100,000 rifles.

MR. HAWKINS' SPEECH AT GLENCOE.

Mr. Hawkins said he was afraid the announcement made by the Chairman was not the very best introduction which he might have had to a meeting of Reformers. He believed, however, that it was incumbent upon him to explain his reasons for being present. He was one of those Reformers who in 1867 went in for the new order of things—went in for the carrying out of the great objects of Confederation. They were aware that at that time they had the sanction at some of their leaders for the course he had pursued. To say nothing with regard to the time at which such Reformers should have separated themselves from the Conservatives with whom they then went into coalition for the purpose of carrying out Confederation: he would say that he believed that the time had now come, and more especially Ontario, when all such Reformers should withdraw themselves from the connection which they made at that time, and become again united with their old friends. (Cheers.) They had heard the able exposition of the financial affairs of the Province which had been given by the Commissioner of Public Works. Every man in that assembly must be convinced that Mr. Fraser was thoroughly in earnest in what he had said, and yet to what, he was sorry to say, to the disgrace of this Province, was the Opposition reduced. That opposition was based on such trival, paltry grounds as the expenditure of $7 for a picture, of which Mr. McKellar was supposed to be the purchaser, though the fact turned out to be that Mr. Sandfield Macdonald himself purchased the celebrated picture. (Laughter.) He referred to the manner in which that subject had been discussed, and "Little Mac——" somebody buried as depicted in the Toronto comic paper the other day. After the meeting at Walkertown his (Mr. Hawkins') respect for Mr. McKellar went up a hundred per cent. when he saw the way in which he had defended himself against the notorious attacks which had been made on him for a series of years. He insisted the trumpery charges having reference to the "canoe couch," the card table, and similar matters, in the discussion of which the time of the country had been wasted, and enough money incurred to pay for the articles complained of a hundred times over. (Cheers.) When they saw the great improvement which was taking place in the condition of the Province, they could not expect that the expenditure of money should remain stationery. From 1867 to 1871 there has been an increase of expenditure from year to year under Mr. Sandfield Macdonald, and when the result of increased expenditure was the opening up of our rear territories, the construction of colonization roads, the building of railroads, the draining of swamp lands, and similar improvements, they must admit that the increase was right and proper. This increased development had led to an increase in the revenue and in the prosperity of the people. (Cheers.) He believed the Opposition had now degenerated into the merest factiousness (hear, hear)—so that it was no longer entitled to the name of an Opposition, such as they understood an Opposition to be under British institutions. In regard to the opposition to the present Government, he believed they were fast degenerating into the state of affairs in Great Britain a hundred years since, when there was nothing but libelling, slandering and personal villification. He thought the time had come to purify their language and their actions, the time when they should demand that this traducing of their public men and of the credit of the Province should be stopped. The credit of a nation was as delicate as that of an individual, and if they destroyed the fair reputation of their public men they could not appear to advantage in the eyes of British statesmen? (Cheers.) He believed the Reform party was about to enter upon a new and greater field even than that which they had conquered during the past three years of their administration of the affairs of the Province. (Cheers.) The Conservatives had placarded the walls of Toronto with the cry of "Down with the Organized Hypocrisy!" Was this the language to apply to their friends and neighbors? Under our system of Goverment it was absolutely necessary to have two parties; but was it necessary for one party to cast such vile epithets in the faces of the other? He could find no ground on which to stand with the Opposition but such trival matters as the furnishing of some of the apartments in Toronto, and paying $200 for a holiday to some of the workmen in the country. (Cheers.) Even if the then Opposition had opposed certain measures of Sandfield Macdonald's which they afterwards found for the benefit of the country, it would have been very unreasonable in them under those circumstances not to carry them out. But it was not because Sandfield introduced these beneficial measures that they opposed him but because he took liberties with the Constitution In regard to the appropriation of the million and a half for railways. As soon as the Reformers were called to take office by the will of the people, they found that, true to their promise, they rectified the thing which they had complained of, and, that accomplished, carried the railway aid scheme to lengths which Sandfield had not contemplated, but which the country approved of. The Government possessed the confidence of the people, who believed that they were honestly endeavouring to carry out the principles of reform. As soon as their public men did what was contrary to the principles of their party, Reformers would vote them out of office as they had done before. (Cheers.) He felt thoroughly satisfied with the statement of the Commissioner, and advised his hearers to condemn the gentlemen who were coming there on Friday, if they found them deviating from the strict letter of truth. If, however, they could prove to the satisfaction of the electors that their representations were true, that the surplus left to an incoming Government would amount to only $18, then the Government would deserve to be condemned. But if it were, as had been stated, that the moneys of the country had been husbanded, that there had been a large increase in the income of the Province notwithstanding the large amounts which had been laid out, that the Government could show valuable assets in the shape of public works, then the representations of the Opposition were wilfully false and incorrect. Only recently the leading organ of the Opposition had published what purported to be a fair statement of the affairs of the Province which showed the Province to be on the verge of bankruptcy. The answer was prompt, showing that, while the Opposition were keeping so strict an account of every dollar that was being spent, they were giving the Government no credit whatever for the great public works which they had given to the country, nor for the assets which remained to them. So long as they were satisfied that their affairs were being administered honestly and justly, it was their duty to sustain the Government in the great work they had entered upon. It might very well be that after being kept out in the cold shades of Opposition for so many years they might not at first be able to make the governmental machine run with the same smoothness as their predecessors, but they were perfectly convinced that both in Toronto and Ottawa the Government were determined to purge public affairs of all existing abuses They found that the law, which had been obtained mainly through the advocacy of the hon. Edward Blake, in regard to elections was being administered with rigid severity. The sword was falling without fear, favor or affection in every quarter where corruption had been used, and only in this way could the country be purged from the corruption which had eaten into the core of our electoral system and had been fostered by the late Dominion Government. As a citizen of Ontario he objected to this Province being made a stepping stone to power in the Dominion. He was convinced that the object of the Opposition was to acquire power in Ontario chiefly that they might use it as an engine by which to gain power at Ottawa. The present Ontario Government seemed desirous to manage our affairs without reference to the Dominion Government, and he had observed that Mr. Fraser had scarcely referred to the Dominion affairs in his speech. He had no doubt that if they could show that they had administered public affairs honestly, the present Ontario Government would continue for many years to come; the affairs of this Province were in such a condition that the time is fast approaching, in consequence of the Pacific question, the hands of the Ottawa Government so occupied that they would run into debt (Cheers.) All sorts of Reformers, who had left the Reform party up to 1867, and who, though not actually in accord with them since that time, had been able to command their respect and confidence, he believed that it was incumbent upon him as a man who none but Reform principles in the conduct of the affairs of the country, to again unite himself with the party from which he had been temporarily separated. (Cheers.) This he should do heartily and thoroughly, and he believed that all old Reformers who were now in the Opposition ranks would come to the same conclusion if they considered the state of public affairs dispassionately. (Cheers.) He had been present at the firing of the last gun when the political sun of Sir John McDonald went down forever in the winding up of the nefarious Pacific Scandal transaction. From a mistaken sense of honor, from a feeling that it was dishonorable to desert a man in an hour of misfortune, he had followed a fallen man until the firing of the last gun in North Huron, when his sun went down forever. He did not say that the Opposition would never again never again get into power, but if they did he believed it would be under the leadership of very different men from those who were at present seeking the suffrages of the people, and endeavoring to secure the reins of power in this Province mainly with a view to again secure possession of power in the larger sphere of the Dominion. (Cheers.) He thanked them sincerely for the attention they had paid to his remarks. He felt it to be an honor to be again standing before a Reform audience. (Cheers.) He felt he had done what every man who valued his honor should do—when he felt himself in a wrong position, take the course which commended itself to his judgement and his conscience. (Loud cheers.)

APPALLING DISASTER.

The Granite Mills, at Fall River, Massachusett's, were burned last Saturday morning. Mills Nos. 1 and 2 of the Granite Works, had been running about 20 minutes when the operatives in No. 1, which is an old mill, were startled with the cry of fire, and the escape of smoke from the fourth story. On this, next to the upper floor, which was the male warp spinning department, there were nearly 100 girls at work, under a male overseer. On the upper floor, the fifth, about 30 girls were employed spooling and warping cotton. These were the youngest of the operatives. While the alarm the flames seemed to leap up to this attic, coming from the windows below, and to the terror of all, up the great tower to the centre of the building, in which were all the stairs communicating with each story. They rushed to the windows at the south gable end, but they were nearly 90 feet from the ground and they dared not jump. Cotton ropes were put for them to slide down by, and some took this chance, but in the effort some met with death or injury, for so sooner would the rope be lowered before there was a rush for it from the story below; too many would take hold of the rope which would part, and all clinging to it would come down in a bunch. The greatest consternation was felt by the people on the streets, who had assembled in immense numbers, and their cries and acts did not help to compose the mill hands. The disciplined firemen and police men, as soon as they arrived in sufficient numbers, worked with a will and to advantage in the efforts to save the girls. Some very brave acts were performed, and it is said that several firemen—the number is given as four—gave their lives in this humane endeavor.

LIBEL SUITS.

If in New York the Beecher Scandal case has been rife of libel suits, Montreal is fast following in the wake. The Witness has no less than three libel suits on hand, the Gazette one, and the Star another. The latter paper, however, we believe, will be safe, as the party suing, it is stated, has run off. The peculiar nature of the Witness libels we are not acquainted with, but from the little we have learned, the parties suing, we should hope, will receive no encouragement from the verdict of the jury, unless indeed, the intelligence of the jury below mediocrity, a matter of frequent occurrence, unfortunately, in Montreal.

The case of the Gazette is different from all the others. The party libelled is a political oppodent—the Hon. Mr. Huntington, against whom the virulent shafts of the Gazette have been most incessantly launched ever since Mr. Huntington brought to light the corruption and treachery of Sir John McDonald. The opinion we formed on reading the libellous article was far from creditable to the Gazette. The article charged the Hon. gentleman with "wicked frauds" in connection with a copper company, and the fact that one of the parties concerned with Mr. Huntington was a Tory, and that one word of reproach was cast at this gentleman, was the more glaring in consequence of a libel being now pending in relation to the said copper company, the article being a clear and one sided prejudging of the case. We are sorry to see the Gazette in its present position.—Recorder.

MAN FOUND DEAD.—A man named Robt Ward was found dead in a shanty near the Grand Trunk station on the evening of the 17th inst., with marks of violence on his person. Information was laid before Dr. Campbell, Coroner, who summoned a jury for 10 o'clock next day. Dr. Scott acted as medical witness and examined the body. The jury sat all day except a short adjournment for refreshments. A large number of witnesses were called and the evidence was somewhat contradictory. Nothing came out that the jury considered justified them in committing any person for trail, and at six o'clock the evidence having been all in they brought in the verdict "that the deceased came to his death from disease. Cause unknown." During the evening and next day a man named Taylor the keeper of the tank below the station, stated that he knew a good deal about it, but had been afraid to come before the Coroner's Court for fear of a man named Torrance, who was found in the house. Information was then laid before Mr. John Hattie J.P., Mr. Benson Reeve and Mr. Young J.P. who ordered the arrest of Torrance. Mrs. Monaghan the woman he lives with and Mrs. Baird wife of deceased and Mr. Taylor's evidence committed all three for trial, and they are now in Goderich Gaol along with a girl named Mary Garrity whose also in the adjoining hotel to the station. The latter, however, is retained as witness, having failed to find bail. In the meantime, accordance with the jurable advice of the County Crown Attorney the body of the deceased has been raised and Dr. Scott, under the direction of Dr. Campbell, has made a post mortem examination.—Stratford Beacon

ACCIDENT.—Early Monday morning an accident occurred to Mr. George Gordon of Jud a Galt whilst he was shooting wild fowl in the eastern marshes. It appears that Mr Galt had taken up his position previous to firing at some wild ducks when two men who regularly hunt there for game came up, knowing the place was favorable for getting a good shot took up their position too close to Mr Galt. Almost immediately they had a wild duck got on the wing and fired when the two men and Mr. Galt. They blazed away at the bird, and unfortunately a shot struck Mr. galt in the left side some of the shot also struck Mr Galt in the side, tearing his clothing, but no other serious injury was done. Mr. Galt was taken home and attended to by the family doctor, who stated that the wounds in the injured eye were destroyed. The occurrence was purely accidental although there is some blame attached to the party who fired the shot seeing that Mr. Galt was only about fifty yards distant and was in a direct line with the bird.

DIED.

Montreal House.

1874. 1874.
October.

It affords us much pleasure to be able to say that our Stock this Fall is Larger, much more Varied, and more Attractive than ever before. Our facilities for showing our goods are likewise much better than formerly.

Every branch of our trade has been steadily improving for the last five years, and now we think that for quality and price we cannot be excelled in Peterboro.

Our Clothing trade is developing into something enormous. When we say that we give employment to about twice as many hands in this department as any other house in town, we simply state a fact.

Be sure when in town to see our Readymade Clothing, especially our Over Coats.

In Wincys, Prints, Lustres, Merinos, Shawls Mantles, etc., we are showing good styles and at close prices. In our Stock too you will find a good assortment of Blankets, Quilts, Buffalo Robes, Hats, Furs, etc.

We scarcely need draw attention to our Teas. They are already widely known and deservedly popular.

Hoping to be favored with a call.

This firm has a splendid stock of the most fashionable dress, Silks, Carpets, Cloths and Millinery. The firm buy in the best markets on favourable terms and are able to do business to the satisfaction of all who favour them with an examination of their stock.

Libel Cases.

The Montreal Witness has three libel cases on hand for $25.000 each; the Montreal Gazette one for $100,000; the Mail several; the National has one, and several other papers have cases likely to come off this fall. A lively time this will be for newspaper men.

Constabulary.

As the time of fruit stealing is now here, it is proper to remind owners of gardens and orchards that by a law now in force every fruit grower is made his own constable, and can arrest and take before the Mayor or any justice of the peace any fruit thief on his premises. The penalty is fine and imprisonment.

The Americans Win.

The Rifle Match between the Irish rifle team and the Americans, was won by the Americans by three points. When the last shot but one was fired, take Irish team was one point ahead, the American who fired the last shot made four points, thes winning for the Americans by three points. Not much to boast of.

Hard Cases.

A blind man and a woman accompanyist, are now in town asking alms, they are hard cases, they get drunk and have evil tongues. Food they might get, but any money they receive will go for whiskey. The woman is fearfully whiskeyfied, and the old man is celebrated for the vileness of his vocabulary.

Fires.

The dwelling of Mr. Geo Aldridge, on McDonell street, was destroyed by fire on Thursday last, supposed to have caught from a passing locomotive on the Lakefield Railway. Partially insured.

Lennoxville has had an extensive fire. The greater part of the village has been dkstroyed. Total loss about $100,000.

The Contracts.

For building the telegraph line along the proposed Pacific Railway have been let. Mr. Fuller undertakes to build the portion from Fort Pelly to Fort Edmonton for $200,000 without maintenance. Mr. Bernard, of British Columbia, will build the continuation of the line on that Province for $490,000 including maintenance.

Improved Sheep.

Mr. Geo. Webber has just brought home from the Ontario Exhibition, a shearling ram from the fold of Adam Oliver Esq., of Arau Bank, County of Perth, for which he paid $100. The animal is said to be a superior one. Mr. Webber has long been noted for his excellent breed of sheep, and this animal will add to the fame of his flock.

Notice.

Macdonald & Elder have received a very large stock of general Dry Goods this season, in which they have some special lines; also a bankrupt stock, amounting to $5,000, principly in Gents' Furnishings. This is a rare chance for gentlemen, as well as for ladies. As the farmers have reaped a good harvest this season, we hope the enterprising firm of Macdonald & Elder, with their large and well selected stock, will do likewise.

Cobourg Railroad.

Messrs. Fairbain, Reeve of Verlam, W. B. Read merchant, Graham and others, had an informal meeting with the Mayor and other citizens on Friday last. The object was to arrange for a meeting to see what can be done to secure the extension of the road to that village. There was not a dissentent opinion as to the desirability to have the extension completed, at least to Bobcaygeon, as soon as possible, and Messrs. Col. Chambliss and Armour were telegraphed to to find out when a regular meeting could be held in Peterborough.

Spiritualism.

A painful conclusion to a spiritualistic seance occurred lately in Toronto. It appears the medium's trick consisted in sketching faces of supposed spirits on the wall with phosphorus, and while in this act the substance had ignited. In the excitement of the moment he had attempted to extinguish the flame by placing his hands upon it, and as a consequence his palms and fingers were terribly burned. Another man named Walker was also severely burned and the small audience nearly suffocated. The medium must nothave been aware of the combustible nature of phosphorus.

Township of Ennismore.

The people and parents of the Beckhorn public school, and those of the school in Section No. 10, Smith, held a union picnic on Friday. Berry were distributed in abundance, and they were freely disposed of, as fun and play produce a free appetite generally. After the disposal of the good things, the children sang several pieces led by the teachers, Mr. Beckett and Miss Orr, who are both deservedly popular with parents and pupils. All present were highly pleased with the day's amusement.—Com.

Omemee.

The Rev. W. W. Jones, Episcopalian, is about removing to Toronto, he having received the appointment to the Parish of Grace Church in that city. The Ritualistic tendency of some of the ministers of Toronto has caused a breach between them and many of their parishioners. This has led to a demand on the part of the people for a minister free from what they consider a Romanizing tendency, and the choice of the people fell on Mr. Jones. He is considered a good preacher, and has done a great deal to endear himself to his people in Omemee, and Mr. Jones is not likely to glide into ritualism as he was for many years a minister of the Baptist Church, and only went over to the Church of England a short time previously to his going to Emily.

Cornwall.

Dr. Bergin and A. F. McDonald are again in the field for popular favor at the election to follow the unseating of Mr. McDonald. The Gazette is confident of Dr. Bergin's success, while Mr. McDonald's friends are sanguine of his success. Dr. Bergin is a Reformer; Mr. McDonald promised last contest to support Mr. McKenzie, and we suppose will do so again. He is a brother to John Sandfield and also to the present Postmaster-General. On account of the money spent last time Mr. McDonald's chances are strong, as those who voted for pay can hardly go back now, but purchased sympathy is not explained. Our sympathies are with Dr. Bergin—he is a tried Reformer, and one who stuck by the party in their darkest days, and who deserves their support now.

Conversazione.

The Conversazione on Monday evening in aid of the St. Andrew's Church Sabbath school, was one of the best of the season. The house was a good one for so unfavorable an evening. The ladies and gentlemen on the programme performed their parts as well as if the night had been finer. The Misses Edmison and Hutton are beautiful players for their age. Mrs. Fowler is still a favorite, and was encored every time she appeared. Mrs. Campbell and Miss McFarlane were also well received. The Reading of Rev. Mr. McDonnel, and indeed of all those who gave readings, were well selected; to refer to any one particularly might appear invidious. The name of Mr. T. Brown, and old Peterboro' favorite, was received with great eclat; all his pieces were beautifully rendered. Mr. Gallelly is so well and favorably known in Peterboro' that we have only to say that he always performed his part at concerts well. Mrs. Post presided at the piano, and added materially to the pleasure of the evening. In a pecuniary sense the Conversazione was a success, and we are glad to be able to state that a contract for a suitable building will be given out in a few days.

THE WEST NORTHUMBERLAND ELECTION TRIAL.

As announced last week Mr. Kerr gave up his seat, having learned that an agent used about $30 to $40 illegally. The Conservatives still pursed him, hoping to prove personal bribery against him, but signally failed. They appear to have got hold of one MaLachlan, who swore that he had been paid money, but his evidence was of such a nature that Mr. Kerr's counsel asked that McLachlan be committed for trial for perjury. No act of personal bribery was proved, on the contrary, Mr. Kerr is free to become a candidate again, when he will be elected by a large majority. The cry about lavish expenditure seems to be a false one, as the whole fund was only some $1,500 to $1,600, of which Mr. Kerr paid about $250. It is true that he has been unseated by tho over zeal of a friend, but Mr. Cockburn did not claim his seat. The law as now on the statute book is a strict one, and will, if carried out as our judges have commenced, do much to prevent the evil practices which has corrupted the people. We rejoice in every case where members are being unseated for the use of money illegally spent, although it may be a harship to the member to suffer for the sins of an agent, but better that he suffer than that the evil be allowed to continue.

Waterloo Vetrans.

The following Royal Warrant was issued in February last:—Victoria R. Whereas, it has been represented that men who have served in our wars in and prior to the year 1815, are often living without any settled or sufficient means of support, and that by reason of wounds age or infirmity, they are unable to earn anything towards their support, our will and pleasure is that our Commissioners of Chelsea Hospital shall have power (as and if they see fit) to award pensions or increased provisions to such persons as aforesaid provided the pension shall not in the total amount awarded exceed for each man 1s. 6d. per day, By Her Majesty's Command,

GATHORNE HARDY,

If this may meet the eye of any one who fought in Waterloo in 1815 or previously, and who are in pressing circumstances, if they apply at the proper quarters they will find they are not forgotten. We know of at least one case in this town that has the promise of 1s. 3d sterling a day during the remainder of his life; others there may be to whom a like sum would add a few comforts in their old age.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR:—I find that in some way, by mistake of the printer I believe, the Canadian was added to the ROYAL Insurance Company in my card, last week. As I do not wish it to be inferred that I was insured in any Company but the Royal, I ask to have this inserted. Geo. A. Cox, Esq., is the popular Agent for the Royal, and Mr. Robert Fairbairn settled with me, and I do not wish the honor due to them to be transferred to any other person or persons. Mr. Fairbairn who transacted the business with me, acted in the most honorable and straightforward manner, and to them and the Royal Insurance Company, I return my sincere thanks.

I am,
Yours truly,
H. LeBRUN.

Peterboro, Sept. 28th, 1874.

CATHOLIC NEWS.

Mr. John Hutchinson, of Cobourg, was drowned in Rice Lake, on Thursday last. His remains were brought home on Friday, and interred on Sunday. He leaves a wife and seven children. We understand that W. Montgomery was with him in the canoe when it upset; Montgomery swam to shore, only a short distance, but Neith sank to rise no more.

SOUTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL.

The Municipal Council of the Township of South Monaghan met in the Council Chamber, Centreville, on Monday the 14th day of September, 1874, pursuant to a call from the Reeve, at 10 o'clock, a. m. Members all present—the Reeve in the Chair.

The Minutes of last meeting were read and on motion were received.

Several accounts were presented by the Clerk and Reeve for gravel, &c., which on motion were laid over for further consideration.

John Waterman presented By-law No. 188 being a By-law for buying and collecting rate or rates on the whole of the rateable property of this Township.

On motion By-law 188 was read a first time, when Council adjourned for dinner.

The Council resumed:

R. Parker presented an account for lumber.—Laid over.

Wm. Jewison was heard with regard to a sheep killed by dogs. On being sworn he deposed, that he had lost a lamb, which, to the best of his knowledge, was killed by dogs. It was valued at $2.10 for his loss, two-thirds of which was allowed.

J. W. Hall presented an account of gravel from Joseph Fisher.—Laid over.

Moved by R. Pue, seconded by J. Waterman,—That By-law 188 be now read a second time in Committee of the whole, and that the Reeve do leave the Chair.—Carried.

R. Pue in the Chair.

Moved by J. Waterman, seconded by J. Barnard,—That a rate of three mills on the dollar be levied on all the rateable property of this Township.

Moved in amendment by Wm. Rutherford, seconded by J. Wood,—That a rate of three and one-half mills be levied on the whole of the rateable property of this Township.—Amendment carried.

The Chairman reported the second reading of By law No. 188 with blanks filled up. The Committee arose. The Reeve resumed the Chair.

By-law No. 188 read a third time, passed and signed.

Moved by J. Waterman, seconded by Wm. Rutherford,—That Richard Nurse, senr., be refunded the money paid by him for road allowances illegally bought by him and sold again by this Council.—Carried.

Moved by R. Pue, seconded by J. Waterman,—That the unperformed labor appearing on the Path Masters list be entered on the Collector's Roll and collected by him when he collects the other rates.—

Moved by Wm. Rutherford, seconded by R. Pue,—That the Reeve do issue his order on the Treasurer for the following amounts, viz.: J. C. Barnard, gravel, $7.50; J. Waterman, widening road, $17; Clerk, 4 months salary, $20; J. Stratton, printing, $8.00; A. Finnis, gravel, $10.55; J. Fisher, gravel, $8.50; Wm. Emberson, gravel, $2.50; R. Nurse, senr., refunded $5 000; S. Dyell, gravel and bridges, $17.50; R. Parker, plank, $31.50; Councillors wages for one day, $10.00; S. Stratton, plank, $31.50; Inspecting road for crossway, $3.00; Wm. Jewison, loss for sheep, $1.40; Wm. Wood, plank and cedar, $3.00.—Carried.

Moved by R. Pue, and seconded by J. Wood,—That Wm. Rutherford be appointed a commission to build a bridge across the creek on Con. 3rd, between lots 4 and 5; the bridge to be similar to the one in Clark's swamp.—Carried.

Moved by R. Pue, and seconded by Wm. Rutherford,—That this Council do now adjourn till the Reeve see fit to call them together.—Carried.

JOHN A. TURNBULL,
T. Clerk.

ASPHODEL COUNCIL.

The municipal council of this township met on the 12th instant. All the members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion of J. P. Brown, seconded by T. Rorke the clerk was instructed to send a copy of the list of heads of families in the village of Hastings as shown on the assessment roll on the 1st of April, 1871, to the clerk of the village of Hastings, for the purpose of obtaining the census at that time.

On motion, Wm. H. Stephenson got an order on the treasurer for $4, for goods furnished to widow Pearson.

On motion, J. J. Scott got the sum of $12 for keeping widow Pearson.

On motion, the Secretary of the N. H. & P. School got an order on the treasurer for $37 50, being half of caretaker's salary for 1874.

On motion, the trustees of the Norwood H. & P. School got the sum of $21 29 cts., balance one half the cost of repairs to town hall in 1873 over order given to Thomas Buck for $50, for lumber as per agreement in 1873.

On motion, John Breckenridge got an order on the treasurer for $21 08, for lumber and repairing Welbeck bridge.

A by-law to authorize the trustees of public school section No. 7 of Asphodel to borrow the sum of $274 13, for the repairs of the school house in the said section, received its several readings.

It was moved by J. P. Brown, seconded by Thomas Hawson, that a by-law opening a new road across the north part of lot No 10 in the 3rd concession, be not passed at this meeting, but that it passed on Saturday, the day of October, and that the passing of the same be advertised in the "Review" newspaper for two weeks. Carried.

The following commissioners were appointed to expend the surplus equivalent—J. P. Brown on the line between lots 18 and 16, from the concession line between 9 and 9 east.

Dennis Harley on the line between lots 15 and 16 from Norwood west to boundary of Otonabee.

Thos Howson on the concession between the 8th and 9th, on Hastings road and from Norwood east to the boundary between Asphodel and Dummer, on Belmont road.

J. B. Brown on the boundary line between Asphodel and Dummer.

Messrs Rorke, Harley and R. E. Birdsall on the Westwood road from concession line between 6 and 7.

The Council adjourned till the 2nd Saturday in October.

ADVERTISING.—A. T. Stewart, the Merchant Prince of New York, expends every year in advertising $500,000. This certainly ought to be a sufficient answer to many well meaning people who don't advertise because they are already well enough known. Probably the business of no man in the Union is better understood by the people than that of A. T. Stewart yet such a foolish statement as it is not necessary for him to continue advertising on that account, is never allowed to pass his lips. In fact his advertising account is growing year by year and just as that enlarges so extends his [illegible] was [illegible] up and [illegible] at on.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Great Female Remedy.

Job Moses' Periodical Pills.

This invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excess and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

MARRIED LADIES.

It is peculiarly suited. It will in a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity.

To all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affection, Pains in the Back and Limbs, on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, and Whites, the pills will affect a cure when all other means have failed, and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions in the pamphlet around each package, which should be carefully preserved.

$1.00 and 12½ cents for postage, enclosed to Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., general agents for the Dominion, will ensure a bottle containing over 50 pill, by return mail.

Sold in Peterboro by Dr. Taylor, A. W. Kempt, W. S. Johnston, Dr. McCamus, Ormond & Walsh. In Keene by A. Campbell, Campbell McNeil & Co. U. Britton, Lindsay, and all Medicine Dealers.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS' ECLELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity been back at eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all the agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H. Cole, of Iona, writes, "please forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out; it can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Riverton, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single care of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operation, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every house, bold and is last superceding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, bilious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price 75 cents per bottle.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS

BY PAINTING YOUR ROOF WITH

Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint

You not only preserve your Shingles, but render your roof both

FIRE and WATER PROOF.

READ THE FOLLOWING TESTIMONIALS:—

Office of Baston & Currier, Ottawa Steam Mills, Ottawa, September 7th, 1874.

To Mr. J. SHEPHERD, Painter, &c., Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in testifying to the excellence Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint, with which you coated our mills and other buildings, at Hull. As a preventive against accident by fire, we consider it superior to any other, and would not now be without it for double its cost.

Truly yours,
BATSON & CURRIER.

Ottawa, September 8th, 1874.

Mr. JOHN SHEPHERD, Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—I have great pleasure in testifying that Gline's Patent Slate Paint, with which you painted the roofs of some outbuildings belonging to the Sparks Estate, has given every satisfaction, and I believe it is superior to any other preparation now in use. It appears to harden the shingles almost equal to slate, and must be a great preventitive of fire.

Yours, &c.,
CHAS. MAGEE.

Ottawa, September 8th, 1874.

To whom it may concern.

After having used Glines Patent Slate Roofing Paint on all our roofs, we have much pleasure in recommending it as the best roofing paint we know of for painting roofs of every description. It is without an equal for shingle roofs, as it stops all leaks, preserves the shingles, and makes the roof fire-proof. We would not be without it on our roofs for three times its cost.

T. W. CURRIER & Co.

Ottawa, August 30th, 1874.

Mr. J. SHEPHEED.

Dear Sir,—In answer to your enquiry as to how I like my roofs since you gave them such a thorough coating of the Patent Slate Composition Paint, I beg to say that I would not be without it for three times the cost, as I can sleep now without fear of any burning shingles or sparks from fires doing me any harm, and I consider that every man who wishes to preserve his property should give it a coat of the Patent Slate Paint either through you or some other equally good painter.

Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM GREEN.

Ottawa, September 12th, 1874.

Mr. JOHN SHEPHERD.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in testifying to Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint, with which you painted my roofs, and would say that it has more than met my expectations, being all that you represented it, and now would recommend it to the confidence of the public.

HUGH MASON.

Toronto, June 8th, 1874.

To Messrs. S. A. RUSSELL & Co., Agents, New York Slate Roofing Co. Toronto.

Gentlemen,—We have used your Slate Paint on our roof, and it gives perfect satisfaction, and we deem it superior to anything ever offered to the public in the way of paint, especially for protection against damage from fire and water.

TOO OLD FOR KISSES.

BY R. H. STODDARD.

My uncle Philip, hale old man,
Has children by the dozen;
Tom, Ned, and Jack, and Kate and Ann—
How many call me "cousin?"
Good boys and girls, the best one sees:
I love her on my shoulder;
A little bud of loveliness
That never should grow older!
Her eyes had such a pleading way,
They seemed to say, "Don't strike me?"
Then, growing bold, another day,
"I mean to make you like me."
I liked my cousin, early, late,
Who liked me little misses:
She used to meet me at the gate,
Just old enough for kisses!

That was, I think, three years ago—
Before I went to college:
I learned one thing there—how to row,
A healthy sort of knowledge.
When I was plucked—we won the race—
And all was at an end there,
I thought of Uncle Philip's place,
And every country friend there.
My cousin met me at the gate;
She looked five, ten years older—
A tall young woman, still, sedate,
With manners sober, colder.
She gave her hand with stately pride.
"Why, what a greeting this is!
You used to kiss me." She replied,
"I am too old for kisses."

I loved, I love my cousin Bess:
She's always in my mind now;
A full-blown bud of loveliness—
The rose of womankind now!
She must have suitors; old and young
Must bow their heads before her;
Vows must be made and songs be sung
By many a mad adorer!
But I must win her; she must give
To me her youth and beauty;
And I to love her while I live
Will be my happy duty;
For she will love me soon or late,
And be my bliss of blisses,
Will come to meet me at the gate,
Nor be too old for kisses!

"My dear boy," said a fond aunt to a very fast living nephew, "don't you know that in leading this irregular life you are shortening your days?" "It's quite possible that I may be shortening my days, but then look how I lengthen my nights," was the reply.

The most diabolical pun ever invented was perpetrated by a very harmless sort of person the other evening. A verdant at a Troy hotel left his young wife in his room Sunday evening and went down to ask the clerk what time he lighted up. "Well," said the accommodating clerk with a smile, "we usually light up at nine o'clock, but to accommodate you I'll light up immediately." He then sent a bell boy to the room of the verdant to light the gas. The young man from the country was profuse in his thanks, the would'n't go back to his wife until and clerk accepted a cigar.

"John, wouldn't it be a good plan for you to have a good stubscythe here and be cutting a few bushes along the fence while the horse is resting a short time?" "Wouldn't it be well, sir," said John, "for you to have a tub of potatoes in the pulpit, and when they are singing, peel em' awhile to be ready for the pot."

The Time When Ministers First Aspired to the Holy Prefix of "Rev."

The Rev. Brooks Lambert writes to the London Times: The registers of the parish of Tamworth contain some interesting particulars as to local usage. These registers date back from the reign of Philip and Mary, 1546. The first title given in them to a clergyman is the old title. "Sir," with which Shakespeare has made us familiar. In May 1557, we have an entry, "Sir Peter Stringer, cumate." The clergyman who succeeded him is called "Sir Richard Walker," but there are other contemporaneous entries, such as "necerdos," "clericus," "preascher," and "verbi minister." These latter seem to have obtained till in King James' reign, we have the prefix, "Master," which, as we know was applied to the great divine, Master Hooker, and this practice seems by our registers to have been continued through the commonwealth, though 'minister of the gospel" is sometimes, added. We have, however, in 1657, the first use of the word "reverend," evidently in this case as a special mark of respect, not as formal title. On "11th of June, 1658, we buried our Reverend Pastor Master. Thos. Blake, Thomas Blake, minister of Tamworth.' In 1693 we have a clergyman by the name of Samuel Collins. I had noticed with curiosity, an erasure before his name in each of the casualties, baptismal of funeral, recorded in our register. At last, in 1701, I was lucky enough to find an unerased entry, and it appears that the obnoxious word was the title "Rev." (so written) prefixed to his Mr. However. he seems not to have been able to hold to this title. One of his children, baptised in 1606, is baptised as the child of plain Samuel Collins, minister. and when he died, 1705, he was buried without the title "reverend"—as Mr. (i. e. Master) Samuel Collins, minister of Tamworth. Henceforward the same address used till Nov. 1827, when we have the baptism of Annie, daughter of "the Rev. Mr. Robert. Wilson, minister of Tamworth," and after that date the prefix "reverend" never seems to have been omitted. I am thankful for the honor of my parish, to say that it was not witheld even in a case which reminds of the matter discussed at the Camborne conference. It fell to the lot of one of my predecessors to bury a Nonconformist. The entry of the burial is as follows; 1636-36 :—"10 March, buried ye Rev. Thomas Worthington, a nonjurer of Tamworth." In this he only followed the example of an earlier vicar, who, when "Thomas Flavell, Presbyterian teacher, of Tamworth," died, allowed him the prefix of Mr. (Master)—a prefix used with great parsimony in those days.

POLITICS.

Religious people are often advised to keep aloof from politics. Men of good moral character and upright lives it has been said cannot afford to suffer their names to be used for a public office lest their good names received harm and they and their families suffer chagrin. Against all such squeamishness we offer our emphatic protest. No man or woman either is too good to work for human interests and welfare and no argument will ever be adduced to convince men that the politics of their country are based on the prospective welfare of society. When people become too religious to have an intrest in the affairs of the State and the nation, they are quite too religious for any earthly purpose.

Neither do we believe any man need hesitate on the question of becoming a candidate for a public office provided he is competent to fulfill the duties of the station he desires. But if a man feels that he is incompetent and untitted for political position: or if he is satisfied his neighbor of about equeal qualifications with himself, is not a proper candidate for a particular office, we should advise all such to keep to private life. Many are morally, socially or constitutionally unfitted for the associations and responsibilities of public life. If such men can recogize their own unfitness, well; if they cannot, the public most likely shall, and possibly they and ther friends will feel chagrined. This is about all the disgrace that can attach to politics. A canididate defeated is not a bad man, nor a candidate successful a good man; but an individual held up to public inspection and criticism, is often unmasked and his weak and unworthy character made to appear, whereas hitherto it has been unknown. Here we claim, no good man need hesitate to aspire for public office, through fear of tarnish to his fame.

ALLEGED ABDUCTION.

For several weeks past the residents around Port Hope, New York State have been much excited over the singular disappearance of a young and handsome married lady from home. It appears as far as can be gathered from the statement of Dr. C.H. Barber, her husband—be now being in Montreal—that he had been acquainted with his wife from childhood, and that a deep affection sprang up between them. He, after completing his medical studies, proposes to the lady, who accepted him, and they were married about three months ago. The doctor states that during his absence from home his wife was abducted; he has since learning by two women, who were the accomplices of as he alleges a sewing machine agent named A. Thibault, or Wm. Thornton. He states that, besides his wife the abductors took everything in their house which they could conveniently dispose of, and started for Canada. He followed them and arrived in Montreal last Thursday, since which time his has been making vain endeavours to find out the whereabouts of his wife. He learned that she and companion had stopped at a hotel on Chaoilles Square but they had gone away. This afternoon Dr. Barber, while prosecuting his enquiries, alleges that he came upon Thibaul at a store on Notre Dame street, and that there the latter threatened to shoot him, unless he immediately left. The doctor was so convinced that Thibault was in earnest that he immediately repaired to the Police Court where he had a warrant issued for Thibault's arrest. The doctor was very much excited and stated that he was certain his wife who is only eighteen years of age well educated and an accomplished musican was forcibly taken away from her home. She is the daughter of a wealthy marble dealer near Port Henry, N.Y. for whom the doctor has telegraphed. The distressed father and mourning mother are expected to arrive by this evening's train. Where Mrs. Barber is as yet a mystery. Her husband who is only 25 years of age, hails from Wellinfork Vermont. It was through the agency of United States and Montreal detectives that Dr. Barber was able to get a clue to his or her where abouts.

A Kentucky farmer says that three good bull-dogs roaming the yard nights will do more to keep a man honest than all the talking in the world.

VINEGAR BITTERS

THE TABLE TREE OF LIFE

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE

CURATIVE PROPERTIES VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or dwell on more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no case leaves any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all Druggists around the world.

PRICE, $1.00 PER BOTTLE.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Invetcrate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which are rendered aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or name.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Sickness are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. Wasting consumed use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the numerous symptoms of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Johnson's Farce Pump and Fire Extinguisher.

For cheapness, durability, ease of working, and general efficiency, the above little article cannot be surpassed. It can be used as a FORCIBLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, a splendid article for washing Carriages or Windows or by changing the nozzle it can be used by a Lady or a Child to water a flower bed in the quickest and most beautiful manner. Only a basket or tub of water required. No chemicals used. It is claimed for this Extinguisher that the stream of water thrown from it appears to be fully as effective in its results as the acid stream from a Babcock Extinguisher. Every household should have one. The beginning of a fire frequently occurs in such a place that it cannot be reached by water thrown from a pail or dipper, this Pump will throw a fair stream of water 45 ft. horizontally, or will drench a wall to the height of 35 ft.

ROBERT A. BROWN, Agent. Office in rear of Mathias & Reed's Book Store, George Street, Peterborough, where this article can be seen and inspected. These machines can be made at the stores of Thomas Lannin and Henry Best. PRICE $9.00. July 22nd, 1874. 30-tf.

LEARN TO KEEP HOUSE

Beautiful maiden's—age, nature's fair lessons, Some in your twenties and some in your teens, Seeking accomplishments worthy your aims, Striving for learning, thirsting for fame; Taking much pains with the style of your hair, Keeping your complexion as lily and fair, Mine not this lore, in all your gay lives, Learn to keep house you may one day be wives.

Now your Adonis loves sweet moonlight walks Hand clasp, and kisses, and rides little talks, Then as plain Charley with his burden of care, He must submit on more nourishing fare; He will come home at the set of the sun, Heart-sick and weary, his workingday done; Thence never let his slippered feet d'er wish to roam, Learn to keep home that you thus may keep home.

First in your eyes will be children and wife, Joy of his joy and life of his life, Next to his bright sterling, his table his meals, Shrink not at what may troublesome you reveals Hidden romantic, the truth trust he to it, Knowledge is better than silver or gold; Then be prepared in the spring time of health, To learn to keep house though surrounded by wealth

BIBLE REVISION.

We have always taken a deep interest in the labours of Biblical scholars, for a complete revision of the Holy Scriptures, and are therefore very much gratified by the progress which the American Bible Revision Committee is making in their important work. It has the sympathy and countenance of the great men of our own denomination, who have already devoted their powers so largely to a similar undertaking. The combination of scholarship and piety engaged on the work will, it is believed, render their version entirely acceptable to all denominations, and result in its adoption in the place of the common version before the lapse of many years. The Rev. Bishop Sobsall, D. D., an earnest minister of the Revising Committee, thus writes to the Independent, of what is being done:

The American Bible Revision Committee held a long session in July the Old Testament Company at Princeton, the New Testament Company at New Haven—and adjourned to the last week in September, when they will resume their monthly sessions in the Bible House, New York.

So far, the Books of Genesis and Exodus, and the Gospels of Matthew and Mark, have been finished and forwarded to the British Committee. Leviticus and Luke are far advanced, and the whole of the Pentateuch and the Gospels will probably be completed before the close of this year. The British Committee, having two years the start of the American, have gone, in addition to those Books, through the first revision of Acts, and also the Catholic Epistles, and the Book of Psalms. At least five or six years will pass before the whole Bible is finished. Nothing has yet been given to the public; but it is quite possible that before long, the revision of the Pentateuch and of the Gospels may be issued as specimens of the whole work.

The two Committees proceed very harmoniously. The British Committee sends confidential copies of their first revision to the American Committee. The American Committee revises the British revision, and of necessity goes through the whole critical process. Then the British Committee carefully considers the American criticisms, which are printed at the Oxford University press, and sent round to the members of the two companies for their private use before they are taken up in the meetings at the Deanery at Westminister.

Intelligence has just been received that these criticisms and emendations are found to be "of much value," and "meet with general favour" in the British Committee. As far as Genesis and the Gospel of Matthew are concerned, I learn that "nearly all the American suggestions have been adopted." The same will probably be the case with the alterations in Exodus and Mark, which have since been sent to England.

This fact augurs well for the final success of this international and interdenominational work. There is every reasonable prospect that in less than ten years we shall have such a revision of the English Scriptures as will fairly represent the present state of Biblical learning, and may be regarded as the joint work of all the leading Protestant denominations of the Anglo-Saxon race. The present version is, after all, as to its origin, the monopoly of the Church of England, and inseparably connected with King James. Dissenters had no share in it, unless we go back to the preceding labours of Tyndale, who created the idiom of our version. And as to America, it had not even an existence for Protestant Christendom when the authorized version appeared. The acknowledged excellence of this version made it the common property of all denominations and seats using the English language and holding to the Protestant faith.

But since its appearance more than two hundred and fifty years have passed, and during the last fifty years far more progress has been made in Biblical learning than from the first edition Tyndale's Testement to King James version. Grammatical and lexicographical helps have greatly improved and multiplied; the oldest and best manuscripts of the sacred text have been discovered and published; Egypt, Babylon, Assyria, and other Bible lands have opened their treasurs; every corner of antiquity has been explored, every chapter in the bible investigated and illuminated; Germany, England and America have revailed each other in learned commentaries: and now, for the first time in history, a combination has been formed of competent scholars from two great nations, Christendom for revising the English Bible. If the scholars who are now employed on this work cannot satisfactorily accomplish it, we may as well give it up for the present generation.

But the work must succeed. So much learning, labor and zeal cannot be spent in vain. The two committees will persevere till the last chapter of Revelation has been revised, and the whole Bible in its new form been laid before the public. It will then be left to the churches whether they will accept it, or not. By its own intrinsic worth, the revision will stand or fall. In all probability it will be used for some time alongside King James' version, and only gradually supersede it. So the Geneva version superseded that of many years ago, due to the high feeding and good attention which they receive at his hands.

A few more remarks and I have done. No man can breed good fowls without care and trouble, but to be really successful he must have a knowledge of which habits and wants of the variety he cultivates which takes a long time to acquire. I have bred different varieties, but have found the brahma, equal, if not superior to all.—F. W. Mitchell, in London Field.

AUTUMN WORK IN THE GARDEN.

Early autumn is the best possible time for re-arranging beds of herbaceous plants, such as Hollyhocks, Delphiniums, etc. Roots can be divided without injury, and generally with great benefit to the health of the plants. Lilies, and all hardy bulbs, can also be removed and replanted, as soon as the leaves begin to ripen. All beds of hardy bulbs, such as hyacinths, tulips, and others, should be made as early as the bulbs can be secured, which is generally about the latter part of September.

Plants that are somewhat tender in the north, such as tritomas, pampas, and grass, and any other tender plants that it would be desirable to save over the winter, may be secured in pits. Hollyhocks will winter well in a pit, and so will young pansy plants, if they have plenty of air.

All bulbs and plants that die down to the ground in the autumn, may be protected by covering the surface of the earth with leaves or manure or straw, but plants that retain their leaves during the winter will not bear this kind of protection. A few evergreen boughs thrown over the bed, a little straw between the plants, or some light open covering of this kind, is all they will bear without injury.

COMPULSORY KISSING.

A witty writer says: Everybody in Paraguay smoke, and every female over thirteen years of age chews Tobacco. Only imagine yourself about to salute the red lipsof a magnificient little Hebe, arrayed in satin and flashing in diamonds, as she puts you back with one delicate hand, while with the other she draws forth from her mouth a brownish-black roll of tobacco quite two inches long, looking like a monster grub, and then depositing the savory lossenge on the brim of your sombrero, puts up her face, and is ready for a salute. We have sometimes seen an over-delicate foreigner turn away with a shudder of loathing nuder such circumstances, and get the epithet of "Savage" applied to him by the beauty for his sensitive squeamishness However, one soon gets used to this in Paraguay, where you are, perforce of custom, obliged to kiss every lady you are introduced to, and one half you meet are really tempting enough to render you regardless of the consequences, and you would sip the dew of the proffered lip in the face of a tobacco factory—even in the double distilled honey dew of old Virginia.

Such a revision will make the old English Bible still better, and bring it nearer to the understanding, and make it dearer to the heart of the two great nations who are the chief bearers and pioneers of Protestant Christianity and cavilization in both hemispheres.

HAND SHAKING.

We are told that every man shakes hands according to his nature, whether it be timid or aggressive, proud or humble, courteous or churlish, vulgar or refined, sincere or hypocritical, enthusiastic or indifferent. The nicest refinements or idosyncrasies of character may not perhaps be discoverable in this fashion, but the more salient points of temperment and individuality may doubtless be made clear to the understanding of most people by a better study of what we shall call the physiology or philosophy of hand shaking. To present the left hand for the purpose of a friendly greeting is a piece of discourtesy—sometimes intentional on the part of a superior in rank to their inferiors, and an act that no true gentleman will commit. There is no reason why it should be considered more discourteous than it would be to kiss the left cheek instead of the right; but doubtless, the custom that makes the right hand imperative, in all sincere salution, dates from the time when the hand shaking first began: and the hand that shook or was shaken in friendship was, of necessity, weaponless. To shake hands without removing the glove is an act of discourtesy, which, if unintentional and thoughtless, requires an apology for the hurry of inadvertence which led to it. To refuse pointedly to shake hands with one who offers you the opportunity in a friendly manner manifests to a declaration of hospitality. And after a quarrel, or act of open hostility, the acceptance of the hand offered is alike the sign and the ratification of peace.

DARK BRAHMAS.

Much has been said lately about this useful and popular fowl. My opinion is that there is not a more thoroughly useful fowl in existence. As a proof of what I state, allow me to make a few remarks.

A friend of mine who is quite well known as a brahmas breeder, has this year reared sixty-one chickens. The first brood consisted of eleven from eleven eggs, turning out to be six cockerls and five pullets; this lot of chicks were sixteen weeks old on May 21st, and on that day a pair (cockerl and pullet) weighed exactly eleven pounds. Three of the five pullets commenced laying at fifteen weeks old, one laid nine eggs during the last week. These two facts are quite sufficient to prove the qualities of the brahma, but also as a good layer. Some of your readers, perhaps, may say, "Ah! but there is only a solitary instance." In answer to that, I state the following. The same breeder's birds in 1871 commenced laying at seventeen weeks old. In 1872 the pullets commenced laying at sixteen weeks, and this year a week in advance. The questions to whom I allude is Mr. W. Mumford, of Cobridge, and I have no doubt the different conditions of the birds are mainly publication of the present version, and many copies were brought over from England by the fathers of New England. The fact is that King James's version was never formally authorized to be used in the churches. The Bishop's Bible is the one which ought to be read in the Church of England, according to the letter of the law. But King James's version was so much improved that it gradually and silently superseded all others, without ecclesiastical or parliamentary legislation.

So it may be with the pending revision. Its success will depend chiefly on retaining the idiom and (with the exception of obsolete or unintelligible words) the vocabulary of the present version, which have become sacred and so interwoven with the devotional habits and experiences of the English and American people that they will never give them up. The revised Bible must read like the old book or it will fail, no matter what its literary and critical merits may be. The people do not ask and will never use a new version or even a radical revision. There is a charming simplicity, solemnity and unction, a happy blending of Saxon strength and Latin dignity, a rhythmical flow, in our English version, which make it (as a convert to Romanism so beautifully expressed it) "live on the ear like a music that can never be forgotten, like the sound of church-bells, which the convert hardly knows how he can forego." The English of our Bible is the classical English for devotion, and can never be replaced. It has the same imperishing vitality as the Latin of Jerome's Vulgate in the Roman Church, and the German idiom of Luther's Bible in the Lutheran Church. Even unique or archaic phrases should be retained, unless they are antiquated and obsolete, or open to misunderstanding. They stimulate the attention and add to the beauty.

But, within the limits of and in keeping with idiom and vocabulary of the sixteenth century, innumerable improvements can be made, which the popular reader will scarcely observe, while they are of great importance to the more careful student. In the Word or God nothing is insignificant and superfluous, and the slightest change which brings out more clearly and forcibly the sense of the Divine Spirit is a great gain. With the aid of the Sinaitic and Vatican manuscripts and other ancient sources, now made accessible, the text of the New Testament can and will be purged of the mediæval additions and corruptions of the textus receptus, and be brought nearer to its primitive purity and simplicity. Errors of typography and grammar and mistranslations may be corrected, inaccurate or obscure rendering made exact and intelligible, real distinctions of the original restored, artificial distinctions of the translators removed, consistency and uniformity in the spelling of Hebrew and Greek names and the rendering of words and phrases introduced; and all this should be done with the most scholarly care and conscientiousness, in a conservative spirit and with constant regard to the best English usage, the wants of the church, the music and rhythmical flow of language.

Such a revision will make the old English Bible still better, and bring it nearer to the understanding, and make it dearer to the heart of the two great nations who are the chief bearers and pioneers of Protestant Christianity and cavilization in both hemispheres.

ODDS AND ENDS.

SPOTTARROT'S CONSUMPTION:—There has always been, and still is, great doubt in many scientific minds as to whether there is such a thing as spontaneous combustion. An incident occurred in this city Thursday morning that settles the matter beyond a doubt. The fire which recently occurred in Bedlam's block, was supposed by Mr. O'Hill, who occupied the rooms in which it took, to have originated in that way—the combustion taking place in some oiled rags. They have been burning about in the backyard since the fire, F. B. Meare, who occupies the middle store in the block, having only a few days since turned them over with his foot. On Thursday morning, 3rd inst., a smoke was seen issuing from the bunch of rags, by Mr. Meare, who watched till the flames broke out. There were several eye witnesses to this incident, who have been converted to the theory of spontaneous combustion.—Ogdensburg Journal.

The train an old couple at the central depot yesterday waiting to go through to the West, and they seemed terribly worried until the old man went out and returned smoking a five-cent cigar and with his hat ... The old lady looked as him twice before the could recognize him, and then opened her mouth and said: "What! I say, Pullerton, you don't mean to tell me that's how you've been doing? Didn't I say you'd go and make a fool of your self the first chance you got?" He tried to pacify her by saying that the cigar only cost five cents, but she refused to be comforted until I let you go for some cheaper, when you seemed more easy. Some time after I saw them again on the cars, and the old lady was smoking a cigar herself.

A Des Moines clergyman says that he was in a fancy dry goods store the other day when a young lady came in and asked for a pair of "pants." The clerk looked at her in astonishment, and said he didn't keep them. She looked surprised, and said she was sure he did, as she had seen them there herself. The clerk then asked her if she wanted them for herself, and she said no, they were for her husband. The clerk then politely informed her that they did not keep them for ladies, and she left in a huff.

A Detroit paper says that one of the Fijians connected with Barnum's circus got into a row while in town. In arresting the "heathen" he gave vent to his feeling by exclaiming Be the powers, I'll bog me fish into ye if ye dont have go av me! Every one who heard his unusual voice was struck with the strong Irish accounts he seems to have imbibed during his residence in America. Such is the wonderful influence of civilization.

An exchange ridiculing the ridiculous county fairs, which make no effort at good shows, says that the Clearfield fair consisted of a calf, a goose and a pumpkin. It rained so hard the first night tha the goose swam off, the calf broke loose and ate the pumpkin, and a chief prowling around stole the calf, and that ended the fair.

A Chicago reporter went to party the other day and was good enough to remark the next morning, that a certain young lady had the smallest waist in the room. There is no sense in getting wrabbid with the young man; the other girls killed him the next day, and they made him a grave where the sunbeams rest.

A person who represented that he was a clergyman presented himself at the office of a real estate firm in Boston one day this week, and asked if the firm would give him a list of all the farms offered for sale and owned by widows. The query naturally arose whether he wanted to buy a widow or marry a farm.

REMEDY FOR CABBAGE WORMS.—Having emotional many inquiries and among th 20, that of C.H.D. in your issue of August rm for a practical remedy for the cabbage wo I would say that I have found that buckwheat flour sifted through a sieve early in the evening or in the morning while the dew is on will effectually eradicate them. Two applications and often one will do the work. I have succeeded in raising splendid cabbages while my neighbors who did not use this remedy have invariably failed. It is far preferable to hellebore or any other articles, for the purpose and has the advantage of being harmless.

A young lady writes to an exchange given a receipt for having fun. She says invite half a dozen boys and girls to your house when your pa and ma are away; put a half dollar silver piece in a dish with molasses an inch deep in it, and offer it to the boy who gets it with his mouth The more taat the boys who try to get it, the more fun will there be. That girl deserve a diploma.

PETERBORO, OCTOBER 8, 1874.

THE CONSERVATIVE PLATFORM FRAMED AT THE TORONTO CONVENTION.

The united wisdom of the whole quartette, and as many of the party as could be consulted, was brought into requisition to frame those celebrated Eleven Resolutions. That they did their work well will be considered by their friends, and their general circulation in Conservative papers indicates their general acceptance as the great features of the coming contest. We may therefore expect to hear of those resolutions being aired at every meeting, public or private, that may be held until the elections be decided. The first resolution might be summed up in this one word, "Economy"—economy especially in Ontario financial affairs

This, to say the least of it, is a plank stolen from Reform principles. The Conservatives have always been noted for their disregard of this elementary principle of their first political platform while in Opposition. In the past, the only question of importance to them was "sinews of war." Now that they have lost control of this powerful auxiliary, they are disposed to put on airs of gravity, pretending economy, and claiming to be the advocates,—the only honest advocates of the interests of the people. This is refreshing after years of Conservative extravagance and wastefulness. But their course in opposition is very different from that when in power.

The abstract principle of economy is one that they imagine will mislead the electors, and be as useful as interjections to stump orators whose ideas are behind their power of giving expression to them.

It is a principle too that all parties accept as a fundamental one in good Government. The present Ontario Government do not now require to be reminded that economy is a political virtue. They have shown their education in this virtue from the day they assumed control of the affairs of the Province. They have not practised the economy of the miser who hoards up his dimes while his houses rot for want of paint or shingles, or his crops being destroyed because he will not spend money to fence out straggling cattle. Nor do they consider it economy to put their money out at interest while the country requires improvement—the newer parts requiring roads and bridges, and the older portions railways so as to develop our resources, and enable those who have done so much in their struggles in opening up and settling the Province, now to reap the reward of their industry and the advantages of the accumulated wealth of the country, during their day and generation.

Let the people of this county pass through the township of Smith and look at their improved roads, hills cut down, and valleys filled, with the money paid by the Mowat Government this year. Those who go to Bridgenorth, and those who go the Hall settlement, will see the improvements on the roads and the consequent improved value of property, and the increased comfort to man and horse in traveling those roads; and other parts of the townships have been also receiving equal advantages. The people of Young's Point are getting part of it to erect a bridge over the Otonabee at that place, which will add largely to the value of property and to the comforts of the settlers. The people of Burleigh have got a splendid new bridge. The Township of North Monaghan is also laying out its portion in bridge and road improvements that will add largely to the price of property in the neighborhood, as well as adding to the comforts of the people. The Village of Ashburnham, too, has got rid of a debt of $1,200 which was a tax on the people and they have still $1100 or $1200 to enlarge their school accomodation, and save them from having to tax themselves for school buildings for the next twenty years. And what is being done in these cases is being done in every town, township, village and hamlet in the Province

Now we ask every intelligent elector in the country which is for the best interests of the people—To hoard up as John Sandfield did—keeping it in the banks and dangling it before the eyes of greedy camp followers—or give it to the people whose it was and is, and thus by the outlay of it, paying off old debts, building good School houses, improving our highways and increasing our comforts ? Every intelligent and unbiassed reader will answer that the course pursued by the Mowat Government is the wise one

The charge of extravagance trumped up for electioneering purposes is one that can as easily be disposed of. The surplus left by John Sandfield is blazoned before the eyes of readers of the Mail and kindred papers as something wonderful in dimension and praiseworthy. When he resigned the premiership he had, they say, large sums invested, but they do not for what. The time had come when the demand for railway enterprise was so strong that even John Sandfield had to submit to the popular will and vote $1,500,000 for that purpose. He, however, had divided it unfairly, and in order to do equally to all sections of the country, more had to be set apart for other railroads, and only fools or blind partisians will say that their doing so was extravagance or waste. Every new school house, new road (gravel or rail) every new bridge, every colonization road is so much added to the wealth of the country, and by increasing the value of property, puts money into the pockets of the ratepayers of the Province, and is would just be as reasonable and logical to say that the farmer who builds new houses, barns and stables, constructs new fences and gates, plants orchards, and improves his farm is extravagant and wasteful. Is not every dollar wisely spent in building, fencing and improving a farm, the same as if placed in a bank, in a mortgage or in bonds, and is sure to yield a fair return ? may we not therefore as reasonably agree that every dollar laid out on roads, bridges, railways, colonization roads, schools, and asylums, all tending to add to the wealth and prosperity of the country, so much added to the national wealth, as well to the individuals wealth in the neighborhood of those improvements.

Extravagance, or want of economy, in the matter of the Central Prison is another bug bear of the Opposition to frighten the unthinking and simple-minded voters. The Central Prison was inaugurated by John Sandfield McDonald's Government. But taking a leaf out of John A's. management of the Ottawa Buildings, he asked for less than one-half of what would be required The present Government found this legacy and they had to complete it. It was long asked for, so as to utilize the labor of able-bodied persons sentenced to lengthened periods of punishment for crime. Hitherto the people had to endure the crime, and feed and clothe and watch the criminal; now they can be sent to the Central Prison, where they can be made earn their bread as honest men, and leave a balance towards paying keepers, &c., besides furnishing a way of punishing crime by making the criminal work at some trade. Yet this is what is called extravagance. It is the kind of economy that the people of Ontario will approve of, and that will secure the approbriation of the electors at the coming contest, as our Conservative friends will find out. The hon. A. McKellar referring to the $300 paid to the workingmen while enjoying half a day's holiday, exposed the hollowness of the economy-cry of the Mail, by showing that the editor had drawn $800 of salary as clerk under the Sandfield Government while he was on a trip through the United States, and on another occasion he pocketed $800 while he was in England, and acting as correspondent of his own newspaper; and yet this is the man who raise such a fuss about the workingmen getting $1.00 a piece; but this is the way the party of gentlemen always do when they have it in their power—grab is only for the rich with them. A careful perusal of the speeches of Mr. Fraser and Mr. Mowatt will satisfy any one, as to the surplus on hand, and dispel the illusion of a wasted Treasury. Notwithstanding that over $3,000,000 have been given back to the people as referred to for roads, bridges, &c.. over $2,000,000 for railways, and large sums for other improvements, Mr. Fraser shows that there will be again January, $2,000,000 in the treasury. This effectually disposes of their first two resolutions in regard to economy. That they have given away these sums in subserving party interests, is without a shadow of truth. In this County the parties are well balanced and the money comes to all alike, at the rate of $2.00 per head—a Conservative head drawing as much as a Reform one. The editor of the Review drew just as much as did the editor of the EXAMINER, then where is the subserviency?

THE WAY of THE U. P's.

The Hon. Mr. Simpson, who has been a consistent Reformer during a life time, used his personal influence, during the late election contest for his friends, and all at once a howl is raised of bank influence; Mr. Simpson being President of the Ontario Bank. The Conservative papers got possession of portions of a letter written by Mr. Simpson to a friend, and in their usual quick way, change the terms of it and publish it, attempting to fasten on Mr. Simpson the fact of using his influence as President of the Ontario Bank. Mr. Simpson dispelled their finely drawn fancies by publishing the true terms of his letter, and by showing that he only asked for support on grounds of friendship, and of justice to Ontario. Foiled in this little game, they obtained a letter written by Mr. Holland, of Oshawa, and to it they attached the word "Manager," and thus proved themselves able for any little game down to forgery. This, however, won't do. Mr. Holland's letters were of a private character, and contained not even the appearance of intimidation. Foiled in this second little dodge, the Mail gives place to letters intimating fears for the value of the Ontario Bank Stock. to which the Oshawa Reformer replies,—"We dare say the, party is a liar, and does not own a cents worth of Ontario Bank Stock, or he would have watched the quotations of the stock in the daily papers, and learned that it had risen fully 2 per cent within the last ten days, or since the attack on the President was made; and 8 per cent since the general election in January last, when the Messrs Gibbs withdrew their account. We dare say that if the bank has $960,000 of Government deposit; when it becomes known it will be higher.". So that in this respect the fates appear to be against them and their little plans to injure the influence of the President or to injure the Bank. These schemes show the straits to which they are brought, and their disregard of truth and facts is a token of the desperate means they will adopt to secure their object. We feel confident, however, that the exposure of their cunning craftiness will prevent their misleading the electors to any extent, as they will have learned to wait for explanations before putting confidence in men who have resorted to Sir Hugh Allan's money, who paid $4608 to get Riel out of the way, and at that moment were shouting "these hands are clean." Men who were employing extraordinary emissaries to induce Riel to leave the country, and yet in the drill shed here would exclaim,—"Would to God we could catch him;" men who would condescend to arrange with Riel, whom Sir John called a "murderer" for a seat for one of themselves; men who would send to Manitoba to stir up insurrection to attract public attention from other vile acts, deserve no quarters, and cannot be trusted again until, like the Egyptian Israelites, transgressors have perished. Their children, pampered and educated in a purer political philosophy, may hereafter be worthy of the people's confidence, but the present generation of corruptors of the people must pass away first.

South Perth.

Mr. Mathieson, of Mitchell, has received the nomination of the Reformers of South Perth. The Advocate, Conservative says:—"Nothing can be said against his private or public character, and if he fails in receiving the support of the "Advocate" and the Conservatives of the Riding it is simply because he runs as the nominee of the "Party of Purity." We would recommend him to the electors however, before any other Grit we know of." Mr. Jacob Brunner, Reeve of Downie, is spoken of as the Conservative candidate.

THE ONTARIO ACCOUNTS.

One of the charges of the Opposition against the Ontario Government is to "That at the close of the present year, the Government will have duly attended to their credit." In other words, that they are so extravagant they will have wasted the whole surplus and capitation income, and will be reduced to an empty Treasury. The Premier and Mr. Fraser have taken occasion to correct these misstatements of the Opposition, and to lay before the people a true account of our Provincial Finances, and to do so in a way that must meet the intelligence, and satisfy the minds of the most incredulous. The present leaders of the Opposition are not to be relied on in their calculations, so long as they refer to the state of the Finances under Treasurer Crook, Mowat, Fraser and McKellar. As the object of the Opposition is not to elucidate and explain our financial position, but to throw dust in the eyes of the electors and lead them astray by a falsified record of accounts, again and again have the true state of our finances to be referred to, lest by their trumped up and incorrect statement falsehood might pass for truth, and fiction for facts.

Mr. Fraser at Glencoe, and Mr. Mowat at Aurora, have given us correct data, taken from the accounts of the Province. These statements are free from the errors of false calculations, and willfully blind accountants: and may be accepted by every man as true and correct.

After an explicit and comprehensive reference to the principles of the Reform party and of their past record, he came down to the Finances, during which he said, "he was prepared upon all suitable occasions and against all comers to maintain that the Government to which he belonged, as well as that of which Mr. Blake had been the head, exercised all the economy that was consistent with good Government, and that for every dollar expended by them, the country had received more than if the dollar had not been expended. In reference to the economy of the Tories, he said, "Whatever Mr. Sandfield McDonald may have been able to accomplish, they knew that not only did a Tory Government never retain a surplus, but they expended the surplus their predecessors left in 1874, and went into debt from year to year, so largely as to alarm the people of Canada.

Mr. Mowat then gave a few figures in regard to the state of our public funds on the first of January, 1874, being the latest time up to which they had the published official accounts, and he asked them to bear in mind when he mentioned the large figures representing the amount now in the treasury, the sums in the bank drawing interest, or lying there at call, or invested in stocks and securities which were available, the state of affairs which the figures indicated had entirely resulted from the success of Reformers in their struggles for just Government as against the misrule of Upper Canada Tories and the baneful dominsion of French Canadian Tories. The able Treasurer of the Province had shown in his budget speech in the last session of the Legislature that on the 1st of January, 1874, we had a surplus of $1,642,887 after providing for every liability and taking into account a portion only of our investments and securities, leaving out of calculation for the moment others which were equally good, and would be available if there should be occasion to make use of them. They did not expect an occasion to use the principal of these, for the annual revenue was sufficient to pay not only all the yearly requirements of the Government, but was sufficient to pay annually a large sum for the public works, for which, from time to time, it might be deemed expedient to draw upon the surplus of past years. And if such surplus was drawn upon wisely, the expenditure would meet with the approval of the people of this country. It was for use that revenue was intended. The Government did not get revenue to hoard it up, but to employ it in improvements and other useful and necessary objects. Looking at such items only as were calculated in arriving at a surplus of $1,642,887 on 1st January, 1874, we hope to show a surplus on 1st January, 1875, of two millions of dollars. But in addition to these items they had other very large items equally available and safe. One of these was the sum which was in the hands of the Dominion Government, and for which they were drawing five per cent. The amount was $2,699,407. Then they had a further sum of $200,000 invested in drainage works, which was in reality a loan, and just as safe as any money one might have in a bank. Then the Treasurer now expects to realize from the Municipal Loan Debentures $1,548,700, instead of the $1,082,764 which he assumed in his speech, making a difference of $465,936 in favor of the Province. These additional sums amount to $3,365,343, making the actual surplus of available or well secured assets on the 1st of January, 1874, $5,008,230, after providing for every liability. The liabilities so provided for include the railway funds and the surplus distribution in connection with the settlement of the Municipal Loan Fund debts. Of the money appropriated for railways there was unpaid on the 1st January, $1,100,572. Then they had provided for distribution among the municipalities under the Surplus Distribution Act, no less a sum than $3,115,736—a large portion of which had since been paid, and what had not was ready when it should be asked for. Those items amounted to $4,416,308 appropriated up to the 1st of January last to the purposes he had mentioned, leaving a clear surplus still available of more than five millions of dollars. The Reform party was entitled to the credit of every dollar of surplus, for if it had not been for the resolute stand which Reformers took against the Tory party and their principles in days past, there would not have been one dollar of the large sum named in the Treasury. Contrast was drawn between the expenditure of the purely Reform Government of Ontario and the expenditure of a Government with a Reform leader Mr. Sandfield Macdonald, a Reform Treasurer; Mr. E. B. Wood, and Tory colleagues. He was quite willing that that contrast should be made, though Liberal Conservatives or Tories had no right to make it as bearing on the present merits of parties. The contrast could be of no service in their controversy before the people. What was essential in that controversy to know was not what had been done under Reform leaders, but what Tories had done when they had the control of affairs under their own leaders. It is well known that a very small portion of the expenditure arises from the requirements of the Government, civil government, administration of justice, legislative costs, public institutions, asylums and surveys that could not be avoided, $965,499. The balance of the revenue, or income, had been expended on colonization roads, $100,000; hospitals and charities, $83,970; promotion of agricultural arts and scientific institutions, $60,200; education, $453,399; for the encouragement of immigration, $284,000; railroads, $1,735,413; and interest on liabilities to be paid to municipalities, and other charges, in order to put parties in the same position as the Tories, $183,857,067. They had invested in drainage works, $60,000, for which parties paid interest, and the investment was a good one; $60,000 was advanced to the education department, but this had been done by their predecessors; and $60,000 was granted to cover unforseen expenditures; expenses on capital account, $341,813,65; public works, $95,491,29. He took the opportunity of referring to the contrast which was drawn by his Tory friends between the half or quarter Reform Government of Mr. Sandfield Macdonald and the present Reform Government. Now, during the period that a Reform Government had held office they had obtained a much larger average annual surplus than the average same in preceding years. He found on a careful examination that the average receipts from the year 1868 to the year 1871 inclusive, the period when Sandfield Macdonald was in power, were $2,429,807,72. During the years 1872 and 1873 the years that a Reform Government had been in power, the receipts amounted to an average of $3,011,531 76 per annum, so that the annual average was no less a sum than $581,724,04 in favor of the latter period. This increase had taken place not on one item only but on many items, partly owing to the cause which had led to the increase of expenditure, and partly owing to the better administration of affairs under a Reform Government. The average increase during the term of the Reform Government upon Crown Lands and Woods and Forests had been $405,802 33, and upon Mining Lands $53,070 19. They had also a large average revenue from investments to the amount of $142,382 27; licenses, $29,274 20; casual revenue, $35,211 36, and on Law Stamps, $24,834,-66; from the Educational Department $24,684 40, and from the Reformatory and asylums, $6,019 28. He would now look at the average expenditure. The aggregate expenditure in the year 1871, which was the last year of Sandfield Macdonald's Administration, was $1,816,859-78. In 1872 it was necessarily somewhat more than that, viz.: $1,847,934 77. In 1873 the Government thought it expedient to ask the sanction of the Legislature and of the country to a larger expenditure on various objects, in order that they might give greater efficiency to the public service and undertake some additional public works. The revenue was there, and a better use could not be made of it than was thus proposed. For instance, while the expenditure for 1873 on public buildings was $472,839 this expenditure in 1871 was only $296,076, so that there was a difference of $176,783 In the same way, it they contrasted the amount expended for education in those two years they would find that the Government expended in 1873, over 1871, the sum of $106,847; in asylum maintenance, $51,686; in immigration, $129,466; and on colonization roads, $90,541. Then there was the municipalities fund, the money which they received from the Dominion Government and paid over to the municipalities, amounting in 1873 to $45,861 more than in 1871. If they added these sums together they would find that they amounted to $601,146 of a difference between the expenditure of these two years. They had thought it their duty to ask for sanction to expend the additional sums which he had mentioned, and he was perfectly free from any apprehension that when the people were appealed to, they would approve of every item of expenditure which the Government had made, and would also approve of the policy which they had pursued, of improvements being made with the public money rather than of hoarding it. Mr. Mowat concluded by referring to the legislation of his Government as being in advance of that under previous Governments, and of a class that would commend itself to the people of Ontario: and no law passed by them had given room for cressing any amount of capital against them. They have disposed of the Municipal Loan Fund debts, a work of such immense value to the country, giving over $3,000,000 back to the people for local improvements, and thus have removed a vexed question, and without which the money would be held over as so much inducement to suppost the party in power. To forever prevent this, the whole matter has been disposed of, and the municipalities are now debtors to other parties than the Government—and thus a source of trouble and of pressure removed from the political arena, and the people are now using the money to improve the country in various ways.

The Municipal Statutes have been improved, and likewise the School Law; and a crowning act of Reform legislation is that now in operation for trial of Controverted Elections, by which pure elections will be almost certain, and the country saved the shame and ignominy of acts of bribery in future. The people have a right to a clear and explicit statement of all their money, and this the Government is giving at every possible opportunity, the result of which will be a renewed term of power and renewed application to those measures best calculated to ensure the prosperity and happiness of the people of the Province.

THE EAST RIDING.

The Conservatives of the East Riding held a little caucus about three weeks ago, but our readers need not expect a full report of it. We understand the names of John Burnham, R. E. Birdsall, and John Carnegie were on the tapis as the coming men to be selected from. It is about decided which of the three will be the man. Mr. Read declines to lead the party any longer, and the younger heads wish to push old veterans aside. It was generally understood that Mr. P. Pearce was to take Mr. Read's place, on conditions of Mr. P. leaving the way last time, and we feel satisfied that no man in the Riding has done more for his party than Mr. Pearce has done. Perhaps the young men wish to monopolise the honors and emoluments, and merely use the veterans to do the fighting, and for storming the trenches.

Lakefield has made no move yet. What are loyal denizens of the ambitious village about ? Are they to be passed by again? While asking these questions we are aware we are beyond the limits of our own domain, and must await more definite information of the enemy's proposed tactics. They are arming for the fight, we know; but whether Mr Birdsall or Mr. Carnegie shall be their standard bearer is not yet known. Quid nunes ominously point to the latter, now that he has returned from Scotland, and is reported as having time on his hands, and a well-filled purse. Time will tell which will lead the folorn hope.

Wellington

Wellington has a Reform demonstration, at Harriston, on the 8th—to-day.

A CONSERVATIVE ITEM: FROM A CONSERVATIVE PAPER.

"A grand drum and spiffle fell under the auspices of the Grit Association of Hinds and Harriston, will take place in Eutaxia a near carriage shop on the 8th inst. Messrs. Mowat and Fraser will be chief performers, and Joe Rymal will be clown for the occasion, while Stirton, White, Higginbothom, Gow and Clarke will act as canvassers. McKim, the rejected of Centre Wellington, will be on hand—he will likely be ringmaster—of course, not being able to hold Centre Wellington, he will occupy a subordinate position. The performance will commence by a feast, which is being prepared by Ben Grey, after which the circus will open. The price of admission is 50 cents, but, unlike all other performances, ladies are excluded."

This is a specimen of the way the Opposition press announces Reform meetings. What a howl of indignation would be heard from the party of gentlemen if such an item were found in a Reform paper! But then the gentlemen party may do and say and write any trash; they may give place to any amount of personal abuse and dirt throwing; they may be even be guilty of calling a political opponent a clown; they may write the veriest nonsense, the plunder of the public chest; they may take bribes and give them; they may do any mean thing, and yet being of gentlemen, they are all right.

FROM THE PORT HOPE GUIDE.

MR. HUGEL, President of the Midland Railway, left for England on Thursday last.

SMASH UP.—On Monday last a train of cars on the Midland Railway were backing, as the driver supposed, into an empty sideing; the switch being turned the wrong way caused a collision between them and some that were lying in the way. The result was that about six cars were injured, having their draw-heads broken, besides other damage.

WRECKED.—On Friday morning about 2 o'clock the sloop "Old Sabbath," laden with fruit, attempted to enter this harbor. On account of the strong wind, and the heavy sea, she struck the west pier and went to pieces. The crew luckily escaped as the vessel struck, and the cargo, mainly composed of peaches washed ashore, and was picked up after daybreak.

THE Representatives of the Reform party of East Durham met on Friday last, in the Town Hall, Port Hope. All agreed to support the man who would be considered the best man. Owing to the fact that some portions of the Riding had not sent delegates, it was agreed to postpone the meeting to another day.

ICELANDIC IMMIGRATION.

We had the pleasure of meeting the other day, Mr. Hay, Ontario Emigration agent, Mr. Henry Taylor, Secretary of the National Labourers' Union and Mr Johnston, a young Icelander on their return from a trip to Kinmount. Mr. Taylor's object was to see the country and get all the information about the trials and successes of those who had emigrated to this country. Mr Hay and Mr Johnston were making arrangements for the temporary settlement of the three hundred Icelanders who arrived in Toronto a few days ago. The Government were, we understand, rather perplexed about the disposal of the new-comers. As they were unacccquainted with the English language they could not well be distributed through the Province. Mr Laidlaw came to their relief by proposing to give them work all winter on the Victoria Railway in the vicinity of Kinmount and in the spring they could receive grants of land in the neighbourhood. This excellent proposition was accepted at once as it was in the interests of all parties. The railway would be able to do so much additional work during the winter the Icelanders would not only earn their living but increase their capital and their experience of work required in this country and be ready to go on land in the spring and the Province would be benefitted by the settlement of hardy, thrifty, industrious people whose success would lead to the in coming of many more of their countrymen. The Icelanders are a well educated and moral people and will make good neighbours. They will find some difficulty at first on account of their language; but they will soon pick up sufficient English. Mr. Johnston, who acts as interpreter, was a clerk in the civil service and desiring to see the world came to Canada a couple of years ag , and has lived in St Thomas and neighbourhood. He is an intelligent and respectable young man; and it was fortunate that his services were secured at this juncture. We understand a couple of large buildings or shanties will be put up at once in Kinmount for the reception of the Icelanders, who will go to their destination in a week or two. We believe about thirty young Icelandic women are available for domestic servants; and as they will come to this locality, those desiring such servants will do well to make applications.—Canadian Post.

A REMARKABLE VERDICT.

The Brantford Courier gives the following account of the finding of a dead body at that place on Friday last.

Between the hours of five and six o'clock this morning the body of a man whose name we learn is Peter McLean, bailieg, from Port Colborne, was found by a woman behind the G. T. R. Workshops, lying on his face dead. Last evening there arrived in town two men by the 6.50 p. m. train on the G. T. Railway, who stated that they had came from Port Colborne with the intention of Trying to get a job on the B. N. & P. B. Railway which is now in course of erection. They put up at the Dominion Hotel, kept by Mr. Archibald McDougall. They had several drinks and about 9 o'clock retired to bed. Shortly after they retired the deceased whose name we believe is Peter McLean, got up and came down stairs and called for a drink which was given him. He again went up stairs but shortly after made his appearance for the second time at the bar and called for another drink. He was again given a drink and he retired. How long he remained up stairs we have not learned, but at or near 11 o'clock he awoke Mr. McDougal who was then in bed, and asked him to let him out; Mr. D. did as requested and when he was about leaving he asked, "how much was his bill McDougall said, "Oh never mind, come around in the morning and settle he then left the house and was seen no more until he was found lying upon his face at the placeabove indicated. The name of one man who came here with him in search of employment is Patrick Crowsley he says he never heard Mc Lean get up out of bed after he retired being fatigued he fell asleep and never awoke until this morning, and learned the said intelligence of his companion, which were startling. Crowsley is held in custody by the Corner until an inquest is held, which we believe takes place sometime to day. These are the facts as near as we could get at them.

The inquest was held, and the following is the verdict:—"Came to his death from congestive apoplexy." The verdict of the coroner is more in accordance with common sense, i. e., death was produced from taking too freely of alcoholic spirits.

DEATH AFTER DEATH.—A telegram from St. Catharines says Yesterday the body of an unknown man was found in the canal at Lock Nine by the lock tender. It was drawn out and laid on the bank. A lady was driven along the road from the city and when near the spot the horse took fright at the body and ran away, running about a quarter of a mile, and finally upsetting the trap, threw the lady out on her head, breaking her neck and killing her instantly.

AN UNWHOLESOME LEADERSHIP.

(From the Hamilton Times.)

Honourable Mr. Huntington, in his speech at Prescott, made a proper distinction between the Tory rank and file and the Tory leaders. When he was engaged in pushing the Pacific Scandal charges against the Tory leaders, he was encouraged by many Conservatives who cared more for integrity in the political life of the Dominion than that the Tory leader should be sustained, whether right or wrong. The deadliest blow inflicted on the Conservative party throughout was the conduct of Tory M. P.'s at Ottawa in reelecting Sir John as their chief, after his guilt had been proved, and thus laying upon the party as a whole the deadly incubus of the Pacific Scandal. It was that which weighed them to the very earth during the elections in January, and crushed them out of all semblance to a real political party. Equally fatal was the course pursued by the Ontario M. P. P.'s in even tacitly accepting such men as Rykert, Lauder, and Boultbee, as their leaders. These men can never sit on the Government benches while an atom of self-respect is retained by the people of Ontario, and we believe they are almost look ed upon with as much contempt by the respectable Conservatives as by Reformers. So long as they are the coming men for Ministers with the Ontario Tories, so long will the moral sense and self-respect of the people of Ontario refuse the Tory party the power to put such men in the Government. And not less damaging to the Tory party than the leaders who have been forced on them is the press that assumes to represent them. As a matter of fact the Tory press is not the true mouthpiece of the bulk of the Tory party, but has fallen under the same wretched influence as forced such men as Lauder, Rykert, and Boultbee as leaders It is tainted with the same foulness that they are such notable dealers in. Its coarseness, its brutal assaults on private character, its daily iteration of palpable untruths, is making Tory journalism an offensive thing to all decent men and women; and the party that is cursed with such organs can never raise its head above the ditch into which it has fallen. The whole personal and newspaper leadership of the party is hopelessly rotten, and until it is purified, the better class of Conservatives must either join with the Reformers or stand aloof from all parties, while the class of Tories who are willing to accept such leadership can never be more than a disreputable faction.

Mr. Huntington, then, advanced thoughts that the Tories would do well to consider, when he said: "If the Opposition desire to be successful they must depose the men who constitute the press. * * * It was not by telling falsehoods that they could ever attain power. In order to put their party in position they must retrace their steps, become purged and purified, and discard the doctrine which their scandalous journals had been disseminating. When they were respectably led, by by leaders as respectable as the rank and file, * * * then, and only then, might they expect success."

Those are true words, and it might even be added to them that if, by any chance, they should obtain power in Ontario, and Rykert & Co. should be made Ministers, no one would be more thoroughly ensnible of the disgrace thereby inflicted on the Province than a considerable portion of the Conservatives themselves. But the contingency is an impossible one Ontario, at the bidding of such a press, will no more make such men their rulers than the Methodist Conference would ask Bristol Bill to be their President.

The Great Western Railway car shop at Clifton was burned down yesterday evening

Recent arrivals at Halifax report a heavy gale on the Atlantic from the 22nd to the 29th.

On Tuesday an engine and five cars were thrown off the track near Shelburne, and overturned. The Fireman was killed.

The Napanee Beaver says:—Last Wednesday night some party entered the field of Mr. Biel Mellet, near Newburg, and killed a valuable horse of his (valued at $100), by stabbing it with a knife, or some other sharp instrument, several times in the stomach.

Judge Ambrose, of Westtworth in considering appeals against the voters' list, decided that voters who claim to vote on the property of their wives are not entitled to do so under the operation of the new "Married Woman's Act" if married since that Act came into force.

The Intelligence says, an old man named Cook about sixty years of age living near Tyan dinaga Station with Wm. Stinton, was accidently killed on Saturday, the 27th inst. He went out to feed his horse in a log stable and, by going in front of the horse, frightened the animal, which threw back its head, striking one of the logs in the stable, and causing the Building to fall, killing Cook on the spot and injuring the horse.

The death is announced at Turin of Prince John Anthony Lascaris Palaeologus, at the age of fifty eight. He claimed to be Heredity descended from the last Greek Emperors of Constantinople, and is the last of the family in the male line. A few months ago he cited the Pope before the civil tribunal in an endeavor, as heir to Constantine the Great, to acquire possession of the patrimony of the basilicas founded in Rome by that Emperor.

REPRESENTATION OF THE CONSTITUENCIES.—The Conservative press has of late been expressing its fears that the present Administration of the Ontario leaned a redistribution of the constituencies prior to the approaching general election. These fears would appear to be well founded if we can account in any other interpretation of Mr. Mackenzie's statement upon this point, made at the Provincial representation a few days ago. Mr. Mackenzie is opposed to have said redistribution, but he was sure he could promise to leave the [illegible] but Legislature of Ontario.

The Gazette Tuesday intimates that the Legislature of Ontario will meet on the [illegible] November, for the despatch of business.

Thanksgiving Day.

His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario has appointed the 29th instant as a day of general thanksgiving.

The "Elephant."

Macdonald & Elder announce to their customers a Grand Opening of their Show Room to-day, with a splendid show of millinery, &c.

East Toronto Election Trial

This trial has been postponed, at the instance of Mr. James Beatty, owing to the absence of a witness said to be material to the U. P. party.

Stethem.

Is on hand with a full stock of Hardware, Cutlery, &c. We may make special mention of the "Patent Slate Roofing Paint" for which he is agent.

Mr. Fraser not to be Opposed.

The Cornwall Freeholder says:—It is probable that the Hon Mr. Fraser will not be opposed in South Grenville at the approaching contest.

Cornwall Election.

The writ for the election in Cornwall caused by unseating Mr. A. F. McDonald, has been issued; the nominations will be on the 13th inst., polling on the 20th.

How Simple

As some of Mr. Geo Munro was lately taking a buggy out of the shed he tripped and fell, and broke his arm. We are glad to learn that he is getting along nicely.

Reformed Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Mason Gallagher has gone to Brantford, by invitation of discontented Episcopalians. He then proceeds to Barrie, where he has been invited in the same manner.

The Assizes.

There will be a rape case at the approaching Assizes. Both parties are bound over, one to appear, and the other to prosecute. The names will be made public soon enough.

Dolan.

By his profuse, but careful use of printers ink, is making his name somewhat of a "household word," and is doing a fine business in dry goods. He is bound to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

Lemay & Cadotte.

This firm invite the attention of buyers to their Fall and Winter stock of staple dry goods. They also announce a bankrupt stock of dry goods and clothing, an inspection of which is invited.

Bigamy.

Wm. White, from England, was tried at St. Thomas assizes for bigamy. He was found guilty, and sent six months to the Central Prison. He was first married in England in 1851, and again in 1872 in Canada.

W. G. Thomson.

We would invite the attention of our lady readers to the advertisement of W. G. Thomson, which will be found in another column. His Millinery and Mantle Show Rooms are replete with all the latest styles; we are sure a call will well repay.

Deaths.

A little girl, belonging to Mr. Thomas Franks, jr., was drowned in the creek below Whyte's mill dam last week. A dead child was found in the hay loft of Mr. Carr, near the toll gate, on the Port Hope road, on Monday last.

Libels.

The Hon. George Brown has gained his first suit for libel, the Kincardine Review being mulcted in $100 and costs. Mr. Brown's lawyer told the Judge and jury that his object was not to get money, but to vindicate his client's character.

Lumbering

The Minden News says :—Notwithstanding the talk of there being little lumbering to be done this winter several shanties have already started, and from all accounts, as much, if not more, lumbering will be done in this section as last year. No doubt the abundant harvest has something to do with it.

Y. M. C. A.

The Rev. Mr. Hooper will deliver a lecture on "Marriage," in the Rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, on Thursday evening, the 8th inst., at 8 o'clock. Admission free; and on Thursday evening the 15th inst. a Prayer Praise and Promise meeting will be held in the Rooms.

Personal.

Mr. Andrew Shearer, teacher of School Section No. 1, Otonabee, was made the recipient of a beautiful and costly gold chain, on the occasion of his leaving that school to take charge of the Lakefield School. Mr. Shearer is one of the popular teachers of the County, and the Trustees of the Lakefield School have been fortunate in engaging him.

Wallace Point Bridge.

The draw part of the above bridge tipped into the river a few days ago. It cannot well balanced, and the centre of gravity falling outside was lost the base of support, the catastrophe referred to above took place. The Warden has seen the damage and hopes to have it remedied at the approaching meeting of the Council.

From the Lindsay "Post"

Sir Hugh Allan with Mr. A. Hugel passed down the Midland last Thursday on a special train. He came from Toronto, on the Hipissing, with a pleasure party. The visit of the great capitalists has aroused the quid-nunc, and there are several reports as to new railway and navigation projects. The value of town lots in Midland City has not diminished, as may rate.

Halibut on.

A correspondent of the Lindsay Post intimates that Mr. Stewart of the Independent (Bobsaygeon) aspires to the Conservative candidate for the new County, if set apart for representation purposes. He claims to be independent, however, and therefore, would have to put up his true colors in a contest. Independence in politics too often means more than the word expresses.

Perth.

Mr. Fowler has been holding a Public Meeting in the Town of Perth. The meeting was largely attended, and after Mr. Fowler addressed them they were unanimously in favor of granting a bonus of $100,000 to the Huron and Quebec Railway. The Expositor is certain the bonus will be given, and hence, the people are certain of the road, it is thought, in two years. Mr. Fowler is to pass through all the eastern Counties, and urge the claims of this favourite road.

Cooburg.

The Sentinel says: One evening last week the members of No. 2 Fire Company were unexpectedly made the recipients of a very beautiful present, from two young ladies who admire the handsome manner in which their meeting room is fitted up, and who desired to contribute still more to its adornment. The present consisted of a vase of beautiful flowers in wax work, entwined about a cross, and covered with a glass globe about eighteen inches high and ten in diameter.

Truth Stranger Than Fiction

We have to-day received from Messrs. Moore & Co Guelph an illustrated copy of the Beecher Tilton Controversy which contains a graphic record of the most remarkable social sensation in the worlds history. It contains biographical sketches of Beecher, Tilton, and wife, Bowen, Moulton and others, with a history of Plymouth Church and much valuable information in connection therewith. This book is in great demand and is selling rapidly. Messrs Moore & Co want Agents for the sale of the work, and offer special inducements.

The Lash in Woodstock.

A negro boy who has been confined in Woodstock jail two months, for an indecent assault on a little girl, received 25 lashes, on Wednesday last, as part of the sentence. Twenty-five more will be meted out to him next month. Brown, for so is the negro called, wriggled, and screamed vigorously towards the end of the performance. The Sentinel thinks the "cat" was not applied vigorously enough, as he did not appear worse punished than many a school boy by school disciplinarians even nowadays. They can improve on it the next time.

More Honors to our Coollegiate Institute.

At the recent Matriculation Examinations, University of Toronto, scholarships in the Faculty of Arts were awarded as follows:—"Senior Matriculation Mathematics,—N. Wolverton, from Canadian Literary Institute, Woodstock. General Proficiency'—W Hunt, from Peterboro' Collegiate Institute." Other scholarships were awaded in Junior Matriculation Examinations. The Peterboro' Collegiate Institute has therefore carried off the honors, so to speak, from all the other Institutions of the Province; and it being for general proficiency is a guarantee of the excellent system of teaching in the Institution Master Hunt, who has so well represented the Institute, is quite young, and has received his whole training in the Peterboro' School.

MARRIED.

FIRTH—PAYNE—By the Rev. C. Fish, on Monday, October 5th, at Mrs. Whitewright's Dwelling House, Mr. John Firth, of Peterboro', to Miss Maria Payne, of Orillia.

GOODFELLOW—YOUNG.—On the 8th inst., at the residence of the bride's mother, by the Rev. Wm. Bennett, Springville, Mr. Wm. Goodfellow, to Miss Mary, third daughter of the late Geo. Young, Esq., all of North Monaghan.

DIED.

LITTLE—At Peterborough, on the 7th instant, Mr John Little, aged 59 years.

C. F. Fraser's meeting at [illegible] and Grimsby [illegible], the Stratford Mercury [illegible] has any Conservative [illegible] Fraser's cap and expectorated himself with such marked skill [illegible] manifested on the occasion alluded to. Fraser has all the elements of a fromfrank man in him, and we predict for him a brilliant career. As a private citizen, and a lawyer, he stands very high in Brockville where he resides; and in market contract with Lander and Eykert, his record as a professional man is unstained. It is not at all wonderful that several fierce attacks should have been made upon him by the Opposition leaders, in one of which our member joined."

The Lindsay Post learns that Mr. Farewell, M. P. P. for South Ontario, has announced that it is not his intention to stand for election again.

The Post also says :—Sir Hugh Allan on the Nipissing special last week, a characteristic story is told. Among the guests in the special was an active Tory politician from this section, who having "dosed" the city and the exhibition was tired, and stretched out on the long seat and the second car of the Train. He leaned his head on a well packed travelling bag. "There" said a prominent Reformer, calling attention to the significant coincidence "there is X——, who intends opposing me at next election, arming himself with Sir Hugh Allan's carpet bag, and all its fortunes." An examination showed the name of the owner; and as the satchel had the appearance of being able to meet a call for "ten thousand more" without caring particularly whether it was a "last call" or not, The story provoked no little merriment.

Meaken against whom a true bill here found, gave bail in $20,000 for trial of libel upon Silas Proctor.

In Woods Household Magazine for November, the table of contents seems spread for a Thanksgiving feast, and gives evidence that no effort here been spared that could add to its excellence. "A Sermon on a Skimmer," is not only pleasing in its quaintness, and originality, but contains sound logic. "Mrs. Fouserby's Pin Money," is capital "Upon the Stand," is another meritorious sketch, by the popular writer Kate W. Hamilton. "Codfish and Potatoes," by Eleanor Kirk, is a short serial which opens well. "Growing Aged Together," by the Rev. Robert Collyer, is well worth the price of the years' subscription it is full of this great man's eloquence—powerful in its very simplicity. There are many other interesting articles had we space to mention them. The poetry in this number is unusually good. A new feature of the magazine is the introduction of pictures, and the illustration, "Past, Present and Future, here given, is exceedingly pretty. Price of magazine, one dollar per year—with the chromo "Yosemite," one dollar and a half. Address Wood's Household Magazine, Newburg, N. Y.

Select Poetry.

How regular the writing is!
I see in every line
The [illegible] coldness of the face
I thought divine.
The faultless diction that doth fall
The skeleton of [illegible]
The modesty of tone that breathes
Beneath the calm.

I loved her once, and even now
My heart goes out in yearning deep
To pierce her coldness and to rouse
Her soul from sleep.

But is it sleep? I doubt, and fear;
Sleep hath a blissful unbroken rest,
Not broken hearts and unruly feet
The sunlight's guest.

I lay the chilling missive down,
And take another in my hand,
And, looking at the straggling lines,
Feel half unmanned.

A valentine, and sent with age;
A schoolgirl's writing, old and clear.
An ink-blot just above the words,
"I love you, dear."

And, turning back words to the past,
I see a rosy, merry girl,
With mischief in her laughing eyes,
And hair curl.

Are they the same? I sit and muse.
A half-score years work wondrous change:
They are the same, except the same
How sadly strange!

For the hath [illegible] and pale,
[illegible] and [illegible] grace,
To fathom the [illegible] of the heart
And mock the [illegible]

The [illegible]
The hollow smiles and smirks of [illegible]
The petty trifles that hide the fate
That [illegible] within.

If I could have my will, I'd pray
To bring the girl love back again,
And blot away the years between
The new and then.

DAILY EXPERIENCE.

Milk will sour quicker if the cows are fed sour milk. This is not objectionable for butter making, but it is objectionable for cheese making.

Cream from a narrow cow's milk will not [illegible] cream from [illegible] cow's milk will [illegible] cream from [illegible] cow's milk will [illegible] so much as if the cream were [illegible] separately.

If I were [illegible] milk from low, swampy ground, or from pastures filled with weeds, or from prairies, I would scald it. By heating to 150 deg., I would drive away the mist, but [illegible] also drive away the aroma of the timothy, clover, or June grass.

Cream can be raised by freezing, but this is not practised in this country.

If milk is kept at a low temperature, the cream rises slowly.

The effect of a sudden change to milk or cream is to injure the quality of butter.

Whey, as it comes from the factory, invariably has a bad effect when fed to cows. If fed while fresh and sweet, it is not objectionable.

Raising cream by freezing does not [illegible] the animal odor, neither does it destroy germs in milk.

The cream which rises first first makes a better quality of butter than that which rises last.

The more aroma in butter, the less time it will keep. So with cheese.

In the spring I would work all the cream into the cheese, to ripen it sooner and make it better, and work it off at spring prices. Later in the season I would skim more.

The cream from ordinary cows can nearly all be worked into cheese. It could not be done with milk from the Jerseys or other cows whose cream rises slowly.

To avoid greasy butter, churn with pressure instead of friction. The dash churn brings butter by pressure, and makes better butter than other kinds of churns. Butter should also be worked by pressure instead of friction. The ladle or worker should not be drawn across the butter, but pressed upon it.

Milk, while being scalded for taint should be stirred.

Results favor shallow setting instead of deep setting. The amount of cream seems larger sometimes from deep setting, but it is owing to the fact that in deep setting the large globules carry with them considerable milk. The amount of butter taken from deep setting will be less than from shallow setting—Prof. L. B. Arnold.

How they finally got Married

One long summer afternoon there came to Mr. Davidson's the most curious specimen of an old bachelor tha world ever heard of. He hated old women, especially old maids, and wasn't afraid to say it. He and Aunt Patty had it hot whenever chance threw them together; yet still he came, and it was noticed that Aunt Patty took universal pains with her dress whenever he was expected.

One day the coolest wind imaginably strong, and Aunt Patty left in disgust and went out into the garden.

"That bear!" she muttered to herself, as she stopped to gather a flower that had attracted her attention.

"What did you run for?" said a gruff voice behind her.

"To get rid of you."

"You didn't do it, did you?"

"No; you're worse than a burdock burr."

"You don't get rid of me, either."

"I don't eh?"

"Only in one way."

"And that."

"Marry me."

"Why! as two old fellows, you mean! What would people say."

"That's nothing to us. Come, say yes or no! I'm in a hurry."

"Well, so, then."

"Very well, good-by, I shan't come again."

"Stop a bit—what a pucker you're in."

"Yes or no."

"I must consult—"

"All right; I thought you were mad. Good-by."

"Sabez Andrews, don't be a fool.—Come back, I say. Why, I believe the critter has taken me for earnest. Jabez Andrews, I'll consider!"

"I don't want any considering; I'm going. Bosky Hastings is [illegible] I thought I'd give you the [illegible] Patty. [illegible] good-by."

"Jabez! Jabez! That stuck up Beck Hastings shan't have him! Jabez, yes! Do you hear—Yes."

A Iowa man cannot remember where he hid a coffee-pot full of silver, during the war, and has scratched nearly every hair out of his head thinking about it.

A stone which marks a little grave in the midst of a Western prairie, bears the single word "Polecatscreatedem." A man had buried his mother there.

The man in Danbury who enjoys the most sympathy, is he who chased a runaway team for half a mile, and finally succeeded in heading it off, only to discover the driver in the carriage looking very much astonished at the heroic and panting rescuer.

They attempted to kill a book agent in Omaha last week. He was robbed, thrown into the river, knocked off the cars, pitched from a high bridge into the river again, but in two hours after came roped with a new edition of the Bible, and tried to get the subscription of the leader of the smacking party.

Sir John's Kingston organ humbly acknowledges that the "Chinchin" may be unseated, "through the mistaken zeal of some of his friends." What do the other organs think about "mistaken zeal?"

On dit that the Hon. Mr. C. Clemens will seek refuge in North Ontario, and that the wires are being pulled in favour of Hon. Wm. McDougall for South Victoria, and that the latter in the event of Clemens, will assume the leadership of the [illegible] Press—the Local House.

ITALIAN BEES AND CLOVER.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says, in conversation with a gentleman who is largely interested in bees, he stated that [illegible] the Italian has over the common bee is that it can gather honey from the red clover, which the common bee cannot, as its proboscis is not long enough. It appears to me that if [illegible] raising clover seed [illegible] advantage to keep a few stands of Italians. It is stated by some naturalists (Darwin for one) that we are indebted to the common humble bee for fertilising the blossoms of the red clover, as in its search for honey it presses the pollen into the flower where it can reach the pistil; and that in places where local causes have destroyed the bumble bee, it is nearly impossible to grow red clover successfully. Now, as the bumble bee is found in comparatively small colonies, it might be well for some of our clover seed growers to try the experiment as to what effect the introduction of a few stands of Italians would have on the increase of seed above the average. What do you think of it? We do not understand all the balances of nature; yet we know that in many cases we are indebted to the insect world in such affairs as this; and while many species only compensate in this way for the damages done in others, this agent seems to promise only good.

The Bees throughout the world, as known collectively to the richest cabinets, number about two thousand species.

The action of light causes honey to crystallize. Bees are taught by instinct that they must keep their hives dark. They will busily stop every crevice with propolis Honey when stored elsewhere than in the hive should in like manner be secluded from the action of light.

Robber Bees.—It is said to be a complete check on robbing, to place a [illegible] wet hay over the entrance to the hive. The bees belonging to the hive will readily find their way to the entrance, while the robbers will be caught by the sentinels, and their pilfering brought to an ignominious end.

[illegible] United States.—There are two million bee hives in the United States. Every hive yields an average of twenty-two pounds of honey. The average price at which honey is sold is twenty-five cents a pound; so that after paying their board, the bees present us with a revenue of $8,000,000. To reckon it another way, they make a clear gift of a pound of clear honey to every man, woman and child in the United States. Over twenty-[illegible] hundred million pounds of honey are given to us by these industrious workers. The keeping of bees is one of the most profitable investments that our people can make; and the profits arising from the sale of surplus honey averaging from 50 to 200 per cent. on the capital invested.

Bee Keeping.—Bee keeping is honest, honorable, and easy. It needs but little capital, and no unusual skill; neither great strength nor profound learning. It does not depend on political favor or the smile of the rich. Rural, but not rude; royal, but not vigorous—it asks but the smiles of nature and a quiet spot. It makes by saving, and does not injure by taking. It requires many operatives, but they board and clothe themselves, requiring of their employer only a cheap, suitable place to store the product of their skill and industry, ready for him or her use, or for market. It can be done almost anywhere, and more money made from the same amount of capital and labor than in any other business. Many a farmer, says L. L. in the Bee Journal, loses more than he makes by not keeping bees. Not keeping them properly. They mainly grow permanently old with ploughing and reaping, mowing and hoeing, and all the drudging incident to tilling, while every flower is shining to them, "Send us bees and we'll relieving you from wasting toil." These sable servants challenge competition in converting the sweet treasures of nature to their master's use, and [illegible] life—it is short at best. Let inventive genius protect and aid them—they will appreciate favors. We cannot afford to do without bees much less [illegible] them in such a manner. The profits of bee keeping may, no doubt, be doubled: and who shall provide a feasible way to do it will deserve a niche with one who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before.—The Field.

AGRICULTURE IN EGYPT

The surface of Egypt capable of being cultivated, according to the report of Mr. Stanley, the English Consul, is according to official statistics, 7,294,640 acres, or 11,351 square miles, of which about 3,125,000 are actually under cultivation. The figures as to the population show that there are [illegible] hands for it. In proportion, there being for the whole 11,351 square miles 400 inhabitants per square mile, whereas in England, and exclusive of Wales, Scotland, and Ireland, there are 422, in Belgium 424, and in France 231. Here too almost the whole population is available for agricultural purposes, there being scarcely any manufactures. To note these figures as disproving the assertion made that there is a scarcity of hands for the proper cultivation of the soil. Steam moreover, is now used for irrigation by all the large landowners, though certainly the small cultivators have still a most primitive method of irrigation. In addition to that in Egypt [illegible] and camels are not employed turning the wheels, leaky baskets which keep two men constantly employed raising the water into a channel wherein it flows into the land, and [illegible] is certainly a large margin for the substitution of mechanical for manual labor. Steam power may be too costly for the poorer holders, but the syphon system, the windmill, might be employed to advantage. The great desideratum is to keep the canals filled whenever irrigation is easy. This and the [illegible] of fresh canals forms the labour of the people for months. The country depending so absolutely for its agricultural prosperity, upon for the existence of the people, on the maintenance of [illegible] canals at a certain level I see no reason to think it hard that the people should be even compelled under proper and wise direction, to contribute their labour to the end. I regret to say, however, that I have heard many statements from persons worthy of belief, that [illegible] not done under proper and wise direction, and that people are taken away in gangs from their own ground to do work for powerful land-owners, which in newly [illegible] districts. It is difficult to [illegible] at the [illegible] truth as to the [illegible] question, but to weigh on the [illegible] population of Egypt. There is [illegible] that the people themselves complain of excessive taxation, but that is a complaint common to the agriculturists of many countries.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE. FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestivo organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuge, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins: cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositions. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them a pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the best, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 15.

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR.

The Conservative effort to secure as many seats as possible in the next Ontario Parliament, should cause the friends of the present Reform Government to be early on the alert. There may not be much time to spare before the electors will have to select their representatives In this county little or nothing has been done by Reformers, while it is well known that the opposition have held their caucuses—indeed, are doing so every night, and, although we have not definitely learned who their candidate is to be, we have no reason to doubt that he is in the field, and quietly canvassing. That all is being done harmoniously is perhaps too much to expect, but a few wire pullers manage those things.

The plain duty of Reformers is to be getting ready. Meetings will soon be necessary to select proper candidates. In the mean time we trust the friends of good government will not allow themselves to be misled by giving promises to Conservative Candidates before a Reform Candidate is selected.

The duty of every man who loves his country is to prepare to elect men in whom he has confidence, men whose record can be pointed to with pride, and whose principles are in full accord with the principles which now prevail at Ottawa and in Ontario.

The past record of the Conservative party cannot recommend itself to the intelligent and moral part of the electors. Their history in Canada has been a series of attempts to controlpower, Finances and the public domain for the benefit of a favored few, without any regard to the rights of the mass of the people, and without any respect to the prosperity of the Country. They have lost the influences and position, and they will make a desperate effort to regain them. But it remains for the people of Ontario to say, whether they shall succeed or not. Ontario cannot go back on herself and allow the party of Union for Prog to regain a single Riding, they have lost. The two Peterboroughs are safe if Reformers be true to their principles Make a wise selection of Candidates, and then work for them.

THOSE LIBELS.

The Mail has been found guilty of libelling Mr. Whellams and fined $200. The judge declared that if ever the manager of that paper came betore him again in the same way he would imprison instead of fine, or perhaps inflict both penalties His lordship strongly condemned the motive and the means used to ruin a man's character, If through him Mr. McKellar could be injured. Every issue of the Mail since is taken up with mournful appeals to the readers on accounts of result of the verdict. A great effort is made to make himself a martyr for the cause of Liberal Conservativesm. The mode of Mail warfare is not commendable. and did not merit sympathy from the jury. It is true that even a jury could do injustice to the party accused and not unfrequently it is done, but no jury could have done otherwise than find the Mail guilty, as the expressed object to get at McKellar was not a valid one, and was not in defence of principle or in opposition to evil administration.

The Belleville Ontario has also had a libel case, but of a different character from that of the Mail: A Mr. Johnson was canvassing for McKenzie Bowell, and a correspondent took occasion to point out the political acts of said agent, and the false reports he was circulating, and in doing so pointed to Johnson's past record in a way comparatively mild when compared with the U. P papers, nevertheless the Ontario has to pay $250 damages. The penalty is unusually severe and must have been the result of a combination to injure the Ontario more than to vindicate character. It is right that newspaper discussion of all subjects should be temperate with a reasonable degree of moderation, but it not unfrequently happens that he who uses the most scurrilty, whines most under the lash for his indiscretion. Witness the Mail and the Ontario to the infinite praise of the latter, who bears the result with magnanamity, although he feels the injustice, while the former piteously complains inure after inure.

The Montreal Witness has had two or three libel suits. There are others still against the Mail. The Montreal Gazette has its share, and three or four minor cases have already come off besides those mentioned. On the whole there seems to be a general resort to legal proceedings for grievances against newspaper publishers. To meet this and perhaps produce a wholesome effect the contrary way, perhaps, it would not be amiss for newspaper publishers to defend their own character against the numerous scurrilous scribblers who are permitted to use the columns of newspapers to injure men who are honestly discharging their duties as Journalists, and in doing so prevent a few hungry commorants from pocketing the public funds without a just return. It is a bad rule that does not work both ways; and in future it will doubtless be found that the weapon that is now being used to confine public writers within legitimate bounds, may be effectual in confining the anonymous or acknowledged correspondent who is permitted to do the dirty work the Editor or publisher fears to do himself. Out of evil some good may so me.

NEW METHODIST CHURCH.

This beautiful building is progressing very fastjuably. The bricklayers were completing the cornice for the plates on Tuesday, and the carpenters were at work elevating the timbers on the South and East, for the roof. Mr. Carlisle, who has had the oversight of the Brickwork, has pushed the work with all diligence, and will have all the work intended for this year completed in about three weeks. The outside workmanship is beginning to show, and will be a credit to the workmen. The inside is yet in the rough, and the best idea that can be formed of it is from the plans; but a glance at the size of the building, the height of the walls, the designs for the galleries, and place for the choir, all indicate compactness for so large a building and chaste ness of design. It will be in a state for carpenters to work all the winter, but the workmanship cannot be finished much sooner than next October, if at that time. From minutes of proceedings at the general Conference, we noticed that Peterborough had sent in a petition to extend the time for Ministers to remain in a place from three to five years. If this should be done, the Rev. Mr. Fish, the warm hearted and energetic pastor of the church would be enabled to divide the word of life to his people, about two years in the new building. He is the right man too, to remain a year or two, to enjoy the work of his own hands, and aid in carrying to completion, the temple he has so auspiciously commenced.

THE DAIRY PRODUCE.

The Dominion trade returns give the following items relative to our dairy produce, which exhibits a very satisfactory increase in this important branch of Canadian industry.

BUTTER.

YEAR.	QUANTITY, LBS.	VALUE.
1869.....	10,853,268	$2,342,270
1870.....	12,256,887	2,353,570
1871.....	15,439,266	3,065,229
1872.....	19,068,448	3,612,679
1873.....	19,483,211	2,808,979

Last year we imported butter to the extent of 54,914 lbs., worth $16,055. This was brought chiefly into the Province of British Columbia.

CHEESE.

YEAR.	QUANTITY, LBS.	VALUE.
1869.....	4,503,370	$549,572
1870.....	5,827,782	674,486
1871.....	8,271,439	1,109,906
1872.....	16,424,025	1,840,284
1873.....	19,483,211	2,280,412

HOGS.

YEAR.	DOZENS.	VALUE.
1868.....	1,893,872	$205,971
1869.....	1,539,411	188,249
1870.....	2,460,687	314,812
1871.....	3,312,145	424,033
1872.....	3,724,977	454,511
1873.....	3,753,781	509,447

The figure show a steady increase in all those items, and give an indication of the amount of money the three articles bring into the Country, which in 1873 amounted to no less than $5,598,838. It is very remarkable, too, how nearly equal butter and cheese trades are. And very few persons would have supposed that the egg trade was so near being one-fourth that of cheese, and about one-fifth that of butter, yet it is only beginning to be developed.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

The board met on Tuesday evening.

Present the Chairman, and Messrs Davis, Smith, McClelland, Robertson, Hilliard and Edmison.

During the meeting Messrs Cox, Toole and Rutherford entered and took their seats.

The Minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed.

A Communication from Mr. T. Greenhow, was read, making application for the Janitorship of the South Ward school. Also a letter from J. T. Henthorn, Esq., requesting the Board to take steps to prevent the water off the school buildings running on to his lot, and damaging his cellar and other property.

From the Town Clerk in reference to a letter from John Beavis, complaining that his children had been refused admittance to the schoool, unless they entering at the first of a month. These were all received.

Mr. Henthorn's was referred to the property committee, with power to make necessary changes if required. As to Mr Beavis', the Principal explained that it was a fixed rule to receive no pupils, except at the commencement of each month unless they could take their place in some established class, and that this was done to prevent the daily occurrence of forming new classes, and that all persons were used alike in this respect.

The application of Mr. Greenhow was laid over till the building should be completed, and handed over to the Board by the contractor.

Mr. Smith read a report of the Finance Committee recommending payment of the following accounts;—

Mr. Davidson, stationery	$ 1 40
Mr. English, keys	1 95
R. Romaine, mounting tablets.	17 40
J. Stratton, advertising abstract	4 80
J. Bertram & Co.....	16 30
W. W. Taylor.....	4 55
T. Menzies.....	115 97
Ormond & Walsh	8 55
Breese & Hutchinson.....	15 28
G. A. Mitchell, expenses.....	8 10

The Committee reported that they found an account of Robertson & Walsh not certified, and could not recommend it. They also complained of the loose manner prevailing of ordering articles, and recommended that greater care should be taken to have strict entries of every thing in pass books, and that all printing be done by order of the chairman, so as to curtail expenses. After discussion in reference to the cost of stationery, and the wisdom of getting it by wholesale or reduced prices, the report was adopted.

Mr. A. Smith read a Report from the Committee on Appointments. The Committee had received a number of applications for teachers for the South Ward School, and after carefully considering them they had recommended the appointment of

Mrs. Hunt, as preceptress, salary.	$400
Miss Greenhow, 2nd teacher, "	280
Miss M. Borrowman, 3rd, "	230
Miss C. Sanderson "	200

They also recommended that Miss Boucher take Miss Stratton's place, salary, $300; Miss Jenkins to take Miss Boucher's place; and Miss Preston to take Miss Borrowman's division at a salary of $400. In reference to Mr. McKee's application for increase of salary, the Committee could not recommend say, as the Committee had reported on salaries for the year already; of the application of the Janitor for increase of salary, they reported in the same way.

Mr. Edmison thought the Committee had not acted wisely in placing the South Ward school entirely under female teachers.

Mr. Rutherford defended the Report and the action of the Committee, on the grounds of economy, and as the principal had entire control of it also.

Mr. Stevenson enquired when the salaries commenced. Mr. Smith said when the teachers entered on their duties. Miss Matthews who had been acting as assistant teacher, it was considered, ought to be paid when engaged in teaching at the rate of $200 a year

The Principal handed in a report for September, showing the attendance as follows.

Mr. Finlay, has in Chemistry 112, Physical Science 112, and Physiology 56.

Mr Christie has in French 75, in German 10.

The Principal reported having carried out the suggestions of the committee on appointments in filling the places rendered vacant by the resignations of Miss Stratton and Miss Borrowman. Miss Graham has temporary charge of the division rendered vacant by the well merited promotion of Miss M. Flavelle.

Mr. McClelland asked for information as to a sum of $3,600, said to be a deficiency of last year, and placed on the estimates for the current year as he (Mr. McC) did not from the accounts and an others report find any such deficiency, and could not understand why it had been placed in the estimates for this year

Mr. Stevenson said he did not understand it fully. He knew Mr. O'Beirne

Mr. McClelland stated that Mr R Tully had wood to sell convenient to the New School, for which he wanted $3 per cord. It was held that no wood need be bought till winter. The subject of ensuring the new building, in the S. Ward. was discussed and finally agreed to.

It was moved by Mr Hilliard, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, and resolved, that in accepting the resignations of Miss Borrowman as teacher of the girls of the fourth form in the Collegiate Institute, and of Miss Stratton as teacher of the boys in the third Form of the Public School. We the board of Trustees, take this opportunity of expre-sing our sincere regret at the loss of teachers who have so faithfully and successfully labored since their appointments to advance the interests of the various classes placed under their care: and at the same time of wishing them prosperity and happiness in the sphere of life into which they are about to enter, and we authorize our Secretary to transmit to each of them a copy of this resolution.—Carried.

The Board ad ourned.

John A. Macdonald and John O'Donohoe.

The Nation asserts that in this case, "We (the Nation) have very good reason to believe that a compromise has been proposed by one party and accepted by the other, by the terms of which it has been mutually agreed that one petition shall be set off against the other, and that both shall be withdrawn." This is acknowledging that both are guilty. and fear investigation; that is the only enterpretation that can reasonably be given of such an agreement. For the sake of purity of Elections. and so as to prevent the continuance of those in high places winking at crime, we fondly hope that no such agreement has been entered into by the Reform party. If the law was intended to puniah bribery at elections with a view to its prevention, how can the law makers thus ignore the intention of the law, and openly act about contravening it?

had borrowed the money in 1872, and he told him he had not provided for it 1873, but he learned from the present Secretary of the Town Trust Commissioners. that it appeared as if paid, and perhaps Mr. O'Beirne had paid the money and borrowed this year from the banks instead.

Mr. Smith thought the Finance committee should investigate the matter and report; it was certainly some mistake of that committee.

Mr. Edmison defended the Finance Committee, and thought a special committee should be appointed to investigate the matter relating to the $3,600, and report to this board.

Mr. A Smith held that the Finance Committee should investigate the item and report.

October 3, 1874.

Council met at Warsaw in special session at 3 p.m.

All the members present.

Minutes of last meeting read and signed.

Council went into committee of the whole on a By-laws to authorize the expenditure of the Municipalities Fund Money, which was passed subject to the approval of the Lieut. Governor in council.

Moved by Mr. Smith, seconded by A. R. Kidd, that Mr. Wigmore be authorised to employ a surveyor to survey a road between lots 7 & 8 11th Concession, that the Reeve be authorized to have the White Lake road surveyed; and also, a new road from the centre of the 4th con. Eastward between lots 10 & 11; and that the Clerk advertise said roads in the usual way on the receipt of the Surveyors' Reports. Carried.

An order for $3 was granted to James Lynn.

On motion Mr. Wigmore was appointed a delegate to the Asphodel Council to urge a grant for the 9th line.

Council adjourned to meet at the old Town Hall, at the call of the Reeve.

THE KEENE SHOW

The day for the Otonabee Agricultural Show was very fine, except that there was a fair share of mud, although the grounds of the Exhibition, and the streets of the Village were free from both. The number of exhibitors we understand, was about 40 less than last year, but the number who went to see the show, or perhaps to see each other, was equal to what might be expected under the circumstances. In horses. Otonabee can compare fairly with any portion of the Province, and they are taking considerable interest in Cattle, Sheep and Pigs; but far from in proportion to their wealth and industry. There were few entries of Grain, very few of Butter, and of the Roots and Fruit about the same might be said. Yet the articles shown in all those lines were equal to anything on exhibition at any of the shows. In Ladies' work we believe there was not much rivalry, but the quality of excellence was very evident. Mechanics appear to have taken very little interest in exhibiting their handiwork, as there were very few articles in that class. Mr. Mather was the only exhibitor in the waggon line, with as usual a good article, but even if Mr. M. does show a good article, some one ought to contest the honors with him. Messrs Bartliff & Nelson showed a very handsome carriage and buggy. The workmanship and finish were admired by all and deservedly, but even in this line competition was wanting The evident absence of this has led some to think that to do away with the small shows and centre the energies of the people of the Riding in one good show, where better prizes and greater competition might induce a larger display of all the industries of the Riding would be wiser. The Prize List which we give below, will give the opinions of the Judges as to the merits of the different articles on exhibition.

County Council.

The County Council met in Special today.

THE VICTORIA RAIL WAY.

Work on the Victoria Railway has been delayed a great deal during the past week by the frequent rains, but as soon as the weather becomes settled again the rate of progress will be much greater than hitherto, as fully four hundred men are now employed on the track, and the probability is that at least another hundred will be at work within a very few days. The majority of these new comers are Icelanders, who it is believed will make efficient hands after they have had a little practice, but there is a gang of about a dozen Swedes—stout, able bodied men—between the Falls and Lindsay. The cribs for the bridge across the Fenelon River are being constructed as fast as possible, but the rain has several times driven the men from their work, and unless fine weather sets in it will be a good while before the whole six are completed. The first was ready for launching on Thursday last, and some of the materials for the second were ready to put together; but it takes several days to complete one of them as only about half a dozen men are employed. The first one measured 13½ × 22 feet, and those intended for the middle of the river will be somewhat larger, though not a great deal. They are built of pine timber sawed a foot square and securiely dovetailed and bolted together. It is estimated that each will contain an average of 30,000 feet of material, board measure, and that the cost of the six will not fall far short of $3,000.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

From Fenelon Falls Gazette

FATAL GUN ACCIDENT.—With much regret we this week record an accident which caused untimely death of Mr. Henry Grandy, a respectable and prosperous farmer who resided at Indian Point, Balsam Lake. On last Wednesday afternoon a hunting party was organized, and Mr. Grandy and Mr. John Daniels went out on the lake in separate canoes to watch for deer, while others of the party started the hounds in the woods. After awhile Mr. Grandy landed, and in taking his gun from the boat the weapon was discharged, and the load of shot passed through the upper part of his left arm, severing the main artery but not injuring the bone. The wounded man signalled to Mr. Daniels, who was a considerable distance off, and who came to his assistance as soon as possible, bound up the wound, and, with the help of others conveyed him to his own home. Dr. Pitcher, of Coboconk, and Dr. Bryson, of Fenelon Falls, were instantly sent for; but so much blood had been lost, and the shock to the system was so great, that, notwithstanding all the medical men could do, the patient gradually sank and expired the next morning about 10 o'clock. Deceased, who was much respected by all who knew him, was about 31 years of age, and leaves a wife and six children to mourn his loss.

Deceased was a brother-in-law of Mr. R Thompson, Photographer, of of this Town. Ed. Ex.

The Lindsay Post learns that Mr. Farewell, M. P. P. for South Ontario' has announced that it is not his intention to stand for election again.

Mount Aetna

Has had a violent eruption, and the nhabitants of two villages have left the ir homes for fear. It is thought, however, that the force of the volcano is spent, and that no more damage will be done.

St. Andrew's Sunday School.

The Building Committee have asked for tenders for the erection of an edifice, at an estimate cost of $1750, in accordance with plans prepared by Mr. Belcher and to be seen at his office, until the 20th instant.

Spain.

The Carlist Insurrection has come to a close, and we may soon hear of the government of that unhappy country setting themselves to work to remedy the evils that have so long prevented the progress of the Country.

Spiritualism, Its results.

Saunders who was burned by the phosphorus at a seance in Toronto has since died, and a coroner's jury has rendered he verdict that he came to his death by the felonious pretence of walker who professed to be the medium.

Napanee.

A man named Bowen, living near Napanee has been convicted of an indecent assault on his own daughter. It is said that Bowen is a sobar man, he must be possessed of sad moral obliquety, and disregard of parental feeling for a child's future happiness. He must be a brute.

St. John's Church Peterborough.

We have been requested to state that as the Governor has appointed the 29th inst., as a day of Thanksgiving. The Bishop of theDiocese has changed the day of service from the 15th, as given out, to the 29th inst. There will therefore be no morning service to-day.

Y. M. C. A.

On Thursday evening, the 15th inst. at 8 o'clock a Praise and Promise Meeting will be held in the Rooms of the Young Men's Christain Association, and on Thursday the 22nd inst, at the same place and hour there will be Essays and Readings.—All are invited.

Josie and Blythman.

The trial of those men for the shooting of Jennie Boulton, near Belleville, has been postponed on account of the absence of material witnesses. Mourreau's trial also been postponed. The prisoner it is said received a hurt some time since, and is said to be periodipally insane.

Episcopal.

The Church Herald does not wish to keep light under a bushel, as the following item will show :

Trenton 25th September, 1874

His Lordship of Ontario will hold his annual confirmation in the Church of St. Bartholomew on Sunday the 4th October instant at 3.30 p. m. A Presbyterian minister received into the church a few weeks ago will present himself with other candidates for confirmation.

Chicago.

Fifty-three fire Insurance Companies have withdrawn from Chicago, these represent a capital of $23,000,000, and as sets amounting to $100,000,000. Seven Companies still do business in the City, with a capital of $7,000,000, and assets of $22,000,000. This is calculated to produce more stringent fine regulations.

The Douro Road.

Is just now in no fit state for pleasure driving. The Council has been spending some money in repairs, but unfortunately, they are two months too late in finishing the work, and just when good roads are needed the road is in its worst and roughest state. Money spent in the patching up of roads so late in the fall is just about thrown away, unless when some extraordinary expenditure is forced on a Council, and then they must do it of a necessity.

Contested Elections.

Hon. Mr. Abbott. Sir Hugh Allan's Attorney in the Pacific Scandal and Sir John's best friend has been unseated. He got his opponents to let him retire, on grounds of illegal Voters Lists being used ; and Mr. Abbott retires from public life, it is said. It is full time. He did all he could to retain power at the price of bribery and the use of Sir Hugh's money, perhaps some of his own. The repainder of his short life will not undo the evil.

Sunday Poachers.

The Townships of Harvey has been visited by some of our pious citizens, and some from the village of Bobcaygeon. It would appear that said Citizens have stronger love of fun than they have of the fourth Commandment, for to the great annoyance of the people in the neighbourhood of their haunts, theyspend Sunday in hunting, shooting &c., and when requested to desist and to keep away on Sunday, they become abusive and even threaten to shoot some of those who remonstrate with them. The best thing that could be done to those Sabbath desecrators, would be to make them file an appearance before A. Brodie, Esq , J. P., or W. Wood, Esq. J. P., and have them pay the legal penalty of desecrating the Sabbath. Then the names would be given to the public as worthy of special honor on account of their note worthy piety.

Port Perry.

The Observer gives an account of an accident by which a Mrs Reade 72 years of age was almost killed and her husband severely injured. They were at a funeral, and a team behind them became restive on account of an attempt to pass them. The owner turned them aside to prevent any mishaps, but unfortunately, the tongue of the waggon broke, and the horses then ran away dashing right into Mr. Reades buggy, and caused the melancholy accident. The woman's right side was broken in, three or four ribs, the collar bone and shoulders werebroken.

Lines on the Death of a Neighbor

WRITTEN FOR THE "ST MEMOR."

Death ! has thy weapon been unsheathed again!
Another neighbor numbering with the slain ;
As autumn winds leaves from the trees unlock,
So young an old must fall before thy stroke.
'Tis true our neighbor a long life had seen,
Near eighty years a pilgrim here had been,
Sharing youths joy's, or pains of latter life,
A smiling girl or a more thoughtful wife.
Through life her nature was so meek and mild,
Her smiles and manners, emblems of a child ;
A loving wife, a mother, tender, kind,
Five sons and daughter she has left behind.
The meek or haughty, left's and the low
Alike, the gentle and the rude must go :
The years which God allotted out to man,
Her deeds of life beyond that boundary ran.
That boon called health she had abundant shared,
Vision or strength was little unimpaired.
While unexpected great affliction came,
Suddenly wasting her once healty frame.
Patiently she lay though crushed with pain severe,
She felt the hour of death was drawing near,
Calm and resigned she bore the afflicting rod,
Through life she learned to place her trust in God.
Her feeble pulse still weak and weaker grew,
Life's blood fast ebbing, Death appeared in view.
When asked if she had a desire to live,
No ! was the answer she did promptly give.
Life near its closing : Death approaching fast.
Still she was conscious to the very last ;
No dread of death upon her face appears,
She seem'd as if some unseen friend was near.
'Tis nearly o'er –her pulse still weaker grew
A death-like shudder– her last breath she drew
Could that be Death ! no waves of terror roll,
Calmly to God she yielded up her soul ;
Upon that couch embraced in death she lay–
A wife and mother—changed to lifeless clay.
Her sons and daughters shed the parting tear :
There sad and lonely stood her husband dear.
Yes, she has left him in a feeble state,
A deep disease appears to seal his fate :
To all appearance he will also go
To meet her where no parting they shall know.
Friend, are you old ? Some are, and so am I ;
The young may go : the old must surely die.
Then while the lamp of life is burning clear,
Improve time's mercies e'er they pass us here.

WILLIAM TELFORD.

Smith, October 10th, 1874.

From the Aurora Banner.

Last Sunday a young man named William Clarke, of this place, loaded a revolver and started for the bush, where he intended to see how it would shoot. While crossing the field on the farm of Mr. M. B. Irwin ; he pulled the revolver from his pocket and looked down the barrel, when, from some unavoidable cause, it exploded and the ball penetrated his head close to the eye. A boy who was with him at the time ran for assistance, and he was removed to his house. Dr. McCausland, was summoned, but up to the present time he has been unable to extract the ball. There is no hopes of the patient recovering.

TERMINUS OF THE PACIFIC RAILWAY —The Ottawa Citizen of last evening says: "The Premier made an important announcement yesterday to the Pontiac deputation , who waited on him to request that an examination of the North Shore of the Ottawa be made before subsidy should be granted to any lines to connect with the supposed Pacific Railway. He said that the terminus of the Pacific Railway would be about fifty miles south of Lake Nipising; that the Government would subsidize no line further from that point than one hnndred miles; and that no subsidy would be granted to any railway north of the Ottawa."

Cambleford Fatal Occurrence.

CAMPLLFORD. Oct. 7.– On Monday, the 5th inst., some men were engaged in making a cut through a hill on the line of the Grand Junction Railway about two miles west of this village, and as they had been accustomed to do worked under the bank, intending to loosen it with crow bars from the top, when all at once, and before they expected it, the bank gave way, nearly burying four men alive. As it was they all sustained severe injuries, from which one has since died. The others are expected to recover. The man who died was a resident of the village of Hastings.

Pond's Extract. Those acquainted with the value of the Extract no longer suffer from Piles.

Cramps and pains in the stomach are the result of imperfect indigestion, and may be immediately relieved by a dose of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. A teaspoonful in a little sweetened water is a dose.

Heavy Oats are good for horses; none will deny that; but oats can't make a horse's coat look smooth and glossy when he is out of condition. Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders will do this when all else fails.

The New York Examiner says: Every mother and housekeeper must often act as a family physician in the many illnesses and accidents that occur among children and servants. For many of these cases I have used Davis Pain-Killer, and consider it an indispensable article in the medicine box. In diarrhoea, it has been used and effected cures. For cuts and bruises it is invaluable.

Two Questions Easily Answered.—Why should men wear beards ? Because they are a great protection to the throat and lungs, and add much to their personal appearance. Why should we use "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers ?" Because when used for coughs, colds, tickling in the throat, hoarseness, &c.; they act like a charm. Ministers and lawyers use them, physicians recommend them, and singers and public speakers say they are the very best medicine in existence for the cure of such complaints. Sold by all medicine dealers at 25 cents per box.

A World in Trouble. The world is in trouble, nations are convulsed; thrones are trembling; governments are agitated; people are excited, and the whole social organization of civilization appears to be sensitively influenced by something premonitory of a great change; now for nervousness there is nothing like the Canadian Pain Destroyer, which also cures rheumatism. neuralgia, tic doloureux, cramps and pains in the stomach, &c. Price 25 cents per bottle. Sold by all medicine dealers.

A Good Horse.—There is much pleasure and profit in the service of a good horse, and but very little of either in a bad one; no person from choice will retain a bad horse, many, however are in possession of such who need not be We think there are few persons so bad but that their condition can be improved and rendered more valuable and useful for their owners, to effect which, there is nothing equal to "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy; it has effected astonishing results in thousands of cases.

Remember the name and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

Mr. Fellows—Sir:—Some two months ago my son lost his voice. I became very anxious about him. None of the physicians could do him any good. Having heard of your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, I obtained a bottle. Strange to say, my sons voice was restored about two hours after taking the second dose. You are at liberty to publish this for the benefit of other sufferers. Jonas Fotheringill, Newash, Ont.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS.

Having disposed of my Tin and Hardware Business to Mr. HENRY BEST, I would take this opportunity of thanking my old customers for the liberal patronage extended to me during the last twenty-five years. October

It affords us much pleasure to be able to say that our Stock this Fall is Larger, much more Varied, and more Attractive than ever before. Our facilities for showing our goods are likewise much better than formerly.

Every branch of our trade has been steadily improving for the last five years, and now think that for quality and price we cannot be excelled in Peterboro.

Our Clothing trade is developing into something enormous. When we say that we give employment to about twice as many hands in this department as any other house in town, we simply state a fact.

Be sure when in town to see our Readymade Clothing, especially our Over-Coats.

In Wincyes, Prints, Lustres, Merinos, Shawls Mantles, etc.. we are showing good styles and at close prices. In our Stock too you will find a good assortment of Blankets, Quilts, Buffalo Robes, Hats, Furs, etc.

We scarcely need draw attention to our Teas. They are already widely known. and deservedly popular.

Hoping to be favored with a call.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Great Female Remedy.

Job Moses' Peridocal Pills.

This invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excess and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

MARRIED LADIES.

It is peculiarly suited. It will in a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affection, Pains in the Back and Limbs, on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart. Hysteries, and Whites, the pills will affect a cure when all other means have failed, and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions in the pamphlet around each package, which should be carefully preserved.

$1.00 and 12½ cents for postage, enclosed to Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., general agents for the Dominion, will ensure a bottle containing over 50 pill, by return mail.

Sold in Peterboro by Dr. Taylor, A. W. Kempt, W. S. Johnston, Dr. McCamus, Ormond & Walsh. In Keene by A. Campbell, Campbell McNeil & Co. C. Britton, Lindsay, and all Medicine Dealers.

--ELECTRICITY--

THOMAS' EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Canscer, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more, its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H Cole, of Ions, writes, "please forward 3 doz. Thomas Eclectric Oil. I am nearly out; it can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Redford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Eclectric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Ulverton, P. Q., writes— "The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoyne, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes,— 'Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Prespr., N. Y., and

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family's medicine, well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single care of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alterinative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diphtheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is most successfulsing all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious choiic, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

PERRY DAVIS & SON, General Agents Montreal.

PERRY DAVIS, relieving from the effects of the intense heat of the summer months, is dr-lepsing cause of so many of the diseases deculiar to hot weather. The stomach partaking of the loss of vitality pervading the whole system, is unable to complete digestion the food passing undigested through the bowels, igniting the bloody membrane, and Diarrhoea, Dysentary, Cholera Morbus, and when prevailing Asiatic Cholera, may be excited. Attention in diet, moderate exercise, bathing, and regular habits must be observed. To maintain the vital forces and preserve healthful and exhaustion. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is unquestionably suitable, as it invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies material for generating nerve force.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS

BY PAINTING YOUR ROOF WITH

Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint

You not only preserve your Shingles, but render your roof both

FIRE and WATER PROOF.

READ THE FOLLOWING TESTIMONIALS :—

Office of Baston & Currier, Ottawa Steam Mills, Ottawa, September 7th, 1874.

To Mr. J. SHEPHERD, Painter, &c., Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in testifying to the excellence Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint, with which you coated our mills and other building, at Hull. As a preventative against accident by fire, we consider it superior to any other, and would not now be without it for double its cost.

Truly yours,
BATSON & CURRIER.

Ottawa, September 8th, 1874.

Mr. JOHN SHEPHERD, Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—I have great pleasure in testifying that Gline's Patent Slate Paint, with which you painted the roofs of some outbuildings belonging to the Sparks Estate, has given every satisfaction, and I believe it is superior to any other preparation now in use. It appears to harden the shingles almost equal to slate, and must be a great preventitive of fire.

Yours, &c.,
CHAS. MAGEE.

Ottawa, September 8th, 1874.

To whom it may concern.

After having used Glines Patent Slate Roofing Paint on all our roofs, we have much pleasure in recommending it as the best roofing paint we know of for painting roofs of every description. It is without an equal for single roofs, as it stops all leaks, preserves the shingles, and makes the roof fire-proof. We would not be without it on our roofs for three times its cost.

T. W. CURRIER & Co.

Ottawa, August 30th. 1874.

Mr. J. SHEPHERD.

Dear Sir,—In answer to your enquiry as to how I like my roofs me you gave then such a thorough coating of the Patent Slate Composition Paint, I beg to say that I would not be without it for three times the cost, as I can sleep now without fear of any burning shingles or sparks from fires doing me any harm, and I consider that every man who wishes to preserve his property should give it a coat of the Patent Slate Paint either through you or some other equally good painter.

Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM GREEN.

Ottawa, September 12th, 1874.

Mr. JOHN SHEPHERD.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in testifying to Gline's Patent slate Roofing Paint, with which you painted my roofs, and would say that it has more than met my expectations, being all that you represented it, and now would recommend it to the confidence of the public.

HUGH MASON.

Toronto, June 8th, 1874.

To Messrs. S. A. RUSSELL & Co., Agents, New York Slate Roofing Co. Toronto.

Gentlemen,—We have used your Slate Paint on our roof, and it gives perfect satisfaction, and we deem it superior to anything ever offered to the public in the way of paint ; especially for protection against damage from fire and water.

Johnson's Force Pump and Fire Extinguisher.
For cheapness, durability, ease of working, and general efficiency, the above little article cannot be surpassed, it can be used as a FORCIBLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, a splendid article for washing Carriages or Windows or by changeing the nozzle it can be used by a Lady or a Child to water a flower bed in the gentlest and most beautiful manner. Only a bucket or tub of water required. No chemicals used. It is claimed for this Extinguisher that the stream of water thrown from it appears to be fully as efficient in the results as the acid thrown from a Babcock Extinguisher. Every house should have one. The beginning of a fire frequently occurs in such a place that it cannot be reached by water thrown from a pail or dipper, this Pump will throw a fair stream of water 45 ft. horizontally, or will drench a wall to the height of 35 ft.

THE ELEPHANTS SERMON.

An Apologue, from the Spanish.

In olden times, when—it is said
The humblest of the brute creation,
(Though not in school or college bred)
Possessed the art of conversation;

The Elephant, as chief High Priest,
Of brutes the proper censor over-saw,
Assembled every bird and beast,
And plainly laid their faults before 'em.

Some were of vanity accused,
Though none by name the priest addresses
And some their talents had abused
By indolence and wild excesses.

And some were charged with envious minds,
And some with foolish ostentation;
And not a few the censor finds
Convict of wanton depredation.

And some, the Elephant declares,
Are handy cruel and malicious;
Some fail to mind their own affairs,
And most, in some respects, are vicious.

The faithful Hound, the trusty Horse,
The Common Dove, the modest Linnet,
The sermon hear without remorse,
Nay, find a deal of pleasure in it.

In brief, the best of all the crowd
Are charmed to hear the wise prelection;
The others frown, or rave aloud,
Or hang their heads in deep dejection.

The Wolf and Tiger howl in wrath,
To hear the parson's faithful chiding;
The Sergeant hisses in his path,
The worm goes wriggling to his hiding.

The Wasp and Hornet buzz their spites,
The Monkey mocks with hideous grining;
The Fox goes sneaking out of sights
To wait another chance of sinning.

"Ah, well!" the Elephant exclaims,
"Though ill enough ye seem to bear it,
(Remember, I have called no names)
Whom the cost fits may take and wear it."

COUNTY COUNCIL.

SPECIAL SESSION.

OCT. 15th 1874

The County Council met in Special Session on Thursday last. Present: the Warden and Messrs. Millar, Rogers, Pearce, Sanderson, Brown, Golborne, Collins Birdsall, Choate, Moloney and McCarty.

The Minutes of the previous meeting of Council over read and confirmed. The Warden stated the chief reason of the Special Meeting was that the swing the Wallace Point Bride had fallen in to the River, and as the estimated cost of its repairs is $809, he (the Warden) considered this too much to undertake on his own responsibility. There was also the Bobcaygeon Bridge approaching completion, and money would be needed, also, for the Lock-up at Apsley. He also stated that he had communicated with the Warden of Northumberland and Durham, but had only obtained an indefinite reply. he advised Mr. Garbutt to repair the bridge and he would lay the matter before his Council as to paying the half of its cost.

Mr. Collins thought the advisory Committee acted wisely in calling a meeting and the more so as the County of Northumberland and Durham had refused payment of repairs last year, and intimated an unwillingness to pay any portion of this present necessary repairs.

Mr. McCarthy thought the advisory Committee had the power to do the repairs by order of the Council.

Mr. Pearce thought the Committee needed no defence as he thought they had done just right, and he read several sections of the Municipal Act in reference to the duties of County Councils in building and maintainings buildings over rivers between Counties. He also animadverted severely on the conduct of the Council of the United County of West Northumberland and Durham, on account of their penalty act in refusing to pay their part of the repairs, He (Mr. P.) would feel sorry if the bridge be not kept in proper repair; and he thought that owing to the cool nature of the correspondence the Council should look after its own rights. He concluded by moving, seconded by Mr. Millar, that all correspondence on the matter be submitted to the Council in committee of the whole. Carried.

Mr. Millar explained for the information of the members not acquainted with its history, and showed that the Counties of Northumberland and Durham had assumed their share of the construction and repairs of the bridge when given up by the Committee first undertaking the building of it.

In Committee of the whole. Mr. Rogers in the chair, explained how that on the representation of the original Company, that they would give up their interest if the Councils of Peterborough and the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, would compel and keep it in repairs. The Councils had undertaken the work and the United Counties had paid their half of the costs and other repairs since. The Warden of the United Counties, he thought, must be ignorant of the circumstances, and must refer to a grant to the South or Monaghan bridge.

Mr Birdsall stated that Mr. Fowlds felt that the Township of South Monaghan should bear the expense and not the United Counties Council.

The Clerk read the Correspondence with the Warden of the United Counties, and how he received similar letters.

Mr. Pearce showed that in 1870, a joint Committee of the Councils had issued tenders and the Committee had acted on the matter. The Committee consisted of James Miller, Wm Snowden, Robert Morrison, J. Dinwoody, Spinks and R. D. Rogers. Four of these were from the United Councils, two only being from this County. He, (Mr. Pearce,) would advise this Council to do the repairs and look to the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham for the half of the costs.

Mr. Sanderson suggested the idea of naming a committee to act with a committee from the United Counties, and let them go on and do the work, and audit to Bobcaygeon.

Mr. Collins stated that they had been audited.

Mr. Rogers thought that the Auditors could be appointed by the Council, and that they would [illegible]

Moved by Mr. Birdsall, seconded by Mr. Pearce,—That as the Township of Asphodel is about to erect a new town hall, that the sum of $200 be granted to Otonabee to assist in building a lock-up in connection with the said hall.—Carried.

Mr. Pearce enquired of the Warden what had been done on the north end of the road between Ennismore and Emily. The Warden explained how the road deflected through Mr. Flood's land, and that now Mr. Flood had asked to have the land surveyed and paid for.

Mr. Sanderson explained that Mr. McCarthy, Reeve of Ennismore, had said the right of way would be given free. The portion of land taken was very small, and he understood it was to be given by the Ennismore Council.

Mr. McCarthy said the road could not be forced through the land against Mr. Flood's will, unless after a survey and publishing of the by-law.

Mr. Pearce drew attention to the fact that the Minutes had not been printed according to contract, nor yet in the hands of the council.

The Warden also stated that he had seen the Commissioner of Crown Lands and that he had promised to grant aid at the approaching session of Parliament if his attention be drawn to it at the proper time.

Mr. McCarty said he had not been consulted on the matter of this outlay, and therefore he was against the whole thing. He, however, thought that if the County surveyed the line, Ennismore Council would pass the necessary By-law.

Mr. Pearse, County Treasurer, submitted a statement of the Financial state of the County, showing that there will be a deficit of $10,000 again January.

Mr. Birdsall asked what action had been taken in reference to the Bridge at Boosbink narrows.

Mr. Pearce, Reeve of Belmont, explained the action of Mr. Choate, the Warden, Mr. Millar, he, Mr. P. had taken before the Commissioner of Public Works, and stated that he had told the Commissioner that one of the reasons he, Mr. P. had retired from the contest last election, was that Mr. Read should use his influence to get the grant for the Bridge at the Narrows, and he, Mr. Read, had promised to do so and to go into opposition to any government that would not assist this undertaking.

The Council adjourned till 10 o'clock to morrow.

How to Cure Dyspepsia.

Alden Gobble, a lover of misrule, was dyspeptic, and suffered great uneasiness after eating, so he goes to the great Dr. Abernethy for advice.

"What is the matter with you?" asks the doctor.

"Why, I presume I have got the dyspepsia."

"Ah!" said the doctor, "I see; a Yankee who has swallowed more dollars than he can digest."

"I am an American citizen," said Alden with great dignity; "I am secretary of our legation to the Court of St. James."

"Then," says Abernethy, "you will soon get rid of your dyspepsia."

"Don't see that inference," said Alden, it ain't a natural consequence, I guess, that a man should cease to be ill because he is called * * * to fill an important office."

"But, I tell you, it does follow, for in the company you'll keep you'll have to eat like a Christian. I never saw a Yankee who didn't bolt his food like a boaconstrictor. How can you expect to digest food that you neither take the trouble to dissect nor time to masticate? It's no wonder you loose your teeth, for you never use them; nor your digestion, for you overload it; nor saliva, for you expend in on your carpet instead of your food. It's disgusting; it's beastly! You Yankees load your stomachs as a Devonshire man does his heart—as full as it will hold, and as fast as he can pitch it in with a hay-fork; and then you complain that such a load of compost is too heavy for you. Dyspepsia! poh! Its beastly guzzling, you mean. I tell you what, Mr. Secretary of Legation, take half the time to eat that you do to drawl out your words, chew your food half as much as you do your tobacco, and you'll be well in a month."

A Persian Story.

Jesus, says a Persian story, arrived at a certain city, and sent his disciples forward to prepare a supper, while he himself, intent on doing good, walked through the street, into the market place. And he saw, at the corner of the market, some people gathered together, looking at an object on the ground, and he drew near to see it. It was a dead dog, with halter round his neck, by which he supposed he have been dragged through the dirt, and a vile, a mere object, a mere useless thing, never met the eye of man. And those who stood by looked on with abhorrence. "Faugh!" said one, stopping his nose, "it pollutes the air. How long shall the foul beast offend our sight?" said another. Look at his tora hide," said a third; "one could not even cut a shoe out of it." "And his ears," said a fourth. "All decay and blotches." "The dogs," said one, "hath been hanged by the neck." And [illegible] down on the dead creature, he said "Truth is white as the pearl of the sea. Then the people looked at him, [illegible] Jesus answered, "Your teeth are as white as the pearl."

ODDS AND ENDS.

A Yankee editor has recently got up a remedy for hard times. It consists of ten hours hard labor well worked in.

A dandy is a chap who would be a lady if he could; but as he can't, does all he can to show the world he's not a man.

Boston is said to have an election official who, after searching the "N's" through said he could not find a certain Mr. Knight's name on the voting list.

Washing machines will be more fashionable than ever this winter, and many young ladies will take their first lesson in this household accomplishment.

A fashionable young lady dropped one of her false eyebrows in a church pew, and badly frightened a young man next to her, who thought it was his moustache.

"Where shall I put this paper so as to be sure of finding it to-morrow?" inquired Mary Jane of her brother Charles. "On the looking glass," was her brothers reply.

A young lady in Lancaster has the initials, Y. M. C. A., engraved on one corner of her visiting cards, which she hands to certain gentlemen visitors. Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 22.

THE RICE LAKE BRIDGE AND THE COBOURG R. R. & M. COY.

During last week we were informed that the Company, or the Managing Director, is anxious to get to work on the bridge this winter, so as to have it ready for trains to cross early next summer. A proposition is now made to commence the work immediately, and give a satisfactory bond for its speedy completion, provided the Town will hand over the $40,000 debentures as the work progresses; the sum to be paid to be determined from time to time by a competent Engineer. The object is to secure the immediate commencement of the work, and that at a time when it can be most conveniently done.

It is well known that the cause of the delay in this very desirable and important work, was the crisis across the lines. The country has not yet fully returned to its former state. Money for speculation can not yet be easily obtained. And when we consider that the Company have now the iron taken out for two years on hand, and has to provide funds to carry on their mining operations another year, and await the return of better times before they can realise a dollar, it is not to be wondered at that they are anxious to see Peterborough carry out, in good faith, liberally, their arrangements to aid the work to the amount of $40,000, as promised. The matter should be taken up at once, and the Company enabled to recommence the work as soon as the men can. The delay of another year will be one year more of delay in realising the benefits of a second line of road to the market, and also a delay in getting to Bobcaygeon and the back country.

The penny wise and pound foolish plan of confining the circle of our trade south of Mud Lake and north of Rice Lake, or within an area of about 20 miles, must satisfy any one of our past folly and short sightedness, and the present state of our grain market must convince us that we have acted injuriously to our interest, in refusing to aid the road that would induce buyers to come to our market, and pay fair prices for our grain, and in this way help to put money in circulation to assist the merchant, mechanic and laborer to meet the demands that are being made on them about the close of the year. The reason assigned for the dulness of the wheat market here, is the impossibility of shipping in quantity, to take advantage of the market. The one railroad has not been able, merchants say, to ship when and as freely as required. Then why delay applying the remedy?

The road north to Fenelon or Kinmount is also much needed. Our folly has cut off the northern part of the county from us. The next best thing for us, is to tap the Victoria Road at some point north of Bobcaygeon. This would afford ready access to us, and would largely counteract the evil of our short-sighted policy in refusing to assist a road to that section of country.

Let the errors of policy that has almost hemmed us inside of the lakes—to a district of two townships merely—be remedied. The liberal offer of the Company should be accepted, and thus do what we can to regain the trade of the back country, before it becomes fixed in a channel from which it cannot be diverted. The expenditure of $40,000 and an addition al $30,000 or more what the Company must provide, would also be of a great benefit during a season that lumbering operations are likely to be a little dull. Many of our mechanics and laboring men would get a share of it. They in turn would pay it over to the dry goods merchant and grocer, and thus prevent any great pressure arising out of dulness in other branches of trade.

We learn that several of our councillors have received this latter proposition favorably, and we hope they will at once take steps to have it settled. It is only a matter of a few months of interest on $40,000. No man in the town has any idea of withholding the $40,000 any longer than till the work is so complete as to enable a train to pass over it. The people of Peterborough do not repudiate their just liabilities or promises. The money we expect to pay when the road is in running order. All that is asked or sought for, is to pay the money in instalments as the work progresses. This, the ratepayers will accept as reasonable, and just, and it now only requires action in the matter, to have a bond for the completion of the road, and for the proper application of the money. Inaction may delay the road a year or two, while a year's increased trade would tenfold repay the interest of our share of the cut lay. The circulation of $100,000 now, for grain and produce, at fair prices, would go far to change the whole state of trade; and ten cents a bushel more for wheat, would be equivalent to $10 an acre more for every acre of farm land around the town. Reckoning 20 bushels to the acre, it would be $2 per acre of profit, or the interest on $10 at 20 per cent.

If some of our city fathers take this matter up they will deserve the gratitude of the ratepayers and people, and atone for some of their short-comings in other things. Perhaps a requisition to the council would have the desired effect, and secure the road at an early day.

Barley in the Otonabee.

The Swing of the Wallace Point Bridge having toppled into the River about two weeks ago, and just about that time barley having increased in price in Port Hope, those who were anxious to get to the front took advantage (in this case disadvantage) of a raft constructed for the purpose of crossing over. Some passed over safely, but unfortunately as Mr. McKeana was taking a load over the horses became uneasy, and by some mismanagement got into the river, taking the load with them. The Barley was well wet, and the horses, but the latter were got out without damage The loss of the swing is a great inconvenience to the people of Otonabee and Monaghan, which we trust will not be long permitted to exist The Warden of our County acted promptly in calling a meeting of the Council, relative to this matter, and they have acted wisely in taking steps for its immediate replacement.

THE "ROSE" BRIDGE.

This Bridge, if re-constructed, would be of even more value to the people of Otonabee, South Monaghan, and the community generally, than the Wallace Point Bridge. At present, the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham will do nothing towards the re-construction. There seems, however, to be a way of compelling them, as will be seen by the following section of the Municipal Statutes.

Cap. 16, Sec 19. 1874, Ont. "Section four hundred and thirteen of the said Act," (Municipal Institutions) is hereby repealed and the following substituted in lieu thereof.

413. It shall be the duty of County Councils to erect and maintain Bridges over Rivers forming or crossing boundary lines between two Municipalities (other than in the case of a City or separated town) within the County; and in case of a bridge over a river forming or crossing a boundary line between two Counties or a County and a City, such bridge shall be erected and maintained by the Councils of the Counties or County and Cities respectively; and in case the Councils of County and City, or the Councils of such Counties fail to agree on the respective portions of the expenses to be borne by the interested Municipalities it shall be the duty of each Council to appoint arbitrators as provided by this Act, to determine, the amount to be expended. and such award as may be made shall be final."

Since the bridge is of so much importance to the Town of Peterborough the Town Council should join with the County in offering to re-construct it. The County could take the iniative, then they could compel the United Counties of Northumberland & to have an arbitration. And the arbitrators would settle the relative cost of the Bridge. This course would ensure the bridge at an early day. The argument that is of no use to the front towns is a weak one, as at present those bridges are required to enable the farmers of Otonabee to get to Port Hope and Cobourg, or to Fraserville or Millbrook with their grain, as there are no buyers in Peterborough. The Reeves of Otonabee, South Monaghan, and Cavan, and the people of Port Hope should unite in forcing the United Counties to assist in re-constructing this very desirable and very necessary means of getting from the East and South of Otonabee to the front without travelling 20 miles from their direct way.

South Monaghan is very much interested, and we trust to hear of that Council moving in the matter, and and as our Town Council is liberal and progressive, the expenditure of $1,000 or $1,500 on this bridge would be well spent money, and fully as much in accord with the wishes of the Ratepayers as any money they ever spent. Then too what about the road direct to Fraserville! If only a winter road? This latter scheme should be attended to also and the road commenced at an early day.

WEST NORTHUMBERLAND.

Mr. Kerr and Mr. Smith are busy canvassing. Their friends respectively professing to be equally confident of success Nevertheless Mr. Smith must feel that he is leading the forlorn hope of the Riding. His address is inkeeping with his past history. In it he claims to be an old Reformer; with what show of reason those who know him can well surmise. He tries to ride the Protestant and Roman Catholic nags alroitly, so as to secure the support of both parties, with what success will be seen. It is just as consistant as McKenzie Bowell's, and Tom Stephenson's conduct at the election in in South Victoria, when the Grand Master of Canada and the County Master of Victoria, blended the Orange and the Green while supporting Mr. Dorner. It is not the fact of their doing so that is to be condemned, but their is in consistency in condemning in others what they do themselves. How wrong it was to run a Catholic in East Peterborough! but how fit to run one in South Victoria. How very wrong to ride in the carriage with a Catholic in Peterborough, or even hire a "Catholic horse" as was said reproachfully in South Monaghan, by one of the party of gentlemen, but the Grand Master and Mr. Smith may do anything to get the Catholic vote The conservatives in a certain constituency boast that they will not put a Catholic in nomination, and yet both they and Mr. McKenzie Bowell, and Mr. Smith will ask their votes

Now if it is wrong to vote for a Catholic, it is wrong to take their votes, and those good loyal conservatives should at once refuse to have the vote of a class for one of whom they would not vote. Mr. Smith should at once get on his orange animal that he put out in training three months before his first Election, although up to that time he had opposed the L. O. Association. Mr. Smith, in his address, is an admirer of Mr. Blake, but if elected will return "like the sow that was was washed" to his "wallowing in the mire" of John A's influence and associations, and all his old trickery. He boasts of what he did for the country. During the period of the power of his party the debt of the Dominion increased from 52 to 130 millions of dollars. During the term of their office the Parliament Buildings cost ten times the original estimates.

The Intercolonial was to cost 15 millions or 16 millons, but will cost over 25 millions, and so on in every branch of expenditure, and yet he talks of what was done for the country. We sincerly hope that the electors of West Northumberland will turn out to a man and elect Mr Smith to remain in private life and teach the reform apostate that the people have no confidence in him and will not place him where he can again deceive them.

HURON & QUEBEC RAILWAY

The Town of Perth has taken the initiative in this matter and has passed a By-law to submit the matter of granting $100,000 of a bonus to this road. The South riding of Lanark is also moving to grant a bonus to the road. Mr. Fowler is busy working up the claims of the road in other Counties and Towns. The road is considered a necessity in the interest of the general trade of the Country, away from the Grand Trunk Railway. Farmers along the proposed route are in favour of aiding the road liberally, The only question is the amount that should be given. The present wants of the district through which the road is to pass, are such as compel the people in their own interests, to aid liberally in securing its speedy construction. The large amounts of produce that would be shipped over the road, would in enhanced prices, nearly pay the whole sum granted in two years, or in three at the farthest. The impetus that would be given to trade would repay the Towns for their aid, and the increased wealth and facility would ensure the back part of the country a front place in the progress that is sure to manifest itself. The opposition to the road caused by parties who say that the present proposed company is not worthy of confidence, ought to have no weight with the people. As soon as there are sufficient bonuses secured to induce capitalists to go into it, they will come forward. Capitalists are not the men to undertake working up bonuses, and hence the wisdom of aiding those who are willing to do so. It is the road that is wanted. No one cares who builds it. The only question is to get it soon for the lowest sum possible that will secure the undertaking.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

(Concluded from first Page)

SATURDAY.

The County Council met pursuant to adjournment. The Warden in the chair, and Messrs. Blezard, Choate, Blewett and Wills absent.

The Minutes of Friday were read and confirmed.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Brown,—That the Clerk be instructed to notify the Warden and County Clerk of the united Counties of Northumberland and Durham, that this Council have appointed Commissioners to act jointly with Commissioners to be appointed by their Council, for the repairs of the Wallace Point bridge across the Otonabee. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Rogers, seconded by Mr. Sanderson,—The report of the Finance Committee was read.

REPORT OF FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The Finance Committee report recommended payment of the following accounts:—

John English, repairs to Registry office	$22 00
H. C. Rogers, Postage account	12 93
W. H. Scott, fees for advice	47 00
Norwood Board of Examiners	30 25
Peterboro Board of Instruction	113 00

That two hundred dollars be granted to aid in paying for the building of the Town Hall and Lock-up in the Village of Apsley.

That in the event of a Town Hall and Lock-up being built in the Village of Norwood, the sum of one hundred dollars be granted to assist in paying for the same.

That the Warden and Treasurer be authorized to borrow from the accumulated sinking fund a sum sufficient for the current expenses.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed,) R. D. ROGERS,
Chairman.

On motion of Mr Rogers, seconded by McCarty,—It was adopted.

Mr. Rogers introduced a By-law to provide for payments of accounts and claims.

On motion of Mr. Rogers, seconded by Mr. Sanderson,—The Council went into committee of the whole on the second reading of the By-law.

Mr. Rogers moved, seconded by Mr. Sanderson,—The third reading of the By-law. In amendment it was moved by Mr. Collins that the By-law be not read a third time, but that it be recommitted with instructions to the Committee to increase the grant to the Lock-up at Apsley to $300. Lost. It was read and passed.

Moved by Mr. Pearse, seconded by Mr. Millar,—That the thanks of this Council be and they are hereby tendered to the Warden for the kind and courteous manner he has conducted the business of the Council during the year. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. McCarty,—The Clerk was directed to prepare and lay before the Council at next session a detailed statement of the expenses incurred in improvements in and about the Court House for the present year.

The minutes were then confirmed and the council adjourned.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,

Can you inform me and all that this may concern, what is the matter with the Grain Buyers in Peterborough? I came to Peterborough on Monday, 12th instant, and was offered the sum of eighty cents per buahel for Barley, and this was the highest price paid; so I started on Tuesday morning and arrived at Fraserville, and was offered Ninty cents, went on to Port Hope, and there obtained one dollar and two cents. Surely something is wrong in this matter.

YOURS TAULY,
HENRY COLLINS.

North Monaghan, October 15, 1874.

THE ASSIZES.

This court opened here on Tuesday, before judge Morrison.

The number of cases on the docket is not large about 12 in all, and the number of criminal cases is also small.

The first case was Nicholls et al vs Chalmers, on account. Possette for Plaintiff, W. H. Scott for Defendant.—Nonsuit.

Dymond vs Haultain, action for Dower Scott for Plaintiff, Possette for Defendant. Verdict for plaintiff and $32, damages.

Burnham vs Grand Trunk Railway, action for damages for injuries, alleged to be caused by not stopping the train to let plaintiff off. By the accident Mr. Burnham unfortunately was compelled to have a leg amputated.

J. D. Armour, Q. C. and Hector Cameron Q. C. for Plaintiff. J. K. Kerr, Q. C. for Defendant. Nonsuited.

Phelan vs McFaddin, verdict for pltf.

Faucher vs McDonald et al. H. H. Smith and J. D. Armour, Q. C., for pltf. G. Edmison, and H. Cameron, Q. C., for defendant. Verdict for defendant.

The Queen vs Dale went for larceny Delacourt his wife, and an accomplice, now in the Central Prison for the act, entered the Root and Shoe store of Messrs Hall & Connor last fall, and stole about two dozen pairs of boots. Dale, court and his accomplice quarreled and then the whole thing got out, and the boots were found buried in the centre of the street. Delacourt has been found guilty, he is a hard case, and was in Penitentiary before for two years, and will go down again.

In the case of the Queen vs Cavanagh for Rape, the Grand Jury returned "no Bill."

The Queen vs Thomas, for Perjury. —"No Bill."

The Queen vs Wigmore. True bills were found for administering poison to procure abortion, and also with a view it is alleged to kill or commit murder

The triall is put off till next assizes, but it is expected that ne will be released on bail.

Mr. Armour conducts the Crown business.

Accident.

We regret to learn that Mr. Arthur Rutherford received severe injuries on Tuesday, by falling off a building. We understand that he was on the cellar joice of the building sitting on a short board, the board shifted, and one end of it getting off the joice, he was precipitated over 20 feet. In the fall his head struck a joice of the second floor, and received a scalp wound about eight inches long, but fortunately the skull was not injured. He was landed on the first floor among mortar and rubbish, receiving a severe shock. Dr. O'Sullivan was sent for and dressed the wound, and we are pleased to learn that he is getting along nicely. It is certaidly a mercy that the consequences are not more serious.

Cornwall.

Mr. A. F. McDonald has been re-elected for Cornwall at a majority of 40. The Mail calls this a "Grit Defeat." About two weeks ago when Mr. A. F. McD. was unseated, the Mail heralded the fact as a sample of Grit corruption, and as an evidence of the dreadful state of "Party of Purity." Now that he is re-elected, it is a great defeat. How consistent! How truthful! To what a length does party influence force the organ of slander. Mr. McDonald is a Reformer, but his Conservative advisers spent money to elect him at first. He was unseated on this account. Now he is re-elected and is still a Reformer and so is his opponent

First Presbyterian Church.

In the proceedings of Hamilton Presbytery we find the following paragraph: At the afternoon sederunt, the Court being constituted and the minutes of the forenoon sederunt being read, Rev. George Burson presented a petition from the First Presbyterian Church, St. Catharines seeking to be admitted as a congregation of the Canada Presbyterian Church. The petition was received and a committee, consisting of the Rev. Messrs, Burson, convener (Fraser,) McBain and Dawson; also, Mr. R Lawrie was appointed to make all the necessary enquiries, and to report at the meeting in Waterdown on the 27 instant.

Just in Keeping With Other Acts.

The Montreal Witness givies its readers the following item of information:—The chief occupation of the political organs in these dull times seems to be for the one side to show its ingenuity in piling up charges against their adversaries, and for the latter to knock out their foundations as fast as possible, and so brisk has been this kind of work recently that it has almost excluded attention to other matters. A story being afloat that the old post-office in Montreal was the subject of a corrupt sale, and that the present Government were the offenders, it was found that the sale had been effected two years ago by the late Government, and the retailers of the imaginary scandal, finding they had stamped heavily on the corns of their own friends, became humble and apologetic.

REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM.—A patient medicine advertisement says, "This article will cure the rheumatism of nineteen years' standing." As far as it goes this is perfectly satisfactory; but we want light upon another view of matter. Suppose a man's rheumatism is only of three years' standing must he let it stand sixteen years more before the medicine will cure it? Or if it has stood 20 years is there no hope of a remedy? We want to know about this. It is going to be very unpleasant for a man to endure rheumatism for seventeen or eighteen years before he can take medicine for it.

It affords us much pleasure to be able to say that our Stock this Fall is Larger, much more Varied, and more attractive than ever before. Our facilities for showing our goods are likewise much better than formerly.

Every branch of our trade has been steadily improving for the last five years, and now we think that for quality and price we cannot be excelled in Peterboro.

Our Clothing trade is developing into something enormous. When we say that we give employment to about twice as many hands in this department as any other house in town, we simply state a fact.

Be sure when in town to see our Readymade Clothing, especially our Over Coats.

In Wincys, Prints, Lustres, Merinos, Shawls Mantles, etc., we are showing good styles and at close prices. In our Stock too you will find a good assortment of Blankets, Quilts, Buffalo Robes, Hats, Furs, etc.

We scarcely need draw attention to our Teas. They are already widely known and deservedly popular.

Hoping to be favored with a call.

Fire Alarm.

Between two and three o'clock on Saturday evening, an alarm of fire was given, when after anxious enquiry it was found to be in Mr. Wm Hamilton's foundry, but before the brigade got to the place it was found that Mr. Hamilton's men had turned on their own hose and had quenched the whole thing in its infancy. We are glad to learn that little harm was done.

Lincoln

Cap. Norris (Reform, and Dr. Jukes, Conservative, have published their addresses, and are asking the Electors of Lincoln for their votes.) Dr. Jukes makes the Reciprocity Treaty the hobby he intends to ride during the canvass The Capt. will defend the Treaty. He endorses it fully. This contest will test the feelings of this Country on this vexed question.

Sale of Building Lots.

That beautiful parcel of land lying immediately north of Mr John Hall's residence on Rubidge Street is to be offered for sale by Public Auction in six lots of 64 x 114 feet each. The land has been owned by an absentee, and has long been enquired after by persons in search of fine building sites. We understand the terms of sale are liberal. The sale is to be on Monday, 26th inst., at 2 p.m.

Church Opening or Dedication.

The didication of the New Bible Christian Church here, will take place on Sunday, 25 instant, and there will be a dinner and addresses on Monday. Dinner to be at 12.30 o'clock. Several of the ablest Ministers of the denomination will be present on Sunday, and also on Monday. The Church is a very chaste brick building, 73 x 43 feet, with a basement for Sabbath School, Mr. Wand the Contractor, has done his part well. The whole will be neat and comfortable, and it certainly proves the wisdom and good taste of the promoters. Although not equal to the New W. M. Church in architectural design or cost, it will answer its own purpose and the wants of the Denomination much better. The cost will be about $6000. All should go and assist the enterprise on both days of the dedication services.

The Gas Company

Have made extensive additions to their buildings and apparatus, and are still at work hurrying the whole to complete it. They expect to have their new receiver and appliances in operation by the 1st of the month, before they hope to be able to give increased light, or, at least, a larger quantity of Gas. For some time their measure was not after the scriptures model, flowing over. The good time however, is coming.

City Clothing Store

The City Clothing store has an extensive and well selected stock of Ready-made Clothing and cloths of the best quality, and latest styles. He is prepared to furnish complete gentlemen's outfits on short notice and best fits. Mr. LeBrun will be found ready and accomodating, and he has a large stock to select from. Having secured the services of a first-class cutter he is prepared to supply the neatest fits on short notice.

Left for California.

Mr. German Brock and family left on Tuesday for California A large number of acquainances accompanied them to the train to bid them that sad word, "farewell," Mr. Ed. Carver, so long and favorably known as so obliging and attentive in the Post Office here, accompanied them. Mr. Kelleher and his wife, a daughter of Mr. Wm Young, of Young's Point, also left for the same place on the same train. Our best wish accompany them all to their distant western abode.

Lachrymose Still.

The Mail Manager has not been able to dry up his tears on account of the verdict in the Whellams Libel case. He is an injured man. A jury found him guilty and a judge fined him $200, for libelling Whellams to get at McKellar. By all means let the Mail and other papers criticise Mr. McKellars public acts, but why destroy an inoffensive servant in order to get at the master. Let the Mail dry up its tears, and repent of its wickedness, sorrow for the evil is not repentance of the crime.

The Coasting Trade.

There is a strong probability that the Hon. Geo. Brown, when he went to Washington six weeks ago with the draft treaty obtained still better terms from the American Government for submission to the Senate. The principal concession he proposed is that the salt water coasting trade be given to the Canadian vessels. This would be a great boon to the maritime provinces especially. Gen. Butler and Speaker Blain have publicly denounced this portion of the treaty.

Anent Dr. Bangin

The dreadful Grit defeat turns out to be a Grit victory. If this is the kind of information which the Mail party has to accept from the leading organs, it is no wonder that they are becoming objects of pity. It is true if Mr. McDonald should say one word against Geo. Brown or the Treaty they would claim, him but may posses their souls in patience. They are domed to even greater disappointments. The day of their political bondage is not yet fulfilled. Unless they can make friends with the unrighteous mammon, which is not likely, for a long time

Fatal Case or Shooting.

On last Friday as Mr. Edmund Chamberlen, of Smith, eldest son of Wm. Chamberlin Esq., of Otonabee, was in his canoe and was drawing the gun to him to shoot some ducks, the shot was discharged, and entering his right breast proved fatal. He was unmarried, and he and his sister lived together on a farm he had lately purchased. About noon on Friday he saw some ducks on the bay near his place, and took a gun to shoot them. He entered his canoe and proceeded towards the small Island, but either before he reached it, or, on returning from it the accident happened as above related. A boy seeing him apparently fall over in the canoe, ran and told Mr. James Tindle who hurried to him; and when he got there found his head leaning partly over the side of the canoe, almost lifeless. He was taken ashore, but he immediately expired, in about ten miuutes after the report of the shot was heard. He was a quiet and amiable young man, 25 years of age. His sorrowing parents and brothers took the body to his father's residence, whence his remains were taken and interred on Sunday.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—In the last issue of the EXAMINER you published a few verses composed upon the death of a neighbor's wife. It was at the earnest request of her husband that I wrote the few verses upon her death I read them over to him the night before he died. I stated in those verses that her husband was in a feeble state of body at the time of her death. Now, Sir, as you and many of you readers are aware, before those verses went to press her husband had closed his eyes in death. Such was the reason for me composing the following LINES UPON HIS DEATH.

Oppressed with grief he stood with drooping head,
Gazing in anguish on his silent dead;
There locked in death the partner of his life,
No more to answer to the name of wife.
I knew the thoughts that pressed upon his mind,
He told me he would not be long behind;
Some faint fore-knowledge—power he did not know
Told him o'er long cruel death would lay him low;
Suffering severe from Dropsical disease,
Slowly, still upward creeping by degrees
The heart is reached, the water overflows,
Death, king of terrors, struck the fatal blow.
How strange to us is God's mysterious ways—
Betwixt their deaths two weeks and two short days;
Near fifty years they lived together here,
How short their parting, and their deaths so near.
The pains of death he calmly did endure,
And why? because he felt his soul secure;
Mark well his words, "O Lord, thy will be done,
This night I trust in God's eternal Son."
We knew him as an early pioneer,
Chopping down forests now in fields so clear
Through trials and hardships diligence repays,
With peace and plenty in his feeble days.
He led a quiet and inoffensive life,
A friend of peace no enemy to strife;
Upon religion freely would exhort,
His views were clear, his words decisive, short.
Serving his master as through life he tred
For years an Elder in the House of God;
Performing duties Jesus did command,
The bread of life to fellow creatures hand,
A well spent life at death true peace will bring,
So death with him was robbed of every sting;
The cross of Christ, the precious blood He shed,
Procured for him a peaceful dying bed.
Death brings its horrors to the stoutest heart,
Sad struggle when the soul and body part;
They view the past, crimes, sin and guilt to shore,
The future suffering anguish and despair.
How different was it with that long aged pair,
Through life their mottо was for death prepare;
Death's summons came at the third watch of night,—
Their grave trimmed lamps were burning clear and bright.
The tender wife, death mined her for his prize,
To heal the wound the husband took likewise;
Peace to their ashes till the dead awake,
They sleep together near the Little Lake.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS' EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. D.r. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H Cole, of Iona, writes, "please forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out; it can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil. I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Riverina, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoyne, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes, "Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Propr., N. Y., and

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpasses in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by sufferine and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diphtheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious choic, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

PROSTATION, resulting from the effects of the intense heat of the summer months, is the exposing cause of so many of the diseases peculiar to hot weather. The stomach partaking of the loss of vitality pervading the whole system, is unable to complete digestion the food passing undissolved through the bowels, irritates the lining membrane, and Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, and when prevailing Asiatic Cholera, may be excited. Attention to diet, moderate exercise, bathing, and regular habits must be observed. To maintain the vital forces and prevent lassitude and exhaustion. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is unquestionably reliable, as it invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies material for generating nerve force.

PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS

BY PAINTING YOUR ROOF WITH

Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint

You not only preserve your Shingles, but render your roof both

FIRE and WATER PROOF.

READ THE FOLLOWING TESTIMONIALS:—

Office of Easton & Carrier, Ottawa Steam Mills, Ottawa, September 7th, 1874.

To Mr. J. SHEPHERD, Painter, &c., Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in testifying to the excellence Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint, with which you coated our mills and other building, at Hull. As a preventative against accident by fire, we consider it superior to any other, and would not now be without it for double its cost.

Truly yours,
EATSON & CURRIER.

Ottawa, September 8th, 1874.

Mr. JOHN SHEPHERD, Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—I have great pleasure in testifying that Gline's Patent Slate Paint, with which you painted the roofs of some outbuildings belonging to the Sparks Estate, has given every satisfaction, and I believe it is superior to any other preparation now in use. It appears to harden the shingles almost equal to slate, and must be a great preventitive of fire.

Yours, &c.,
CHAS. MAGEE.

Ottawa, September 8th, 1874.

To whom it may concern.

After having used Glines Patent Slate Roofing Paint on all our roofs, we have much pleasure in recommending it as the best roofing paint we know of for painting roofs of every description. It is without an equal for single roofs, as it stops all leaks, preserves the shingles, and makes the roof fire-proof. We would not be without it on our roofs for three times its cost.

T. W. CURRIER & Co.

Ottawa, August 30th, 1874.

Mr. J. SHEPHERD.

Dear Sir,—In answer to your enquiry as to how I like my roofs since you gave them such a thorough coating of the Patent Slate Composition Paint, I beg to say that I would not be without it for three times the cost, as I can sleep now without fear of any burning shingles or sparks from fires doing me any harm, and I consider that every man who wishes to preserve his property should give it a coat of the Patent Slate Paint either through you or some other equally good painter.

Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM GREEN.

Ottawa, September 12th, 1874.

Mr. JOHN SHEPHERD.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in testifying to Gline's Patent Slate Roofing Paint, with which you painted my roofs, and would say that it has more than met my expectations, being all that you represented it, and now would recommend it to the confidence of the public.

HUGH MASON.

Toronto, June 8th, 1874.

To Messrs. S. A. RUSSELL & Co., Agents, New York Slate Roofing Co. Toronto.

Gentlemen,—We have used your Slate Paint on our roof, and it gives perfect satisfaction, and we deem it superior to anything ever offered to the public in the way of paint; especially for protection against damage from fire and water.

LOrd Dufferin on Spurious Literature

Those who have read carefully the numerous addresses delivered by his Excellency the Governor General during his present tour through the Province must have been struck by the elegance of diction and felicity of expression which characterized them all. He is quite "at home" on all subjects. In reply to the address of the faculty of the new Wesleyan Female College at Whitby, His Excellency thus referred to a class of literature so common and popular at the present time:

"My views in regard to education are so sufficiently known that it is unnecessary for me to state them upon the present occasion, but I cannot help saying that I take it as a most happy augury that in the room in which we are placed there should stand the bust of one of the princes of European literature, of a man the healthiness of whose mind and the high standard of the perfect taste of whose compositons it would be well if his successors in literature would imitate. I allude to Sir Walter Scott. I do not know whether it would be out of place to remark that there are dangers against which it is advisable for all those who are interested in the healthy intellectual training of the youth of this continent, and particularly of its female youth, to guard. Of late there has sprung up a class of literature which in my opinion contributes but very little to the only two essential objects in the inspiration which it ought to be the aim and object of all literature to promote. There has arisen of late a school of writers whose chief object seems to be to extract amusement and to awake laughter by turning everything that is noble, elevated, and reverenced by the rest of the world, into ridicule, to substitute parody for invention, and coarse vulgarity for the tender humor of a better day, or if this error is avoided, a sickly, morbid sentimentalism is substituted, more corrupting than absolute vice, or a historical sensationalism which is as bad as either. I cannot but think that it is a great matter that in our schools we should take the greatest pains to maintain a standard of healthy, robust, and refined taste. His Excellency concluded by thanking the authorities of the school for the very flattering remarks contained in their address.

Origin of Penny Postage.

A traveller sauntering through the lake districts of England, arrived at a small inn just as the postman stopped to deliver a letter. A young girl came out to receive it. She took the letter in her hand and turning it over and over, asked the charge it was a large sum—no less than a shilling. Sighing heavily she said that it came from her brother, but that she was too poor to take it in. The traveller, a kind man offered to pay the postage himself and notwithstanding the strong reluctance of the girl, he did pay it and gave her the letter. No sooner had the post man departed, however, than she confessed that the letter was empty, herself and brother having agreed that certain signs on the direction should convey all that they wished. The traveller pursued his journey but as he plodded over the Cumberland fells, he mused upon the badness of a system which could drive the people to such straits for means of correspondence and thus defeat its own objects. With most men musings would have ended the matter, but this man's name was Rowland Hill and it was from this incident and these reflections that the scheme of Penny Postage was derived in England.

Brigham Young & Ann Eliza.

Brigham Young has made an answer to Ann Eliza's application for divorce. He denies that he and Ann Eliza at any time intermarried, or that she is, or ever has been, his wife. He says that Ann Eliza is the lawful wife of James L. Dee, to whom she was married in 1863, and also that she is his spiritual wife, he, Brigham, being a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints, believing that it is rightful for members to enter into celestial marriages. They were so married in 1868, but that he then informed her that she could not expect his society or personal attention as an ordinary wife. He objects to paying $20,000 to her attorney and $1,000 per month to her. He says that all his property does not exceed in value the sum of $600,000 and that his income does not exceed $6,000 per month; that he has a large family, now consisting of sixty-three persons, all of whom are dependent upon him for supports.

The "Evening News" says in relation to the answer of Brigham Young in the Ann Eliza divorce and the alimony suit:—Our readers will readily perceive that the answer, being constructed in technical style for legal purposes only, is necessarily of an essentially different character to that of any informal statement.

The "Tribune" presents the record from the Probate Court showing Ann Eliza to have been divorced from James L. Dee, December 25, 1865, and states that the judgment was made at the request of Brigham Young in writing, addressed to the presiding judge. The claim is made that the Superior Court of this territory, having ruled that the Probate Court had no jurisdiction in divorce cases, that Ann Eliza still remains the wife of Dee.

Death to King Alcohal.

Father Stafford is out in another letter on the manufacture and sale of whiskey. There is a fearful earnestness in what the Rev. gentleman says which makes us shudder for the fate of such men as Messrs. Goodersham and Worts, and the legion of retailers, if he had the power, as he evidently has the will, to dispose of their case. In the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, New York, he thus addresses himself to the editor:—

DEAR SIR:—Put me down as a subscribert for The Union. If you are advocating the entire destruction of the infernal traffic it will be all the more welcome among us. I may add I would like much to help the circulation of a Temperance paper interesting to young boys. A Total Prohibition paper would read well in my parish.

I am still looking for an evil equal to the whiskey evil. I am still looking for a reason why the State should not in self defence prohibit liquor. I am still at a loss to discover why condign punishment is not inflicted on whiskey rogues and venders. I am still puzzled to find a reason why men should chain the harmless fox, and let loose the tiger, I would chain the tiger if I had my way; that is, I would inflict the greatest punishment on the greatest malefactor.—Yours, truly,

M. STAFFORD, Pastor.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE. TEMPERANCE DRINK.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Invetcrate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully loathsome, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public cannot need to be informed of its virtues.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of every form of fatal disease, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Here on occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear, if persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various grievous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the most inveterate cases, whether of Mercury, Lencorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also do Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the multiplied poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the Affections or symptoms of Weakness will find immediate relief and continuing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a preventive against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, it should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. No complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of those who, at home, can assure the people that its antidotes are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no case is there any patient. The number and importance of the cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of any medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies

Johnson's Force Pump and Fire Extinguisher.

For cheapness, durability, ease of working, and general efficiency, the above Plain article cannot be surpassed; it can be used as a FORCIBLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, a splendid article for washing Carriages or Windows or by changing the nozzle it can be used by a Lady or a Child to water a flower bed in the neatest and most beautiful manner. Only a bucket or tub of water required. No chemicals used. It is claimed for this Extinguisher that the stream of water thrown from it appears to be fully as efficient in the results as the acid thrown from a Babcock Extinguisher. Every house should have one. The beginning of a fire frequently occurs in such a place that it cannot be reached by water thrown from a pail or dipper, this Pump will throw a fair stream of water 45ft. horizontally, or will drench a wall to the height of 35 ft.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 29.

Read This.

The season is now the very best for thinking of the printer. Outlying accounts of old dates ought to be paid at an early date in the fall. All accounts due this office of 3 years standing will be placed in court for collection if not paid during the month of November.

THE TOWN COUNCIL

A general spirit of dissatisfaction with the acts of the present Council pervades the minds of the whole citizens. At every corner and in every office, they are the subject of discussion. Increased taxation, a large deficit, and unnecessary outlays, have caused an almost universal determination to try new men next year. Those councillors who have served the town this year, have done so at a manifest loss to themselves, and to be left at home to mind their own business, will be to them a gain, instead of a loss. In saying so we do not wish to be understood as endorsing all their acts, but we cannot be blind to the fact, that much of the outlay so much censured, has been forced on the Council by pressure from without, aided perhaps by the hope of securing new friends. There have been expenditures during the year, that might have been less extravagant, but the increased limits have added to the cost of municipal management, and will do so for a year or two longer.

The sins of the whole council are being laid to the charge of a few who are styled selfish, and extravagant, but it is only just that each member should bear the consequences of his fare share of the blame, for of praise nothing is heard. There are those who think that a cent spent in particular places is extravagance while not a word is said about hundreds of dollars expended on other works no more needed. It might not be amiss for all the council to refuse re-election, and thus allow new men to try their prentice hands in Municipal matters, although that would not cure all the evils of our situation. We understand that Mayor Cox does not intend to be a candidate next year. He considers he has more business to attend to, than would justify him in serving in the council for some time. Mr. A. Smith will in all likelihood be elected by acclamation, as his successor, and he will make an excellent successor.

The personnel of this Council may not meet the wishes of disaffected ratepayers but we do not think that any one can be singled out for particular condemnation, and hence our reasons for advocating a new council in toto, is with a view to have an opportunity of judging by comparison between them and a new batch. After a trial, the fox's reason for not driving away the flies may find fresh force in our civic history.

Equality or inequality of assessments and hence inequality in the burden of taxation is another general theme of conversation. A long list of those apparent, at least, if not real, unequal assessments have been shown us, and it certainly is a formidable looking list. These things indicate dissatisfaction with our assessors also; and indicate also a strong desire for some change, whether for the better or for the worse, remains to be seen, when the change is affected. Let us have a change in assessors by all means to satisfy the aggrieved parties.

The love of change is largely developed in the human race every where, and perhaps, it is wise to gratify it now and then: But our experience leads us to believe that change does not always effect retrenchment or even wisdom in public men or acts.

The current expenses of this year will be largely in advance of former years, but perhaps an increased amount of valuable consideration can be shown for the money and, perhaps too those who shout the loudest about errors of the Council are only seeking a chance to get in a new set of men not up to the devices of more cunning office seekers, or of those camp followers who expect to profit from the simplicity of men whom they seek to control. This price of liberty will be as necessary next year as this one, no matter who may represent us.

THE COMING CAMPAIGN

As will be seen in another column, there will be a convention of delegates on the 17th of November, to select a candidate in the interest of Reform to represent the East Riding of this County. It is intended, and desired that every Township should be represented at the rate of one for every hundred voters, on voters lists for the year. Each delegate ought to have a certificate of his appointment signed by the chairman of the meeting at which he was appointed, and by presenting these at the meeting much time will be saved.

The rumors afloat daily about the probable candidates are not to be relied upon, no one can properly assume to be a candidate of the party, until selected by them, unless he chooses to act independent of the party, which of course any one may do, and yet honestly hold the principles of the party; but his chances of election would not be strengthened by such a course.

The Reformers of each Township, will, we trust call their delegates at once, and [illegible] can find out the [illegible] the person or [illegible] the support [illegible] convention.

At the convention these names can be submitted to the delegates, and a choice made accordingly.

The choice should depend largely on the fitness of the person, and soundness of his political views; as these being all right, the work of electing the person selected is much easier.

The most cheering reports reach us from every part of the Riding, as to the certainty of our success but these should not allow us to relax a single effort, until the result of the polling is known. It will perhaps be said that it is time enough to commence the canvass. To this we would reply! Just such a spirit defeated us in West Peterborough at last election. Our opponent was in the field for months, while the Reform Candidate was but a short time before the people: men too had foolishly become indifferent as to the result, as it was only for one session; by these means and the putting in of one or two dishonest votes the conservative was elected. The friends of the present government must not allow themselves to be caught napping this time. The Conservative Club sits weekly, and the active spirits of that club, are devising means by which they hope to succeed. Succeed they cannot unless Reformers deceive themselves and while asleep allow the enemy the advantage.

Let township organizations be formed and committees appointed. To be well prepared is a token of earnestness that must give hope to the Candidate, who ever he may be, and tend to stimulate those who undertake the canvass of such a large Riding, The elections it is true will not come off till after the approaching session, which will meet on the 12th prox. but the session will not be a long one, and there is no doubt but that the elections will be during the winter.

Reformers will find their opponents ready. The work has been going on quietly but none the less surely. A desperate effort will be made to wrest these ridings from their allegiance to the present government, but we know that though the struggle may be a keen one, it will be none the less decisive in favor of the present government. Let the majority be such as to strike terror into the hearts of the great Liberal Conservative party and such as will blast their hopes of regaining power during the next twenty years.

BIBLE CHRISTIAN.

The opening services of the new Bible Christian Church, on Murray Street, during Sunday and Monday, were of the most satisfactory kind The Rev's. Barker, and Roberts, of Lindsay preached to crowded houses on Sunday: and on Monday the dinner and tea tables were largely patronized by all denominations of Christians. In the evening, addresses were delivered by the Rev's. Messrs. McWilliams, Maclennan, Fish, and Barker. Mayor Cox occupied the chair, and the addresses were exceedingly appropriate. The excellent choir of the Wesleyan Methodist church assisted in the religious services on the Sabbath, and also on Monday evening. Collections were taken up during the day and evening which with subscriptions amounted to over $1,300.

The new edifice is a very neat, comfortable building, with a basement story for a Sunday School room. The body of the building is commodious, and the seating very comfortably arranged, capable of seating between 400 and 500 persons. The total cost of the building is $3,851.41: they had previously collected $2,431.00—leaving unprovided for, $1431 00. The proceeds of bazaar, collection, and present subscription is $1,300, leaving a debt of 2.000, which they will be able to meet in a very few years.

This is an era of church improvement in this Town, as may be seen by the magnificent and comfortable places of worship erected, or in the course of erection, and we may safely say that taking into consideration the cost of the new Bible Christian church, it will compare most favorably with any church building in Peterborough.

THE HON. C F FRASER AND THE OPPOSITION

For two years past the leaders of the Opposition, in the Local Legislature, have wandered about the country retailing the most extraordinary stories in reference to the expenditure of the Administration, and depicting to their hearers the evils of direct taxation, which these birds of ill-omen pretend to see in the future. John Charles Rykert and Abraham Laudler divide the honor as to who can create the greatest sensation, and at the same time have it rest on the least foundation. We cheerfully accord the palm of victory to Rykert. Unfortunately for the little hero of St. Catharines, the Hon. C. F. Fraser has taken the platform, and the air castles from the fertile brain of John Charles have been completely demolished, and all that remains would not be worthy a place in the well-known scrap-book. Mr. Fraser, in his Glencoe speech, demonstrated conclusively that Rykert had been guilty of cooking the Public Accounts in his address. At Picton, the Hon member for South Grenville showed from the Staunch granny, the Leader, that "Rykert was the last man in whom confidence could be imposed as a politician." He also read from the same antideluvian journal that on the floor of the old Parliament he (Rykert) had been greeted with cries of "traitor" and "renegade" by the Opposition, and when he attempted to justify his support of the Government, and denied that he had attended the Opposition caucus, and that he was pledged to vote want of confidence, the declaration brought forth renewed yells from the other side of the house, such as, "you did?" "you were?" and amid this confusion the honorable gentleman sat down.

Mr. Fraser deserves the thanks of the country for the clear and lucid manner with which he has exhibited to the electors the financial state of the country, when at the same time he has unmasked the misrepresentations of the chief stock stock in trade of not only Rykert, but also the chief organ of the charter sellers, the Mail.—Ibid.

The monument to the memory of the late Hon. John Sandfield Macdonald, which it has for some time been understood was under preparation, has for some weeks past been in its appointed place in the St. Andrew's Church burial ground, Cornwall. This monument, as the inscription upon it indicates, was the spontaneous offering of cotas, was the spontaneous offering of the late honourable gentleman's personal friends throughout the Dominion. It is a handsome column, presenting a chaste and grateful memorial. The base is of grey granite, and the superstructure of Aberdeen granite highly finished. The whole is surmounted by a cross about three feet in height, the height of the structure being about fifteen feet.

EAST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH REFORM CONVENTION.

As the time is approaching when the people will be called on to elect a fit and proper person to represent them in the Local Legislature of this Province; and in order that a gentleman possessing the confidence of the party may be secured, it has been agreed to hold a convention of delegates from the several townships of the East Riding of Peterborough, in Ashburnham, on Tuesday, November 17th, prox., at 1 o'clock, p.m., to select a candidate to represent the Reform interest in the approaching election.

The Reformers of each Township are requested to select delegates, one for every 100 voters in the Municipality, and the delegates appointed are requested to meet as above.

In order to expedite the business of the convention, delegates are requested to bring a certificate of their regular appointment, signed by the chairman of the meeting at which they were selected.

JOHN LUDGATE.
Chairman of Central Reform Committee East Riding Peterborough.

Ashburnham, Oct. 24th, 1874.

TOWN COUNCIL.

There was a special meeting of the Town Council on Tuesday evening for general business.

Present. Mayor Cox and Messrs. Hamilton, Helm, Paterson, Hopkins, Denne, Robertson, Rutherford & Beal.

The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Several communications and petitions were read and referred as follows:—

From E. Pearse, County Clerk, notifying the Council that a committee of the County Council would meet in the County Clerk's office on the 5th of November, to arrange financial matters relative to the portions annexed to the town. The Clerk was instructed to notify the committee appointed by the Town Council.

From Rev. V. Clementi in reference to a man and his wife named Bennett, lately out from England, who are objects of charity, being unable to work. Referred to the charity committee.

From Miss Rogers, asking the usual annual grant of $200. This was left over for next Council, as $200 has been paid in this year.

From C. Stapleton, tendering his resignation as Chief Eeugineer of the Fire Brigade. Referred to the fire committee.

From Jas. English, asking for 2 weeks leave of absence. Granted on condition that he find a substitute.

From R. B. Lundy, in reference to the Bridge on Brock Street not being high enough to let the water through in the Spring, and stating, if not remedied, he would hold the Council responsible for damages, if any should be inflicted. Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

From John Martin, asking $75 a day for 40 days attendance in the small pox hospital—no doubt 75 cents is meant. A certificate accompanied the communication, that he, Martin, had been there 40 days, and had discharged his duties efficiently. Referred to the Finance Committee.

From R. P. Corey, in reference to his attendance in the small pox hospital, and stating that he had been promised $500 to $1000 for his services, as he could not be dispensed with to manage the affairs of the hospital, and see that medicines were rightly administered. Received.

From Mr. J. Irwin Davidson, in reference to a pool of water on the corner of Aylmer and London Streets, and asking to have it removed. After discussion, the Inspector told them it could not be removed unless the street were raised at a large cost.

From Mr. W. Tully, asking for an abatement of taxes, on account of losses by fire. Received.

From Matilda Wilson, also asking for abatement of taxes. Received.

From John Kelly and others, asking for a sidewalk on Reed Street, between Charlotte and Sherbrooke streets, which was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

From John Mitchell and others, praying that opposite his house on Chambers street be fixed, as the cutting of the street had done him much damage. Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

From Wm. O'Brien, Clerk of Douro, in reference to a portion of the M. Loan Fund due to the Town, on account of the portion annexed thereto.

From William Hamilton, in reference to a portion of Murray street, which was received.

From T. Donnelly, asking for a gas lamp opposite the new W. M. Church on Charlotte street. Referred to the Gas Committee.

The Report from the Fire Brigade showed 37 men connected with the engine and 20 to work the hose department; and also stating that since November 1st, 1873, there had been 19 fires in town. The Treasurer was instructed to pay to the Treasurer of the Brigade the usual annual allowance.

The Report states the Engine is in good repair, but a large part of the hose unfit for use. Several accounts were referred to the Finance Committee

The Clerk submitted a statement of disbursements since last meeting.

The Mayor asked the Clerk if he had delayed the making out of the Roll from the 14th to the 28th, as reported in the Times. The Clerk said no; he had gone on with the work but did not enter it until after the 28th, waiting to see if the rate might be changed, hence the report was not correct.

Mr. D. Lumay was heard before the Council in reference to a fine for erecting a shed in the fire limits, which he said was better than was required by By-law. Here some cross-firing took place between Mr. Lemay and the Inspector. The matter was referred to the Fire Committee to report to the Council.

REPORT OF FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The chairman reported the adoption of the Small Pox Committee report, with the exception of J. Brown's account for Casey's coffin, which has been paid by Casey's friends.

Also the account of Wm. Yelland, for wood for the Hospital, passed by chairman of of S. P. Committee, $2.50. Geo. Stethem's account, also passed by chairman of the S. P. Committee $6.75.

Your committee also beg to recommend payment of George Hilliard's account for $930.

Estate of late S. Dickson $375.43.
Boyd, Smith & Co. $930.00.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
W. BEAL,
Chairman F. Com.

Received and adopted.

Moved by Mr. Patterson, seconded by Mr. Beal,—That Mr. Lemay's complaint in reference to the building inspector be referred to the Fire Committee to report to this Council at next meeting. Carried.

Moved by Mr Patterson, seconded by Mr. Hopkins,—That the Street Inspector proceed with the work on Brock Street, and lower the side walk on the north side of the Street between George and Water Street, and also have the top of the bank lowered and covered so as to protect it from frost. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Beal, seconded by Mr. Rutherford,—That the members of this who composed the late small-pox Committee be and are hereby authorized to dispose of the lumber remaining at the small pox hospital building to the best advantage, and report at the next meeting of this Council. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Denne, seconded by Mr D Hopkins,—That Mr Stevenson be allowed the use of the Fire Engine to fill the Tank at the Gas House as asked for last night, and he to pay all expenses, and furnish coal. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Paterson, seconded by Mr. Robertson,—That owing to petition of John McClelland and others asking for a plank walk on Hunter Street West of Reid Street, it was agreed in Committee to put a gravel walk down, but the Street inspector could not get gravel fit for it without buying it. Be it therefore resolved, as there is a considerable amount of lumber in the yard which will not be used this season, that the parties be granted material for a four plank walk, they laying it themselves. Carried.

YEAS: Robertson, Hopkins, Denne, Paterson and Beal.

NAYS: Hamilton, Helm and Rutherford.

Council adjourned for one week.

FROM THE VICTORIA WARDS.

A SAD EVENT.

An inquest was held on Sunday, last by Dr. Pooles Coroner, on the body of the late Waterman Playter, (lot 29, in the 1st concession of Ops) who had hanged himself in his barn on the morning of that day. From the evidence it appeared the deceased was a man of nervous and excitable temperament, whom small troubles would affect greatly. Since last spring he was subject to despondency, and this appears to have been increased by recent events, especially in consequenae of having sold his land, which he seemed to have much regretted. Deceased was a sober steady, industrious man, but of late was, impressed with the idea that everything was going on wrong. A few weeks ago he had to be watched at nights and prevented from escaping from the house. He slept badly and could hardly be made believe that people were not carrying off his substance. Within a few days he seemed better, and rode into Lindsay on Saturday; but be continued confused in his mind, and was frequently heard saying that he had ruined his family and his parents who with himself, were preparing to leave the farm. He rested badly on Saturday night, and on Sunday morning assisted his little son to feed some of the stock, still repeating "We are ruined." Both returned to the house, and half an hour after the father was missing; and when sought for was at at length found suspended by the neck by means of a stout rope attached above to the perline plate of the barn. The mow underneath was full of sheaves of grain nearly to the roof, and here the fatal act was committed. The rope was taken from off the neck of one of the horses, where it was used as a halter, and a small one substituted in place of it. When found his feet were resting on the sheaves and even his knees almost touched the grain underneath. Strangulation must have been slow for there was hardly any drop and no discoloration. The verdict was that he had hanged himself while laboring under extreme mental despondency. The event has cast a gloom over the neighbourhood and much sympathy is felt for his wife who is in very precarious health.

A MAN DROWNED.

A man named Peter McCabe, who resided on the west side of the river Scugog, near the Cross Creeks, left Lindsay late on Saturday evening in a canoe to return home. As he failed to reach home, and his canoe was found floating on the east side of the river nearly opposite Mr. Thomas Hooey's, search was made for his body, which was found late on Sunday night, almost under the canoe, in water only three or four feet deep. As the canoe was a large one, not easily upset, and as sundry articles were found in it apparently just placed there, including a fiddle, a bottle half full of whiskey, and the hat and coat of the deceased, the inference seemed to be that he had stood up to push the canoe away from some obstruction, and in this position had fallen overboard and failed to recover himself. Deceased called at a camp of two Indians, a little above the Elbow, and remained there a short time playing upon the fiddle. Patrick O'Connel also arrived there about the same time, but remained with the Indians all night, and heard or saw nothing more of McCabe after he left the camp, at he thinks about nine o'clock at night. At a late hour the wind rose, and it was dark and cold. At the inquest, which was held on Monday, by Dr. Poole, O'Connel's evidence went to show that deceased was sober and steady enough when they parted, and from the other witnesses it appeared that more liquor than was taken out of tho bottle, or even than it contained, would not have materially impressed the nerves of the unfortunate man. The jury found that deceased had accidentally fallen out of his boat, and so came to his death. Deceased leaves a wife and family to lament his sad end, which should be a warning to other who may be tempting a similar fate.

Can They not Tell the Truth?

The Opposition in Ontario have had just one string to harp on, and this one they have thrum out so that there is no music in it, That single string was the Central Prison Contract to Dickey, Neil & Coy., which the quartette represented as given to them at their own prices, and without contract or tender. This now turns out to be a pure fabrication on the part of Lauder, Cameron and Rykert, as the following letter will show:—

To W. Lauder, Esq., M. P. P.

SIR,—A few days of involuntary leisure has enabled me to indulge in the rather tedious pastime of reading some of your recent political speeches as they are reported in the Mail newspaper.

Let me refer you to a few of your public utterances by way of illustrating your mode of conducting a political campaign. I will confine myself to a few points where the evidence against you is indisputable.

In your speech at Clifford, as reported in the Mail of the 28th of August, you say:—"While the Contracts for the Central Prison, Mr. Elliott, was going on with his work the Government stepped up to him and said, 'You must get out of this; you are not going on fast enough; we wish to finish this job ourselves.' In doing this, in using their money and his, those who thus interfered were pledged to do the best they could for the country. This they did not do, but went to Mr. Nathaniel Dickey, and said, 'You have been a good friend to us, you have opposed a political opponent of ours, you did your best to defeat Mr. Lauder: walk in, Mr. Dickey, walk in; charge your own prices, employ whom you like, and do just as you like.' Mr. Dickey went to work without a tender, and no doubt got a nice profit out of the thing."

Now, let us see how much proof there is to rest these statements on; let it be borne in mind that Mr. Cameron, Mr. Rykert and yourself, who have rung the changes on this question of letting work without tender, were members of Publi Accounts Committee. That the correspondence, tenders, contracts, etc., between the Government and several contractors for the Central Prison were in the hands of the Committee for weeks.

The work done by Dickey, Neill & Co. for the Government was regularly tendered for, and the tenders, together with the contract were before you. Nay, further, I was in the Committee room when Rykert and yourself were examining these very documents, the existence of which you deny. I saw you read the tender of Dickey, Neil & Co., bearing date the 27th of November, 1872. I saw you comparing the tenders and examining the prices, when of course you were obliged to admit that the tender of Dickey, Neill & Co., was the lowest. I also saw you turning over the leaves of the contract between the Government and Dickey, Neill & Co., bearing date the 2nd of January, 1873, where the prices set forth in the tender were copied as the prices to be paid for the work contracted for; and yet you, Mr. Rykert, and others have repeatedly made the statement that there was no tender, no contract, etc., and in the extract above quoted you say, "Mr. Dickey went to work without tender," and, in fact was told to "charge your own prices, &c, &c. But in the above extract you also say that the Government took the work from Mr. Elliott in order to get it into their own hands, and then they "went to Nathaniel Dickey and said, 'You have been a good friend to us; you have opposed a political opponent of ours; you did your best to defeat Lauder; walk in, Mr. Dickey, charge your own prices, and do just as you like," &c. &c. Now, Sir, the only particle of truth contained in the above consists in the fact that the Government did take the work from Mr. Elliott. It is not true that they, or any person on their behalf, came to Mr. Dickey. It is not true that Mr. Dickey, or any person on his behalf, did any portion of the work, or charged or was paid one cent for any such work. The whole story is a deliberately made up slander, told with such dramatic airs, for the purpose of exciting the people against the Government.

You know perfectly well that Mr. Elliott is a builder; that his contract was for the brick, stone, and carpenter work and inside fixtures of the Central Prison, Dickey, Neill & Co., are engineers and machinists, and their contract was for the building of two steam engines and boilers, some shafting, hangers, and castings for the workshops, in no way connected with Mr. Elliott's contract.

The Government took the work from Mr. Elliott on the eighteenth day of September, 1873, more than eight months after the date of Dickey, Neill & Co's contract and at a time when the contract of Dickey, Neill & Co. was almost finished, and you knew perfectly well no proof of Mr. Elliott's contract ever came into the hands of Dickey, Neill & Co. in consequence of the change. All this you had in black and white before you in the Committee room, yet you are not ashamed or afraid to take the responsibility of this clumsy fabrication in the effort to make a point against the Government

In your Glencoe speech reported in the Mail of the 21st of September, you again repeat much of what I have already quoted, and in addition you say, "The work done was charged for by the gentleman in question (Mr. Dickey) at about $60,000, and none of it was competed for." What term is applicable to the man who, whith the public accounts in his hands, could make such a statement as this? It must be within your knowledge that neither $60,000 nor the half of that sum was claimed by Dickey, Neil & Co., or paid to them by the Government on all or any account whatsoever. Yet this is the sort of politics Mr. Rykert, Mr. Boultbee, and yourself have been inflicting upan the electors of Ontario.

Even the Hon. M. C. Cameron, who was wont to be esteemed by men of all parties as a man of honor, seems, with the loss of power and place, to have lost his regard for the amenities of political warfare, and though he may not yet have stooped to the vile practice of fabricating slander, there is too much reason to believe he is not ashamed to avail himself of these advantage it may produce in his favor.

I am curious to see what course you, Sir, will adopt, or whether you will make any attempt, before the people you have so grossly decived, to reconcile the facts as they are on record with the statements you have made. I confess, however, I am afraid you will be but little influence by either one or the other, and I would not have written this letter but that I owe it to myself that the truth you so shamefully prevent and conceal should be placed before those whose distance from the capital might limit their knowledge of the utter unreliability of your statements.

Your Obedient Servant,
NATHANIEL DICKEY.

SECESSION OF CANDIDATES.

(From the B. C. Observer)

The importance of the subject is our justification for again calling attention to the selection of candidates for the approaching Electoral contest.

Our readers, the large majority of whom are members of, or in through sympathy with the Bible Christian Denomination are sufficiently strong, in several Ridings, to make their influence felt in the selection of a candidate, and should not allow themselves to be ignored in a matter of so much importance. Now, let it be understood that we do not advise that this or that nationality shall influence the choice. As we see it, the time will come, the sooner the better for the country, when we shall cease to speak of ourselves as English, Scotch or Irish. We are Canadians, an integral part of the British Empire, having interests to conserve, peculiarly our own as Canadians, and also interests to conserve in common with the other great portions of the Empire, o'er which our beloved Queen sways the sceptre.

But we do advise, and urgently press our advice, that in the selection of candidates, care be taken to have for standard bearers, men of "Good moral character. Think of Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Bible Christians, and others, agreeing to select as their Parliamentary Representative, a drunkard, a debauchee

The inconsistency of the act must strike every one. The cry of party, in justification of such an act, is simply absurd. There are men enough of good character, on both sides of politics, to furnish all the candidates required. Such men are not of them who thrust themselves upon a Constituency, nor will they readily subject themselves to the degradation usually associated with canvassing a Riding. Why should they? If a Constituency desires certain services, let them say so, and if the gentleman so invited consents to serve, it shall be the business of the parties inviting him, to do their honest endeavor to secure his return. It may be argued, that to press our views at the present time, would, in some instances, endanger the seat. We question that. Let it be known that no inconsiderable minority of this or that party, absolutely refuses to vote or work for the return of an immoral man, and a moral man will soon be found; but even supposing it to be, that the Party Leader, as they are called,, turn a deaf ear to the remonstrants, and thrust the ableobjection candidate forward then refrain from voting, and let theopposing candidate go in. They will thus learn that you are in earnest, and will carefully avoid a repetition of theirfolly.

"Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people."

WHERE ARE YOUR MEN?

The Irish Canadian, thus puts the question, but he does not find an answer.

Such was the interrogatory of the late Hon. John Sandfield M'Donald, when remonstrated with by a number of Irish Catholic gentlemen, because they were unrepresented on the flour of the House of Assembly. Indignation strongly felt influenced us at the time in pronouncing such a startling question an insult; but we are forced, at this a later day, to the sad conclusion that, although sneeringly put, it expressed a bitter truth. We are on the eve of a general election. There are not a few counties in Ontario where good, well tried Catholic Reformers could contest particular Ridings with every hope of success; yet the question might still be asked: "Where are your men?

This is to be deplored, and especially so as we are credibly informed that several Catholic gentlemen have been waited on by influential deputations and solicited to accept nominations—which were refused. If our information be correct, we are indeed in an unenviable plight. Through this fair Province—in every Village, Town and city that we have visited, we were rejoiced to find not an inconsiderable number of our people prosperous and well-doing, whether on the farm, in business, or in the learned professions. A large per centage of them had fully mastered the position, and could afford to make some sacrifice for the common weal. Still the question remains unanswered: "Where are your men?" We hope to have a favorable reply from some quarter before our next issue.

THE FIJI ISLANDS ANNEXED TO GREAT BRITAIN.

The telegraph last Wednesday informed us of the voluntary cession of the Fiji Islands to the Government or Great Britain. For some time the natives of Fiji have been desirous of placing themselves under the protection of the British flag, but the Imperial Government did not appear to be so anxious to accept the trust as the Fijians were to have it completed, and for some time the project hung fire. Recently the Government commissioned Sir Hercules Robinson to visit the islands, and if his inquiries proved satisfactory to extend to them the protectorate of Great Britain as desired by the people. The islands thus added to the British Empire are situated in the South Pacific, and were at one time noted as the home of the fiercest race of cannibals in the universe. There are 225 islands in the group, about 80 of which only are inhabited, the population being variously estimated at from 130,000 to 300,000. The two largest islands are Viti Levu (Great Feejee) and Vanua Levu (Great Land), the former 90 miles in length by 50 in width, and the latter more than 100 miles long, with an average width of 26 miles. The islands are of volcanic origin, a few being of choral formation.—There are mountains on Viti Levu 4,000 to 5,000 feet in height, and on Vanua Levu are several hot springs, the temperature of which is about 200 to 220 degrees, the natives it is said boiling yams in them. The climate is said to be more debilitating than dangerous to white men. The soil is a deep yellow loam, vegetation is luxuriant cotton grows wild, and all kinds of tropical fruits and plants can be cultivated with ease. Many of the islands are adapted for the cultivation of coffee. The coast fisheries are inexhaustible, the turtle fishing alone being a rich source of revenue to several tribes. The Fiji Islanders are expert manufacturers of native cloth, pottery and wicker ware, and are above the average savage in intelligence and ingenuity. They have been in commercial intercourse with Europeans since 1806, and the importance of the islands in a commercial point of view is considerable. Although the native rulers have brought the country into financial difficulties of a serious nature, the settlement of which will fall to a great extent upon Great Britain, it is believed England will profit largely by the monopoly which her protectorate gives her over the trade of the islands. British rule will also improve the condition of the people, and impart a feeling of security to merchants and traders that will invite trade from all parts of the civilized world. Exchange.

BARLEY.—In the season of 1873 Port Hope shipped 203,316 bushels of barley. This year it will probably figure up to 250,000, a good increase and one which shows yearly fairly the extra quantity grown about here. Tells in many ways the 45 per cent. Osborne makes such a fuss over, the latter being due to the high prices offered, thereby inducing people to come into that place from a [illegible] range of country than it [illegible]—Port Hope Guide.

FENELON FALLS.

LAMENTABLE SUICIDE.

The report that Mr. Waterman Playter, of the 1st Concession of Ops, had committed suicide, is to true. It appears that some months ago he sold his farm, which he afterwards bitterly regretted, frequently saying that he and his family were ruined, and on the morning of Sunday last he went to the barn and hanged himself. An inquest was held and a verdict returned to the effect that he had destroyed himself while labouring under extreme mental despondency.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

On Wednesday last a sad accident occurred to a young man named Stoddard by which he lost his life. It appears he was employed by Mr. John McArthur of Ops, hauling some lumber from the mill near the wharf in this town, when he was by some means thrown off, and the wheel passed over his breast, receiving such injures as to cause his death in a few minutes. We understand deceased was from Peterborough.

A GRAVE CHARGE.

On Monday morning last a young man named Levi Wager was brought before Thomas Lockhart, Esq., J. P., on the very serious charge of having outraged a young girl named Newbury, who on the evening of the 16th inst. went to spend the night with Wager's step-sister, as all the other members of the family were away and not expected to return before morning. The two young men, however, come home, and one of them went to bed, while the other, Levi, remained up with an intention which Miss Newbury swore he carried into effect by force and violence; and her evidence were so positive that the magistrate send the prisoner to Lindsay to await his trial. The examination was held within closed doors, but as the nature of the evidence seems to be generally known, there is no necessity for the Gazette to repeat it. The parties both live in Fenelon, and are near neighbours.—Fenelon Fall Gazette

TURNIPS.—Mr. Epton's six turnips that took the first prize at the show weighed 58 pounds. How is that for the back country!

LARGE POTATOE.—Mr. Wm. Gainer showed us a potatoe that grew in his field that weighed 3 lbs. 2oz. It can be seen at Mr Bucks Hotel.

SEVERAL men and teams are to be seen daily making their way to the woods for the winter. How about no lumbering this year?

ONE day last week a young man named Thomas Hambly was nearly killed by a kick from a horse running away on the railroad.

MR J. HYDE'S six squashes that he exhibited on Friday last weighed over 300 pounds and he said that he had over one hundred on a very small patch of ground

WE noticed a nice little pumpkin at the show on Friday, labelled "The Haliburton Pumpkin Eclipsed," and were told that if it had been at the Haliburton Show it would have taken the prize, but it was not big enough for this part of the County,

Half-a-dozen electors of the county of Essex protested, before the re-election, against the return of Mr McGregor, and, called upon the Returning Officer to take no notice of his being a candidate. This unusual form of protest was based on the allegation that Mr. McGregor "has been proved guilty before the proper tribunal of using certain of the means of corruption" mentioned in the 16th section of the Election Act. Mr. McGregor was not found guilty of personal corruption, but was unseated for bribery by agents. The court did not declare him disqualified for re election. Whether bribery by an agent so disqualifies the unseated member is a point on which no judicial decision has yet been pronounced. There is a strong opinion among the legal fraternity that, though perhaps not intended, the law does in fact inflict disqualification for that cause.

We learn from the Fenelon Falls Gazette that a strange accident happened recently to a man engaged on the railway cutting near Green & Ellis' mill in that village. The individual in question, whose name was not learned, was holding the drill, from which a morsel of steel was detatched by a blow from the hammer, and the sharp fragment of metal, flying upward, literally cut the man's throat, inflicting a wound from which there was quite a considerable flow of blood.

A Mistake.

By mistake last week two columns were placed in the form without proof correction. It is needless to say that the orthography was not according to Webster. The mischief of one careless act, however, cannot always be easily rectified, and sorrow for error, we are aware, hardly atones for it.

Argenteuil Election.

The election contest in this county, just vacated by Mr. Abbott, is progressing. Both candidates claim to be independent, but one is an independent supporter of the present Government, the other absolutely independent—and both are hopeful of success—yet one will be defeated.

Farmers Prospering.

Mr. George Webber sold his farm (150 acres) in Smith, last week for $10,500, or $70 an acre. He bought it about 3 or 4 years ago at $40 per acre in part, and part at a little less. Mr. James McKibbin was offered $80 an acre for his farm of $150 acres, and Mr. George Fitzgerald was offered $11,000 for 150 acres. While ands are wanted at those prices, farmers can't complain of tight times.

South Renfrew.

At the nomination on Saturday last for the South Riding of Renfrew, Mr. McDougall was declared elected by acclamation. There were 25 qualified voters on Mr. McDougall's nomination paper. On Mr. Bannerman's paper the name of Mr. W. Tierney was objected to, as not a qualified voter, and hence the paper was considered illegal and rejected, and Mr. McDougall declared duly elected. The election, it is said, will be protested.

A Sudden Death.

On Sunday evening last a Mr. Stephen Millar, of the Township of Douro, was returning home from the house of a relative, and when near his own residence stopped to talk with two of his neighbors, and while in conversation, without showing any signs of illness, fell on the road. He was immediately taken home and Dr. Bingham, of Warsaw, sent for, but on reaching him he found life extinct. Mr. Millar had been afflicted with heart disease for many years, which must have caused his sudden death.

New Book.

Mr. W. Hunt is now introducing a new book entitled the "Second Coming of Christ." The Revd R. C. Shimeall, the author, is a member of the Presbytery of New York. The work is one of considerable merit, and will be found acceptable to numerous readers who wish to investigate the subject foreshadowed in its title. It is highly spoken of by reviewers, and will no doubt have a ready sale. It is got up in good style, and in addition to the matter will be a handsome acquisition to any library.

The Hon. Sidney Smith.

Says he is an independent. Few believe him, however. He is just about as independent as he was when he dismissed several postmasters for having independence enough to vote against him, while he was Postmaster-General. What stuff to make an independent member of! But independence now a days means having a set price. The man who is ashamed to avow his principles, should be considered unworthy of popular favor. it would be very convenient to be elected so as to be able to form associations after his own heart. He would soon embrace the man who gave $4,000 to get Riel out of the way, unless perhaps, some one would be able to get the mellow side of him by offering him a comfortable position on the Treasury Benches. The principles of independent men are not often a stumbling block in their way to honor. It is convenient to be independent, as the chameleon nature can be the more readily assumed, without a change of the natural propensities.

A Remembrancer.

Mr. James Jack has brought to Canada with him wood enough of the Skippenrose Tree to make a box for himself, as a remembrancer of the land of his birth. The tree was one remarkable for its dimensions and age. In 1831 it measured 875 cubic feet; the circumference of the smallest part was 19 ft 6 in., of the largest part 27 ft 4 in, and close to the ground 42 ft 7 in. its height 100 feet, and the length of the extreme branches 114 feet. In 1842 it was 440 years old. It was a plane tree, or what is known in Canada as a species of butternut wood.

Halifax.

Is to have a Young Women's Christian Association.

Mr. Eykert.

Has been accused of abusing his profession to such a length as to almost cost him his cloak. He has also been charged with abusing his trust as a member of parliament by taking a bribe to vote for a certain railway scheme, and yet he does not choose to take an action for libel against those who make the charges. Why is this? Is he who has hounded Mr. McKellar so immoral and unpolished, so immoral as to betray the most sacred trusts of his office as a lawyer and as a member of Parliament, all all the while he was persecuting Mr. McKellar?

The Challenge.

As we were almost ready for press we received a copy of a challenge which will be found in another column, with a request to insert it. We have done so to the exclusion of other more important matter. We regret not having space this week to more than refer to it not having had time to even read it carefully before it went into the hands of the printer. To suppose that any amount of debating will have the least effect on the result of the approaching contest is more than will be believed, nor will a debate tend to greater harmony among the People of the Town and County. But we cannot pretend to speak for any one but ourselves. No doubt a reply will appear next week.

The Montreal Witness.

We have again read with interest the prospectus of the Montreal Witness. That paper does not seem to be at all crushed by the attacks upon it, as may be judged by the following announcement:—"During the past three years, the "Daily Witness" has increased its circulation from 11,033 to 12,900, and the "Weekly" from 7,000 to 17,000, while the total income of the business has increased during these years from $73,668 to $97,985. The expenditure, has however, kept pace with the income." The publishers add:—"We are enabled now to issue it a little over the original price of one half-penny, a daily sheet of first class proportions, and containing more reading than any other in the city, with an advertising patronage at the highest rates which are asked in Montreal, and with a circulation which makes the extraordinary claim of being equal to that of all the other daily papers in the city put together." The rapid increase in the circulation of the Weekly is said to be largely due to the enthusiasm of its readers in recommending it to others Its increased size may also have something to do with it, as it is about being enlarged for the third time within a few years.

EAST RIDING PLOUGHING MATCH.

The ploughing match this year was held on the farm of Mr. John Brakenridge, at Westwood, on Thursday last The day was fine as could be. Through the kindness of James Millar, Esq., we are enabled to give the list of successful competitors.

BOYS.

1. James Woods.
2. Andrew Cameron.
3. George Gebbie.
4. Arthur Elmhurst

6. Peter McFee.

MEN.

1. John Henderson
2. Thomas Stewart.
3. David Henderson.
4. Duncan McFee.
5. Richard Elmhurst.
6. Thomas Walker.

We are sure Mr. Brakenridge's hospitality was freely accepted, and that the day was pleasantly spent. Those annual competitions of farmers and their sons, are calculated to foster a pride in their profession, and a desire to secure the first place in their honorable calling that must tend to improved husbandry. And now that the farmers of this fine county have their farms cleared, their houses comfortable, their barns and stables of the most substantial and approved kind, the time spent in the skillful cultivation of the soil must repay them. Those days, too, are calculated to increase their attachment to a business in which there may be the greatest happiness, where, away from the bustle and care and annoyances of trade, they can spend their days in the healthful business of the farm, and enjoy the honest, bracing and cheerful labors of the field.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Great Female Remedy.

Job Moses' Peridocal Pills.

This invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excess and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

MARRIED LADIES.

It is peculiarly suited. It will be a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affection, Pains in the Back and Limbs, on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, and Whites, the pills will affect a cure when all other means have failed; and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions in the pamphlet around each package, which should be carefully preserved.

$1.00 and 12½ cents for postage, enclosed to Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., general agents for the Dominion, will ensure a bottle containing over 50 pill, by return mail.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, I we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H. Cole, of Iona, writes, "please forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil. I am nearly out; it can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Ulverton, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great repution here, and is daily called for Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoyne, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes,—'Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Propr., N. Y., and

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single care of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyrpepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by sufferins and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious cholic, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

It affords us much pleasure to be able to say that our Stock this Fall is Larger, much more Varied, and more attractive than ever before. Our facilities for showing our goods are likewise much better than formerly.

Every branch of our trade has been steadily improving for the last five years, and now we think that for quality and price we cannot be excelled in Peterboro.

Our Clothing trade is developing into something enormous. When we say that we give employment to about twice as many hands in this department as any other house in town, we simply state a fact.

Be sure when in town to see our Readymade Clothing, especially our Over-Coats.

In Wincys, Prints, Lustres, Merinos, Shawls Mantles, etc., we are showing good styles and at close prices. In our Stock too you will find a good assortment of Blankets, Quilts, Buffalo Robes, Hats, Furs, etc.

We scarcely need draw attention to our Teas. They are already widely known and deservedly popular.

Hoping to be favored with a call.

RYKERT'S LAST CHARGE

In passing sentence on the manager of the Mail the other week, Mr. Justice Burton said that the next man who came before him guilty of a similar offence, would be sent to gaol. Now is the time for Mr. John Charles Rykert to turn the tables on his political opponents. The Hon Mr. McKellar has made some very damaging charges against him, has arranged them neatly in separate paragraphs, has published them in various journals, and has recited them with great effect at different public meetings. If these charges are not strictly true, they are of course libels. Why does not Mr. Rykert have Mr. McKellar indicted? If he can prove him guilty of libel at the present assizes in Toronto, the Minister of Agriculture will be sent to gaol until the elections are over. What a boon that would be for the Tory Party. As a piece of Tory strategy the imprisonment of Mr. McKellar until the elections are over has never been surpassed. Now or never, Mr. Rykert. Strike the iron while it is hot. Shut up the great "Grit" missionary in his own Central Prison until the elections are over.

A genealogical puzzle comes from Nashville, Tenn., where there is a family composed of four ladies, which contains two widows, four orphans, two step-mothers, two step-daughters, one grand step-mother, one grand step-daughter, one-half step-aunt, one half niece, two half sisters, one mother, one daughter, two aunts, three nieces and four cousins.

Croquet players at the French watering places are said to lose their temper invariably; the women flush with wrath; the men call each other imbeciles and cheats: one wonders that they do not use their mallets on each others heads. But when the game is over, the victorious party play, dance, roll in the sand with joy, and then claim the rewards of triumph, namely, a kiss from every lady on both sides of the court.

There is sometimes great danger in great joy. A Swiss, living near Berne, honest and hardworking, was one day startled by the announcement that somebody died and left him twenty five thousand francs.—He received it with great joy and was thenceforth a totally changed man. His character was marked by increased penuriousness, and he was seized with a mortal fear that he would die of starvation. He stole into a deep forest one evening and hung himself to a pine tree, and left his wife the handsome remembrance of 100,000 francs.

The result of the rifle contest at Creedmoor between a team of six Irishmen and six native Americans with rifles of the manufacture of the respective countries represented goes to show what every Canadian rifle shot who has visited Wimbledon claims to be the case, that the crack shots of the Old Country can be defeated with ease in contests on this side of the Atlantic. Similar climatic disadvantages to these which Canadian competitors at Wimbledon have to contend with would meet English, Irish or Scotch rifle shots here and leave them at the mercy of those "to the manor born." So much do the elements of light and shade and temperature and the condition of the atmosphere affect long range rifle shooting that a "home" team of good average shots holds the odds in a match against what would prove an infinitely better team on neutral territory. Still the "American" team, though it entered the contest with the advantages of familiarity with the ranges in its favor, deserves credit for winning a victory over such experienced shots as composed the Irish team. Though, as a rule, inferior to the English and Scotch, as rifle shots, the Irish riflemen are no mean competitors and for the representative six of the United States Rifle Association to defeat them is an achievement of which they have every reason to be proud.

Mr. A. F. Macdonald, the unseated member for Cornwall, was, on Tuesday, elected by an increased majority over his former opponent, Dr. Bergin. It will be recollected that at the time Mr. Macdonald was unseated, the Mail and all the small fry said he was a "Grit." Now that he has been re-elected, the same consistent and reliable journal and its satellites characterizes his return as a "Grit defeat!"

The hon. Mr. Scott, in his speech at Prescott the other week, confirmed Mr. Ewing's statement by announcing that he (Mr. Scott), and not Mr. McKellar, was the purchaser of the "little Mrs. ——" chromo. It may be added that he purchased it when he was the Speaker nominated by the late John Sandfield Macdonald, and that Mr. Macdonald was a party to its purchase. The Hamilton Times now puts it as a pleasant question to the Tory Press: If Mr. McKellar was a hoary headed scoundrel, a black-hearted rascal and an infamous hypocrite, for being simply supposed to have purchased that chromo, what is to be said about the late John Sandfield who purchased it?

A lady traveller, writing of the Turks says: I went to Buyukdere the day before yesterday, and returned yesterday morning. A more delightful short trip I never took. I left Talavia at seven o'clock in the morning, and reached there after noon. All the distances are short here. You hear a village spoken of, and you imagine it a hundred miles away, when it is, in reality, only ten or twelve. But the people imagine it a great distance, for they rarely stir from their own towns. No one except a native of this country understands the art of laziness. The men sit all day long on little stools in front of little cafes, smoking and talking—never stirring. They even talk in a low, murmuring tone, very different to a crowd of Dutchmen, Frenchmen, or even Englishmen. There is not the least excitement of any kind in the manner: all is tranquil laziness.

An important legal decision has just been rendered by the Court of Review at Montreal. Some time since a priest named Archambeault, at Richelieu, Quebec, denounced one Derouin, from the pulpit, and advised his expulsion from the Parish. Derouin sued the priest for libel, when Judge Routnier decided that the law could take no cognizance of anything said in the pulpit—in other words, that priests were not amenable to the law. The case was appealed, and yesterday the Judges in review reversed Judge Routhier's decision, and fined the priest, Archambeault, $50 for libel. The precedent is a most important one. The Judges sitting in review were Monpelet, Torrance and Johnson.

"To Fill Out."—Perhaps the following line stands first among those remarkable productions with which a talented foreman so often fills out a column. It appears in the final issue of a Missouri paper, and reads: "Our last kick!"—and a most desperate one, we may add.

THE MARMORA MURDER

(Daily Ontario, Oct. 17.)

Yesterday afternoon we published the mere fact of a horrible murder which took place the previous evening in Marmora. We could not ascertain further information in time for publication. To-day we received by telegraph a supplementary statement, which throws some light upon the tragedy. It seems that the murdered man, Richard Wolfe, who is widely known and much respected, resided about five miles from Marmora, visited the Village during Wednesday, and had an altercation and fight with Thomas White. The combatants were separated, White leaving about dusk for home before Wolfe. The latter, however, overtook his quarrelsome friend, (as both travelled by the same road) about two miles from the Village. Nelson Wheeler accompanied White. The latter at the time of the meeting being out of the waggon, renewed the quarrel, and attacking Wolfe stabbed him in the thigh, cutting the femoral artery lengthwise about one inch and a half. Wolfe, it is said, fell back, and died almost instantly. An inquest was held yesterday, the jury empanelled at which rendered a verdict to the effect that Richard Wolfe came to his death from a wound in the leg wilfully made by means of a sharp instrument in the hands of Thomas White, and they believe that Nelson Wheeler was accessory to the deed. A warrant was issued for their commitment, and both parties were sent to the Belleville gaol, at which place they arrived between 11 and 12 o'clock last night. The county prison now contains four persons charged with the most serious and heinous offence in the criminal calendar. Crime of late has been rampant in this vicinity; it is hoped the current will now take a different channel. We can well spare a reputation of such a character.

This morning, by permission of the gaoler, our reporter had an interview with Nelson Wheelor. The writer informed him that he not been charged with having played an active part in the melancholy event—that he was represented as being only a passenger with Mr. White, but being cognizant of the transpiring circumstances he was in a position to give a plain unvarnished statement of the case. He seemed greatly depressed in spirits, and commenced the conversation by bemoaning his misfortune in being in White's company when the murder occurred. He said that shortly after dinner on Wednesday afternoon White and Wolfe between whom illfeeling had for a long time existed, they having had two or three fights, used abusive language towards each other on the street in front of McWilliam's tavern in Marmora. Their anger increased in intesity, and subsequently they clinched and had a scuffle. Wheeler says he was a witness of the occurrence in the bar room, and rushing out parted them, in which task he was assisted by a brother of Wolfe who was present. Both were considerably intoxicated and acted in the most careless manner. Though separated, the differences arising from the old feud were by no means settled or forgotten, and it is assumed both fostered the same animosity towards each other which has been unmistakably apparent for the last three or four years. It is believed that during their stay in the village they drank to excess. Wheeler, who is a neighbor of White's, and who drove to the village to procure supplies of domestic necessaries, etc., persuaded White to start for home about dusk. The latter was somewhat unruly and stubborn—characteristics of his disposition when under the influence of liquor. They had proceeded only about two miles when White stopped at a creek for the purpose of getting a drink. He was some what tardy in returning to his seat in the vehicle, but finally he took his place just as Wolfe drove up behind and called out, "Is that you Wheeler?" Wheeler replied "yes." Immediately afterwards—only a few seconds had transpired, adds our informant—he heard some one jump from Wolfe's waggon, and approaching White pulled him out on the road. It was dark and Wheeler could not see who it was, but he thinks it must have been Wolfe—he was the only man in his carriage, beside he his daughter and neice. A desperate fight ensued; numerous blows were struck, and the pugilists abused their persons roughly. Eventually their was a lull, which was first broken by Wolfe's daughter crying in tones of the deepest and most touching anguish. "He is dead! he is dead!" Wheeler alleges he never left White's waggon until he heard Miss Wolfe's scream of distress when he asked excitedly. "Is he dead?" and was answered in the affirmative. Wheeler then alighted and approached the place where Wolfe was lying, and a match being ignited, life was ascertained to be totally extinct. The ground upon which he lay was saturated in blood. Wheeler then sought White and telling him the sooner he got home the better induced him to reenter his waggon, and they drove to their respective farms, lots No. 2 and 3 in the 14th Concession of Rawdon. White seemed to be perfectly delerious with excessive drinking, and did not seem fully conscious of the serious nature of what happened, though he stated at a house at which they stopped, "D——n him, I've spilt some of his black blood." Wheeler does not know how they managed, but no help being convenient, it remained for the girls, painful as must have been the situation, to have the gory corpse removed from the road-side to the residence of the deceased. Information was as speedily as possible lodged with the authorities, and about sunrise on Thursday morning Wheeler and White were arreeted.

The inquest followed, and on the verdict of the jury, as detailed above, the men were committed to gaol at this place to await their trial at the Spring Assizes.

Yesterday it is said White danced and capered, and manifested the utmost indifference of spirit; to-day he is more thoughtful and quiet. Wheeler is completely downhearted, the more so as he contends he is as innocent of the offence of which he is indicted as an necessory, as the girls who attended Mr. Wolfe. He has a good farm, is in comfortable circumsances; and has many friends in the Township of Rawdon. White is perhaps 50 years of age, and has a large family of nine or ten children. He is not a boisterous man except when intoxicated.

COOL ENOUGH

An impecunious gentleman once saw a thief enter his room when the moon shone brightly upon him. He lay quietly, as if in sound sleep, for a time, as the examination went rapidly on. At length he was convulsed with laughter, when startled the miscreant peering into his desk. Seeing he was taken at a disadvantage, the intruder turned and asked what occasion there was for such an outburst. He replied, "I was thinking how extremely ridiculous it is for you to be searching for money in the night, when I am unable to find it in the daytime."

VINEGAR BITTERS

PATENT FREE FROM ALCOHOL

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

VINEGAR BITTERS

THE GREAT MEDICINAL PRINCIPLE OF THESE VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE.

MONTREAL, 3rd February, 1874.

MESSRS. FOSTER, WELLS & BRIDLEY:

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to acknowledge cheque from the Travellers' Insurance Company, for seven hundred and fifty dollars, in full of my claim for indemnity, under Policy No. 206,121; resulting from injuries received the 29th of August last. In bearing testimony to the prompt manner in which the Company have settled my claim, I consider it a duty as well as a pleasure, to recommend Accident Insurance as one of the most valuable systems of underwriting of the present day, and the Travellers as a Company deserving of the highest confidence and enjoying a reputation for solidity, promptness and liberality.

I remain, yours truly,

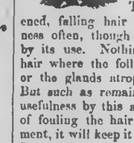
Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.



Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country, and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs, of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice, or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

GENTLEMEN:—It is now some four years since addressed you through the columns of this paper, and I may adopt the same method; and as there has been many changes since that time both political and otherwise, and as most of you are aware that I sold out my business in Norwood to Mr. Ackerman two months ago, and my agreement with him prevents me from entering in the Village or Township; therefore I must return you my most sincere thanks for the liberal support you have accorded to me for these last 13 years. And at the same time I beg to inform you that having erected a Large and Commodious

Shop at Wigmore's Corner,

Where I intend to carry on the

HARNESS BUSINESS

In all its branches, and from my long experience in the trade, I flatter myself that I can give you a better article in my line, cash and workmanship considered than you can get elsewhere. My motto will be "Quick sales and small profits."

I also propose selling apart one day in the week, viz. Saturday, when all small jobbing will be done free of charge.

I hope to see all my old customers, and as many new ones as may feel disposed to patronize me, feeling assured that they will save money by travelling a mile further, as I intend to undersell all in the trade.

Repairing done with neatness and dispatch.

Johnson's Force Pump and Fire Extinguisher.

For cheapness, durability, ease of working, and general efficiency, the above little article cannot be surpassed; it can be used as a FORCIBLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, a splendid article for washing Carriages or Windows or by changeing the nozzle it can be used by a Lady or a Child to water a flower bed in the gentlest and most beautiful manner. Only a bucket or tub of water required. No Chemicals used. It is claimed for this Extinguisher that the stream of water thrown from it appears to be fully as efficient in the results as the acid thrown from a Babcock Extinguisher, every house should have one. The cleaning of a fire frequently occurs in such a place that it cannot be reached by water thrown from a pail or dipper, this Pump will throw a fair stream of water 45 ft. horizontally, or will drench a wall to the height of 35 ft.

A WILD ROSE IN SEPTEMBER.

O wild red rose, what spell has stayed
Till now thy summer of delights'
Where hid the south wind when he laid
His heart on thine, these Autumn nights?

O wild red rose! Two faces glow
At sight of thee, and two hearts share
All thou and thy south wind can know
Of sunshine in this Autumn air.

O sweet wild rose! O strong south wind!
The sunny rondelais asks no reasons
Why we such secret Summer find,
Forgetting calendars and seasons.

Alas! red rose, thy petals wilt;
Our loving hands tend thee in vain:
Our thoughtless touch seems like a guilt:
Ah, could we make thee live again!

Yet joy, wild rose! Be glad south wind!
Immortal wind! immortal rose!
Ye shall live on in two hearts shrined,
With secrets which no words disclose.

"Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep."

Golden head so lowly bending,
Little feet so white and bare,
Dewy eyes, half shut half opened,
Lisping out her evening prayer.

Well she knows when she is saying,
"Now I lay me down to sleep,"
'Tis to God that she is praying,
Praying him her soul to keep.

Half asleep and murmuring faintly,
"If I should die before I wake"—
Tiny fingers clasped so saintly,—
"I pray the Lord my soul to take."

Oh the rapture, sweet, unbroken,
Of the soul that wrote that prayer!
Children's myriad voices floating,
Up to heaven record it there.

If, of all that has been written,
I should choose what might be mine,
It should be that child's petition,
Rising to the throne divine.

REUNIONS OF CHURCHES

A very significant announcement appears in the last number of the Ontario Gazette. Notice is there given of an application to Parliament that the properties formerly held by the two great Presbyterian bodies of the Dominion (or rather strictly speaking, the four, for the churches of the Maritime Provinces were always distinct) shall now be held by the united body, to be designated, "The Presbyterian Church in Canada."

This union is a landmark on the ecclesiastical history of Canda The negotiations to bring about this desirable union have been most protracted, and the discussions almost painfully tedious. Simple reason and logic might have brought about a settlement long ago; but sentiment and association and tradition are powerful influences with some men, and far more difficult to deal with indeavors to bring about a union. These influences often dominate both logic and reason unconsciously to their subject. Every obstacle, however, has been removed at last, and the Presbyterians who separated at the time of the last great rupture in Scotland, are now again one. That this will be for the benefit of the Church itself, and of the cause of truth and righteousness generally, cannot be doubted. It will economize men and money and time, and none of these has the Church of Christ too much. It will stop the heartburning and disputation and jealonsy, and will remove a source of scandal to the outside world. "See how these brethren bite and devour one another?" has often been said by scoffers, and, alas! only too often with bitter truth. Christians have not exhibited such a spectacle of mutual love as to compel respect. There can be no denying such a patent fact as this, and if the fact were seen in its painfulness, acknowledged, grieved for, and repented of, a better day would dawn on the professing Christian world The "odium theologicum" has been the scandal and shame of the Church, ior whilst fierce disputants contended about their "Shibboleths" and "Sibboleths" a keen-eyed and scoffing world has looked on and laughed. Christ has nowhere been so sorely wounded as in the house of His friends. These movements for reuniting these who have been separated cannot, therefore, but be looked on with interest by all whose hearts are in the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom.

Another union taking place in another branch of the Church is also just being consummated. At the time of writing this, there is assembled in the Metropolitan Wesleyan Church, Toronto, a conference of ministers and laymen, representing the union of the two long separate branches of the great Methodist family. Many years ago, mainly on the question of the propriety of lay representation in the Annual Conference, a number of ministers seperated themselves from the Wesleyan body in England, and formed themselves into the Methodist New Connexion. Their doctrines, practice and spirit have always been precisely the same as the body from which they seperated, with the sole exception of giving representation to laymen in conference. Till this point was conceded by they could not reunite. It is marvellous, indeed, that such a separation should ever have taken place, considering that above all other Churches, the Methodist recognizes and organizes lay agency, not only in the management of temporalities, but in the preaching of the Gospel, and, surely, they who may be allowed to be put in trust with the Gospel, might be allowed to take part in the deliberations of a general conference. But alone, of all churches, the old Wesleyan body stood out on this point. The Church of England had laymen in her Synods; so had the various Presbyterian bodies; so have the Congregational and Baptists Churches. Time, however, has brought about change. Barriers, again rather of feeling and tradition than of reason, have been thrown down and to-day witnesses the fusion of these two bodies in Canada, who, to all human judgement, ought never to have been allowed to separate. Here again, there will be economy or time, money and men, and for opportunities of spending strength in aggressions on the common enemy of souls, that have been wasted in conflict with one another.—From Review of the Times, in New Dominion Monthly for Oktober, 1874.

Christianity vs. Freemasonry

The secession of the Earl of Ripon from Protestantism and Freemasonry, of which latter he was one of the "great lights," being chief dignitary of the order in England, will be a greater pecuniary and social gain to Catholicism than a moral loss to the faith he has deserted and the order he has disavowed. The hostility of the Papacy to the Masonic body will render the perversion of the Grandmaster of England something to the Pope what the surrender of Napoleon near Sedan was to the Emperor William,—with, however, a difference. The step of the recreant Earl will be spoken of in every lodge room in the world with mingled pity and contempt. It is an interesting problem to discover if any and what are the influences exercised by the system of Freemasonry, tending to the weakening of Protestant principles or the germination of such as are Romish, in those who are destitute of any distinct religious belief.

The position in which this Order stands, relatively, to the religious world is certainly highly interesting and worthy of more study than it has secured. A very large number of its members are also members of the various Evangelical churches. A large number are devoid of any religious belief beyond what the Order demands; who could repeat what we once heard an eminent writer say, "Masonry is my religion." Many are Israelites, some are heathens, some Roman Catholics. It is obvious that a system which is wide enough to embrace those holding the maximum and minimum of dogmatic religious belief, must be essentially without any of its own. A great parade is made in all the phases of Masonic Ritual of the "Volume of the Sacred Law, which is better known as the Bible. But as not a word from its pages is ever read out or uttered in lodges, and as Jews who are Masons revere it officially as well as Christians, it is pretty evident that the book exposed with such pomp and circumstance of reverence is not really what Christians can recognize as the "Volume of the Sacred Law," or Scriptures, but is merely the Old Testament; though for all the use made of it in lodge, it might as well be the Koran in Arabic, or precepts of Confucius in Chinese. If Masonry, then, be religious, as is sometimes claimed, it is not Christian. It, indeed, glories in being older than Christianity, and glories also in being so absolutely perfect as a system of ethics that no man or body of men could improve it. as one part of its ritual distinctly affirms. Now, a system like this stands palpably outside all the churches, and it must often be question to those who have church associatiou what there is in Masonry of moral good which is peculiar to it: what there is distinctive in its ethics from the Christian code, and what in its teaching to justify such enthusiasm as it excites, and such service as it secures. These are two wide questions for us to discuss it at length; but we may suggest whether Masonic light is not merely the candle of Judaism kept burning in the broad daylight of a brighter era, and its elaborate ritual of symbol upon symbol, ceremony on ceremony, nothing but a tedious display for which not reasonable excuse can be made. The pleas of antiquity and universality are mere moonshine, as any well-read Mason can testify who has visited different lodges in different countries, and the popular plea of instant recognition by signs is exploded, as a long examination is required to test whether a man is a Mason or not.

The tendency, then, of this system, is to produce a habit of mind which may be expressed as a preference for the show and traditions of a religion, rather than as a regard for its intrinsic ethical value as an agent for the regeneration of humanity or its truthful presentation of what is revealed in Scripture. Very naturally, religious discussion in England has developed in all classes a more earnest religious principle; more this than earnest enquiry as to the truth. For Earl Ripon to pass from the atmosphere of Masonry to that of Romanism would be a mild change. He would have no convictions to be uprooted, no living principles to be destroyed. Indifferentism is so near a neighbor to superstition that the passage across could be made with very slight baggage of brains, or stored thought, or moral experiences. There are singular points of contrast and parallel between the Catholic Church Ritual and Masonic; the Catholic Ritual has this advantage over the Masonic, that it is open to women and children. It has, therefore, more general appreciation from spectators and auditors. The Earl of Ripon may have the sympathy of many in thinking that it is better to confine such solemn fooling as he has shared in as Grand Master to occasions when it may impress the young and ignorant, rather than associate it with the pretended pursuit of science and art., and the cultivation of the social virtues all which are rendered objects of ridicule by the incongruous mixture of such themes with singular ceremonies, terrific oaths, and elaborate questionings and answers.—From Review of the Times in New Dominion Monthly for October, 1874.

The Founder of the Mennonites.

This man was founder of the sect of Mennonites. The attention of America has been particularly dirtcted to these people of late, owing to the large number of them who are insigrating to our shores. Menno is supposed to have been born about the opening of the sixteenth century, at the little village of Witmarsum, in Friesland, a province in the Netherlands. He was early intended for the service of the church, and was educated under her guidance. In 1524 he was made a priest, and settled in the village of Pingium. In 1530 the New Testament with a spirit of honest investigation, and was led to abandon the doctrine of transubstantiat. He lived in an age of free inquiry, and the shackles of prejudice and bigotry were powerless to arrest expanding, liberty-seeking thought. In the general breaking away, Menno was not uninfluenced. He opposed "infant baptism" vigorously. He gained daily in popularity, and was applauded by the reformers as an evangelical preacher, For several years he struggled to suppress his secret convictions, lacking the moral courage to face the odium and suffering which he knew the avowal would cost him. But when in 1535 the life of his brother was required of him to witness for Christ, he could hold out no longer, and openly declared himself a heretic.

After thus serving himself from the Roman Catholic church he experienced great trials of soul, but grew in grace and became a prominent man among the reformers. In 1539 a few laymen of Groningen, in Holland, who had embraced the reform doctrines but opposed infant baptism and the taking of oaths, called upon Menno to come among them as their pastor. He promptly accepted the offer, and feeling relieved of the vow of celibacy, entered upon his duties as public teacher after he had secured for himself a worthy companion. He was, however, too zealous for the spread of Protestant opinion to rest contented at Groningen. The low countries were filled with Anabaptists. He had always opposed the radical of that sect, and had even written against the Munster excesses; but he believed that the principal doctrines as held by them were biblical in their origin, and he was anxious for a union of all moderate Anabaptists, now largely divided among themselves. He gave his attention to the organization of these scattered adherents of his cause, and in his work travelled in company with his wife through east and west Friesland, Holland, Guelderlands Brabant, Westphalia, and the German provinces on the coast of the Baltic, everywhere he attracted the judicious and liberalminded of the Anabaptists, exerted a wholesome influence among them, organizing churches which he taught and regulated for years," and thus at last became the acknowledged head of a new body of separatists who at once took his name.

Like the other Protestant Reformers, Menno accepted the formal and material principles the Reformation; but, besides these, he aimed at a moral practical end. It was his earnest desire to restore the kingdom of God, or the Christian Church, to that purity which is taught in the New Testament, and which he believed had existed in the Apostolic church. To bring back this golden age of Christianity and to organize a congregation, without spot or wrinkle or any such thing, but holy without blemish, was the constant aim of all his efforts. This accounts for the singular asceticism of the sect, and explains why the Mennonites did not, like other evangelical bodies, concern themselves about abstract religious speculations but about moral laws and duties; for the same reason they also separated themselves from the unbelieving world, and tried to purify the church by administering the ordinance of baptism only to those who had made a personal profession of faith in Christ. The validity of infant baptism was rejected, while only adults "who do actually profess repentance toward God and obedience to our Lord Jesus Christ." were considered proper subjects of this ordinance.

Menno was a gentle, earnest, modest man, a spiritual nature, with no trace about him of wild fanticism; ready to encourage all that was noble pure and good in his fellow-men, constantly reproving those of his followers who appeared guilty of misdemeanors of any sort. Although oftentimes exposed to persecution, Menno nevertheless continued steadfast to his word. When he found it impossible to remain any longer in the low countries, he sought refuge at the mansion of a kind-hearted noblemen in the duchy of Holstein, and there not only enjoy protection but

PETERBORO, NOVEMBER 5th, 1874.

THAT CHALLENGE.

We published last week by request, a challenge for a series of debates as to the principles set forth in the first resolution framed at the Toronto Conservative Convention; and as to whether the Governments of Messrs Blake and Mowatt have pursued a policy in consonance with the principles of those resolutions.

We gave our mind in a very few words as to the foolishness of the course proposed, and we find that the members of the Reform Party as far as consulted, fully agree with us, for several reasons.

They do not know who compose the "Conservative Club" in this Town, and therefore, do not care to enter into controversy with unknown men, perhaps, of no note in the "Club" or in that party.

The discussion or debate would not tend to greater harmony among members of the different parties who wish to live in peace with each other without the undue bitterness, which debate too often engenders. The conflict will come soon, and then the Reform Party will be ready to discuss all the leading questions that agitate the Country, before the whole people, and not before a few in the Music Hall. The Reform Party are desirous that the great body of the electors be parties to all discussions which concern them, and which ought to be for their advantage or information.

The editor of the Review in commenting on the challenge furnishes other cogent reasons for neglecting to accept it. One of which is, it would effect no good object. A fact which may be fully anticipated by reading this extract from the Review of the 30th ult., viz: "it will afford" (if accepted) an opportunity to discuss the live issues in the coming contest on the principles, and in a way to place the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, before those who may be present."

Now we ask our readers what good object could be gained by debating important questions with men who are so foolish as to act forth (believe they cannot) that in debate the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, would be evoked. Could we expect that men who have accustomed themselves to believe all that the Conservative Party have had placed before them men who have swallowed the whole Pacific Scandal, men who have for years been the corrupters of the body politic and of the electors wherever they could, that those men would now, in a fit of excessive honesty, use only fair and honest argument, while defeat stared them in the face? If they fancy this of themselves, it is more than they will get credit for.

Another reason which will be even more cogent than the last, is that the Reform Party of this County cannot believe that the promoters of the challenge are desirous of eliciting the truth, and this impression was strengthened by reading the articles of the leading genius of the Conservative Club.

Here is a specimen argument or reason:—

"Every body knows full well that at our elections the great difficulty which the honest elector—the elector who desires to give his vote, and not for the benefit of his country, and not for the benefit of either party—is to ascertain what are the facts. The speakers on one side assert that such a thing is so; those on the opposite side, deny it in toto, and in nine cases out of ten, after any number of authorities have been quoted on both sides, in such a way as to leave things, ten times more mixed than they were before, the elector leaves the meeting thoroughly convinced that one, if not both parties are endeavouring to mislead him as to the facts, and that nothing remains for him to do, but to either refrain from voting, give his vote on personal grounds, or do what has been too often done, sell it to the highest bidder."

Can the editor of the Review be so obtuse as to suppose that he will be more well citizen for the truth in debate that he is in election speeches? Does he wish us to believe that he would be? Does he think that he would be more anxious for the propagation of sound principles while discussing political question under the prestige of the great party of which he is a member? If he thinks so, then let the electors know this. Does he wish us to infer that in his newspaper he pays less deference to truthfulness than he would in debate? And will he boldly announce this which he (inadvertently shall we say), admits in the above extract

If in the interest of the, readers of the Review, and of the Conservative party in the town and County, he will avow that he has not written the whole truth in politics, and that this challenge is given to afford an opportunity of retracing his steps, and after repentance for past errors, he desires it accepted to afford a fit time to express his repentance, the Reform Party might be persuaded to change their minds and accept it, as they would be pleased to be present, when members of the great Liberal Conservative Party would bind themselves to speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. And we would do all we could to get all the electors present to hear the truth once from their lips. But who believes that they could be bound to do this?

The utter folly of joining in debate with members of the Club will satisfy any one of candid mind who will read this third extract from the Review of last week:—

"Take, for instance, the financial position of the Province? How can any elector who is not prepared to spend hours in making himself familiar with the public accounts of Ontario (if he can get access to them) arrive at an intelligent and honest decision as to the true state of affairs, unless some such way as proposed in the challenge is adopted, when every speaker and every writer would be forced to cull the facts which bear on the question, and present them in a form which would enable the electors to judge between them, and thus arrive at a conclusion which could be relied in accordance with the facts, let whichever side may win.

Here is an admission that every speaker and every writer figures, "cuts the accounts to suit the side which he is advocating." It is satisfactory to get the admission from our contemporary, and hence, the readers of the Review will in future understand that all financial statements that may be in that paper will be one sided and made to suit the side he is advocating. It really does appear as if some pious thoughts had taken possession of him which are affecting his heart, and producing intentions to be truthful for a season at least, but debate would scatter these good intentions to the wind. They are too ephemeral to be lasting. The Reform Party here, feel convinced that ther utterance on all occasions may be tested by reason and argument; and that they are uttered with a due sense of responsibility of the consequences if calculated to mislead, whether in debate, in campaign addresses, or newspaper articles. All the members fail to see the wisdom of accepting the challenge given: and this the more, when they find that every reason urged for its acceptance, is founded on fallacy, or, on an admission that the Conservative Party, plurally, have not spoken the truth in their past political history, writings, or campaign speeches; and hence, also, the grave doubts that debate would effect any serious change on them.

IT IS POSSIBLE.

Our confere also says: "It is impossible to elict actual facts" during an election campaign, or words to that effect.

We had some intentions of publishing the whole article from which the above is an extract, but found our space too limited, although the temptation was strong. It affords a striking illustration of the crookedness of the ways of some political writers and leaders, under a guise of fairness and a pretended desire to elect facts where fiction would be more palatable.

It is possible, however, that a debate can be arranged, one of a very interesting and instructive kind. The subjects to be discussed to be selected from Canadian history during the last four or five years. We will give a few easy ones, with power too add to their number—

Was it right for Sir John A. Macdonald to say, "These hands are clean" when he had taken $358,000 of Sir Hugh Allan's money for the Pacific R. R Charter? Reformers will take the negative.

Was it right in the leader of the great Liberal Conservative Party to telegraph for "Another ten thousand" to bribe the electors of the Dominion? Reformers will again take the negative.

Was it right for the leader of the same great party to pay $4,000 to get Riel out of the country, while he was holding up unholy hands here and saying, "Would to God we could catch him? Reformers will again choose the negative.

Was it right for Sir John and the great Liberal Conservative Party to lead Bishop Tache and the French half-breeds to expect an amnesty, while Sir John dare not recommend it, knowing full well the feeling of Ontario in reference to the unfortunate Scott?

Was it right for the late leader of the Conservatives in Ontario to say, "What the—— has Strathroy done for me." when dispensing justice to the people.

Is it right or honest to appropriate to their own use and benefit the property of the Reform Party, as they have done in some of their now noted resolutions with out accrediting the rightful owners?

Is it in full accord with the 9th commandment to engage in election campaigns with a professed view of instructing the people, and yet, all the while, not able to except actual facts; and also while admitting that those speeches are one sided, and written and delivered to suit the side advocated, as set forth in the last number of the Review?

These questions are very fairly selected, and the decision of disinterested parties (where are they?) would please a great many.

But wait a little. The rules of debating societies make the umpires the judges only of the arguments used during the debate. Can one-sided arguments be any guarantee for the correctness of facts?

SCHOOL BOARD.

The Board met on Tuesday evening. Present—Mr. Stevenson, Chairman, and Messrs. J. W. Smith, Rutherford, McClelland, Robertson, A. Smith and Mr. Edwards. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed

A communication was read from Germain A. Mitchell, resigning his position as teacher of the Auburn School at the close of this quarter.—Received and referred to the Committee on Appointments with power to provide a teacher for the position.

A letter was read from Mr. Claxton in reference to an account for music lessons, and stating that no account was due for the quarter referred to, as none of his children had been in attendance, although their names were retained on the books.

Mr. Edwards, Chairman of the Finance Committee reported as follows:

The finance Committee of the Union School Board beg leave to Report on the Resolution of the 30th ult., submitted to them as follows:—

First we find from the sources of information within their reach that the sum of $3600 said to be owing to the Town Trust Commissioners by the School Board, is quite correct, and we arrive at the conclusion in the following manner. From the Auditors, Abstract for the year 1872, there is an item of a Loan of $1500, and the books of the Commissioners show that this sum was borrowed from them. From the Auditors Report for the year 1873—a Copy of which is submitted—we find an item of $6000 as Loans from the Commissioners—making in all during 1872 and 1873, $7,500, as borrowed from them. On the other side in 1873 the sum of $3,900 is entered as being paid on account of Loans from the Commissioners, leaving the balance claimed of $3600 as still owing to, and due them.

Second,—That on the 1st of January, 1874, the Board paid to its credit, cash on hand, $294.56 cts.; balance of School Rate due by the Town, $3001. cts.; leaving the sum of $3,315 56 cts., which of itself would nearly repay the sum owing to the Commissioners.

Third,—In place of paying its debts the Board has made use of this money in paying the Teachers' Salaries, and other necessary expenditures, and two sums amounting to $950 have been paid to the Contractor of the New Public School in Ward No. 1 for which no provision whatever had been made.

In the early part of the year a resolution from the Board was duly forwarded to the Town Council, requesting that Body to provide the requsite funds for the New School Building, which has been done. All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. EDWARDS,
Chairman.

Peterborough, 3rd Nov. 1874.

The Chairman of the Committee remarked that in reference to the $950 paid the contractor, the Committee were ignorant that it had been taken out of the general funds until looking over the accounts, and he thought the Chairman of the Building Committee should have provided funds for the special object.

Mr. J. M. Smith corroborated this statement, and thought that all those things should come before the Finance Committee; no blame could be attached to the Chairman of the Building Committee as he had done nothing wrong, but the whole Board should know all that was being done.

Mr. Edwards stated that there was no doubt as to the correctness of the accounts, as all the money was properly accounted for, the Board had merely used the $3,600 instead of borrowing this year, but at the end of a year there would be a surplus of about $3,600, which could be used for building or other purposes as the Board required.

Mr. Rutherford remarked that a rumor had gained currency that the $3,600 had been used by some member of the Board, and he therefore thought the report should be explicit as to that sum, and where it is. Several members expressed themselves to that effect, and urged that the report be full as to that sum.

Mr. A. Smith asked concerning the resolution appointing the Committee to Report, and after it was read, he agreed that the Finance Committee had complied with it. It was then adopted.

Mr. McClelland, Chairman of the Building Committee stated that the Building was nearly finished, and would be ready for use in about three weeks, the time for its completion was up in August, but some delays had occurred; he testified to the satisfactory nature of the work done, and defended himself against the idea that he should provide fends. The Board should see to that, and he had understood that this was done by borrowing from the Town Trust Commissioners. He also stated that he had let contracts for levelling the ground building sheds, fences, water closets, &c, so as to have the work completed before winter. During the discussion it was stated that the contractor had been paid about $3,300 on his contract, which amounts to $4,500 for the building.

Moved by Mr. J. M. Smith, seconded by Mr. Rutherford,—That in future the Secretary-Treasurer furnish the Board each month a general statement of accounts, and submit it at each regular monthly meeting.—Carried.

A Report from the Principal was read and submitted. It shows an aggregate attendance in the Public Schools of 626; with an average of 510: and in the Collegiate Institute an aggregate of 164, and an average of 146: total in the school 785, average 656. In Chemistry 131, in Philosophy 131, in Physology 69. The Report adds: That owing to the numerous letters of enquiry received by the Principal from time to time in regard to the Institute, he had advised publishing a circular containing such information as would be useful to those who intend to send children to the Institute. It further recommended the appointment of a teacher of Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic and Book-Keeping, in order that he might have more time to devote to teaching in the different divisions of both the Public School and Collegiate Institute, during the afternoon of each day. The Report was received and referred to the Committee on Appointments.

Mr. J. M. Smith moved, seconded by Mr. McClelland,—That the Principal be requested to furnish the Board with a statement of the names of teachers, the number of hours daily taught by each one, and the subjects taught. This, he thought, would enable the Committee on Appointments to form their judgments in regard to salaries, &c.—The motion carried.

The Board adjourned.

Showing now the Tide is Turned

So it was by bribery and corruption that the Reform members were elected in January last, who is? And with a contest free from those elements the Reform candidates would be detested, would they? So have said the opposition journalists, but let us see what the people say.

Torydom has been telling us that the tide is turning; that the Ministerial cup of iniquity is full and overflowing, that the people everywhere are eager for a change. The people to show their total disseverance from Toryism, tell just the opposite tale. There is not only no such change as secures the defeat of the Reformers, but everywhere our opponents are paralyzed and our majorities increased.

Look at the record of the past few days and say in which direction the current of popular favors runs:

REFORM VICTORIES.

Hon. Mr. Vail, the new Minister of Militia, from Nova Scotia, elected by a large majority.

Mr. A. F. Macdonald, re-elected by an increasing majority.

Mr. McGregor, re-elected by an increasing majority.

Mr. Murray, elected for Renfrew.

Mr. J. McDougal, re-elected by acclamation.—Hamilton Times.

BRANTFORD

A horrible and brutal assault was made upon a white man, whose name we have not learned, by a colored man named Williams, last evening in the house of the latter, in the Walker row, over Cockshutt's Bridge. It appears that Williams and the white man had been drinking together in the afternoon in the house of Williams, and in the evening an altercation sprung up between them, when Williams drew a Razor upon the white man and almost severed his leg above the knee. Sargeant Wallace was notified of the occurrence and soon after arrested the colored man, but not without having had considerable trouble. Williams appeared before His Worship, James Weyms, Esq., this morning and was remanded until Monday, when he will again be brought up, if the man is able to appear against him.

Mr. Rowlean, Conservative, member for the County of Dorchester, Quebec, is to be unseated.

THE STRAYED $3,600.

Not unfrequently we have heard of great losses, and defaulters, and municipal swindles, etc.; but it had not been our misfortune in Canada to be much troubled with those things. When a cry about the School Board having in some manner mislaid $3,600, was raised, we concluded that it was the fancy of some fertile brain, which had been in search of something to cause a stir prior to the approaching election of Trustees

The late Mr. O'Beirne, the Treasurer of the Board, was esteemed for his sterling honesty and integrity, and during his day it would have been impossible for any member of the Board—even if so desirous—to get one cent of the public funds without a proper voucher; and since his decease there were no funds to make way with.

We have endeavoured to ferret out the state of the School Board accounts, and think we have succeeded in understanding them so fully as to come to the conclusion that no money has been mislaid, wasted, or used except for legal school purposes. The public may place confidence in the Report of Mr. Jas. Edwards Mr. John M. Smith, and Mr. Edmison, members of the Finance Committee of the School Board, and smile at idle nonsensical rumours.

In 1871, the Board borrowed from the bank, apparently, $2,000.

A SPECIMEN BRICK.

In a speech lately delivered at Clifford, Mr. Abraham W. Lauder referred to his Central Prison grievances, and among many other statements, equally true, made the following distinct charges against the Ontario Government:

1. That the Government dismissed a contractor named Elliott in order that they might give his work to a friendly firm—Dickey, Neill & Co.

2. That Dickey, Neill & Co. put in no tender for the work, that no contract was made with them, and that they were allowed to do the work as they pleased and charge such prices as they pleased.

3. That Dickey, Niell & Co. received $60,000 from the Government for work done on the Central Prison without tender or contract.

The following are the facts as brought out in the Public Accounts Committee last session:—

1. The contractor, Elliott, failed, and the Government were compelled to release him.

2. Dickey, Niell & Co. never performed or contracted to perform the work left unfinished by Elliott. Elliott was a builder, and had a contract for brick, stone and carpenter work. Dickey, Neill & Co. are machinists, and their contract was for manufacturing two steam engines and boilers, and other work of that class.

3. Dickey, Neill & Co. had their contract eighteen months before Elliott was released from his, and yet Mr. Lauder who knew this, asserts that he was dismissed in order that the Government might give his contract to Mr. Dicker's firm.

4. Mr. Lauder, in presence of a dozen witnesses in the Public Accounts Committee, read and examined the tender of Dickey, Neill & Co.; read and examined the contract of Dickey, Neill & Co. with the Government, and yet Mr Lauder asserted as Clifford that there had been neither tender nor contract for the work.

5. The entire amount paid Dickey, Neill & Co. was but $30,000, which Lauder must have known, and yet he asserts that it was $60,000.

Let any candid man, Tory or Reformer, examine the above facts and ask himself, is Lauder a fit man to sit in the Parliament of this Province? What would be thought of any business man who would recklessly falsify in this outrageous manner? And yet this unscrupulous man was one of Mr. Andrew Monteith's leaders for five years in Parliament, and is one of Mr. T. M. Daly's leaders at the present moment. Nice leader! Worthy followers.

The degree of outlawry has been issued against Riel by the Manitoba Superior Court. The only thing in the world he possesses now is his life, and that is forfeited if he should be taken.

A COBOURG Toronto correspondent of the Carnwall Gazette says of the personal appearance of C. J. Whellams, and his libeller Watterson, of the Mail, that as these two sat as opposite ends of the table, people remarked with meaning in their tones, and that fatal sidelong glance of unspoken suspicion—"whey they are as like as brothers!" And there is a strange likeness in the expression, more than in them.

The Globe of to-day contains a column of comment upon the Niagara election, and the $2,000 Mr. Plumb spent, but not a word about the $12,000 used at the Montreal election, nor the bribery and corruption practised at the South Huron election. This is truly Grittish, but is not bombug many people intelligence.

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 5th, 1874.

Addington.

Mr. Shibley is re-elected for the County of Addington.

South Perth.

Mr. Ballantine has received the unanimous nomination of the Reformers of South Perth, after several ballots.

South Norfolk.

Mr. Stewart, the Ministerial candidate has been unseated for bribery by agents. There were no personal charges against Mr. Stewart.

The Ballot.

All the elections under the ballot have gone in favour of Reformers—How is that? The Conservative Club should investigate this, with a due regard to facts.

Port Hope.

Mr. Seth Smith has issued his address in the Guide; he was the unanimous choice of the Reformers of the East Riding of Durham. Port Hope city fathers are putting down stone crossings.

Auction Sale.

W. A. Morrow, Esq., of Cavan, having rented his farm will sell out his farm stock implements, &c., on the 12th inst., at his residence 12th Concession of Cavan

Millbrook.

At the Court of Revision on Tuesday last, 21 Conservatives were struck off the list, and no Reformers, about 31 more will meet the same fate. What does our good brother of the Messenger think of that?

Change of Business.

We invite attention to the advertisement of Mr. Fitzgerald in this issue. He has on hand a number of Carriages, Sleighs and Cutters, of best make and finish; the material used is of the very best BLUE OAK, which he intends to sell cheap. Read the advertisement.

North Renfrew.

In this Riding Mr. White, Conservative, was unseated for the acts of a Liberal Nephew and book-keeper. In the election consequent on the seat being vacanted, Mr. White was defeated by a majority of 48. That is one Conservative less in the Commons.

The Mayoralty.

The Review of last week copies our announcement of the candidature of Alex Smith, Esq., for the Mayoralty. But the impression sought to be left that Mr. Smith was opposed to Mr. Cox has no foundation in it, as Mr. Cox retires of his own free will, and may nominate Mr. Smith.

Auction Sale.

Mr. R. Tully will have an extensive auction sale of household furniture on the 6th instant, at his residence, Charlotte street. He is about leaving for California for the good of his health. The furniture is of the best quality. There will be no reserve.

Fatal Accident.

On Monday a boy named Harry Keath about 14 years of age, employed in R. C. Strickland & Coy's saw mill, Lakefield, while pulling a board in the vicinity of slabber slipped, and falling across in front of the saw, was almost cut in twain. The saw entered near the shoulder blade, and cut through the vertebral column and into the lungs. Medical aid was of no use. He died on Wednesday morning. He was not long out from England. His father was working in the mill at the time.

Baldwin Reformers.

Every doubtful politican since the "double shuffle" when seeking the confidence of the people, try to obtain that confidence under the guise of a Baldwin Reformer. We read in an old book that when the Sons of God assembled themselves, a certain character appeared with them. There was no other way of obtaining access or approach to high places; our Baldwin Reformers have copied a leaf out of his book, and assume the dress and name of honest men. No wonder the Globe terms them "fishy." When seeking favors they are Baldwin Reformers—when they have duped the people and obtained power they become unmasked, and then skin for skin; they will part with principle to retain power. The last ten or fifteen years Baldwin Reformers have required watching—now you have them, and now you ha'n't.

CUMMERSHILL.

ORDINATION.

CUMMERSHILL, Nov., 3.—The ordination services of the Rev. Isaac Campbell, were held yesterday in the Presbyterian Church, Killbride, at which a very large and attentive audience was present. In the evening a very successful tea meeting was held to welcome to the newly ordained pastor, who had received an unanimous call to the Church.—Globe.

STEAMER BLOWN UP

SIXTEEN LIVES LOST.

The alarming news has been received that the propeller Brooklyn was blown up on the 22nd of October, off Wyandotte. She sank immediately in 60 feet of water. The captain and ten of the crew saved. The engineer, firemen, and sixteen passengers lost.

The latest report says that fifteen persons were killed and many others seriously wounded. The Bob Mankind rescued the survivors, and took them to Detroit. The Brooklyn was chartered to phrase.

WE DONT KNOW YOU AT ALL IT IS TO GET AT McKELLAR

As a good Conservative we give publicity to a little circular that was furnished us yesterday. It speaks volumes as to the straits the Party of Prog are driven into to get up a false cry against the Grits.

The Association will find the absurdity of the course, even when the Legislature meets.

In the meantime read the circular.

Toronto, Nov. 3rd 1874

SIR,

I have the honor to enclose herewith forms of petition to be signed in duplicate, one copy for the Lieut.—Governor, and the other for the Legislative Assembly, and having reference to the course taken by the government in the recent prosecution of the Manager of The Mail newspaper by C. J. Wheliams. The matter has been so thoroughly ventilated by the Press of the country that any remarks on the improper action of the Government would now seem to be superfluous.

At a meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association of Toronto, it was determined to distribute the petition for signature at once, and ask the gentlemen in the several ridings who are known to be opposed to the present Administration to take the matter in hand, and obtain signatures in whatever way they may think most conducive to a strong representation of public opinion.

In view of the early meeting of the Legislature, I beg to impress on you the necessity for as early a return of the petition herewith enclosed as is possible, and to ask you to do all in your power to secure a numerous and influential body of petitioners from your district.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Signed) JOHN MACDONALD,
Secretary L. C. Ass.

THE TOWN COUNCIL

Council met on Monday evening.

Present his Worship the Mayor and Messrs Toole, Beal, Rutherford, Robertson, Denne, Hopkins, Paterson, Romaine, Helm, Cahill and Hamilton.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read over and after discussion they were confirmed.

Communications were read from George Swanson asking for a certificate for a Tavern License, on Hunter Street. Referred to the License Inspector with power to act.

From Mrs. Rutherford and George Mills, asking to be relieved from the payment of taxes for the year.—Received.

From H. H. Smith, on behalf of Mr. Berault keeper of the St. Lawrence Hotel complaining of the approaches being destroyed by the late digging on Brock Street, East of George Street, and stating if approaches were not soon made proceedings would be taken to compel the Council to make them. The matter was referred to the Street Inspector requesting him to act at once

From T. Bradburn, in reference to some gravel deposited on the lane leading from Simcoe Street to the Market. Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Accounts from Henry Best, for fire department $21.15. Referred to the committee.

From Kelly & Son for Lumber $1.141.90. Referred to the Street and Bridge committee.

Mr. Romaine read a Report of the Gas Committee recommending the erection of a Street Lamp on Charlotte Street. Received and adopted.

Mr. Rutherford as chairman of the Charity Committee, read and submitted a report recommending to pay the Bennet family one dollar a week during the pleasure of the council. Received and adopted.

The Mayor stated that had Received a letter from Col. Chambliss, in reference to the propositon to go on with the work across Rice Lake, on condition that the work be paid for in certain proportions. The company to pay ⅓ of all amount of work reported done by the Engineer, and the Town to pay ⅓ until the sum of $40,000 be paid by the Town: the company to give a sufficient bond for the completion of the work.

Moved by Mr. Hamilton seconded by Mr. Hopkins that Messrs Paterson Robertson, the Mayor and the mover be a committee to entertain any suggestions from the Cobourg Railway Co. regarding the completion of the same, and report to this council.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Denne seconded by Mr. Robertson that Mr. Edwards name be substituted instead of Mr. Denne to meet the County Council.—Carried.

Mr. Cahill seconded by Mr. Hamilton, that the Street Inspector be directed to have a Railing built on the side walk across Spalding's Bay.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Hamilton seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the Street and Bridge committee be instructed to have a portion of the gravel which may be received from Brock Street, placed on George Street crossing Spalding's Bay.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Beal,—That on account of the large quantity of sawdust and flood coming down the river, which has nearly closed the west channel of the river and causing a large quantity of stagnent water near the gas works which is likely to seriously affect the health of the residents in that locality. Be it therefore resolved, that our member in the Dominion Parliament be requested to make application to the proper department for a right to close up the said channel from the north point of the Island near the gas work to a line as far South as King Street, and reclaim the same.—Lost.

YEAS:—Toole, Beal, Cahill.

NAYS:—All the others present.

A By-law was introduced and passed to appoint a committee to meet the committee from the County Council in reference to the portion of county debt to be assumed by the Town on account of the portion of the County assumed to the Town.

The council adjourned the two nights.

Shriffs Sale of Lands.

By virtue of a writ of Fieri Facias issued out of Her Majesty's Court of Queen's Bench and to me directed at the suit of James Stewart, Plaintiff, and against the lands and Tenements of Charles R. Shaw, Defendant, I have seized and shall offer for Sale at my office in the Court House in the Town of Peterborough on Tuesday the 20th Day of January 1875 at 12 o'clock Noon, all the right title and interest of the said Charles R. Shaw in and to part of Lot No. 9 in the 9th Concession of the Township of Harvey, more particularly known and described as Village Lot No. 6 Fronting on Main Street, as laid out in a plan of Village lots of said lot No 9 by T. SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Great Female Remedy.

Job Moses' Peridocal Pills.

This invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excess and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

MARRIED LADIES.

It is peculiarly suited. It will in a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affection, Pains in the Back and Limbs, on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, and Whites, the pills will affect a cure when all other means have failed; and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions in the pamphlet around each package, which should be carefully preserved.

$1.00 and 13¼ cents for postage, enclosed to Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., general agents for the Dominion, will ensure a bottle containing over 50 pill, by return mail.

Sold in Peterboro by Dr. Taylor, A. W. Kempt, W. S. Johnston, Dr. McCamus, Ormond & Walsh. In Keene by A. Campbell, Campbell McNeil & Co. C. Britton, Lindsay, and all Medicine Dealers.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS' ECLESIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most sceptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes, "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil have sold all I had from you and want more; now its cures are truly wonderful." William Magnire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold a the agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H. Cole, of Iona, writes, "please forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out; I can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Ulverton, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoyne, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes,—"Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Propr., N. Y., and

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious cholic, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

For Internal and External use.

Warranted the only Sure and Perfect Cure for all kinds of Piles, Scrofula, Tetter, or Ringworm Salt Rheum, and all diseases of the skin.

One Bottle warranted to cure all cases of Piles. From 1 to 3 Bottles in cases of Humors.

This remedy has been used in some of the worst forms of Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Diseases of the Skin, with entire success. Many cases have been cured by an outward application only. Hundreds of letters and certificates are now in the proprietor's possession, which can be seen on application.

N. B.—The medicine is entirely vegetable in its composition.

In all cases of failure, dealers are requested to refund the money. Buy of none who do not warrant it, as all dealers receive back their money from the proprietor.

Price $1 per Bottle; Six Bottles, $5.

PERRY DAVIS & SON, General Agents Montreal.

PROSTATION, resulting from the effects of the intense heat of the summer months, is developing cases of so many of the diseases described to hot weather. The stomach partaking of the loss of vitality pervading the whole system, is unable to complete digestion the food passing undissolved through the bowels, irritates the lining membrane, and Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, and when prevailing Asiatic Cholera, may be excited. Attention to diet, moderate exercise, bathing, and regular habits must be observed. To maintain the vital forces and prevent lassitude and exhaustion. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is unquestionably reliable, as it invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies material for sustaining nerve force.

BOYS WANTED.

Boys of spirit, boys of will,
Boys of muscle, brain and power,
Fit to cope with anything—
These are wanted every hour.

Not the weak and whining drones,
Thrall all trouble ungraft,
Not the watchword "I can't"
But the nobler one, "I'll try."

Do what'er you have to do
With a true and earnest soul;
Bend your sinews to the task—
Put your shoulder to the wheel.

Though your duty may be hard,
Look not on it as an ill;
If it be an honest task,
Do it with an honest will.

At the spirit, up then, boys,
Whatsoever you may be
From your future efforts, boys,
Comes a nation's destiny.

The Q'Appelle Indian Treaty.

(From the North-Wester.)

The Lieut.-Governor and the Minister of the Interior returned to the city on Saturday afternoon, as previously announced, bringing with them the full text of the Treaty entered into with about two thousand, five hundred of our North-western Indians. The Commissioners, after much preliminary negotiation—in which the previous experience and practical knowledge of the Indian character possessed by our "Headman," Gov. Morris, proved of great value to his fellow-Commissioners and contributed largely to the satisfactory result—succeeded in accomplishing the object for which the negotiations were undertaken. We will not inflict upon our readers the full text of the Treaty: its general features are all that will be found of practical general interest at this time.

The introductory paragraphs recite the time, place, and object of meeting—to deliberate on certain matters of interest to Her Majesty and the Indians; the names of the high contracting parties, representing on the part of the Indians the Cree and Sault-aux tribes, and all others, the Indians inhabiting the district thus described:

Commencing at the point on the United States frontier due south of the north-west point of Moose Mountains, thence due north to the said point of said mountains, thence in a north-easterly course to a point two miles due west of Fort Ellice, thence in a line parallel with, and two miles westward from the Assiniboine river to the mouth of the Shell river, thence parallel to the said river and two miles distant therefrom to its source, thence in a straight line to a point on the western shore of Lake Winnipegosis due west from the most northern extremity of Waterhen Lake, thence to the centre of Lake Winnipegosis, thence northwardly through the middle of the said lake (including Birch Island) to the mouth of Red Deer River, thence westwardly along and including the said Red Deer River, and its lakes, Red Deer and Etoimami, to the source of its western branch, thence in a straight line to the source of the Northern Branch of the Q'Appelle, thence along and including said stream to the Forks near Long Lake, thence along and including the valley of the west branch of the Q'Appelle to the South Saskatchewan, thence along and including the said river to the mouth of Maple Creek, thence southwardly along said creek to a point opposite the western extremity of the Cypress Hills, thence due south to the International Boundary, thence east along the said boundary to the places of commencement; also all their rights, titles and privileges, whatsoever, to all other lands wheresoever situated within Her Majesty's North-West Territories or any of them.

Her Majesty agrees to assign reserves for the Indians of one mile square for each family of five, or in that proportion for larger or smaller families, subject to certain reservations in the interests of settlers within the land so reserved.

In view of the satisfaction with which the Queen views the ready response which Her Majesty's Indian subjects have accorded to the invitation of Her said Commissioners to meet them in this occasion, and also in token of their general good conduct and behavior, she hereby, through the Commissioners, makes the Indians of the Bands here represented a present for each Chief of twenty-five dollars in cash, a coat and a Queen's silver medal; for each headman, not exceeding four in each band, fifteen dollars in cash and a coat; and for every other man, woman and child twelve dollars in cash, and for these here assembled some powder, shot, blankets, calicoes, trunks, and other articles.

As soon as possible after the execution of this Treaty, Her Majesty shall cause a census to be taken of all the Indians inhabiting the tract hereinafter described, and shall next year, and annually afterwards for ever cause to be paid in cash at some suitable season to be duly notified to the Indians, and at a place or places to be appointed for that purpose, within the Territory ceded—each chief twenty-five dollars, each headman, not exceeding four to a band, fifteen dollars, and to every other Indian man, woman and child, five dollars per head, such payment to be made to the heads of families for those belonging thereto, unless for some special reason it be found objectionable.

Her Majesty also agrees that each Chief, and each headman, not to exceed four in each band, once in every three years during the term of their office, shall receive a suitable suit of clothing, and that yearly, and every year, she will cause to be distributed among the different bands included in the limits of this Treaty, powder, shot, ball and twine, in all to the value of seven hundred and fifty dollars, and each chief shall receive hereafter in recognition of the making of the Treaty a suitable flag.

It is further agreed between Her Majesty and the said Indians that the following articles shall be supplied to any band thereof, who are now actually cultivating the soil, or who shall hereafter settle on their reserves and commence to break up the land, that is to say, two hoes, one spade, one scythe, and one axe for every family actually cultivating, and enough seed wheat, barley, oats, and potatoes to plant such land as they have broken up, also one plough, and two harrows, for every ten families so cultivating as aforesaid, and also to each chief for the use of his band as aforesaid, one yoke of oxen, one bull, four cows, a chest of ordinary carpenter's tools, five handsaws, five augers, one cross-cut saw, one pit saw, the necessary files, and one grindstone—all the aforesaid articles to be given once for all, for the encouragement of the practice of Agricultural among the Indians.

Further, Her Majesty agrees to maintain a school in the Reserve allotted to each band as soon as they settle on their Reserves and are prepared for it [illegible].

The remaining clauses stipulate that no intoxicating liquor shall be allowed to be introduced and sold, and that the laws now in force upon that subject shall be continued. Such sections of the reserves as may be required for Dominion purposes may be appropriated by the government, the Indians to be compensated therefore. The Indians are bound to strictly observe the treaty and to conduct and behave themselves as good and loyal subjects, and not to interfere with Indians, Half-Breeds, or Whites, now inhabiting or hereafter to inhabit any part of the ceded tract, and that they will not molest the person or property of any inhabitant or such tract, or interfere in any way with travellers passing through such ceded tracts.

The English in Canada.

Canada cannot be misrepresented in England without a prompt refutation of any false statements. Some returned emigrants recently told the story of their hardships to their parish clergyman, who wrote to an English paper detailing the woes to which the wanderers from his fold had been subjected. Hon. William McDougall replied in the London Standard, alluding particularly to the complaints that the work is harder in Canada than in England, and that Canada is practically irreligious. From his able statement we extract:

"They must learn the quick step if they intend to win the race in the new world; and until they have thrown away their hobnailed shoes, and recovered from the debilitating effects of too little food, and the stupefying effects of too much beer, they will, no doubt, complain of the hard work of the Canadian farmer. But ask any of the octogenarians to be found in every settlement, once emigrant farm laborers, now living in comfort on their own farms, with their children and grandchildren settled about them as independent proprietors of the soil, whether the hard work they encountered ever seriously affected their health? Whether good food and plenty of it, with a bracing climate, and the knowledge that the fruits of their labors would fill their own garners, and lay up a store for wife and children in the distant as well as the near winter time, and not make that work easy—a pleasure rather than a task?

Ask them if they would exchange their homes and fields and their social, educational, political and religios privileges in Canada for the best cottage and the highest wages obtainable, under the best landlord in these kingdoms, with all the blessings which are to be found here, including Sunday ministrations and week-day "cups of tea" with the vicar of two or any number of parishes? I have heard the answer at many a Canadian fireside. It was always the same. Even the poor Scotchman, driven from his native hills, to make room for sheep and cattle, thanked God the cruelty of the landlord that compelled him to cross the sea had been turned to a blessing. Many revisit the old home, but only two classes, as a rule, remain—those who have accumulated wealth, and, it may be, having lost their children, prefer to end their days among relatives in their native village, and those who, like the vicar's parishioners, fall into evil courses, complain of hard work, and after "loafing" about the country for a few months, beg or steal enough to pay their passage back to the "comforts" and blessings to be found here.

"I admit at once that, if religion consists of a State-paid priesthood, and uniformity of faith and practice, enforced by Acts of Parliament, with a special judicial machinery to prevent the established clergy from teaching superstition, we have none of it in Canada. But if religion consists of a conscientious belief in the great truths of Christianity, and the willing observance of those forms and practices that give evidence of its existence in the hearts of the people, then the vicar of two parishes has grossly slandered four millions of British subjects on the other side of the Atlantic. I am ready to produce statistical evidence and witnesses to prove that the Sabbath is betttr observed, that there are more churches, places of public worship, and and church-goers, that there is less drunkenness, and fewer crimes, in proportion to the population, in Canada than in England."—Exchange.

A SPELLING PUZZLE.

We print the following orthographical puzzle for the benefit of boys and girls between 10 and 80. We witnessed a very interesting attempt at spelling this puzzle by a lady who was sure she could win Webster's Unabridged Dictionary offered by a friend in case she succeeded, and a Professor of languages who prided himself on his knowledge of English orthography. The lady missed 22 of the 99 hard words, and the Professor 28. Let us see if some of our readers can't do better than that. Webster is the standard in this excerise:

The most skilful gauger I ever knew was a maligned cobbler, armed with a pewter, who drove a peddler's wagon using a mullein stalk as an instrument of coercion, to tyranize over his pony shod with calks. He was a Galilean Sadducee, and had a phthinicky catarrh, diptheria, and the bilious interimittent erysipelas. A certain Sibyl, with the sobriquet of "Gipsy," went into ecstacies of rachinnation at seeing him measure a bushel of peas, and separate saccharine tomatoes from a heap of peeled potatoes without dyeing or singeing the ignitible queue which he wore, or becoming paralysed with a hemorrhage. Lifting her eyes to the ceiling of the cupola of the capitol, to conceal her unparalleled embarassment, making a rough courtesy, and not harassing him with mystifying rarefying and stupefying inuendoes, she gave him a couch, a bouquet of lilies, mignonette, and fuchsias, a treatise on mnemonics, a copy of the Apocrypha in hieroglyphics, daguerreotypes of Mendelssohn, and Kosciusco kaleidescope dram phial of inoscuanha, a teaspoonful of naptha for deleble purposes, a ferule, clarionet, licorice, a surcingle, a cartheilan of symmetrical propostions, a chronometer with movable balance wheel, a box of dominees and a catechism. The gauger, who was also a trafficking rectifier, and a parishionor of mine, preferred a woolen surtout (his choice was referable to a vacillating occasionally occurring idiosyncrasy), wofully uttered this apothegm: "Life is checkered; but schism apostacy, heresy and villainy shall be punished." The Sybil apologizingly answered: "There is rarely an allegable difference between a conferable ellipsis and a trisyllabic diæresis."

The Government advertisement for militia clothing of Canadian manufacture has given a great impulse to Canadian cloth manufacturing companies. This enactment has hitherto been given to Sir Peter Tait, of Lanark, and is worth about $50,000 a year. Here is another of the many benefits of having a protective and commercial policy at Ottawa.

Hon. Mr. Vail, the new Minister of Militia, from Nova Scotia, was elected by over 300 majority, last week.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PROPRIETORS OF HOUSEHOLDS proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuge, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

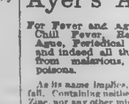
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD



The reputation this excellent medicine has attained, by its long-continued and truly wonderful cures of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have led to the production of many worthless preparations, which, by their name, are intended to deceive the sick, and induce them to suppose they were taking Sarsaparilla, and thus be induced to try them. Hence the necessity for the public to be informed of its virtues or uselessness.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, the unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal disease, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcers, alone or some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is not visable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear, by persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions of visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the female and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and kindred diseases caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the symptoms sympathetic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as has this world-renowned pulmonary compound. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. Wherever existing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, and we feel more than assure the public that its qualifications fully sustained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe it stands a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residents in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing in many cases speedy and permanent cures, where other medicines fail.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the world.

ONE OF THE NIMHAM MURDERERS DETECTED AND IMPRISONED.

There is much of truth in the old adage that "murder will out."

On Saturday night, the 14th of September, 1872, one of the most atrocious crimes that has horrified the inhabitants of this western section of Ontario was committed in the town of St. Thomas. An old Indian named Nimham, a "medicine man" of more than the usual amount of intelligence and skill, was attacked by a couple of roughs in cold blood and killed, death being caused by wounds inflicted by an axe slung in a bag, which the old Indian had been taking to his home. The desperadoes at once made good their escape, but they were followed by large scouting parties formed immediately after the murder became known. For several weeks every portion of the county in which the murder had been committed was scoured but without avail. Whites and Indians joined in the pursuit, the old man having been held in very high esteem by all sections of the people. The murderers, Henry Fitzsimmons and Robert Lipsey, escaped and after a long search every one interested gave up the chase, and with it, all hope of ever getting hold of them.—However, more recent development go to prove the correctness of the adage.

Fitzsimmons, it appears, after escaping out of the country, got as far west as Minnesota, where he lived with a farmer in Wabashaw county, named Samuel Church. While with Church he was noticed by a bed-fellow to be restless in his sleep, frequently arousing his companion by sudden fits and starts, which led to the belief that he had something very troublesome on his mind. After some time Fitzsimmons companion demanded an explanation with regard to it, but it was not until they had become well acquainted and warm friends that he consented to unbosom himself. Fitzsimmons then confessed that he had murdered an Indian doctor at St. Thomas, in Canada, and the thing was always on his mind, tormenting and troubling him. He followed up the confession with a warning that if the man he told the story to ever divulged a syllable with relation to it he would finish him as he had done the doctor. Fitzsimmons was always well armed, and his general conduct showed him to be an unprincipled ruffian, especially when angered or under the influence of liquor, which he used freely. His fellow servant feared him, and though greatly alarmed for the consequences finally told Mr. Church the whole particulars. The story also alarmed church, for to have so dangerous a character about the premises was no pleasant matter, so he was troubled how to get rid of the fellow. He went to the Sheriff of the county and in confidence told the story of the murder and his own fears of his servant Fitzsimmons. They put their heads together to devise a plan to secure sufficient information to warrant the murderer's arrest without arousing that individuals suspicions. They deemed it necessary to have his photograph, and through the assistance of a female acquaintance of Fitzsimmons this was accomplished. Then on a certain day the Sheriff subpœnaed Church to attend a court a number of miles away, but instead of doing so, in accordance with their plan, Church made the speediest possible trip to Canada, reaching this city on Sunday last, when he put up at Grigg's Hotel. Accompanied by Detective Van Valkenberg, he went on to St. Thomas on Monday, visited the authorities, and exhibited the photograph, which was at once identified as that of the murderer, Fitzsimmons. Mr. Church, with this additional knowledge felt himself fully warranted in taking prompt measures to have Fitzsimmons placed under arrest, and at once telegraphed to the Sheriff of Wabashaw county to have him taken into custody. On Wednesday he received a reply to his telegram that his orders had been carried out and that fitzsimmons was then safely lodged in jail.

Yesterday morning Mr. Church left for home, via the Canada Southern, accompanied by Constables King and Cummings, of St. Thomas, who, it is expected, will return in a few days with Fitzsimmons in custody.

We learn that through Fitzsimmons' revelations to his fellow servant, track has been obtained of Lipsey, who was his accomplice in the tragedy and escaped with him, and it is not at all unlikely his whereabouts will be soon ascertained and that he will be overtaken and captured.

THE WOLF ISLAND SLANDER CASE.

BRILL VS. DEAND.

This action which has excited so much interest in Kingston, commenced on Friday last, and will probably continue four or five days. The suit is brought by John Brill, a Minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, whose Mission is Wolfe Island, for the purpose of recovering damages for defamation of character, arising out of slanderous charges made public by Nelson Deane who has declared that the Reverend Gentlemen who had forced, outraged and seduced Deane's daughter, Emma, on the third of May last. From the evidence it appears that Miss Deane had contracted an intimacy with a young man named Saunders, and had at one time determined to elope with her lover, who was not regarded with favor by her parents. To frustrate this plan Emma was sent on a visit to the residence of Brill, while there the young lady swears that Brill enticed her into a room and accomplished her ruin. Some four months after finding that she was enciente. She explained the situation to her parsonage, who told he would procure an abortion or that she could charge Saunders or the hired man with a crime. Considerable circumstantial evidence was of the matter. On the other hand Mr. Brill declares upon oath that the whole story is a fabrication and false in every particular. It is expected that the case of the Court will be given to-day.

LATER.—We learn that the jury could not agree and therefore there was no verdict.

EARLY MARRIAGE.

There are hundreds of young men who should be married that are not married. To marry early is discreet and wise, and when men and women are of marriageable age I think it is wholesome for them to be married. It is not necessary for them to remain single because they stand in poverty, for two can live cheaper than one if they with discretion, if they live with co-operative zeal, if they live as they ought to live. If the young man is willing to seem poor when he is poor; if the young woman, being poor, is willingly to live poorly; if they are willing to plant their lives together like two seeds, and wait for their growth, and look for their abundance by and by, when they have fairly owned it, then it is a good thing for them to come into partnership. For characters adapt themselves to each other in early life far more easily than they do afterwards. They who marry early are like vines growing together and twingling round each other; whereas multitudes of those who marry late in life stand side by side like two iron columns which, separated at the beginning, never come any nearer to each other. There is no school which God ever opened, or permitted to be opened which young people can so ill avoid as the school of care and responsibility and labor in the household; a young man and a young woman marrying, no matter from what source they came together, no matter how high their fathers stood, one of the most wholesome things they can do, having married for love and with discretion, is to be willing to begin at the bottom, and bear the burden of the household life, so that they shall have its education. I tell you there are many pleasures which unmarried people miss. I would not give up the two first years of my married life for all I have now. I live in a big house, with a brown front, and very fairly furnished; but after all among the choicest experiences of my life where those that I passed in Indiana, when I hired two chambers up-stairs; when all my furniture was given me, and was second-hand at that; and when the very clothes that I had on my back had been worn by Judge Birney before. We were not able to hire a servant. We had to serve ourselves. It was a study every day how to get along with our small means, and it was a study never to be forgotten. I owe many of the pleasures which have run through my life begin where I had to begin, and to fight poverty with love, and to overcome it and to learn how to live in service and hopefulness, and in all the thousand ingenuities which love sweetens and makes more and more delightful.—Henry W. Beecher.

AN UNSINKABLE WAR-SHIP.

Mention was made recently in the House of Commons of the "Inflexible," the latest pattern of war-ship building for our Navy. The belief of Admiral Elliott that the days of armour-plating are nearly over, is certainly not justified by this extraordinary vessel. The exact drawings and particulars of her build are very naturally kept from public knowledge, but we may without any breach of patriotism, general conception of the design adopted in this the youngest of our iron-clads. What may be called the distinguishing characteristic of the "Inflexible" is that she will have, in the sense of vulnerability, no "wind and water line" at all. Every one must know that the vitals of a man-of-war lie along the belt of her flotation—a breach on her sides in that region lets in the sea and swamps her. The "Inflexible" carries all her side armour upon a central space 110 feet in length. It is 24 inches thick and protects with that monstrous wall of solid iron her engines, her crew, and her battery of four 80 ton guns. Along the rest of her—fore and aft—there is no vertical armour but a thick inside cushion of cork of enormous buoy-ancy more than 60 feet square in section, surrounding bunkers full of coal for the supply of the ship. A horizontal deck of thick metal extending fore and aft from the citadel, at a depth of six or seven feet from the water line will cut of all this unarmored upper portion from the real hold of the vessel.

Thus if the enemy should send shot or shell through every coal bunker and corner of the "Inflexible," forward and aft letting in the water everywhere, he could only—if the design answers expectation—lower her a single foot in the sea. Her citadel it may be confidently expected, he could not pierce; at any rate with guns at present in use. In a word, the constructors of the "Inflexible" give an enemy the upper slices of the ship, except her citadel, to do as he likes with; and it is by making the ends flotable under any circumstances that the ironwork of the ponderous citadel, with its turrets and freeboard, can be carried. The ram and the torpedo are therefore the only perils which threaten this forthcoming fighting ship; but perhaps these also might be provided against if her bottom under the water deck were constructed in many compartments. Enough, however has been already hinted about our newest Behemoth to show that, what ever her success, in the age of armour plating is certainly not ended yet.—London Daily Telegraph.

An Elmira minister was having a donation party the other evening, when Mr. —— ambitious to appear liberal, marked a four dollar cantor up to twelve dollars, and took it in as his donation, getting much credit for his liberality. The next day the minister called at his store with the twelve dollar ... stating that he could not afford to ... purchase an article, he wanted to ... to exchange it for its marked value in other needed goods, and the minister was soon wending his way homeward, loaded down with a dozen dollars worth of solace generation.

A Havanian paper says, "If a pull of vapor by breast vapors six inches ... of the steam of a pumpkin or vegetable contract, it fills the corners of the night approach it." etc. A still more extensive experiment has been observed in Buffalo. There is a man in that city who will appropriate a barrel of whiskey, either by day or night, even if it be placed six feet away from him.

A SPANKING MACHINE.

This is the age of invention, and there is no knowing what a day may bring forth. Prominent educators have for years ransacked their brains and consumed midnight oil to devise some method whereby the youthful student, the urchin with thick-soled pantaloons, could be chastised as the gravity of the offence might demand without inflicting a more severe punishment upon the lady teacher's hand than upon the child. Previous to the invention of this machine, principals of schools have wept to see their assistants go round with their arms in a sling from the effects of punishing scholars. In many cases excellent teachers, who loved their calling, had been compelled to resign their positions because they had too much on their hands.

This matter has been discussed at the various institutes, and it had been almost decided to adopt capital punishment instead of the time honored taking across the knee, when the inventor of this machine stepped in and, by a simple device, he saved the lives of many valuable young ones. The heart of the inventor was touched at seeing a frail school ma'am with her right hand swalled up to the size of a canvass-ham from agitating a boy who had wickedly placed a piece of clay-board inside of his pants when he knew that the teacher was on the war-path after him. The teacher was weeping, and mentally saying she would run that boy through a threshing machine before she got through with him.

The idea at once struck the inventor that a machine could be constructed that would tan the jacket, as it were, of the young reprobate, and as the result of careful thought and study the spanking machine was invented. What a change! Instead of dreading the task of punishing scholars and shivering at the prospect of blistered hands, the teacher can enjoy the performance, and look forward to the hour of doing up a days spanking with a feeling of pleasure and gladness, and the frown formerly stereotyped on the face of average school ma'am given place to an angelic smile.

She seats herself at the instrument after placing the condemned urchins in a row within reach of the hoisting apparatus or ice-tongs, she smiles, touches the snatch-brake with her foot, and the doomed urchin's launched into, if not eternity, he will think so before that hand lets up on him. With a smile playing over her features she works her tiny feet, the avenging Band descends, and the old machine works as though endowed with life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It will only take a moment of treading to make an ordinary boy sorry he enlisted, when he can be dropped, and the next snatched. A whole school can be spanked up in fifteen minutes, if the teacher is anything of a treader.

BALKY HORSES.

The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals put forth a set of rules for the treatment of balky horses, which rules unfortunately, do not always work. The best way is to have nothing to do with balky horses. But nevertheless, some one of these rules as well as a hundred others, do work in particular cases. They are as follows:

1. Pat the horse upon the neck; examine the harness carefully, first on one side and then on the other, speaking encouragingly while doing so; then jump into the waggon and give the word go; generally he will obey.

2. A teamster in Maine says he can start the worst balky horse by taking him out of the shafts and making him go around in a circle until he is giddy. If the first dance of this sort dosen't cure him, the second will.

3. To cure a balky horse, simply place your hand over the horse's nose and shut off his wind until he wants to go, and then let him go.

4. The brain of the horse seems to entertain but one idea at a time; therefore continued whipping only confirms his stubborn resolve. If you can, by any means, give him a new subject to think of you will generally have no trouble in starting him. A simple remedy is to take a couple of turns of stout twine around the foreleg, just below the knee, tight enough for the horse to feel, and tie in a bow knot. At the first check he will generally go dancing off, and after a short distance you can get out and remove the string, to prevent injury to the tendon in your further drive.

5. Take the tail of the horse between the hind legs, and tie it by a chord to the to the saddle girth.

6. Tie a string around the horses ear, close to the horses head.

THE MAID OF SARAGOSSA.

Augustina, the celebrated Maid of Saragossa, was a handsome itinerant lemonade seller, twenty-two years of age. She arrived with food for the soldiers at the moment when the battery was swept clear of any defender. The people daunted by the sight, hung back. The woman instantly rushed forward over the dead and and dying and snatched a lighted match from the hand of a dead artilleryman, and fired off a twenty-six pounder. Then jumping on the gun, as Wilkie represents her, with disheveled hair and stormy eyes she swore to the Virgin never to quit the gun alive while the seige lasted. The people encouraged by this woman's almost supernatural daring, rushed back into the deserted battery, opened a tremendous fire and repulsed the French attack. When her husband fell wounded at her feet she discharged his canon at the enemy to avenge his fall. She also frequently led sorties, and sword in hand, with her cloak wrapped around he, fought daily in the street. When the city was surrounded, Augustina was taken prisoner, but catching the fever, was removed to the hospital, and thence escaped. Manuella Sanchez, another heroine, less fortunate, was shot through the heart. The poor Countess Burita, after escaping innumerable dangers, died of grief on hearing that her daughter had been killed.

SHARP SHOOTING.

'Father, what does a printer live on?'

'Live on? the same as other folks, of course. Why do you ask Johnny?'

'Because you said you hadn't paid anything for your paper, and the printer said he would live on.'

'Wife spank the boy.'

'I shan't do it.'

'Why not?'

'Because there is no reason to.'

'No reason? Yes there is, spank him I tell you, and you him as well.'

'I shan't; there's such a thing. What do you would do you want him spanked for?'

'He is too smart.'

'Well that seems of you marrying me.'

'What do you mean?'

'I cannot find the distinction that I can see, for you married me, and I'm sure I'm smart enough to see that one makes a fool of another, and I'm no more a fool than you would be to confess of yourself not to know as much.'

The very wife of a noted physician had her husband to keep away from the fever sick of his patients, as he declared she was much like a cat—always losing her nerve.

A SPANKING MACHINE.

A PEEP AT THE PARTY.

The Court of Revision, held yesterpay, opened the door for a peep behind the scenes. In fact the managers and some shifters of the Union Frog Party, in Brockville, were compelled by the new law to appear in public and to expose a few of the tricks and a portion of the legerdemain by which they are preparing to carry the next election. The manager and the usual subordinates were present ready to testify as to the value of any property situated within the limits of the corporation. What will the taxpayers of Brockville say, when they learn that the Conservative champions had placed upon the voters lists', the names of parties who live upon the charity of the town, and who month by month apply to the Town Council for assistance and whose taxes are annually remitted. What a farce! raise the assessment to $300 just

PETERBORO, NOVEMBER 12 th, 1874

THE WEST RIDING.

As will be seen in another column, a general Convention of Reformers will be held in the Music Hall, Peterboro, on Wednesday, the 18th inst., to select a candidate for the West Riding. A full attendance is requested. The time is short for the notice to reach all the friends of the present Mowat Government; but each one can do much by letting all true and good men know that their advice and presence will be very acceptable on that day. The time for the Convention is opportune, as the farmers have got well through with their fall work, and are well able to give a day to matters of a public nature, and we trust to see a full meeting in consequence. The hour will be 2 o'clock p. m.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

In the history of Municipal matters how frequently is it the case that the greatest fault-finders are the last persons to apply a remedy for the evils. Not a few men who are not slow to complain that all is going wrong are slow to take their seat at the council board, and by their counsel and wisdom prevent the evil before it be perpetrated, or try to counteract what has been done wrong. How often, when applied to, are they heard to say: No time; no disposition to engage in municipal brawls, or an not willing to leave my quiet, snug parlor, for the suffocating or chilly (as the case may be) Council Chamber.

There is another class of men who are not slow to annoy councillors about culverts, sidewalks, bridges, grading, and a hundred and one other things near their place, and hound them, so to speak, until they get what they want.

A near neighbor sees that Jones has got the streets and side walks near his place improved, and he in turn becomes an applicant for favors, and perhaps persist until equal favors are done for him. Thus every councillor is annoyed and worried on every corner of the street from January to January again, during his term of office. At the end of a year the whole foots up to a large sum: taxes are high, and times dull then, and the good natured councillor now comes in for abuse on account of the high rates. Yet who is to blame? Are not the people who were never satisfied but when money was being spent here and there and every where to please them? Why should councillors be blamed for doing that for which petitions were handed in, and communications received, and addresses presented? The truth is, the people are to blame, and next year it will be as bad as it is this year, while improvements are required and people ready to ask them, and threaten vengeance if the requests be not granted. We are not one of those who think that any council will do all things so as to prevent fault-finding while there are fault-finders to be found—and that will be always. The utmost that can be expected is moderate economy in expenditures, and firmness enough to say NO! when to say YES would be wrong.

Then, how ready too to accuse those who manage public affairs of wrong-doing, perhaps of stealing or appropriating funds, when, indeed, a moments calculation would have satisfied them of the groundless nature of the accusation. There is wisdom in watching carefully public matters, lest unprincipled men get at the helm and the people suffer, but accusation of wrong-doing should be capable of proof before made; Evil be to him who evil thinks should not be lost sight of in public matters any more than in social intercourse.

IS THERE NO ONE TO HOLD HIM?

Our dear friend of the Review appears chagrined that the challenge was not accepted, so that he might have a chance of airing his eloquence before the people and before some three magnates who might be chosen to keep order and preside. Preside they might; but to keep order is a different thing, for some people, not far from the office of our staff-man do now and then lend in the honorable and gentlemanly habit of hissing down opponents, but perhaps their habits are improved.

Now, too, how truthful they have become!—they publish no false or garbled statements (!) Eh! what about the mean insinuations that top often emanate from that truthful sheet? Allowance must be made for the Party of Gentlemen in all these things. Then, too, they never employ coarse or immaterial expressions to raise what can not appear in the editorial columns. Oh, dear, no!

And yet there are the people who would—who should condemn a delegate not coming to rule. Did it never occur to them, in their simplicity, that debate on any subject rarely satisfies either party? Yes so it has been, and it will be so to the end of the chapter. Not even on things spiritual does debate tend to christian harmony and love. Then how much less on things political, where party feeling enters into both sides of the question?

Two sons of Erin are said to have disputed, and one of them determined then and there to settle the matter by a resort to the arbitrament of the "ring." When however, he had forced his more quiet disputant to the fight, the braggart turned oil round and cried, pitifully, "Is there no one to hould me?"

The editor of the Review is "spoilin' for a batin'," and perhaps in two or three months he may be gratified. In the meantime, let him possess his soul in patience. Men of common sense are slow to pay attention to the boasting or brag of those who have no character to lose; and it is probably because of this that Reformers choose to let Brag brag as loudly as he wishes. It pleases he and don't hurt us.

WILL IT HOLD OUT?

There was a very interesting meeting in the Young Mens Christian Association Rooms on Monday evening, at which several ministers of the town were present. Those who spoke were Rev's. Fish, Ross and Maclennan,—if there were any others present they were not heard. The object was to limit the sale of intoxicating liquors, and thus limit the evil flowing from the sale.

The speakers were enthusiastic and hopeful. The best sign of the effort is the co-operation of different ministers, although we regretted the absence of some of them. Our fears are this will prove itself another spasmodic effort, as ephemeral as many that have preceded it, and that the parties will again settle down into their old state of indifference. There is no evil of the present day so detrimental to the prosperity of the church as this, whether financially, morally or spiritually considered. Yet, how many sermons have been preached against it! How many drinkers have been denied church fellowship on account of the evil practice! How many respectable dinners at christian houses have been without it on the table? What great effort has been made to stop or stem the trade? Let us, however, be as hopeful as possible this time, although almost hoping against hope. Mr. Edwards was not far astray when he said, "There is so much wealth arrayed on the side of traffic." That is it. "The God of this world hath blinded their eyes," and hence the moral obliquity of the vision in this respect. But perhaps the good time is come; we know it has long been sang as "coming."

When we see the mighty phalanx of christians, in their power, united to put an end to the evil our hope will be intensified, but while we know of thousands of tipplers treating, buying, selling and making gain out of it, and crying, their hands are clean on Sabbath and sacremental occasions, our visions of the future are shaded. The views of the publisher of this paper see well known in regard to this traffic. While some who are now loud in the advocacy of action were as silent as the dead, we have not ceased to denounce the evil, and urge the people, especially those who profess to be on the side of right, to get to work, but we almost fear that the future will be as the past for a while longer. Just think: Not long since the writer advised a moderate drinker, who some times got drunk, to avoid the place of danger, but the reply was, "I saw the Rev'd. go and take his glass of beer, and why not I?" Another instance: lately we asked, "will the Rev. Mr. ——— be at the meeting?" when we were told, "no; father brought him to one meeting but he spoke so against temperance societies that he will never again bring him or send for him."

Another minister says that the temperance movement is useless, unless men be first christianized, and yet how frequently do we find the christian unchristianized by the demon of drink? And how we have been converted while drunk? The evil is in the land, and the people are to blame for it, but the teachings and actions of masters in Israel too plainly indicate that they are to blame to. If this plain speaking should arouse, even though it be but their ire, out of their action there may come something to lead the despondent to hope for better things in the future. The time is at hand when the land shall be freed from this evil. How our love for our bright Canadian skies, and her free institutions would increase, if she should be the first among the nations to throw off the yoke, and teach the empire that her youthful offspring can think and act, and that even in her swaddling bands, even in her minority.

TOWN COUNCIL.

SPECIAL MEETING.

The Town Council met in special session on Monday pursuant of notice issued from the Mayor.

Present, his Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Beal, Rutherford, Dixon, Robertson, Deane, Hopkins, Patterson, Romaine, Helm, Cahill and Hamilton.

The Mayor stated that he had received a letter from Col. Chamblies, and that he should have placed it before last Council. The Council had appointed a committee to consider the letter. The letter was read, it purported to suggest certain terms upon which he would finish the railway across Rice Lake. His worship also stated that Mr. Pringle, who is an agent for Col. Chamblies, would no doubt answer any question put to him on the matter. And on request of the Mayor, Mr. Pringle addressed the Council, making offers to complete the Bridge and Road, on conditions of certain payments, which we explained last week.

Mr. Hamilton introduced a By-law to amend By-law 267, to provide for certain payments in proportion to the work done from time to time in the proportion of ¼ to ¾ of amount certified by the Engineer.

The By-law was read a second time in Committee of the whole, Mr. Deane in the chair.

The amending clauses were read and passed, when the Committee rose, and the Council reparated, awaiting the passing of the By-law.

WORSE AND WORSE.

Two more of the elections necessary through the operations of the existing law against bribery have taken place this week—North Renfrew and Centre Hall. Both these constituencies, it will be remembered, elected opponents of Mr. Mackenzie's Government at the last general election. In the first, Mr. Peter White—whose cashier proved himself to be such a generous, open-handed, happy-go-lucky sort o' chap in money matters during the canvass—was the most successful candidate, and in the latter, the Hon. J. J. Abbott—Sir John A.'s "Send me another ten thousand man"—managed to get returned by a small majority. However a very brief investigation into the liberal donations of the aforesaid cashier and others rendered it necessary for the unfortunate Peter to be elected again, if he was ever to become a bright and shining light in the Legislative halls of his country. A similarity disagreeable ordeal was discovered to be indispensable in the case of the Hon. J. J. A., even without an investigation. Unlike Peter, though, his ambition for Parliamentary honors had been satisfied and he wisely determined, under the circumstances, not to be again a candidate—at present—after the fame achieved by being a principal in that highly creditable, original and unique correspondence with the "noble Tory chieftain" whose "hands were clean" about Sir Hugh Allan's bribery and corruption electioneering fund, it was only natural that Mr. Abbott should seek a well-earned retirement into private life. Further distinction as a leading Tory politician and statesman offered no attractions for him. His cup of honors had run over and he felt inclined "to rest and be thankful." This retiring inclination was greatly strengthened moreover by the temper of the electors of Argenteuil just about that time. They also seemed to think that the Hon. J. J. had won about all the glory, as a legislator, that any one man was entitled to and they therefore very thoughtfully and cordially seconded his motion to retire. He retired—and left the fields in the hands of his former opponent, Mr. Cushing, and a strong local man, Mr. Owens, who ran on the independent ticket—no out-and out Tory candidate daring to appear in the contest. The election came off yesterday and resulted in the return of the Reform candidate by a good majority. A similar result occurred in South Renfrew, where Mr. Peter White had the hardihood to present himself for reelection. He has been defeated by a majority of about 50 by Mr. William Murray, the regular Reform candidate. How then is a clean sweep of two constituencies to the Government as the result thus far of the contested elections. The total poll up to date is as follows:—

Essex, McGregor, Reform, re-elected by nearly 1000 majority.

South Renfrew, J. Lorn Macdougall, Reform, re-elected by acclamation.

Addington, Mr. Shibley, Reform re-elected, by an increased majority—between 300 and 400.

Cornwall, Macdonald, Reform, re elected.

Argenteuil, Mr. Cushing, Reform, elected in room of Hon. J. J. Abbott, Tory, by a good majority.

North Renfrew, Mr. Wm. Murray, Reform, elected in Room of Mr. Peter White, Tory, by 59 majority.

Total Reform.....6
" Tory.....0

And this is the "sweeping revulsion of feeling" which the Tories would have us believe has set in throughout the country against the "rule of the hatred Grits at Ottawa." We expect to see other similar evidences of this "revulsion" before the elections are over in the other constituencies where the seats have been contested. No telling to what an alarming extent it may develope itself—in Kingston for instance! Who knows? —From the Woodstock Sentinel.

SOUTH RENFREW ELECTOIN.

There has been a good deal said about the South Renfrew election. It has been claimed by the Tory press that Mr. Bannerman's nomination was rejected by a partizan Returning Officer; that it was a legal paper, and that if it was not a legal paper the law makes provision for just such informalities as occurred in this case. This last, however, is an afterthought, and is, therefore, not worth consideration. It is a matter of importance to know whether Mr. Bannerman was wrongfully deprived of his candidature, and the public have a right to demand the facts. The Returning Officer is also most deeply interested, for he is in effect accused of a high crime and cannot be indifferent. The facts seem to be as follows:—

"About ten days before the election, Returning Officer, Mr. Irving saw both the candidates, and told them to be very particular with their nomination papers, and advised them to get a lawyer to prepare them, as it was his intention to receive only such nomination papers as were strictly in accordance with the requirements of the law; Mr. Irving thinking very properly that it would make the candidates more careful in arranging their nominations, and might save him from having to perform any unpleasant duty. Eight days before the election he again saw Messrs. McDougall and Bannerman, and informed them what voters' list would be used in the election, in order that they might know exactly what parties were competent to nominate candidates. On the morning of the nomination day, Mr. Bannerman called on the Returning officer, and produced his nomination paper; stating at the same time that he had erased three or four names and desiring to know if the paper would be refused on that account. Mr. Irving said certainly not. He then produced his witness, Mr. Thos. B. Muir, of Renfrew, who took the oath required by the law—(that he knew the parties on the nomination papers to be voters at election.) Mr. Bannerman then took it back, and did not hand it to the Returning Officer in his official capacity, till after one o'clock, then accompanying it with $60 in B. N. A. Bank bills. Almost immediately after, Mr. Irving was served with a protest, requiring him to refuse the candidature of Mr. McDougall, on the ground of divers corrupt practices alleged at the last election, and to return Mr. Bannerman by acclamation. At half past one another nomination paper was handed in, being that of Mr. Barnet business partner of Mr. Bannerman, but it was withdrawn. The Returning Officer then examined the nomination papers carefully, and the election clerk, a resident of Renfew village, pointed out to Mr. Irving that the name of William Tierney was not that of a voter. The Returning Officer then examined the voters' list, and found such to be the case, as there were in the city twenty-four names locally on the list, the Returning Officer could not consistently with his oath receive the nomination. Before giving his decision he sent for Mr. Bannerman and asked him if he had anything to urge against his (Irving), refusing the nomination. Mr. Bannerman replied that he had nothing to say. Mr. Muir, the attesting witness, then came forward and voluntarily stated to the Returning Officer that his oath was wrong, and that he had made a mistake in swearing that William Tierney was a voter, as he knew he was not. The Returning Officer then took legal advice from John McDonald, Barrister of Renfew, who advised that as the Act required the names of 25 voters to be attached to the nomination papers, and as there were only 24 names on the paper in question, it would be wrong to receive it, and move especially as the attesting witness had informed the Returning Officer that his affidavit was not true. The Returning Officer therefore declared Mr. McDougall elected. At the close of the meeting Mr. McDougall moved, and Mr. Bannerman seconded a vote of thanks to Mr. Irving!!

IN VIEW of the return of Reformers in all the constituencies where elections to fill vacancies created by bribery have been held—even by increased majorities—the Montreal Herald wants to know where the bribery came in. If votes were bought in one side more votes must have been bought on the other side.

NORTH RENFREW.

Nomination of Dr. Biddifield.

On Saturday last, as will be seen by a report of the meeting given elsewhere, Dr. Biddifield, of this village was the chosen nominee of the New Reform Association, to contest this riding at the next election for the Local Legislature. How that nomination was secured we are at a loss to conjecture,—for we had been led to anticipate a different result on account of opinions expressed to us freely previous to the meeting. The views of those men must have undergone a very marked change, or they were not candid in the advice tendered us. For our own part, we candidly held the opinion that men who had largely contributed to large successes were entitled to the honor if last. However a very brief investigation into the liberal donations of the aforesaid cashier and others rendered it necessary for the unfortunate Peter to be elected again, if he was ever to become a bright and shining light in the Legislative halls of his country. A similarity disagreeable ordeal was discovered to be indispensable in the case of the Hon. J. J. A., even without an investigation. Unlike Peter, though, his ambition for Parliamentary honors had been satisfied and he wisely determined, under the circumstances, not to be again a candidate—at present—after the fame achieved by being a principal in that highly creditable, original and unique correspondence with the "noble Tory chieftain" whose "hands were clean" about Sir Hugh Allan's bribery and corruption electioneering fund, it was only natural that Mr. Abbott should seek a well-earned retirement into private life. Further distinction as a leading Tory politician and statesman offered no attractions for him. His cup of honors had run over and he felt inclined "to rest and be thankful." This retiring inclination was greatly strengthened moreover by the temper of the electors of Argenteuil just about that time. They also seemed to think that the Hon. J. J. had won about all the glory, as a legislator, that any one man was entitled to and they therefore very thoughtfully and cordially seconded his motion to retire. He retired—and left the fields in the hands of his former opponent, Mr. Cushing, and a strong local man, Mr. Owens, who ran on the independent ticket—no out-and out Tory candidate daring to appear in the contest. The election came off yesterday and resulted in the return of the Reform candidate by a good majority. A similar result occurred in South Renfrew, where Mr. Peter White had the hardihood to present himself for reelection. He has been defeated by a majority of about 50 by Mr. William Murray, the regular Reform candidate. How then is a clean sweep of two constituencies to the Government as the result thus far of the contested elections. The total poll up to date is as follows:—

Essex, McGregor, Reform, re-elected by nearly 1000 majority.

South Renfrew, J. Lorn Macdougall, Reform, re-elected by acclamation.

Addington, Mr. Shibley, Reform re-elected, by an increased majority—between 300 and 400.

Cornwall, Macdonald, Reform, re elected.

Argenteuil, Mr. Cushing, Reform, elected in room of Hon. J. J. Abbott, Tory, by a good majority.

North Renfrew, Mr. Wm. Murray, Reform, elected in Room of Mr. Peter White, Tory, by 59 majority.

Total Reform.....6
" Tory.....0

And this is the "sweeping revulsion of feeling" which the Tories would have us believe has set in throughout the country against the "rule of the hatred Grits at Ottawa." We expect to see other similar evidences of this "revulsion" before the elections are over in the other constituencies where the seats have been contested. No telling to what an alarming extent it may develope itself—in Kingston for instance! Who knows? —From the Woodstock Sentinel.

KINMOUNT.

THE ICELANDERS—SICKNESS AMONG THE CHILDREN.

We have been favored with the following memorandum furnished by Dr. Fidler, who visited the Icelanders last week. It will be seen that the disease under which several are suffering, originated on the voyage:—

According to instructions received from Mr. S. C. Wood and Col. Dennis—the former having been telegraphed to that effect by Mr. Laidlaw—I proceeded on Thursday last to Kinmount, to visit the Iceland emigrants, taking with me a quantity of medicine. I found a large number of them sick with chronic diarrhea—I was told sixty—some had been suffering from the disease ever since they left their native land, and not being properly attended to, the disease had become contagious, and of the young children and infants sixteen had died. During the night I was there two more died, and there were two or three or more who were too far gone to recover. Two of the shanties were very much overcrowded and the ventilation was bad; there was also great want of cleanliness. My opinion a competent person should be appointed to administer proper medicines, attend to the diet, and to see that strict sanitary rules were observed.

They were putting up another shanty, to relieve the overcrowded state of the others which will be a means of preventing the spread of the disease. Indipendent.

PARIS ONTARIO.

DARING ATTEMPT AT ROBBERY.

An attempt was made to rob the Bank of British North America on the morning of November the 5th instant, but failed. The plan taken was a most desperate one. About half-past one Mr. Carnegie, who resides about a quarter of a mile from the bank, was rudely awakened by three men rushing into his bedroom, and pointing a revolver at his head, telling him they wanted the keys of the bank, and of the safe therein. He informed them that it would do no good as the clerk in the bank had part of the keys. He was then handcuffed, taken upstairs, and put in a closet, bound hand and foot, gagged, and securely tied to the floor and the wall in a sitting posture to staples which the burglars screwed into the floor. The servant girl was treated in a like manner in another room, and Mrs. Carnegie was also handcuffed, gagged, and tied down to her bed. The burglars obtained the keys, and after making everything secure, as they supposed, they went out of the house. The children were all placed in a room and fastened in, but Mr. Carnegie's eldest boy escaped their observation, and after they had gone, Mr. Carnegie managed to work the gag out of his mouth and called to his boy in the next room to raise the window and alarm the neighbors. This he did, and in a short time several of them turned out, and by their doing so frustrated the scheme. The men were all masked, and well armed. In the morning three men were arrested, and their trial was immediately proceeded with. The girl swears positively to one of them, but it is doubtful if they are the right parties. In the morning a lot of burglars tools were found in an adjoining lot. The handcuffs, straps, etc., show excellent workmanship, and although the attempt was a desperate one, they have lost more than they made on this occasion, as they took nothing whatever from the house. Some parties hired a team in Preston the day previous, and the owner, Gilles, suspecting all was not right, was in Paris the following day looking for his team, but could not find it. Afterward, however, the team and carriage were found in a field on a farm adjoining the town, the team being securely tied, and evidently having stayed their all night. These are supposed to be the right parties, and when their scheme failed, they abandoned their team and made off.

Manitoba.

Manitoba College has this year all its forms represented, and has began theological teaching with three promising students. A number of young men intend on the setting in of winter taking advantage of these educational facilities. It is also in contemplation establishing evening classes in the College in French, bookkeeping and phonography for the benefit of young men.

The new school at Stony Pond, second crossing of White Mud River, opened on Monday, Oct. 19th. Religious services having been held, appropriate addresses were delivered by the Rev. Messrs Cook, McKellar, and Walon, and an interesting sketch by the first named gentleman of his life during the last thirty years as a missionary in the North-west, in which he compared the state of affairs existing then and now, and rejoiced to see a public school erected where a few years ago was but a wild uninhabited country.

The Ottawa Times thinks if the theory of "protection" pure and simple, could be fastened on the tories. "It would be the death knell of their party in every rural constituency in Canada." It adds to us that the press of the party is doing all it can to drive them the check stronger. It is simply a question of having constituency to cling to. They never had a platform when in power; how can they be supposed to have one out of power? the next best thing seems to be an order and then seems to be a grievance.

PRESBYTERIAN ITEMS.

[illegible] Presbytery [illegible] Tuesday, October [illegible] inducted [illegible] Rev. Wm. Rogers, M.A., late of Ashburn and Uxbridge. There were present ten ministers besides Mr. Roger. The Rev. J. Campbell, of Cavan, preached from 1 Cor. 2., 1, 1, as appropriate, eloquent, and impressive sermon. The Revs. Dr. Thornbo and J. Thom addressed the minister and people respectively, after the proper questions had been put to and answered satisfactorily by the minister and people, and prayer engaged in by the Rev. J. B. Edmondson, Moderator of the Presbytery. The members of the congregation, who were present in gratifying large numbers, he evidently very cordial shaking of his right hand, welcomed their new pastor among them. [illegible]

Mr. Roger's name was duly added to the roll of the Presbytery.

In the evening was the usual and seemingly indespensible feast of the induction; though not the only feast of the occasion. Our good and patriarchal friends, Mr. W. Heron, entertained the Presbytery as a generously and sumptuous ly provided dinner. In the evening a large multitude sat down to a well-gotten up tea in a hall. Thereafter speeches and music were the order of the evening, in the church. Mr. Roger presided ably and gracefully. The Brooklyn Church Presbytery choir, aided by a good organ, rendered some good anthems in capital style. Suitable and well-appropriate addresses were given by several members of the Presbytery.

The Lord grant that this may be a beginning of better days for the ever before to the Lord's flock in that locality.

The editor of the Halifax Witness attended the late Evangelical Alliance meeting at Montreal, where he met Rev. A. Henderson, a Presbyterian minister, who has completed the [illegible] of his age and the 54th of his ministry. He is senior pastor of St. Andrew's, up the Ottawa Valley. He is clear headed, and by no means feeble in body; his voice is strong and clear, and his intellect active. He attended the ordinary meetings of the Conference, and most of the Prayer Meetings. He also was present at and seemed to enjoy, the Reception at Principal Dawson's. He belonged to the United Presbyterian Church, and is now a member of the Canada Presbyterian Church. He is one of the oldest, if not the most aged Minister in the Presbyterian connection in the world.

A large glittering clock was on the evening of the 23rd after the Canada Presbyterian Church, Port Perry. After partaking of a sumptuous feast, provided by the ladies of the congregation, Mr. Gordon, M. P., on behalf of the Sabbath school and congregation, presented Mr. Young with an elegant gold watch and chain, valued at $160. Rev. Mr. Thom made a suitable reply. The entertainment was enlivened by the singing of an excellent choir, led by Mrs. Thom, also by readings of select pieces by Messrs. Crawford and Gallon, and speeches of a most instructive character by the reverend gentlemen present.

PRESBYTERY OF COBOURG.

This Presbytery met at Perrytown on the second Tuesday of September, for the induction of the Rev. W. Hodnett. Mr. Roger (hereafter addressed the minister, and Mr. Mitchell the people, returning to the Remit on Union were called for, and fourteen session and congregations report unanimously in favor of union on the basis sent down; and in each of two others, viz.: Peterboro and Baltimore, the same conclusion was reached with only one dissentient. It was unanimously agreed to approve of the proposed enlargement in this representation of Presbytery in the next general assembly. Instructions were renewed to Mr. McWilliam to moderate in a call at Colborne and Hastings, when it shall seem desirable to do so. Reports showed that satisfactory progress was being made in the different mission fields. Mr. McKay gave in a report of a visit which he paid in the beginning of September to the mission field of Chandos and Barleigh, in which he spent two Sabbaths, dispensing the ordinance of the Lord's Supper twice, and preaching eight times. Mr. McKay strongly recommended the division of this field. The cordial thanks of the Presbytery were tendered to Mr. McKay for the very diligent and faithful manner in which he had discharged the duty assigned to him. A similar report of a visit paid by Mr. Clark was given in, and in like manner acknowledged by the Presbytery. Messrs. Ewing and Lochhead were appointed to visit Haliburton at some period convenient for themselves, and also at the same time visit and preach in the Hindes Mission Group. Mr. Bennett gave notice that he would at the next regular meeting move that a system of regular Presbyterial visitation of congregations be instituted. It was agreed that the next regular meeting of the Presbytery be held at Peterboro' on the second Tuesday of January, 1875, at 11 a.m; and that in the evening of that day, a conference be held on the state of religion, and that addresses be delivered by Messrs. Douglas, Mitchell, and McKay.

Lake Superior.

ST. PAUL, November 2.

The steamer, Lottie Bernard, Captain Morris, of Duluth, bound from Pigeon River to Duluth, foundered on Lake Superior on Thursday last during a fearful gale, which swept the decks and finally extinguished the fires. There were 15 persons on board, including one passenger, Willie Blanchard, the latter and one of the deck hands were drowned by the upsetting of a boat. The remaining 13 succeeded in launching a yawl, and after untold privations reached the shore. After travelling about five miles, ten of them reached an Indian settlement, where they obtained shelter and sent aid to those who were too exhausted to walk. The rescuing party found one of the latter dead, and two others nearly so. They were taken to the settlement and are doing well. Gales & Co., of Duluth, owned the steamer which was insured for part of its value.

A WILLIAM FLOGGED.

NAPANEE, Nov. 7.—Peter Brown was brought here to day from the Central Prison at Toronto, to receive his first twenty lashes from the cats-o-nine-tails for committing rape on his own daughter, near Mill Point, one month ago, for which he was sentenced by Judge Matheson of this place, to forty lashes and four months in gaol, twenty lashes the first month, and the second twenty the third month. At 1.30 p.m. he was taken from the cell and fastened to the triangle in the prison yard in presence of the other prisoners confined in gaol, the officials, the press, and a half-dozen spectators. He screamed and wept bitterly, begging for mercy, during the operation. His back presented a bad sight, the blood oozing out of the wounds made by the lash. He will be removed back to Toronto till the expiration of two months, when he will receive the balance.

The Hon. points out a special grievance that those Toronto [illegible] because Mr. Crooks paid Municipal Debentures in England, at 85 cents on the dollar. The Government now advertise for sale no less than $90,000 of their investments. One would think if Mr. Crooks made such a bad bargain, Tories would rush for the chance to make wealth.

WE MENTIONED previously the growing feeling springing up in regard to the taxation of churches and church property for municipal and other purposes. The instance, so far as we know, was first broached in New York and has rapidly gaining strength since. It was broached in London, the hon by Alderman Cowan, who thinks [illegible] and [illegible] into operation.

THE POPE, in reply to an address from Roman women, spoke on the question whether a Catholic ought to accept election as a deputy to the Italian Parliament. His Holiness said that a Catholic, in his opinion, would not be free as a deputy, as certain political questions would raise obstacles to the course he ought to pursue, and moreover, the oath he would have to take would be another and still greater obstacle.

The Reform Candidate.

[illegible] health [illegible] himself [illegible] Mr. [illegible] last day [illegible] Mr. [illegible] the reputation [illegible] of [illegible] hand [illegible] his own [illegible] and [illegible] the electors soliciting a continuation of their support. The Herald this morning, while clearing him of all personal participation in the practices which lost him his seat recently, so evidently approbensive of the effect of his vote on the Riel question, and hints the probability of a repetition of some other fake than the English being put forward, in breach of the rule that has for some years prompted the nationality of the representatives of the three Parliamentary Assemblies of the city. It is strange that a single conscientious act should be made such a weapon against a gentleman of Mr. Mackenzie's standing, but [illegible] the [illegible] would know better than to stroke the hair of their constituents the wrong way, but the mischief is that these gentlemen, in virtue of that very quality are too often found easy-minded when the temptation of self interest crosses their political path. Mr. Mackenzie's record as a citizen, and his devotion and liberality in so very many philanthropic and benevolent enterprises, are evidence of his public worth, but that is nothing. Parliamentary honors he has no other aim than to serve the best interests of the people, in what seems to him the best way.

Should no other candidate interfere, the electors of Mon[illegible] West will have two good men on each side of politics to choose from, and the next Parliament will have followed [illegible] corrupt practices, great or small, will doubtless ensure purity of election. The agents, canvassers, and all other parties of the election shark should be made to understand that their occupations are gone, and advised to seek some more creditable way of "turning an honest penny" in the future.—Montreal Witness.

Death from Chloroform.

This (Monday) morning a painful sensation was caused by the sudden death of the estimable wife of Mr. G. S. Hobart of the Medical Hall. The deceased had about ten o'clock, attended by appointment made on Saturday, at a dental office to have three teeth which annoyed her removed. Her husband accompanied her, and consented to chloroform being used, as she had received it in previous operations, on the same dentist without [illegible] and [illegible] sustained. Shortly [illegible] minutes to-day when her head fell back and she gave every sign of death. Dr. Jarvis was at once called in from his surgery next door, but life was already extinct, and [illegible] Dr. Hobart [illegible] with [illegible] the [illegible] made [illegible] of avail. Dr. Jarvis was also soon in attendance, but death had evidently taken place momentarily from paralysis of muscles of the heart, and medical aid was useless to recall the dead or relieve the agony of the living. The dose of chloroform was a small one. Forcandidit, and physicians say that the deceased lady had, though not strong, been accustomed to take every day, an [illegible] before breakfast. [illegible] afternoon, by the desire of those who may possibly be held to blame by persons who have no knowledge of the facts, but who need every care in her treatment.—Whig.

Cremation.

Particulars like the following from Berlin correspondence of the London Times will not make cremation popular:—"The body of Lady Dilke, who died five weeks ago in London, was burned on the 10th inst., at Dresden. The ceremony was performed in the furnace recently invented for burial purposes by Herr Siemens, and the relatives of the deceased lady permitting strangers to be present, a large number of scientific men attended the experiment. When the company had complied with Herr Siemen's request to offer up a mental prayer, the coffin was placed in the chamber of the furnace; six minutes later the coffin burst; five minutes more and the flesh began to melt away: ten minutes more and the skeleton was all that [illegible] remained. Seventy-five minutes after the introduction of the [illegible] the [illegible] the coffin was six pounds of dust placed in an urn. The brother-in law of the deceased was present."

LENGTH OF SHOULDER.

(To the Editor of the Canada Farmer.

SIR:—A friend of mine and myself have recently had an argument about the proper length of a double tree in ploughing; he maintaining that it should be 3 feet 9 inches long, and I holding that one about 2 feet 10 inches or three feet in length would be nearer the mark. I consider that in the latter case the draught would come more level upon the horses, the plough would run more easily and steadily, and the ploughman could do better work than if a 3 feet 6 inch doubletree was used. To counteract the side draft occasioned by the use of too long a doubletree, some who consider themselves ploughmen keep the nigh horse "hawed" out. I have heard such persons shouting from morning till night, hoarse almost in pleasing the nigh to the same direction over to the left and claiming that as the proper position in which to hold the implement. It is easy to imagine what sort of an inclination the whiffletree assume under such circumstances. Now I consider that with the use of a set such as I claim, of a length which would bring the draught in a line with, instead of at any angle to, the direction of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Montreal.

A clerk in the Saving Department, Bank of Montreal, has embezzled $32,000 and left for parts unknown. He is son of Dr. Davies of London, England, and had been but lately advanced to the position in which he became defaulter; he is about 21 years of age. A clerk in the employment of Mr. W. R. Simpson, also of Montreal, is a defaulter to the amount of $15,000. His name was not given in the telegraphic news. Reports of a shocking occurrence said to have taken place last Thursday in the Cote des Neiges Cemetery have been made. One is to the effect that a young married lady was taken suddenly ill, and, after two day's sickness, died. She was laid out, and after a lapse of three days the funeral took place. The corpse was noticed to be in a remarkable state of preservation. After the funeral procession had reached the cemetery the coffin was removed into the Dead House, and here a particular friend of the deceased, who had been summoned from a distance, arrived, and asked to see the body once more. The request was granted and the coffin-lid was uncovered, when to the horror of all, it was seen that the corpse was lying on its side. The head was twisted round facing uppermost, the richest clothes were disarranged, while the left arm was drawn up, as a support underneath the body as if the unfortunate woman had been leaning on it in [illegible] and terrible struggle for breath. The night was deeply terrible, and the unfortunate husband of the deceased gave [illegible] The ladies were so overcome by what they saw as to faint. It is supposed the woman had been lying in a trance, and was brought to life through the jolting of the hearse while on the road to the cemetery, though, of course, only to another. This is all that is known of the terrible affair. The names are suppressed.

TEMPERANCE.

A very large and enthusiastic meeting was held on Monday evening in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., having for its object the limitation of the liquor traffic in this town and community.

Colonel Haultain was called to the Chair, and in a very effective speech explained the object of the meeting. He pointed out the evils of the traffic, its direful effects on those addicted to the use of strong drink, and the great necessity that existed for limiting the number of licensed houses for the sale and barter of the vile things. He called on Mr. Alderman for some town statistics, which he gave, showing the number of licensed houses to sell intoxicating liquors in town to be 33. He also stated that over one half of the whole real estate of the town was devoted to the traffic, and that no less than $—— of that property was owned by men professedly to be Christians or members of Christian churches. He was fully cognizant of the appalling evil that existed, and of the course that it entailed on the town and country, but he was unable to point out any way of getting rid of it except by prohibition, but whether that would soon come or not he could not tell. He thought the number of taverns might be lessened, the saloons done away with, and shops, he did not believe, to be a necessity; but how were they to be got rid of, seeing that such property and wealth were at the back of the traffic.

Rev. Mr. Fish then moved the following resolution:—

That no consideration of private interest, or public revenue can justify the upholding of a system so utterly wrong in principle, suicidal in policy and subversive of all the best interests of the community, and we would respectfully urge upon the ratepayers of this town and municipality, to withhold their votes from any and every man that will not pledge himself to use his utmost endeavor to reduce the number of licenses and to increase the price to the utmost limit.

In moving it he defended the Mayor as part of the council, from any blame on account of the fearful number of places in which intoxicating liquors were sold, as he, the Mayor, had done all he could to limit them, and to raise the cost of licenses. But the other members of the council, he felt, had not done their duty to the town or to the community. He showed from established statistics that the revenue for the town from the traffic was a loss, and not a gain, as more was taken to support the pauperism caused by it and to punish the crime which resulted from it than it produced; and he pointed out the short-sighted policy of men who kept the view that not to take money for licenses was robbing the town of a revenue that could be used to build side walks, bridges, and other improvements in the town. He made a warm and pathetic appeal to the people to take the matter up and do what they could under existing machinery to limit the traffic, limiting the places where it can be carried on, and by compelling the due observance of the laws in regard to Saturday night closing, and the observance of the Sabbath. The Rev. gentleman combatted the idea that councillors possessed all the business knowledge in the world, and that ministers knew nothing of them things; and showed that he was not so ignorant of the business views of the matter as to retain, if he could prevent, a trade that entailed ruin financially and morally on all those engaged in it or allowing it.

Rev. Mr. Hooper seconded this resolution in an able and touching appeal to the audience to assist in the evil, and pointed out a partial remedy for it by voting to send only men to our Council who would do what they could to limit the number of houses and raise the cost of Licenses as a means of curtailing the direful effects of a traffic so demoralising to the whole community and so detrimental to the social well-being. But not having taken notes, we regret that we cannot give his speech with any degree of accurateness. The rev. gentleman was frequently applauded, showing that the audience was in full sympathy with the spirit of his remarks.

The Rev. Mr. Rose, in following, moved this resolution—

Resolved, that in the opinion of this meeting, the granting of shop licenses is a most incorrect and injurious system, and that we urge upon the Council the necessity of reducing the number to the lowest possible limit,

In doing so, he seconded the views so well and ably set forth by the previous speakers, and strongly urged upon the people the wisdom of now doing what they could to suppress the sale of strong drink.

Mayor Cox seconded this resolution, and in doing so, explained the action of the Council in lessening the price of Licenses, against which he had done all he could. He blamed the temperance people for not encouraging him at the time, while the liquor-sellers were there in force to over-awe by their numbers and pressure the Council into submission, and not just temperance man was there, nor did they get up one petition against the action of the Council. He deprecated the evils of the traffic, and thought that there should not be more than fifteen licensed [illegible] in town. He would [illegible] to Council, who [illegible] and it should not be sold in stores at all, as by licensing stores in which groceries were also sold, an advantage was given to them to the detriment of other grocers who would not keep it. He also referred to the course of Mayor Christian, Mr. Edwards referred to [illegible] put their money in buildings for the traffic, and [illegible] rent any of his property for the purpose, and even hesitated to rent dwellings to men who were engaged in it. He felt that at the polls was the place to attack the evil; but there was no use in sending one or two there to be voted down, and effect nothing but making enemies for himself. There should be at least six or seven men to rid and unanimous each [illegible] should [illegible] their votes [illegible] some good results, and he was ready, although not a candidate for municipal honors as Mayor, to be one to go in as Councillor to assist in some reforms.

The Rev. Mr. Mackenzie supported the resolution in a very earnest appeal to the audience to assist in getting rid of the bane of alcohol. He referred to the [illegible] Monday, and even early in the morning; to instances of wife beating in the public streets; to [illegible] children, and dirty [illegible] and demoralizing traffic; and he concluded by [illegible] the appointing of a Committee to take action, so that their meeting might not be in vain as to the course to be pursued in the matter.

Mr. Kirk moved, seconded by Mr. Mackenzie, that Messrs. Haultain, Cox, Pentland, Donnelly, Hall, (J. A.), Hall, (William), Kemp, Mason, Stacey and Stratton be a Committee with power to add to their number, to take the matter into consideration and devise some plan of action so that the end sought by the meeting might be accomplished.

After returning a vote of thanks to the originator of the movement, and to the ministers who addressed the meeting, moved by Mr. Stratton, seconded by Dr. Pentland, Rev. Mr. Macfarland pronounced the benediction, and the meeting was closed.

SCHOOL FEES.

This is a subject that, perhaps, does not interest the attention of parents or guardians who pay it, because of the smallness of the sums paid out at one time. Ten cents a month per pupil is considered a trifle, but trifles in the aggregate amount to large sums. During the year 1873, the School Fees in the Public School amounted to about $700. The law provide that—"School Boards in cities, Towns and Villages may collect from parents or guardians of pupils, a sum not exceeding 20 cents per month per pupil to defray the cost of Text Books Stationery, and study cubic graphics."

The sum of $700 has been collected, but no text books have been provided. About $150 to 175 were spent in Stationery, printing and cubic graphics. The balance,—$509 to $550 was supplied to lessen the taxes for the year. This evidently is not as our Legislators intended. The grants of all School Legislation is to make the entrance to our Schools free—the property of the Municipality to pay Salaries and general expenses. This School was intended to enable the School Boards to provide text books for those who perhaps could not, or, would not do so themselves. The Board has provided no books, and no appearance of any great value. The question therefore arises, should the monthly fee be continued unless applied to it legitimate object? The sum is no mere trifle. In applying it to lessen the taxes, it just taking $500 out of the pockets of those who send children to school, to pay the taxes of others who are better able to pay. Either let it be applied as the law directs, or cease to collect it.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE FEES.

At present many persons are anxious to learn all about the high fees for the Collegiate Institute. The Board, however, in this case, has levied no more than is necessary to meet the current expenses. The cost of working this Institution is increasing yearly, with the increase of the Town and the work of the school. For many years the late secretary charged all expenses (except teachers salaries) to the Public School Department, so that the Protestant ratepayers provided them about $150 to $200 yearly more than their fair share of the Grammar or High School expenses. During the last two or three years expenses have been apportioned between the two departments of Collegiate Institute and Public Schools, and this raises the rate for Collegiate Institute expenses. There is, however, a sum still less than [illegible] the Public School fees, amounting [illegible] to [illegible] in the aggregate. This sum, although collected for Stationery and Text Books, is altogether applied to lessen the general tax or rate for the school. It is collected almost altogether from Protestant parents and guardians, yet is applied to lessen the general rate, thus again showing that our School Board relieves those who ought to bear all the expenses of about $500 a year. There is a rumour that the Roman Catholic Board of School Trustees have complained about the high rate for the Collegiate Institute, but the above will show the ratepayers that if there is cause for complaint, our Roman Catholic ratepayers have no reason to do so, as Protestants pay about $500 a year of fee that [illegible] reputably be, indeed, ought to be, placed on the general property, and the Board by applying the sum, as is now done, relieves the Roman Catholic rate payers of no less than $250 a year, or thereabouts.

Those fees should be done away with. Our schools should be as free as the air and water around us, and everything done to enable the poor man's child to receive the most liberal education our Country can bestow on it. The burden or tax would be no heavier than it is at present, and the only difference would be—property would pay the whole and [illegible] man would be relieved of $1 to $150 per child yearly; whose he could then apply to purchase the necessary [illegible] books for them.

OTONABEE COUNCIL.

The Municipal Council of Otonabee met on 10th October, on call of Reeve. Present, all the Council. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

Mr. David Armstrong was heard in reference to making a road opposite Lot 24 between 5th and 6th Concessions.

Messrs. David and Thomas Armstrong were allowed to commute their Statute Labor for five years, and perform the same on the road allowance opposite Lot 24 between 5th and 6th Concessions.

The Treasurer was directed to pay the following sums, viz.:- To Robert and J. W. Robinson for the road surveyed on [illegible] of Lot 22 in 10th Concession, $75.44; to John Lang, for gravel and cedars, $25.50; to Malcolm Sinclair for repairing Bridge in Town Limits, $3.75; also for work at Keene Bridge, $1.80; to James Stewart for gravel $5.35; to Peter Hamilton for a road scraper, $7.50.

Tenders for building Town Hall were again received in consequence of the failure of Mr. Hopper to furnish security for the performance of work at his tender received in August last. Messrs. Nelson, Hiln & Hiln's being the lowest tender was accepted.

A By-law for the Assessing of certain School Sections, also a By-law to assess and collect for township purposes the sum of $1,513.64 were passed and signed.

Council adjourned to meet on call of Reeve.

[illegible] It is reported in Chicago that the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada intend to bring before the public Boss's Bridge. Now, Sir, we are very anxious to have that bridge rebuilt, but what can we do? Our Reeve replies he proceeds in the County Council, and the members of our County Council seem to be very, very [illegible] about us. I still think that there are many in our County Council, did they fully understand our great need of that bridge, that would grant to old residents their rights. We find that some think that Hale's Bridge should suffice. Now, Sir, Hale's Bridge is of very little use only to the west end of the township; and then they have a good gravel road. Only think of a man when he leaves home only about 8 or 9 miles from town, having to travel 18, and, over a 20 to get to Peterborough; and if he wanted to go to Keene, when he starts he is within 3 miles and having to go 20. Again, I am sure it is to the interests of Peterborough, and I hope you will studagitate and work until you get to the bridge. I think I am under the mark when I say that we leave from $80,000 to $90,000 annually with you. We like the merchants, and like to trade there, but a good, number now are in doubt whether to go to Port Hope or Peterborough, as many, since the bridge is down, find Port Hope fully as nigh and more easily travelled, as they have a good road all the way. To show you that we are serious: three or four years since we went round to see how much we would raise as a bonus, I think we raised $600, several subscribing from $20 to $40: and you are aware that if the counties would take the matter up it would not cost us 50 cents each. Enough said. Work to let old Britons have their rights. Old residents that have built many a log bridge should be allowed what we are willing to all to other equal rights.

"Most Lovely" Savages.

The author of "The Wonderland of the Antipodes," writes: "The Samoans are the most lovely race of savages with whom it has been my fortune to meet. They have not the flat nose, thick lips, frizzled hair of the negro type, but have distinctly European features, and a very pleasing expression. The color of their skin is a rich golden; their whole costume is limited to a light fringe of grass round the waist, and the women coaxing themselves in the way of tattooing to a couple of thin blue lines across the lips. The men are of great physical strength and enormous stature; they have a queer disdain for us whites, and say that while we employ brutal force, e. g., Armstrong guns, etc., like a bull, they have the reason and intellect of the child who run away from the bull. They live a happy, graceless life; the earth unasked produces her treasures in abundance, and they have no need to dig when all is ready to their hands. They bask in the sunshine or bathe in the cool water of some retired cove, and cannot understand why we should come to thrust our business worries upon them, to buy their land, grow cotton and sugar, and disfigure the romantic picturesqueness of their island with convenient but intrusive roads; and above all, why we should send missionaries, who cannot agree among themselves, and who attempt to introduce all concealing garments of which the want was before unknown. It isn't half as pretty a dress as the garlands of fresh flowers with which they love to adorn themselves in their artless and primitive simplicity. They are not moral according to our ideas—far from it, but they have strong sense of the æsthetic, and chastity does not rank as a virtue among them, where the reverse is no sin. They are very clever at hammering out shillings into rude silver rings between a couple of stones, and they also bring for sale little tortois shell ornaments inlaid with silver. Their coiffure might have come from Paris or London, for when I was there bright red hair was in vogue. They plaster their heads over with lime for a few days, which destroys the original color of the hair and produces a loud saffron tinge. When a man becomes engaged, the fair fiancee often clips flowing locks and brings them to her Adonis, who plaits them in elaborately with his own producing a most elaborate head dress.

Look Out, Young Man

When it is said of a man, "he drinks," and it can be proved, then what store wants him for a clerk? Who will trust him? What dying man would appoint him his executor? He may have been forty years in building his reputation—it goes down. Letters of recommendation, the backing up of business firms, a brilliant ancestry, cannot save him. The world shies off. Why? It is whispered all through the community, "he drinks, he drinks!" That blasts him. When a young man loses his reputation for sobriety, he might as well be at the bottom of the sea. There are young men here who have their good name as their only capital. Your father has started you out in city life. He could only give you an education. He gave you no means. He started you, however, under Christian influences. You have come to the city. You are now achieving your own fortune, under God, by your own right arm. Now that there is no doubt of your sobriety. Do not create any suspicion by going in and out of liquor establishments, or by any odor of your breath, or by any glare of your eye, or by any unnatural flush of your cheek. You cannot afford to do it for your good name is your only capital, and when that is blasted with the reputation of strong drink, all is gone.—Christian at work.

LOOK OUT, YOUNG MAN,

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is a [illegible] upon over-work. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the more skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all my cures lately, it gets like a charm—it was a [illegible] yet unless splendidly cure." H. Dyke, of Ennis, writes, "please forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out; it can't be beaten. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Ulverton, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoyne, Gibb & Co. Beauharnois, P. Q., writes, "Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Propr., N. Y., and

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER.

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed. But on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious cholic, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle,

CARRIL'S PERIL.

'Do you really think we are lost cousin?

'Indeed, Carrie, I believe we are. I can recognise nothing—everything seems strange. We must have wandered far from the right trail.'

As he spoke the young man rose in the stirrups. Casting a keen glance around, not entirely devoid of uneasiness.

"The sun is setting; it will soon be dark. We will be obliged to spend the night in the forest, and—hark!'

The cheek of the young woman paled as she bent her ear in listening.

Sounding from a distance, yet with a distinctness that seems peculiar to the tones of that animal, there came a long, quivering, wailing cry, abruptly terminating in a shrill, eldritch scream.

The maiden shuddered, while her cavalier bloded to the polishing of his rifle.

They well knew from whence sprang this cry; they knew that the terrible panther had wrested from its diurnal rest, and was now setting forth in quest of prey.

The dying rays of the setting sun shone full upon the couple through a rift in the forest, and though their garb was fashioned more for comfort and convenience than either grace or display, the pistols was a pleasing one.

Though the eldest by half a dozen years, the man had barely passed his twenty-fifth year.

Carrie Morton was his only child, whose father had been among the earliest settlers at Harrodsburg.

As years rolled on, the pain of death rested heavily upon the settler's family.

First the good wife, then the children, one by one they passed away, until only Carrie was left to comfort her father.

Her companion, Ned Campbell, was a distant relative, though familiarly termed cousin—a title, by the way, soon to be changed for a still nearer and dearer one, if rumor spoke correctly.

A number of emigrants settled along the southern side of Green River, among them a family well-known to the Mortons, and Carry resolved to pay them a visit.

So with Ned Campbell as sole escort, for the Indians were accounted friendly, she set forth upon the journey

They had ridden steadily since daybreak, had crossed the river at the proper point, but since then had apparently lost their way.

The vast wilderness seemed uninhabited.

Night was at hand, and as yet no sign of a settlement greeted their anxious eyes.

'Well, Carrie, we must ride, and trust in Providence. After all it might be worse; we have only the wild beasts to dread,' cheerily observed Campbell, urging on his horse.

For an hour more they pressed forward through the fast deepening gloom, both to shoulder some friendly dwelling.

His stout heart chilled with horror as he thought of Carrie's falling into the clutches of those demons in human form—these men, or rather fiends, who loved bloodshed for itself, who had committed many a cruel murder without hope of anything for the deed.

Little wonder, then, that he lost no time in preparing his horses for instant flight.

But the peril was even nearer than he first believed.

Scarcely had he closed the corral, when he heard the sound of rapidly approaching horsehoofs, and then two horsemen dashed up to the corral and dismounted.

Campbell, now at the rear of the cabin, drew his pistols, feeling that discovery was inevitable.

His rifle was still within the cabin.

He heard the two women leave the cabin and then the other one hastily enter In suspense he listened.

A faint sound within met his ear, then a bound at his feet uplifted, and two figures were before him.

He recognised Carrie and their strangely found friend.

At this moment a loud cry, followed by furious oaths, came from the corral.

Beyond a doubt, the Harpes had discovered the absence of the horses.

Moll hastily whispered—

"Take the left hand trail, and ride for your life; it leads to the nearest neighbor, where you will be safe. Away, and may Heaven preserve you!"

"But you! muttered Campbell, as he lifted Carrie to the saddle.

"Harpe is my husband. Go; for Heaven's sake, make haste!

"Grasping the reigns of Carries horse, Campbell urged them on at break-neck speed.

Loud yells told them that the sound was heard and several pistol shots were fired after them, but fortunately without injury; and then the fourth settler took to swift flight.

For half an hour this was continued; but then the fugitives reached the farm houses and were safe.

The alarm was spread, and in the grey light of dawn, a body of vigilants visited the lone cabin.

A dead body lay across the threshold.

It was that of the grateful woman.

Jack Harpe the husband had committed the deed.

The murderers had fled, with the other woman and child.

But retribution finally overtook them.

Carrie shortened her visit, and soon after returned home, where she was wedded to Ned Campbell

THIRTY YEARS IN A CAVE.

In the wilderness eight miles north-west of Dingman's Ferry, Pike County, Pa., underneath a high rock, in a small cave, six by eight feet, has lived for upwards of thirty years a human being named Austin Sheldon. He was born about the year 1840. When he landed in New York he had small sum of money, with which he purchased a single acre of wild, uncultivated, scrub-oak land, situated in Leham Township, amid a dense and dismal forest, several miles from any habitation.

At the western end of his small strip of land is a small cave only about six by eight feet. In this cave, without any alterations or improvements this hermit has for more than thirty years made his home.

The hermit is nearly seventy years o age. His face has not been shaven for forty years. The sides of his face, chin and neck are covered with coarse gray hair, while his beard is several feet in length and white as snow. He wears the same suit of clothes he wore twenty years ago, which are so badly rent as to render it necessary to fasten them together by means of blanket pinhes. He never works, and unlike others of his age he goes to the nearest store for ammunition, never leaves sight of his cave.

His mode of living is peculiar. His diet consists principally of berries and fruit during their season, while in winter he subsists on various kinds of wild game. His education was not neglected during his boyhood, for he is well-read and remarkably intelligent.

He is a firm believer in religion, and devotes most of his time to reading the Bible and sacred works. He is deaf and has been so for several years, rendering it necessary to communicate with him by means of writing. He has the beauty of charming birds, many of which he has secured in this way and reared.

He has never used a lamp nor a candle in his cave. His bed is composed of straw scattered upon a solid rock. Sheldon enjoys his peculiar mode of living, and says he expects to make this cave his final resting place.

GLORY OF THE SOUTHERN SKIES,

The glory of the southern sky, in the region near the cross, is indescribable. There, where the thick stream of bright stars which skirt the milky way crosses the river of light, its brilliancy is wonderously increased, and it exhibits a magnificence unequalled in any other portion of the heavens. There glitters a multitude of bright stars, more thickly scattered than in any region within our northern view, while the background is georgeous in its splendor. Often on some clear night when it has suddenly been brought to my view in passing some edifice or turning some street corner, I have stood amazed at the flood of light which it diffused; and often, too, after leaving the observatory in the early morning hours, after a night of weary labour, I have felt reluctant to abandon the magnificent spectacle to seek the much-needed repose. In close proximity are the rich constellations of the Centaur, the keel and sails of the ship Argo and the Wolf, and the glory reaches through the Altar, even to the southern portions of the Scorpion. There are large areas which rival the Pleiades in the profusion of their stars gleaming upon a background of nebulæ. Elsewhere the southern heavens are not so brilliant as the northern, nor do they contain so many stars so bright as the faintest which we can discern; but there are nothing between the two poles to compare in beauty with the tract to which I refer.—Dr. B. A. Gould.

A HEALTHY INDIVIDUAL.

The following is the last thing written by the late "Artemus Ward:" "Ostil quite recent I've been a healthy individooal. I'm nearly sixty and yet I've got a muskle in my arm which don't make my fists resemble the tred of a canary bird when they fly about and hit a man.—Only a few weeks ago I was exhibitin' in East Shoreboges, in a bilding which had formerly ben occupied by a pugilist—one of them fellars which hits from the shoulder and teaches the manly arts of self defense. And he come and said he was goin' in free in consequence of perfessly belonging and bilding, with a large yellow dog. I sed, 'To be sure, sir, but not with these yeller dog.' He sed, 'O yes.' I sed, 'Oh, no. He said, 'Do you want to be ground to powder?' I sed, 'Yes, I do, if there is a powder-grinder handy.'— When he pitcht the a fellocious cuss at the left eye, which caused the concern to at once close for repairs; but he didn't hart me any more. I went for him energetickally. His parents lived near by, and I will simply state that fifteen minutes after I had given his mind his mother, seeing the penetrate form of her son approachin the house onto a shutter carried by four men, run out doors, tearfully looked him over and sed, 'My son, you've been cheated, John, a thrashin' manhood. You went in at the end where they put the grain in, come out with the straw, and then got up in the thingumajig and let the horses tred on you, didn't you, my son?' You, you fudge by this what a disagreeable person I am when I'm angry."

A country paper engaged a reporter to travel and send in by mail all important news. The reporter was a novice, and sent from Roman Beach, N. J., a few days ago, the following important news to his paper: 'A New York Judge is down about here. The coroner is going to-morrow to look to his health. Lem is going to shoot him for a target and——' The reporter's obituary is now in type.

Johnson's Force Pump and Fire Extinguisher.

For cheapness, durability, ease of working, and general efficiency, the above Article cannot be surpassed, it can be used as a FORCIBLE FIRE EXTINGUISHER, a splendid article for washing Carriages or Windows or for changing the location it can be used by a Lady or a Child to water a flower bed in the garden in a most beautiful manner. Only a bucket of water required. No chemicals used. It is claimed for this Extinguisher that the stream of water thrown from it appears to be fully as efficient in the results as the acid thrown from a Babcock Extinguisher. Every house should have one. The beginning of a fire frequently occurs in such a place that it cannot be reached by water thrown from a pail or dipper, this pump will throw a half gallon of water 40 ft. horizontally, or will drench a wall to the height of 25 ft.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURE TONIC FREE FROM ALCOHOL

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

PURGATIVE

PROPRIETORS' TESTIMONIAL pronounce VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glossy and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as these mild but efficient purgative Pills. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositions. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but as such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore the healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued until cured, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the full effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppressions a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

To the Free and Indedendent
ELECTORS OF THE
EAST RIDING
Of the
County of Peterborough.
GENTLEMEN:—It is now some four years since addressed you through the columns of this paper, and I now adopt the same method; and as there has been many changes since that time both political and otherwise, and as most of you are aware that I sold out my business in Norwood to Mr. Ackerman two months ago, and my agreement with him prevents me from entering in the Village or Township; therefore I must return you my most sincere thanks for the liberal support you have accorded to me for these last 12 years. And at the same time I beg to inform you that having erected a Large and Commodious
Shop at Wigmore's Corner,
Where I intend to carry on the
HARNESS BUSINESS
In all its branches, and from my long experience in the trade, I flatter myself that I can give you a better article in my line, stock and workmanship considered than you can get elsewhere. My motto will be "Quick sales and small profits."
I also propose cutting apart one day in the week, viz. Saturday, when all small jobbing will be done free of charge.
I hope to see all my old customers, and as many new ones as may feel disposed to patronize me, feeling assured that they will save money by travelling a mile further, as I intend to undersell all in the trade.
Repairing done with neatness and dispatch.
Collars made to suit any fibres in the country. Saddles padded to the satisfaction of all.
P. S.—As I have been to a great deal of expense in the way of bobbing, all parties indebted to me will please call and settle without further notice.

VOTING BY BALLOT.

An Act to provide for voting by Ballot at Elections to the Legislative Assembly.

(Assented to 29th March 1874.)

HER Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:

PROCEEDINGS PRELIMINERY TO THE POLL.

In case of a poll at an election of members to serve in the Legislative Assembly, the votes shall be given by ballot.

The returning officer shall, on receiving the writ of election, procure or cause to be procured, as many boxes (hereinafter called ballot boxes) as there are polling subdivisions within the electoral division:

The ballot boxes shall be made of some durable material, shall be provided with a lock and key, and shall be so constructed that the ballot paper can be introduced therein, and cannot be withdrawn therefrom unless the box be unlocked:

When it becomes necessary for the purposes of an election to use the ballot boxes, it shall be the duty of the returning officer two days at least before the polling day to deliver one of the ballot boxes to every deputy returning officer appointed for the purposes of the election;

Within one week after the close of the election, each deputy returning officer shall deliver the ballot box used in his polling sub-division to the clerk of the municipality within which such polling sub-division is situate; and the ballot boxes delivered to such clerk shall be preserved by him for use at future elections for the electoral division;

If the returning officer fail to furnish ballot boxes in the manner herein provided, he shall incur a penalty of one hundred dollars, in respect of every ballot box which he has failed to furnish in the manner prescribed.

It shall be the duty of the deputy returning officer in every polling subdivision not supplied with a ballot box within the time prescribed, forthwith to procure one to be made.

Where a poll has been granted, the returning officer shall forthwith cause to be printed such a number of ballot papers, as shall be sufficient for the purposes of the election; and the same shall be bound or stitched in a book of convenient size, and in such manner that the counterfoils shall continue bound or stitched when the ballot papers are detached therefrom;

Every ballot paper shall contain the names of the candidates, arranged alphabetically in the order of their surnames; and if there be two or more candidates with the same surname, of their other names, and the ballot papers may be according to the form or schedule A to this Act.

The number and names of each candidate shall if practicable be distinctly printed in Ink of different colours, if on the nomination day the candidates agree as to the colours; and the returning officer shall give each candidate a certificate setting forth the selection of the colour made by him;

Every ballot paper shall have a counterfoil attached thereto every ballot paper and counterfoil shall specify the name of the electoral division for which it is to be used; and every ballot paper shall have a number printed on the back thereof, and the same number shall be printed on the face of the counterfoil attached thereto; Provided that the same number shall not be printed on more than one ballot paper to be used for the electoral division;

In addition to the ballot papers hereinbefore referred to, the returning officer, shall cause to be printed such a number to other ballot papers (hereinafter called tendered ballot papers) to be used in the manner hereinafter as shall be sufficient for the purposes of the election;

Such tendered ballot papers shall be in the same form as the ballot papers hereinbefore referred to, but shall be of a colour differing from the same; and upon the back of the tendered ballot papers, and upon the face of the counterfoils attached thereto, shall be printed the words, "Tendered Ballot Paper;"

The tendered ballot papers and the counterfoils attached thereto shall be numbered in a manner similar to that in which the other ballot papers and counterfoils are hereinbefore directed to be numbered and shall be bound or stitched in like manner;

The returning officer shall before the opening of the poll deliver or cause to be delivered to every deputy returning officer the books containing the ballot papers and tendered ballot papers with their respective counterfoils attached, which have been prepared for use in the polling sub-division for which such deputy returning officer is appointed to act: and shall also furnish to the deputy returning officer, or see that he is furnished with, the necessary materials for voters to mark the ballot papers, and such materials shall be kept at the polling place by the deputy returning officer for the convenient use of voters.

The returning officer shall before the opening of the poll deliver or cause to be delivered to every deputy returning officer such a number of printed directions for the guidance of voters in voting as he may deem sufficient, and shall so deliver or cause to be so delivered at least ten copies of such printed directions; such directions shall be printed in conspicuous characters, and may be according to the form in schedule B. to this Act;

In the following form of Ballot Paper, given as illustration, the candidates are David William Dumble and William Hebarn Scott, and the elector has marked his paper in favor of [illegible]

[illegible]

Every deputy returning officer shall before the opening of the poll, or immediately after he has received the printed directions from the returning officer if he did not receive the same before the opening of the poll, cause such printed directions to be placarded outside the polling place for which he is appointed to act, and also in every compartment of the polling place, and shall see that they remain so placarded until the close of the polling.

Every polling place shall be furnished with compartments in which the voters can mark their votes screened from observation; and it shall be the duty of the returning officer and deputy returning officer respectively, to see that a sufficient number of such compartments are provided at each polling place.

The deputy returning officer shall, upon receiving the copy or duplicate of the voters' list for the polling sub-division for which he is to act, prefix a number to every name in such copy or duplicate, and such numbers so prefixed need not be consecutive numbers but may be chosen arbitrarily by the deputy returning officer: Provided that the same number shall not be prefixed more than one name: and the deputy returning officer shall take all necessary precautions for concealing and shall conceal from all persons (expect the poll clerk) the numbers so prefixed by him to the names on the copy or duplicate of the voters' list.

THE POLL.

The deputy returning officer shall immediately before the commencement of the poll, show the ballot box to such persons as are present in the polling place, so that they may see that it is empty; and he shall then lock the box, and place his seal upon it in such a manner as to prevent it being opened without breaking such seal; and he shall then place the box in his view for the receipt of ballot papers, and shall keep it so locked and sealed.

When any person claiming to be entitled to vote presents himself for the purpose of voting, the deputy returning officer shall proceed as follows:—

He shall ascertain that the name of such person is entered or purports to be entered, upon the voters' list for the sub-division for which such deputy returning officer is appointed to act;

He shall record or cause to be recorded in the proper columns of the voters' list, the residence and the legal addition of such person,

If such person shall take the oath or affirmation required to be taken by voters in the manner directed by the Election Law of of 1868, the deputy returning officer shall enter, or cause to be entered, opposite such person's name in the proper column of the said voters' list, the word "sworn," or "affirmed," according to the fact.

Where the vote is objected to by any candidate or his agent, the deputy returning officer shall enter the objection, or cause the same to be entered in the voters' list, by writing opposite the name of such person, in the proper column, the words "objected to," stating at the same time by which candidate or on behalf of which candidate the objection has been made, by adding after the words "objected to the name only of such candidate;

Where such person as aforesaid has been required to take the oath or affirmation, and refuses to take the same, the deputy returning officer shall enter or cause to be entered opposite the name of such person in the proper column of the voters' list the words, "refused to be sworn," or "refused to affirm," according to the fact; and the vote of such person shall not be taken or received; and if taken or received it shall be null and void; and the deputy returning officer shall for having taken and received such vote or caused the same to be taken and received incur a penalty of two hundred dollars;

Where the proper entries respecting the person so claiming to vote have been made in the voters' list in the manner prescribed, the deputy returning officer shall sign his name or initials upon a ballot paper and upon the counterfoil attached thereto;

The ballot paper shall be detached from the counterfoil and shall be delivered to such person;

The counterfoil shall be retained in the book by the deputy returning officer, who shall write or otherwise mark upon such counterfoil the number prefixed to the name of such person upon the voters' list; and opposite the name of such person in the voters' list, a mark shall be placed to denote that he has received a ballot paper, but not showing the particular ballot paper which he has received;

The deputy returning officer shall take all necessary precautions for concealing and shall conceal, as far as possible from all persons present, (including the poll clerk and the agents of the candidates, as well as other persons) the number printed upon the ballot paper delivered to any person, and upon the counterfoil which was attached thereto, and shall not permit the counterfoil to be inspected by any person:

The deputy returning officer, may, and upon request shall, either personally or through his clerk explain to the voter, as concisely as possible, the mode of voting, and the colours in which the numbers and names of candidates are printed on the ballot paper.

Upon receiving from the deputy returning officer the ballot paper so prepared as aforesaid, the person receiving the same shall forthwith proceed into one of the compartments provided for the purpose, and shall then and there in mark his ballot paper in the manner mentioned in the directions contained in Schedule B. to this Act, by [illegible] a cross on the right hand [illegible] the name of the candidate [illegible] voting to vote, then [illegible] fold the ballot paper [illegible] way disclosing the names of the candidates or the mark made by such elector, [illegible] and the number on the back of the paper and at once deposit the same in the ballot box in the presence of all persons entitled to be present and then present in the polling place, and the voter shall forthwith leave the polling place.

While any voter is in any balloting compartment for the purpose of marking his ballot paper, no other person shall be allowed to enter the compartment, or to be in any position from which he can observe the mode in which the voter marks his ballot paper.

No person who has received a ballot paper or tendered ballot paper from the deputy Returning officer shall take the same out of the polling place, and any person having so received a ballot paper or tendered ballot paper, who shall leave the polling place without first delivering the same to the deputy Returning officer in the manner prescribed shall thereby forfeit his right to vote, and, the deputy returning officer shall make an entry on the voter's list in the column for remarks, to the effect that such person received a ballot paper but took the same out of polling place, or returned the same declining to vote as the case may be, and in the latter case the deputy returning officer shall immediately write the word "declined" upon such ballot paper, and shall preserve it to be returned to the returning officer.

In case of an application by any person claiming to be entitled to vote, who is incapacitated by blindness or other physical cause from marking his ballot paper, or in case of any person claiming to be entitled to vote who makes a declaration that he is unable to read, the proceedings shall be as follows;—

The deputy returning officer shall, in the presence of the agents of the candidates, cause the vote of such person to be marked on a ballot paper in manner directed by such person, and shall cause the ballot paper to be placed in the ballot box;

The deputy returning officer shal state or cause to be stated in the voters list, by an entry opposite the name of such person in the proper column of the said voters list, that the vote of such person is marked in pursuance of this section, and the reason why it is so marked.

The declaration of inability to read may be in the form mentioned in schedule C to this Act, and shall be made by the person claiming to be entitled to vote, at the time of the polling, before the deputy returning officer, who shall attest the same as nearly as may be according to the form mentioned in Schedule D to this act, and the said declaration shall be given to the deputy returning officer at the time of voting

If a person, representing himself to be a particular elector named on the voter's list applies for a ballot paper after another person has voted as such elector, the applicant shall upon duly taking the oath or affirmation prescribed by law to be administered to voters at the time of of polling, be entitled to mark a tendered ballot paper, but such tendered ballot paper shall be given to the deputy returning officer, and shall be placed by him in an envelope, which shall be securely sealed, and upon which he shall make an endorsation, indicating the election at which, and the polling subdivision at which, the same is used, and the deputy returning officer shall then deposit such envelope in the ballot box, and such tendered ballot paper shall not be counted by the deputy returning officer, and the deputy returning officer shall upon a list to be called the "tendered votes list," enter the name and number on the voters' list of such person, or cause the same to be so entered.

If any person whose name is not on the voters' list claims that his name ought to have been so entered, and that it has been improperly omitted therefrom, such person shall, upon duly taking an oath according to the form mentioned in Schedule E to this Act, or to the like effect, be entitled to mark a tendered ballot paper; and such tendered ballot paper, instead of being put into the ballot box, shall be given to the deputy returning officer and shall be placed by him in an envelope and deposited in the ballot box, in the manner directed by the last preceding section with reference to ballot papers marked in pursuance thereof; and such tender ed ballot paper shall not be counted by the deputy returning officer, and the name, place of residence, and occupation or calling of such person shall be endorsed upon the counterfoil by the deputy returning officer, and the deputy returning officer shall enter or cause to be entered upon the tendered voters' list, the name, place of residence and occupation or calling of such person, and also a short description of the property in respect of which such person claims to have been entitled to have been entered on the voters' list, and whether it is as an owner, tenant or occupant of such property that such person claims as aforesaid.

A person claiming to be entitled to vote who has inadvertently dealt with his ballot paper in such manner that it cannot be conveniently used as a ballot paper, may, on delivering to the deputy returning officer the ballot paper so inadvertently dealth with, and proving the fact with the inadvertence to the satisfaction of the deputy returning officer, obtain another ballot paper in the place of the ballot paper so delivered up, and the deputy returning officer shall immediately write the word "cancelled" upon such ballot paper, and preserve it to be returned to the returning officer.

During the time appointed for the polling no person shall be permitted to be present in the room where the [illegible] except the [illegible] deputy returning officer, the poll clerk, the agents of the candidates, and any person who may be brought by a voter to assist him as hereinafter mentioned, and no person shall be allowed to remain in such room or approach within such distance of the [illegible] as to prevent the voters from approaching the same for the purpose of voting, who shall not have left the room or gone beyond such distance after having given his vote.

At the close of the time appointed for the polling in every polling place, the deputy returning officer shall, in the presence of the poll clerk, and of such of the candidates, or of their agents, as may then be present, open the ballot box, and proceed to count the votes as follows:

He shall examine the ballot papers, keeping them with their printed faces upwards, and shall take all proper precautions for preventing any person from seeing the numbers printed on the back of the paper:

Any ballot paper which has not on its back the name or initials of the deputy returning officer, or on which votes are given to more candidates than one, or on which anything except the number and initials or name of the deputy returning officer on the back is written or marked, by which the voter can be identified, shall be void, and shall not be counted;

The deputy returning officer shall endorse "rejected," on any ballot paper which he may reject as invalid, and shall endorse "rejection, objected to," if an objection be made to his decision:

The deputy returning officer shall then count up the votes given for each candidate upon the ballot papers not rejected, and make up a written statement, in words as well as in figures, of the number of votes given for each candidate, and of the number of ballot papers rejected and not counted by him, which shall be made under the several heads:—

(a) Name of electoral sub-division and of electoral division, and date of election;

(b) Number of votes for each candidate:

(c) Papers wanting signature or initials of deputy returning officer;

(d) Papers rejected as quoting for more candidates than entitled to;

(e) Papers rejected as having a writing or mark by which a voter could be identified;

(f) Papers registered as unmarked or void for uncertainty;

Upon the completion of such written statement, it shall be forthwith signed by the deputy returning officer, the poll clerk, and such of the candidates, or their agents, as may be present, and desire to sign such statement;

No more than two agents for any candidate shall be entitled to be present at the same time at the counting of the votes.

Every deputy returning officer, at the the completion of the counting of votes after the close of the poll, shall, in the presence of the agents of the candidates, make up into separated packets, sealed with his own seal, and the seals of such agents of the candidate as desire to fix their seals, and marked upon the outside with a short statement of the contents of such packet the date of the day of the election, the names of the deputy returning officer, and of the polling sub-division and electoral division:

(a) The statement of votes given for each candidate and of the rejected ballot papers;

(b) The used ballot papers which have been counted;

(c) The rejected ballot papers;

(d) The spoiled ballot papers;

(e) The tendered ballot papers;

(f) The counterfoils of the ballot papers; the unused ballot papers;

(g) The tendered vote's list, and the voters' list; the list of votes marked by the deputy returning officer, and a statement of the number of voters whose votes are so marked under the heads, Physical incapacity," and "Unable to read," and the declarations of inability;

(h) The commissions of the deputy returning officer and poll clerk, with their respective oaths of office, and the oaths in the forms N and M annexed thereto;

The deputy returning officer shall forthwith deliver such packets personally to the returning officer; and if he be unable to do so, owing to illness or other cause, he shall deliver such packets to a person chosen by him for the purpose of delivering the same to the returning officer: and shall mention on the outside of the of cover each of the packets the name of the person to whom the same had been so delivered; and shall take a proper receipt therefor.

The packets shall be accompanied by a statement made by the deputy returning officer, showing the number of ballot papers entrusted to him, and accounting for them under the heads of (1) counted; (2) Rejected; (3) unused; (4) Spoiled; (5) Tendered ballot papers; (6) Ballot papers given to voters who afterwards returned the same declining to vote, and (7) Ballot papers taken from the polling place; which statement shall give the number of papers under each head, and is in this Act referred to as the "Ballot Paper Account."

The returning officer, after he shall have received the ballot papers and statements before mentioned of the number of votes given in each polling place, shall open such statements, and shall not open any other of the said sealed packets except that containing the commissions of the deputies and their clerks, and from the statements shall cast up the number for each candidate; and as soon as he has thus ascertained the result of the poll, shall forthwith declare to be elected the candidate having the highest number of votes; Provided, that where an equality of votes [illegible] exist between the candidates, and the addition of a vote would entitle any of such candidates to be declared elected, the returning officer may [illegible] any [illegible]

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 19, 1874.

THE EAST RIDING REFORM CONVENTION.

The delegates from the different Township's met on Tuesday in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, in obedience to a call from Mr. Ludgate, Chairman of the East Riding Reform Central Committee. Delegates were present from Ashburnham, Asphodel, Belmont, Douro, Dummer and Otonabee. The unfavorable morning may have prevented the attendance of delegates from the other Townships.

Twenty-eight delegates were present, but Asphodel having sent eight delegates, and that being one more than Otonabee had appointed, it was agreed that one of the Asphodel delegates should not vote—and the gentlemen from that Township settled this among themselves. Twenty-seven therefore took part in the Convention.

James Millar, Esquire, of Otonabee, was elected Chairman, and Mr. Stratton Secretary. The Chairman explained the object of the meeting, viz. : to select a candidate for the approaching election in the interest of the Mowat-Government. The following propositions were made :

Thomas G. Choate, Esquire, of Warsaw, proposed by Mr. Kidd, seconded by Mr. Campbell, of Dummer.

Mr. Stratton, of Ashburnham, proposed by Mr. Sargent, of Otonabee, seconded by Mr. Tudehope, of Asphodel.

Mr. Scott, of Asphodel, proposed by Dr. Fife, of Hastings, seconded by Mr. Murphy, of Asphodel.

Mr. Hogan, of Douro, proposed by Mr. Mahony, of Douro, seconded by Mr. Welsh, of Otonabee.

There being no other nominations, the proposed candidates were asked to express their views and readiness of each to accept, if the choice should fall upon him. when the Convention proceeded to ballot, Messieurs J. Bertram, A. Smith and J. Maloney being appointed scrutineers.

After several ballots, two or three being taken to decide as to who should retire, it finally came to a ballot between Mr. Hogan and Mr. Stratton, when the choice fell on Mr. Stratton, 20 to 7. On motion of Mr. Kidd, it was then agreed to make the selection unanimous, which was declared carried.

Several Roman Catholics who were present, expressed a strong desire to have a Catholic candidate, and many of those present were willing to assent to this, if the majority of the Convention should agree on a man ; but the delegates appear to have thought it premature, and advised the contrary course, and some of their own best men agreed that at the present time the election of one. unless a strong man in the Riding, would be very doubtful.

WEST RIDING CONVENTION.

A number of the friends of the Mowat Government met yesterday in the Music Hall, in obedience to a call from the Chairman of the Central Reform Committee.

A. Smith, Esq., was appointed Chairman, and Mr. Edmison, Secretary.

The only nomination was Geo. A. Cox, Esq., to be candidate for the West Riding in the Reform interest. Mr. Cox was called on to address the meeting, and in doing so thanked those present for the honor they had done him in proposing him as a candidate. But he was under the necessity of telling them that he could not accept without consulting the Manager of the Company for which he acted, and he, at the present time, was in Europe. He also intimated that there must be unanimity on the part of all those who support the Reform Candidate, as only in this way could they hope to succeed. In the mean time he could not accept the nomination on any terms, until he consulted the manager of the company, as he could not afford to accept contrary to his wishes.

Mr. Stratton, after some remarks proposed that the convention adjourn till two weeks from Saturday, next, December 5th, at 1 o'clock. p.m., which would give Mr. Cox time to communicate with Mr. Ramsay.

Mr. Bertram, seconded the motion, and also addressed the meeting in re[illegible]

THE ONTARIO PARLIAMENT.

The last session of the Second Parliament of Ontario was opened on Thursday last. There was numerous ladies and gentlemen present to witness the ceremonies. His Excellency delivered the following address:—

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I rejoice that, in meeting you again to confer on the public affairs of the Province, I am able to congratulate you on another year of very general prosperity.

The remarkable progress and development of the Province of late years, have been much stimulated by the liberal policy pursued in regard to new railway enterprises, both in legislating to authorise their construction, and in aiding them from the public funds. Railway facilities have now been afforded to almost every part of the settled portions of our Province, and, under the impetus given by Provincial assistance, are being extended to the more remote and unsettled districts of the country.

In accordance with a resolution passed at your last session, with respect to the westerly and northerly boundaries of the Province, my Government and the Government of the Dominion have agreed on a provisional line, to be assumed as correct for the purpose of Land Grants by each Government until the true and permanent boundary shall be ascertained and determined; and have agreed to leave to arbitration the question as to the permanent boundary; two distinguished gentlemen have been selected for the office of Arbitrators; and they are soon to enter upon their duties, and will probably finish their work in the early part of next year.

Negotiations have been entered upon with the Dominion Government, as well as with the Governments of other Provinces, with a view to the consolidation of the respective agencies and efforts for the promotion of Immigration, and at a conference recently held at Ottawa, a system for united and harmonious action was agreed to by the representatives of the different Provinces and by the Dominion Government. The papers on the subject will be laid before you.

The arrangements made can hardly fail to be attended with satisfactory results. Meanwhile it is satisfactory to know that the immigration of the year has, in a larger degree than previously, consisted of those classes of persons most needed in this Province, and that the number of immigrants who have this year settled in the country has been larger than, considering what has occurred elsewhere, we could reasonably have expected. I commend the subject to your continued attention.

The Joint Commission for the survey of the boundary between Ontario and Quebec, has completed its labors, having carried on the survey northerly to the height of land, and it not being deemed necessary for any present purpose to proceed farther. The matter appears to be now ripe for whatever legislation is necessary to make the surveyed line, and its continuation northerly the permanent boundary between the two Provinces for all purposes.

I regret that the other matters in difference between Ontario and Quebec have not yet been adjusted, Governmental difficulties in Quebec having unavoidably interrupted the negotiations between the Provinces, and it having been found impossible to resume them with any prospect of a settlement this year.

You will probably be asked during the present Session, in view of our increased population, as shown by the last census and otherwise, to consider the propriety of making some addition to the number of members composing the Legislative Assembly. This addition, if determined upon, will give you an opportunity of removing some of these existing inequalities between the electoral districts in regard to comparative population. A Bill will be laid before you containing provisions for giving additional efficiency to the laws for the prevention of bribery and other illegal acts at elections to this Assembly.

I rejoice to perceive that the distribution of part of the surplus revenue of the Province amongst the local municipalities has given an impetus to Local improvement which I trust, will show permanent results in the advancement of all parts of the Province. A Bill to extend the class of objects to which Municipal Councils may devote the unexpended balances of the amounts to which their municipalities are entitled, will be laid before you.

I have much satisfaction in calling your attention to the legislation in Great Britain and elsewhere for giving just security to land titles by shortening the periods within which state claims can be set up to the prejudices of parties in possession. A bill for this purpose will be amongst the measures which will be submitted for your consideration.

Availing myself of the appropriation which you made last session for the very important work of consolidating the Statutes relating to Ontario, I soon afterwards issued a Commission to eminent judges and learned counsel, for the purpose of accomplishing your object at as early a date as practicable. The Commissioners entered upon their work immediately, and have made such progress that they expect to have ready a complete revision of our statute law before the next session of the Legislature. A report from the Commissioners will be laid before you.

The Finance Accounts of the Province, bought up to as late a date as practicable, will be submitted to you immediately. In connexion with these, I have the satisfaction of announcing to you that the aggregate revenue for the present year is certain to exceed the aggregate amount which was estimated; and that the aggregate expenditure will be less than the amount authorized to be expended.

The Estimates for the coming year have been prepared and will be laid before you You will find that they have been framed with strict regard to economy, as well as to the efficiency of the Public Service.

I hope that your deliberations on al the subjects which may occupy your attention, will be characterized by wisdom and true patriotism and will receive the blessing of Divine Providence

His Honor than left the chamber at 3.10 p.m.

The Speaker took the chair at half past three o'clock.

WEST PETERBORO.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a return to a writ for the election of a representative in this House for the West Riding of Peterboro, in the room of Mr. Fairbairn, deceased.

HIS HONOR'S SPEECH.

Mr Speaker reported to the House that he had obtained during the session a copy of His Honor's speech, which he would read.

Tha reading was dispensed with.

INTRODUCTION OF A MR. SCOTT.

Mr. W. H. Scott, the newly elected member for West Peterboro, was introduced by Mr. Cameron and Mr. Gifford and took his seat.

REFORM NOMINATIONS.

The following is a list of Reform nomiations so far :

Hon. Wm. Hamilton left England on the 5th instant to return to Canada.

Owing to the illness of Mr. Stephenson, the Conservatives have determined upon running Mr. Thomas White, of the Gazette, for Hochelaga West.

The Public Accounts.

The Public Accounts being made up to the end of the year it was of course impossible to present a full and complete statement of the income and expenditure to a House Meeting in November, and which very probably may be prorogued before Christmas. The Treasurer has therefore caused to be compiled a return showing the revenue and expenses for the nine months ending September 30. For that period the total receipts were $2,413,228, and the expenditure for current purposes was $1,768,145, showing a balance of $790,742 in favour of revenue. In the gross totals of expenditure are included the sum of $35,499 for drainage debentures, which is really an investment, not a charge upon revenue ; $30,569 on account of the Railway Subsidy Fund ; and $724,673, payment to municipalities under the Municipal Loan Fund and Surplus Distribution Act. An imperfect statement can never be accepted in any other than an approximate sense, but the figures above give sufficiently indicate the highly satisfactory nature of the forthcoming annual balance sheet, and the correctness of the calculations on which our anticipations of the general result have been founded.—Globe.

The Kingston Election Trial.

Sir John A. Macdonald's organs have for weeks past been denouncing every Reform member who has been unseated by the decision of a judge as all that was corrupt and vile. No term has been too strong to apply even to those who were plainly the victims of the errors of persons over whom they exercised no control. It is political justice that Sir John, at the opening of the Court yesterday, should have been compelled to throw up the sponge, and admit bribery by agents. The retribution will be still more signal if Mr. Bethune should be able to prove personal bribery by the right honorable gentleman, as he has announced his intention to endeavour to do. Would it not have been better for Sir John and his friends to have treated these election cases as calculated to purify the polling-booth in whole, and not in part, and to have refrained from raising a howl against Individuals not more guilty than the chief of the Conservative party himself? Some of the strong language of his own organs might now be directed with great effect against Sir John, were it worth while again to show the folly of the writers.—Globe.

ANOTHER CLERICAL SCANDAL.

This appears to be an age of scandals, the Canadian Pacific Scandal, the Beecher Scandal, a Clerical Scandal near Kingston, and one in Philadelphia. The political scandals are looked upon with a little more leniency than the others as sins connected with the state have been overlooked on account of the power possessed by the actors, and also because a money consideration is of less account than character or loss of social status. Several of these scandals are clerical and of a nature calculated to bring shame on the religion of those associated with the actors. But they have been so divided that none of the creeds have much reason to cry "these hands are clean." The Beecher one is well circulated, whether guilty or not guilty. In the Kingston case, the minister sued for damages for slander but what is believed to have been suborned evidence caused a failure. In the latter case a telegram from Baltimore, U. S, says:

"Father John W. Gordemann, late Priest of St. Boniface (Roman Catholic) Church, Philadelphia, publishes a lengthy card in the Baltimore Sun this morning, defending himself against the charges recently made against him, in which he says, "My character for honesty having been attacked, and malicious slander having been spread broadcast over the land, I feel it my duty to right myself before the public. I have left the Catholic Church, rejecting all its peculiar tenets, and will, please God, never return to it. For this step I offer no apology. I have married my beloved wife, (nee Miss Margaret Wittish, of Reading, Pa.) on the 4th inst., before the Reformed Episcopal Minister of Jersey City, with the full consent of her parents, and in the presence of that minister's amiable lady and of a brother priest."

LATER.—Father Gordemann, late pastor of St. Boniface Church, Philadelphia, was arrested here to-day on a charge of embezzlement, and is held to await the arrival of Baltimore officers.

The Protest and Mr. Cook

In another column will be found the proceeding of the Election trial for North Simcoe, which has resumed to the unseating of Mr. Cook for an act committed by another, over which he had no personal control. Mr. Cook hearing of the act consulted his Council, Mr. Bethune as to the effect who advised him that it would have the effect of unseating him if proven. Mr. Cook, thereupon made a declaration to that effect. It afterwards transpired that the Tories were not in possession of proof of one act that would have unseated Mr Cook, even by an agent. The trumped up charges of personal bribery were at once abandoned. After all the blow and bluster they have succeeded in unseating Mr. Cook, but what have they gained thereby? Simply nothing, but to show their own weakness and Mr. Cook's popularity. Should the Tories persist in running their man against Mr Cook they will discover to their chagrin that the Reformers will poll three votes to their one. Many Conservatives are disgusted with the persistent determination of a rapid Tory clique to persecute Mr. Cook, who has won two straight contests in the County almost within one year, and that against long odds. He can with ease gain twenty contests in North Simcoe, if necessary, and wherefore all this annoyance, for is amounts to nothing more. He has fairly won his spurs, and he should be allowed to wear them. He says every sensible man—Montreal Gazette

Not very long ago, the organ which drags out its precarious existence by "pitching into the Grit rib" every morning, as a financial operation, gave the Globe a sound lecture for calling the Local member for East Toronto "Mathew C." Perhaps it was unlucky of the Grit organ to speak in that way, although it must be confessed that the name gentleman is very frequently styled that for short, and that too by black-coated Tories. But while the Mail is so sensitive about Tory names it seems to cease to style the member for North Simcoe "I-hot-you-Cook." This is a very small matter, but it is a fair specimen of the striking inconsistency which has eaten away and fairly honeycombed Tory Toronto. The something is rotten in the State is, "whatever we do—bribing, bullying, packing charters, etc., is all right : whatever the Grits do is wrong, and nothing because they do it." This is the case in a nutshell.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The complete returns for Argenteuil give Mr. Cushing's majority 107. This shows a great change in the riding since January,

Mr. McKellar will be opposed in Bothwell by Mr. E. Kerby. Mr. McKellar's election is sure by a large majority.

Sir John A. Macdonald has been offered the seat of Victoria County, N. S., as he is sure to be unseated for bribery at Kingston.

Mr. Stephen White has been nominated as the Reform Candidate for the Local Legislature to represent the County of Kent.

The election for the North Riding of Victoria, has been declared void. The Riding will be contested again by the unseated member, Mr. McClennan, and Mr. H. Cameron.

Mr. Sexton has been nominated as the Reform Candidate for South Wentworth. Texas Candidates were nominated for Lincoln, viz: Capt. Norris, (Reform,) Dr. Jakes, (Tory,) and Capt. Wyune, (Canada First).

The North Leeds election trial came off at Brockville, on Tuesday, before Judge Galt, and resulted in declaring the election void on the ground of bribery by agents. No case of personal corruption was found against the unsuccessful candidate. The unseated member, Dr. Ferguson, is a Conservative.

Speculation is already rife as to the result of the next election for the Local Legislature. The fate of some is sealed. Boultbee will not be a candidate, and the chances of Rykert sitting again are small. Lauder will be opposed in South Grey, probably by Mr. Thos. Gammy, local man, who has been Warden for many years. He is suggested as a strong man, who would be sure to win.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Reformers of Welland, was held at Crowland, on Friday last, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the approaching Ontario election. The meeting was addressed by W. A. Thompson, Esq., M. P., and the Hon. Mr. Carrie, M.P.P., after which. the Hon. Mr. Carrie was unanimously chosen as the Reform Candidate. He is very popular in the riding and his election is sure.

The trial of the North Simcoe election took place before Judge Gwynne on Tuesday, and resulted in the voiding of the election on the ground of corrupt practices by agents and the abandonment of personal charges against the successful candidate, Mr. H. H. Cook (Reform). Mr. Cook's total personal expenses in January amounted to only $195, and he swears if more than that was spent it was without his knowledge, consent or approbation.

At a meeting of the Reform Association for the South Riding of Huron, held at Brucefield, Mr. Cameron was unanimously nominated as the Reform candidate at the approaching election for the House of Commons. The meeting was very enthusiastic and decided in its support of Mr. Cameron. Mr Cameron was present and made a spirited address to the convention. His election by an increased majority is sure, and the Reform party of the county have determined that he shall not bear one cent of the expenses of the protest.

Mr. James L. Biggar, received the unanimous nomination of the Reform Convention held at Bridgton, on Thursday last, to contest the East Riding of Northumberland in the coming election for the house of commons. Mr Biggar will be opposed by Mr. J. Cockburn, formerly member for West Northumberland, and late Speaker of the House of Commons, who was rejected by his old constituents at the last general elections, by a majority of 231 votes—Mr. Biggar is a resident of the County and has every chance of re-election.

packets of counterfoils, and voters' lists, with documents annexed thereto, sent by each deputy returning officer, endorsing on the packets a description of its contents, and the date of the election to which they relate, and also the name of the electoral division for which such election was held ; and the said return and the said packet, so directed as aforesaid, to be transmitted to the clerk of the Crown in Chancery, may be transmitted by express or through the post office. the same being first duly registered.

The returning officer shall also, before transmitting his return to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, upon application deliver to each of the candidates, or their agents, or if no application be made, shall, within the same period, transmit by mail to each candidate a duplicate of such return ; which duplicate shall stand in lieu of an Indenture.

The Clerk of the Crown in Chancery shall retain, for the period of one year, all documents relating to an election forwarded to him, in pursuance of this Act, by a returning officer, and then, unless otherwise directed by a rule or order of one of Her Majesty's superior courts, or a judge thereof, shall cause them to be destroyed.

No person shall be allowed to inspect any rejected ballot papers in the custody of the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, except under the rule or order of one of Her Majesty's superior courts, or a judge thereof ; such rule or order to be granted by such court or judge on being satisfied by evidence on oath that the inspection or production of such ballot papers is required for the purpose of instituting or maintaining a prosecution for an offence in relation to ballot papers, or for the purpose of a petition questioning an election or return : and any such order, for the inspection or production of ballot papers may be made, subject to such conditions as to persons, time, place, and mode of inspection or production, as the court or judge making the same, may think expedient, and shall be obeyed by the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery.

No person shall, except by order of a tribunal having cognizance of petitions complaining of undue returns or undue elections, open the sealed the packets of counterfoils, after the same have been once sealed up ; or be allowed to inspect any counted ballot papers in the custody of the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery ; and such order may be made subject to such conditions as to persons, time, place, and mode of opening or inspection as the tribunal making the order may think expedient : Provided that on making and carrying into effect any such order, care shall be taken that the mode in which any particular elector has voted shall not be discovered until he has been proved to have voted, and his vote has been declared by a competent tribunal to be invalid.

All documents forwarded by a returning officer, in pursuance of this Act, to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, other than ballot papers and counterfoils, shall be open to public inspection, at such time and under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery with the consent of the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly; and the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, shall supply copies of or extracts from the said documents to any person demanding the same, on payment for the same at the rate of ten cents for each folio of one hundred words, and in computing the number of words in such copy or extract every figure shall be counted as a word.

Where a rule or order is made for the production by the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, of any document in his possession relating to any specified election, the production of the document by such clerk or his agent, in such manner as may be directed by the rule or order, shall be conclusive evidence that such document relates to the specified election ; and any endorsement appearing on any packets of ballot papers produced by such Clerk of the Crown in Chancery or his agent, shall be evidence of such papers being what they are stated to be by the endorsement ; and the production from proper custody of a ballot paper purporting to have been used at any election, and of a counterfoil marked with the same printed number, and having a number marked thereon in writing, shall be deemed prima facie evidence that the person who voted by such ballot paper was the person who, at the time of such election, had prefixed to his name in the voters' list used for the polling subdivision in which he voted at such election, the same number as the number written on such counterfoil ; or in the case of tendered ballot papers marked in the manner hereinbefore provided, for persons not named in the voters' list,

Education Free in Port Hope.

The Board of Trustees of the Port Hope High School have determined, for wise reasons, that admission to their High School shall be free from the 1st of January next. This is a movement in the right direction, which we trust will be followed by the trustees of all the High Schools and Collegiate Institutes in the country. The Port Hope Board make their school free to pupils no matter where they reside.

To Agents.

"The Agent's Companion" Publishing Company, London, Ontario, have gotten up the most useful thing for Agents and Canvassers we have ever seen. The "Companion" is a Monthly, in which is published such information as will prove valuable to agents, besides advertisements from publishers—American and Canadian —so that agents may choose employment without going to the expense of writing to a dozen publishers to find out the best paying business. It will be sent free to any agent sending his name to the Publishers.

Political

The conventions in the Reform interest have been held, and selections made in the County, but, as will be seen with some uncertainty as to acceptance. There is, however, plenty of time, and it is soon enough to commence the campaign when the present session of Parliament is completed. The hurry caused by the conventions and other pressing business prevents us giving that amount of parliamentary news that we would desire, but hope to atone for this in the future.

Her Majesty's Mail in the Mud.

On Wednesday morning, Mr. Cosley, of this town, found the "U. S." mail bag lying in the street, nearly opposite the Post Office. The mail carrier had no doubt placed it on the waggon, but it had fallen off, and fortunately was found by an honest man, who, as soon as the Post Office was opened, returned it safe and sound. There may have been valuable letters in it, or there may not have been; but if there were, and they had in this way fallen into dishonest hands, suspicions of an unpleasant nature might be lying against some innocent person now, perhaps against the carrier himself, although innocent. A little more care will prevent a repetition.

The St. Andrew's Society.

The annual meeting of this Society was held in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening. The chair was occupied by the President. The report for the past year was read and received. The Treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $964.52, which constitutes ample proof of the flourishing state of the Society. The following are the officers for the ensuing year:— President Ed. Moir; 1st Vice, John Elder; 2nd Vice, John Spence; 3rd Vice, Duncan McGregor; Secretary, Alex. Bertram; Treasurer, J. R. Ormond. It was decided to ask the Rev. J. M. Roger to preach the annual sermon in St. Andrew's Church and that the celebration of St. Andrew's be in the usual way by a dinner. The following gentlemen constitute the annual committee:— Robt. Elder, James Bathgate, Wm. Cummings, John Patterson, James Hope, William Andrews, James Millar, Chas. Cameron, James Whyte, Chas. Henderson, Alex. Steward, and Wm. Mercer. A vote of thanks was presented to Mr. Jas. F. Dennistoun, the retiring President, for the manner in which he conducted the affairs of the Society during the past year.—Review.

North Victoria.

The North Victoria election trial has resulted in voiding the election by consent; no bribery was proved on either side, Mr. McClennan's expenses being only some $480. After entering on a scrutiny of the votes, the Judge said: On the whole I am of the opinion that the petitioner has failed to prove or make out what any corrupt practice was resorted to by the respondent or his agents. Mr. ARMOUR rose and said he was now at liberty to withdraw the charges of corrupt practices against the petitioner, and to propose that the election be declared void, each party paying his own costs. He was pleased to say, too, that there was no charge against Mr. Cameron personally. Indeed, both gentlemen appeared to have acted very creditably, and might be said to leave the Court with clean hands. Mr. CAMERON, in a few words, accepted the proposition. He remarked that he understood Mr. McLennan's election expenses were not over $400, while his own did not exceed $300. His LORDSHIP then read the result of the scrutiny into Mr Cameron's voters, which was done on Friday last. He had struck out the names of Hall, Moynes, Spry, Fell (Henry) and Perdr , five in all When the scrutiny was begun it was argued that it should continue on one side till the other was in a minority of five. Mr. Cameron had a majority of five—the entire vote at first being for Mr. McLennan 564, and for Cameron 560, giving the former a majority of four votes only. By the latest scrutiny it will be seen that five votes were struck off Cameron's list, which left the candidates even. As neither of the parties wished to continue the scrutiny, and as neither of them had a majority his Lordship declared the election void.

THE POLICE COURT.

On Monday a stabbing case was tried before Mr. Hatton. It appeared from the evidence that one Cardinelle, a Frenchman, was going home to his residence south of the Town, on Saturday evening, about seven o'clock when passing the house of one Powers a woman, came out shouting murder; Cardinelle asked her what was the matter? when she said Powers and a man named Garrett had put her out because she would not go for whiskey, Cardinelle told her she could go to his house for the night. Immediately Powers came out and demanded of Cardinelle what he was doing there; to which he replied "not much." Powers ordered him away. It being on the road Cardinelle did not go, when Powers returned in and brought out Garret who commenced a scuffle with Cardinelle, and in the scuffle he was seen by Cardinelle's son strike the father three times in the left side, and immediately the father cried out, "I am stabbed, I am killed." Cardinelle was taken home and Dr. Kincaid sent for. He found three wounds in the left side; 1½ inches deep, and 1 inch long, such as would be made with a knife. One Desantel found a knife next morning at the place of the scuffle, which may have been the instrument used. Garret denies using a knife. He was sent up for trial:

On Tuesday another knife case was heard before Mr. Hatton, when it was made to appear that James Deacon and wife had assaulted one Masters and beaten him, Masters' wife swearing that she saw Deacon use a knife, and heard Deacon's wife tell him to kill Masters. They were committed to trial also.

COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER.

Our esteemed townsman, Dr. E. Benson, having decided, after a brief visit to the province of Manitoba, to remove to Winnipeg, a number of his friends, to show their appreciation of his many good qualities, entertained him at a supper at St. George's Restaurant, on Tuesday evening last. Upwards of twenty persons sat down before a "spread" which did great credit to Sterling's good taste and skill as a caterer. After the "cloth had been removed" Coun. Sanderson was called to the chair, and after appropriate reference to the object that brought them together, proposed the usual loyal and patriotic toasts which were heartily received and duly honored. The host of the evening, "Our Guest," was then given by the chairman, who embraced the opportunity of expressing the regret he felt at hearing of the Doctor's intended removal from the town, but, as their was no doubt it was all for the best, he wished him a pleasant and speedy journey and a successful and happy career in his new home where he promised seeing him during the winter. The toast was received with great enthusiasm and drank with the usual ceremony. Dr. Benson in responding expressed his sincere gratitude for the honor done him by so many of his friends assembling together to pay him this tribute on the occasion of this leaving them for the far West. He had came to Lindsay a young man about seven years ago with only his profession to depend upon and was successful. As he was still a young man he felt that in going to Manitoba he was making a move that would prove beneficial to his wordly prospect. He had been through a portion of that Province and considered that there was a good opening for him as a professional man and a speculator. If he could not succeed there he felt he could return to Lindsay and do as well as he had done in the past. After thanking them again and again for the honor done him he resumed his seat amid hearty applause. "Our Municipal Interests" was proposed and drank, Couns. Sanderson and Orde responding. "The Bar and the Bench" was responded to by D. J. McIntyre, who expressed his regret at parting with the Dr., as he had always found him a good citizen and a fast friend. He paid a tribute to the Doctor's force of character and wished him success and happiness in the Far West. "The Press" was next proposed and was acknowledged by Mr. W. M. O'Beirne, of the Post. "Our Commercial Interests" was ably responded to by Messrs. D. Ray, L. McLean, S. Pearin and R. S. Porter. "Our Manufacturing Interests" was responded to by Mr. John Maxthue and Mr. W. Woods. Our "Banking Institutions" was acknowledged by Mr. Stewart, (Ontario Bank) who proposed the "Ladies" coupled with the name of Mr. D. Orde, in an extremely and felicitous manner. The toast, it is needless to say, was drank enthusiastically and that the gentlemen named responded with spirit, and was succeeded by several young bachelors who are at all times ready to extol the high merits of all ladies in general and the Lindsay ladies in particular. The hour being late the chairman proposed "Our Host and Hostess," and judging from the manner in which the toast was honored their good social qualities was as well appreciated as their cooking. Mr. Geo. Sterling responded, thanking them for the kindly manner in which the toast had been received, after which "Auld Lang Syne" was sung in the good old fashioned style, and one of the pleasantest gatherings ever held in Lindsay was brought to a close.—From Lindsay Post.

WILFUL MURDER AT WASHAGO. NEAR ORILLIA

WASHAGO, Nov. 13.—Yesterday afternoon a man named Alexander D. Macdonald caused considerable annoyance in the Washago House of this place, insulting and striking several residents. His conduct was such that he was turned out of the house twice, and on the last occasion, while standing on the side of the road with his back towards the hotel the report of a pistol or revolver was heard, and at the same moment the man fell on his face. On being raised by his friends, a small wound was noticed in the back part of his skull, from which brain matter and blood issued. Dr. Ramsay of Orillia was immediately telegraphed for, and on arriving he found that a bullet had penetrated the brain in the place indicated. Before morning death took place, and an inquest was held by Coroner Ramsay at half past eight o'clock, this morning. The investigation was of a most searching character, and at last it was ascertained from a witness named Polson that he saw Mr. Stephen Whitney, a farmer who for many years has occupied a respectable position in this locality, deliberately aim and fire upon the deceased at a distance of twenty feet.

Mr. Ardagh, who opened the skull, found the bullet in the base of the brain. In the meantime Mr. Whitney, who at the commencement of the proceedings was in the room, disappeared into the woods east of Washago. Special constables were at once sworn in, but no clue has as yet been found. Telegrams describing him have been sent to Orillia, Barrie, Toronto, Lindsay, Beaverton, Woodville Junction, Port Hope, Ottawa and Bracebridge, as follows:—

Medium size, stooping shoulders, aged about fifty years, greyish hair, small grey whiskers, florid complexion, small eyes, left eye black from a blow.—Clothes—Blue back jacket, striped pants, and long boots.

Constables Hammond and Moffat are at present engaged in the search. The jury returned a verdict of "wilful murder" against Stephen Whitney. Mr. John Hawkins was foreman.

BETHANY.

FOUL PLAY AND THE RESULTS—WHEEL OF FORTUNE - FIFTH OF NOVEMBER.

There was quite a bit of excitement in this place on the 29th of October. A party of young "bloods" from Port Hope, intended to have a frolic. As soon as they got outside the limits of their own big town they doubtless fancied they could do as they liked. On the morning in question one of the party named Church, fired down street, shooting a fowl and just missed shooting one Johnston, who happened to be on the street at the time. The inhabitants of Bethany were determined to bring these fast young men to time, and teach them that there were laws in this place as well as in Port Hope, and that one man was as good as another only so long as he behaves himself. The owner of the fowl, in company with a person claiming to be an officer of the law, went for them, and these bloods were informed that they must pay for this fowl or answer before a justice for the crime. They finally agreed to pay $2.50 and have no more about it. Rather dear fowling this and not allowed to take the game either.

A person was arrested during the show here and brought before Porter Preston, J. P., and fined $10 and costs for turning the wheel of fortune. Other parties visiting this place for any of the above purposes had better take warning and conduct themselves accordingly.—Lindsay Post.

A Madman Committed to Jail.

This morning considerable excitement was caused in the vicinity of the police station by the bringing in of a madman from the country. The poor fellow raved a great deal, at times yelling at the top of his voice. Two men were required to hold him although it was only occasionally that he became restless. The yells attracted quite a crowd around the police station this morning until the unfortunate man was removed to jail. The complaint was entered by his father, whose name is James Southerby, a shoemaker of Maitland. He said his son, Wilson Southerby, had followed the life of a travelling showman or theatrical character, until about two months ago, when he became partially insane, and in which state he has been ever since. He seems to have been labouring under a delusion, caused by over study and the excitement consequent upon the mode of life, coupled with the teachings of spiritualism and spiritualists. His habits have always been temperate and industrious. On Friday last he swallowed a quantity of white lead paint, and his father had to administer strong emetics to save his life. When asked why he had done it, he said, "God had told him to, He seems to have imagined often that God had told him to do things, last night we were sitting around the stove, myself, my wife, and my son, when he attempted to break his fiddle against the stove, I prevented him, and told him he had better go to bed. He said he would, and commenced to take off his boots. When he had them off he took up one and would have struck his mother a severe blow on the head with it had I not intercepted him. I said to him in a loud voice, "What is this?" He said he was going to kill her, God had told him to. He then said God had told him to cut out her heart and mine also but he had disobeyed, but if God insisted on it he would have to do it yet. I then called in some of the neighbors and we watched him all night, and brought him up here this morning. He is 29 years of age and has always been healthy.

Since the poor fellow has been here he has been in charge of two men. He raves occasionally and seems totally unconscious of all that goes on around him. He is undoubtedly insane, though perhaps not beyond the hope of recovery. His worship, the Police Magistrate, has committed him to jail from whence he will probably be removed to an asylum.—Brockville Recorder.

ANOTHER MIRACULOUS CURE.

A friend in Woodstock has sent us the following letter, written by the Rev. P. J. Shea, of Godreich, to Mr. Thomas D. Egan of Woodstock:

GODERICH, Oct 20th 1874.

"There has been one miracle in Goderich caused by the "Water of Lourdes" which you sent me and for which I am very thankful. There is a man here in Goderich named O'Brian, who had five running sores on his leg for the last ten years. For the last five years he has not been able to go to the door of his house without his crutch, and the pain, for the last five years, he told me, was something terrific Doctors could do nothing for him. I saw the leg last March, and I assure you that the flesh on it was rotten. Well, I gave him a little of the water last August and told him to make a Novena, and what was the result? On the morning of the second day the sores were all gone! The flesh on the leg which was rotten became as sound as mine and he left his crutch in the house and walked to the church as well as you or I, and continued to do so every morning since. I have seen this and I thank God for it. The poor man does not stop day or night praying, and you get your part, for I told him that you sent me the water."

We also learn that Mrs. M. Egan, of Woodstock, was cured of a cough of ten years standing, by the use of the Water of Lourdes. Do they believe it?—Ontario Tribune.

There were forty-four deaths in Montreal last week from small pox

Calvin Saider, an Odessa watchmaker, was recently burned to death while in a state of intoxication.

MAN BURNED.—Last Saturday night a sad accident occured in Odessa, causing the death of Calvin Saider, a watch maker of that village. He had been previously imbibing in intoxicating drinks, and on the evening mentioned returned to his shop at about twelve o'clock and after lighting a lamp proceeded to wind a clock, when it is supposed the lamp exploded, the burning fluid flying over his clothing and burning him fatally. The poor fellow lingered in great agony until Sunday evening when death put an end to his sufferings. The deceased was about thirthy eight years of age, unmarried, and when not under the influence of our greatest curse was stated to be a very decent and gentlemanly fellow.—Napanee Beaver.

The Irish Canadian, in noticing the election of the Reform candidate in North Renfrew, says: "This constituency has hitherto been in the hands of the Tories; but Mr. Murray, having been selected as the standard-bearer of the Reform party, and having received a loyal and hearty support from the Protestant portion of that party, was placed at the head of the poll by the very respectable majority of eighty. * * * We have faith in the Reform party, and believe that in that party alone is to be found the material for managing the affairs of this country honestly, well and wisely.

From a St Catharines paper we learn that on Thursday morning last the burned body of a man was found in Secord's bush, at the Ten Mile Creek. It is impossible to identify him, his head and legs being burnt off. A charred rope was found around his neck, the twist of which was quite visible, He was lying on his face, and a heavy log was placed on his hip. The man apparently is a canal laborer, and was heaped so as to be secure[illegible]. His clothes are burned off, and his legs charred. Two days ago Cairns & Co. paid off some of their hands, and there is a suspicion that the man found dead has been robbed and murdered for his money, and the bush set on fire to conceal the crime.

VERY UNFAIR.—The Cobourg Sentinel says:—Mr Crossen proprietor of the Cobourg Car Works returned from Montreal on Tuesday evening, having failed to secure the contract which he expected for the building of six or seven hundred box cars. The Grand Trunk Railway Company are building the trucks in their own shops and the contract was for the bodies of the cars, but the Detroit Car Company got the contract because they were able to reduce their tender below that of Mr. Crossen our Government having agreed to admit the cars free of duty into Canada. There is free trade for you with a vengeance. Here we have had a number of workmen, with families dependent upon them, expecting to be again employed in Mr. Crossen's shops but an American company is enabled to compete successfully with him because our annexation government agrees to admit their work into Canada free of duty, and our workmen must therefore seek employment elsewhere.—Cobourg World.

IMPORTANT EXPERIMENT WITH CANADIAN ORES.—It has been known for a year or more that an extensive deposit of specular iron ore exists on the Haycock property, in the township of Hull and Templeton, opposite Ottawa Some few days since a quantity of these ores were at the Siemens furnace of the Nashua Steel and Iron Company, Nashua, N. H. smelted with charcoal in crucibles direct into ingot, one operation serving for the whole. Last week one of these ingots was at the Molsic Iron Works, in this city, heated in the usual way, and without the use of the steam hammer rolled into direct bars of different sizes. The ingot on fracture showed a very fine, steel like grain; the bars however, on being broken, had in every way the appearance of the very finest Sheffield steel. Experiments were then made with the bars. Cold chisels of splendid quality were made from them and under the hammer the iron was steadily drawn out without flaw. These bars were produced it will be noticed, in two operations—a most important result, since, as is well known, in order to make ordinary cast steel the metal must undergo various expensive processes. Some of these bars are on view at the office of Drummond, Cassels & Co.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Lachine Canal Enlargement

CONTRACTORS are hereby informed that about January next Tenders will be received for the execution and completion of the works connected with the enlargement of the present line of the LACHINE CANAL, or for the enlargement of the lower part of it, and the formation of a new line through the low ground on the North-West side of the existing channel up to what is called the "Rock Cut," thence following a line north of the Village of Lachine, to near Lorimier's Point.

The time to be adopted depends in some measure on the arrangements which can be made for the right of way; but the information supplied will enable the contractors to fully examine both routes before winter sets in.

The works are to be let in sections of a length suited to circumstances and the locality.

When plans, specifications, and other documents are prepared, due notice will be given, Contractors will then have an opportunity of examining them, and be provided with Blank Forms of Tender at this Office, or at such other places as may be deemed need.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Great Female Remedy.

Job Moses' Peridocal Pills.

This Invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excess and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

MARRIED LADIES,

It is peculiarly suited. It will in a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affection, Pains in the Head and Limbs, on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, and Whites, the pills will affect a cure when all other means have failed, and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions in the pamphlet around each package, which should be carefully preserved.

$1.00 and 1½ cents for postage, enclosed to Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., general agents for the Dominion, will ensure a box containing over 50 pill, by return mail.

Sold in Peterboro by Dr. Tayler, A. W. Kempt, W. S. Johnston, Dr. McCausse, Ormond & Walsh. In Keene by A. Campbell, Campbell McNeil & Co. C. Britton, Lindsay, and all Medicine Dealers.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS ECLECTRIC OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures cramps in the throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from as few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H Cole, of Ione, writes, "please forward 3 doz. Thomas Electric Oil. I am nearly out; it can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Rodford, Thamesville, writes, "send us once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Rockford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Ulverton, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great repute on here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoyne, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes—"Send no one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents, & E. Thomas, Prop., N. Y. and

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all have spoken highly of its virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, powerful in the history of medical compositions. It will fail to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by sedative and disease.

ITS magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diphtheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superseeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, sprains, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, bilious attacks, cholera infantum dysentary, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

FOWLES PILE & HUMOR CURE

For Internal and External use.

Warranted the only Sure and Positive Cure for all kinds of Piles, Scrofula, Tetter, or Ringworm Salt Rheum, and all Diseases of the Skin.

One Bottle Guaranteed, to cure all cases of Piles. From 1 to 3 Bottles for Cases of Humors.

This remedy has been used in some of the worst forms of Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Diseases of the Skin, with entire success. Many cases have been cured by an outward application only. Hundreds of letters and certificates can be had in the proprietor's possession, which can be seen on application.

N. B.—The medicine is entirely vegetable in its composition.

In all cases of Failure, dealers are requested to refund the money. Buy of none who do not warrant it, as all dealers should refund their money from the proprietor.

Price $1 per Bottle; Six Bottles, $5.

PERRY DAVIS & SON, General Agents Montreal.

PROSTATION, resulting from the effects of the intense heat of the Summer months, is the imposing cause of so many of the diseases peculiar to hot weather. The stomach partaking of the loss of vitality pervading the whole system, is unable to complete digestion the food passing undigested through the bowels, inducing the fatal maladies, called Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, and when prevailing Asiatic Cholera, may be excited. Attention to diet, moderate exercise, bathing, and regular habits must be observed. To counteract this tendency to extreme lassitude and disheartedness, Dr. Taylor's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is unquestionably reliable, as it invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies stimulating and generating nerve force.

THE DRUNKARD'S HOME.

BY LOUISE C. STRAM.

How piercingly thrill the wintry winds blow!
The blinding sleet and the drifting snow
Are filling my room
With a saddening gloom,
And driving me wild with a heart-rending woe!
Ah! the winds howl and growl like a wolf o'er his prey,
And the keen nitrogen whirl like birds in their play
And, stirring and drifting, the snow, like a pall,
Through the crevice and cranny and worn cotton wall,
Is leaving its trace on each hungry pinched face,
And is folding my babes in its chilling embrace.

As I wearily, drearily, tearfully sit,
And watch the weird shadows that over me flit,
The dread of the tomb
Is as naught to the doom
That o'ershadows my home by this dark'ning room!
They may dream; for I know that the flickering glow
Of that handful of coals faded out long ago!
They may starve; for the crusts and the crumbs are all gone,
And nothing is left for hungry mouths to find on!
Oh! that plenty and cheer should still lay on some
While hungry, and cold, and sad, I plead for bread!

And, alas, what a change! For back through the years
That have crushed me grief, I recall, with sad tears
One glad, happy day;
One fond, trusting life;
When my love, from our church, led me proudly away!
Away from the stain my girlish fame prayed,
Away from the bitter my mother forgave,
Away, with the blessings of father and mother,
Away, with the kisses of sister and brother;
Away, to the home that my husband should bless
With his love, and his truth, and his fond tenderness!

Hot sky husband, sky husband, oh! what now of him?
For one cup from the cup that his filled to the brim
With sorrow and sadness,
With fretz and madness—
That crazes the brain, and that pointes the limb—
He would scan our last loaf and heavy sway,
For the soul blighting fiend that he worships by day!
And with dampy heart-grief that can ever be told,
One by one I have seen all my goods pawned or sold;
And my father and mother, if living, would weep
To see the poor rags where we crasp off to sleep!

"Help! help for my babes!" is my heart broken prayer.
Why move they entreated to my humble care?
They have lived but to know
Grim want, and such woe
As I trust to the last of five children to share!
Oh, the hungry glare of their pitiless eyes!
Oh, the moans and the groans of my baby that lies
On the threshold of death! Oh! the thrill of the knell
Every throb of the pain I am powerless to heal!
Oh, the anguish of hearing their lives ebb fast wait
For the help that may come, but too late! oh! too late.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A Kansas City man who blew out the gas before retiring, saved his life by rushing down to the office of the hotel and inquiring if there was "a good history next door."

Rector's daughter (to Sunday scholar)—"Oh, have you no older brother; well, how is he?" Sabbath boy—"Dunno, miss; but he's just started o' swearing."

Old Deacon Sharp never told a lie; but he used to relate this: He was reading one day before a frog-pond and saw a large garter-snake make an attack upon an enormous bullfrog. The snake seized on the frog's hind legs and the frog, to be on par with his snakeship, caught him by the tail, and both commenced swallowing one another, and continued this carnivorous operation until nothing was left of them.

An exchange tells of a cooper down east, who, finding considerable difficulty in keeping one of the heads of a cask he was finishing in its place, put his son inside to hold that head up. After completing the work much to his satisfaction, he was astonished to find his boy inside the cask, and without a possibility of getting out except through the bunghole.

A fish store in Somerville, Mass., has a sign on which is painted "Leviticus, xi., 9th and 10th verses." Those verses are: "These shall ye eat of all that are in the waters; whatever hath fins and scales in the waters, in the seas and in the river, them shall ye eat. And all that have not fins and scales in the seas and in the river, of all that move in the waters, and of any living thing which is in the waters, they shall be an abomination unto you."

An old Dutch lady at a religious meeting became very much concerned for her soul, and went about sighing and sobbing, and would not be comforted. Upon being asked by a minister what the matter was, she replied that she couldn't pray in English, and she was afraid the Lord couldn't understand Dutch.

There is a story of an English tourist who entered a restaurant and by a few scraps of French was able to order a dinner. He wished some mushrooms—very delicious and large. Not knowing the name, he demanded a sheet of paper and pencil and sketched one. The waiter understood him in a second, disappeared for ten minutes, and returned with a splendid—umbrella.

A little girl with a basket of eggs went into a country store, and pitching her voice to a high key, astonished the store man with "Aunt betsey Albernathe wants the worth of those sixlams she mother!" After repeated efforts the girl made him understand that "Aunt Betsy Albernathy wanted the worth of those in slum and madder."

The following note written to her school mate by a girl who had been absent several days, illustrates the sweet simplicity of childhood: "Dear Susie—I shan't attend school again until i Get some new cuffs, collar and Jewelry—dear Mama agrees with me that it is my Duety to take the shine out of that Upstart Mamy Jones and I'll do it if I never learn nothing."

A sportsman who, during the shooting season, had gone to pass a week with a friend in the country, on the strength of a general invitation, soon found, by a gentle hint, that he would have done better to wait for a special one. "I saw some beautiful scenery," was the visitor's first remark, "as I came to-day by the upper road." "You will see still finer," was the reply," as you go back to-morrow by the lower one."

They obtain their wisdom in solid chunks out in Missouri. A husband on there, his wife having applied for a divorce, wrote a protest to the judge, in which he said: "Don't you grant her, boss. In my opinion this dura thing call divorce has parted many a man to his wife."

Allen's Lung Balsam is the great modern remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Asthama, Croup and Bronchitis. It is recommended by Physicians everywhere who are acquainted with its great uses.

Have you a severe wrench or sprain? Have you rheumatism in any form? Have you stiff neck or bunches caused by rheumatic pains? If so, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment as a specific remedy, and is also the best pain killer in the world.

We often see large stocks of cattle which do not seem to thrive, and come out "spring poor," all for the want of something to start them in the right direction. One dollars worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to each stock occasionally during the winter, would be worth more than extra half ton of hay.

The first approaches of consumption are so insidious that thousands remain unconscious of its presence until it has brought them to the verge of the grave. The immediate use of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers upon the first appearance of the cough, pain or soreness of the throat or chest, would generally preclude a fatal result therefrom. Often just relief is sold use Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, and thus prevent the necessity of taking them in more dangerous complaints. Sold by druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per box.

Scientific Items—A writer in Putnam's Magazine says: It is a curious fact that there is never in any male animal, except calf. The common belief that the female has teats and the jet black cow was mentioned in [illegible]. Whether this is correct or not we cannot positively say; but this we do believe, that [illegible] to have the best medicine for removing pain and [illegible] the name of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Dyspepsia, [illegible] or rheumatism, sprain, bruises or wounds call this for minor complaints. For sale by druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents.

CATHOLICISM.

HISTORY OF THE [illegible] statistical matters has kindly supplied us with the following article, which, we think, will cast new light on the late controversy regarding the appointment of Bishop Duhamel:

"Next week our city of Ottawa will witness one of the most solemn ceremonies of the Catholic Church—the consecration of a Bishop. It will be interesting on the occasion to give a statement of the hierarchy of the Church, and statistical information on its extent in the land, and the elements of which its numerous sects is composed.

"Time has brought immense changes since two hundred years ago, when a Montmorency Laval, a descendant of the first Christian Barons, was made first Bishop in this northern part of the American Continent, when the whole Christianity over these vast domains was composed of a few thousand French and a few thousand Aborigines, converted by the heroic missionaries of that hard, laborious and perilous period.

"The hierarchy of the Catholic Church within the British North American Province, is now composed of four Arch Bishops, seven Diocesan Bishops, and three Apostolic Vicars; with three Bishops coadjutors, and four retired Bishops.

"The four Archbishops are:

"The Most Rev'ds Thomas L. Connolly, of Halifax; John Lynch, of Toronto; Elzear Alex. Taschereau, of Quebec; Alexandre A. Taché, of St. Boniface.

"The seventeen Diocesan Bishops are:

"The Right Rev'ds Thomas Power, of St. John, N. F.; H. Carfagnini, of Havre De Grace; Peter McIntyre, of Charlottetown, P. E. I.; C. F. McKinnon, of Arichat, N.S.; John Sweeney, St. John, N. B.; James Rogers, of Chatham, N. B.; Jean Langevin, of Rimouski, Q.; L. Lafleche, of Three Rivers, Q.; Antoine Racine, of Sherbrooke, Q.; Charles Laroque, of St. Hyacinthe, Q.; Ignace Bourget, of Montreal, Q.; J. Thomas Duhamel, of Ottawa, O.; (next consecrated), Kingston, O.; P. F. Crinnon, of Hamilton, O.; Jno. Walsh, of London, O.; V. Grandin, of St. Albert, N. W.; John Seghert, of Victoria, B. C.

"The three Bishop Co-adjutors are:

"The Right Rev'ds John Cameron, of Arichat, N. S.; Ed. C. Fabre, of Montreal; G. Cint, of Lake Athabaska, N. W.

"The four retired Bishops are:—

"The Right the Revds. A. Persico, of United States, at Quebec, Joseph Larocque, resident at St. Hyacinthe; P. A. Pinsonneault, resident at Montreal, E. John Horan, resident at Kingston.

"The total Catholic population of the British North American Provinces, according to the last acquired information, numbers 1,646,500. The aborigines are computed in that number at 64,000 the French at 1,102,940, and all other origins at 476,560.

"In the four provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, from whence accurate returns and details by origins are given, the figures stand thus:—Catholics, 1,492, 029, of which there are Indian Catholics 20,000, French 1,082,940, all other origins 389,089.

"The aborigines constitute the great majority of the Catholics in the Diocese of St. Albert, and in the three Vicariates Apostolic.

"The french constitute the great majority of Catholics in the Archdioceses and Diocese and Dioceses of Chatham, N. B., Rimouski, Quebec, Three Rivers, Sherbrook, St. Hyacinthe, Montreal, Ottawa, and St. Boniface. They, besides, are the European Catholics, in the Diocese of St. Albert, and in the Vicariates Apostolic of Sault St. Mary, and River McKenzie. They form nearly one half the whole Catholic population of New Brunswick and nearly one third of the same in Nova Scotia, and important groups in the Western parts of the Province of Ontario.

"The Irish constitute, after the French the largest portion of the largest population of British North America.

"There are important groups of Scotch and German Catholics in every one of the Provinces, and representations of all other nationalities that dwell in this land of ours are to be found amongst them.

"The Diocese of Ottawa embraces, in the Province of Ontario, the counties of Prescott, Russel, Carleton, Renfrew South, Renfrew North, a portion of Lanark, and the city of Ottawa, with an aggregate recorded Catholic population of 51,493, of whom 137 are aborigines, 26, 251 are French, and 24-995, of other regions.

"The Diocese of Ottawa embraces, in the Province of Quebec, the counties of Pontiac, Ottawa, and the greater part of the country of Argenteuil, with an aggregate Catholic Population of 40,306, of whom 1,537 are aborigines, 27,155 are French, and 11,617 of all other origins.

"The total Catholic population of the Diocese of Ottawa, at the time of the taking of the census, was therefore 91,751, namely 1,734 aborigines, 57,406 French, and 26,612 of all other origins.

Bronchitis and Consumption. Letter from Dr. Crane, Halifax, N. S.—James T. Fellows, Esq., Dear Sir, From a general knowledge of the prominent ingredients of your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, I formed such a favorable opinion as to be induced to recommended it to my patients as preferable and more convenient than my own prescriptions of the Hypophosphites. For several years I have continued to prescribe it, in many cases with very beneficial results. Since, upon solicitation you kindly afforded me a more intimate knowledge of the composition of your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, I have used it freely in my practice, both in diseases of the Chest, as Consumption and Bronchitis, and in infantile diseases of the sprue sic, or Stomach and Bowels, with the most success, considering it superior to any similar preparation yet offered to the public. Thanking you for your kind information, I remain, yours truly, Chandler Crane, M. D.

It is to the interest of all who own horses to keep them in a healthy and sound condition; experience has proved that Durham's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy as the most efficacious; it has been used by thousands who will cheerfully confirm this statement. For Heaves, Coughs, Colds, and all diseases which affect the wind of horses, it has no equal, nor is it excelled as a condition medicine; it purifies the blood, corrects and improves the digestive, and softens the skin; in fact it [illegible] to have the appearance of a fine horse. To be obtained of all druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per box.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE
FREE FROM ALCOHOL
D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

WHEREAS a REMARKABLE PREPARATION KNOWN AS Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters has been introduced, which is entirely different from that class of worthless preparations flooding the country, bearing fictitious names, purporting to be made from roots, herbs, barks, etc., and which are universally destructive in their effects upon the system, this is to inform the public that a thorough analysis has been made of Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters, and we have failed to find in them any of the ingredients contained in the worthless stuff referred to. They are not a whiskey preparation, nor a rum, gin, or fancy drink, but are the purest and best tonic ever offered to the American people, and will accomplish more than any other remedy. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with Vinegar Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial, Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Painting and Mineral, such as Painters, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a
HAIR DRESSING,
nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally sufficient.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

To the Free and Indedendent
ELECTORS OF THE
EAST RIDING
Of the
County of Peterborough.
GENTLEMEN:—It is now some four years since addressed you through the columns of this paper, and I now adopt the same method, and as there has been many changes since that time both political and otherwise, and as most of you are aware that I sold out my business in Norwood to Mr. Ackerman two months ago, and my agreement with him prevents me from starting in the Village or Township; therefore I must return you my most sincere thanks for the liberal support you have accorded to me for these last 13 years. And at the same time I beg to inform you that having erected a Large and Commodious
Shop at Wigmore's Corner,
Where I intend to carry on the
HARNESS BUSINESS
In all its branches, and from my long experience in the trade, I flatter myself that I can give you a better article in my line, stock and workmanship considered than you can get elsewhere. My motto will be "Quick sales and small profits."
I also propose resting apart one day in the week, viz. Saturday, when all small jobbing will be done free of charge.
I hope to see all my old customers, and as many new ones as may feel disposed to patronize me, feeling assured that they will save money by investing a visit thither, as I intend to undersell all in the trade.
Repairing done with neatness and dispatch.
Collars made to suit any Horse in the country. Saddles padded to the satisfaction of all.
P. S.—As I have been to a good deal of expense in the way of building, all parties indebted to me will please call and settle without further notice.

JOHN A. HARTLY,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses, &c.
OFFICE—For the present at the Office, Peterboro, and at his own residence, Smith, Peterboro, Nov 17, 1874.

Select Poetry.

Smile Whenever You Can.

When things don't go to suit you,
And the world seems upside down,
Don't waste your time in fretting,
But drive away that frown.
Since life is all perplexing,
It is the wisest plan
To bear all trials bravely,
And smile whenever you can.

Why should dread betomorrow,
And thus spoil your to-day?
For when you borrow trouble,
You always have to pay.
It is a good old maxim,
Which should be often preached—
Don't cross the bridge before you
Until the bridge is reached.

You might be spared much sighing,
If you would keep in mind,
The thought that good and evil,
Are always here combined.
There must be something wanting,
And though you toil in vanity,
You may miss from your casket
That precious jewel, health.

Though you are strong and sturdy,
Not full may be your purse;
And earth has many trials,
Which I consider worse—
But whether joy or sorrow,
Fill up your mortal span,
'Twill make your pathway brighter
To smile whene'er you can.

COMMON WORDS.

How common is ill health! How few are well; and as you meet persons in society, how common is the question: "How is your mother?" or "How is you father, your brother, sister, son, daughter, husband or wife?"

To-day, siding on the street cars in New York, we noticed the salutation of acquaintances. In almost all cases, the second or third question after meeting concerned the health of some relative or friend. One man asked a young lady, "How is your mother?" The answer was, "Oh, mother is miserable; she has been miserable since Friday."

The answer of a mother to a similar question concerning her daughter was, "Oh, Jane is complaining a good deal. The doctor thinks that if we could send her into the country it would do her more good than the medicine."

A robust man of fifty, with a wife who looked as if she might be the mother of Hercules, was asked for his son Harry; his answer was, "Oh, Harry doesn't seem to be getting any better He has just returned from a few days visit to the Springs. The water seemed to weaken rather than strengthen him. Young folks can't stand anything nowadays. I don't see why it is. When I was a boy I would work almost night and day for a week, and be as fresh as a morning stage yet."

So it goes on. These bits of conversation represent what commonly occurs, In almost every household there is one invalid at least. It is hard to find a family in which every member is well:

Why all this illness? There are many reasons. First, we were not made to live always. The human machine is not an example of perpetual motion. The friction, the bruising, the burning, the wearing and tearing of from ten to a hundred years, exhausts some vital part for its function, and the whole stops. The oil in the human lamp is limited in supply. Sooner or later it burns away and the flame dies out.

So weakness, illness, infirmities and deaths are the common lot of mortals. By no manner of living, by no process of medication can they be altogether prevented. But there are diseases and deaths which may properly be called premature, these are of course preventable. How many who are born with life capital for a hundred years become bankrupt at twenty five. Smoking, drinking, late hours and lewd company undo some men, idleness lays waste the powers of others, and overdoing and feverish excitement bring others to early decay.

The absence of those employments which develop strength of body and brain puts women at a disadvantage, and the indoor, artificial lives, with breath-depriving dresses, rob many of the bluss of health before they are twenty. Many among all classes, are ill from causes beyond their control; many others because they have lived without regard to the conditions on which health depends. Having the care of "A harp of a thousand strin s."

they have either inadvertently or carelessly strained, mutilated, or broken so many strings, that the music of life, instead of being harmonious and sweet, has become discordant and painful.

Is there a remedy for all these ills? For some there is; some cases are too far gone; some vessels are unseaworthy; they have sound parts, but so many timbers are rotten, and so many strained and twisted, that the vessel does not admit of repairs—it must be abandoned. So some bodies, sound enough in parts to last a hundred years, have been so abused in others as to be beyond repair. They must inevitably soon be cast upon the wharf. Still, as it is said, "while there is life there is hope." The human machine is self-repairing, and wonderful power of self-repair does it often show when given a chance. "The beginning of wisdom" in the treatment of disease, is the recognition of this self-healing tendency in the human body. Illness uncaused does not come. Every invalid should enquire: "Why am I ill?" and finding the cause should remove it. The words of scripture contain a remedy for human ills which is nearer a universal panacea than any which chemists have discovered. It is this: "Cease to do evil; learn to do well." If these simple words were understood in their application to the body, how much pain and misery would be prevented! They mean, "Stop dabbeying; stop breaking yourself to pieces; stop doing that which you know aggravates your pains and perpetuates your troubles; quit the worries of mind, the bad habits, the heedless ways, the abuses of body and brain, which you know are killing you." If you can do, and will not, you deserve, but if you cannot, you deserve more help than those who make your case their study can render. The invalid who goes on supposing the nature of his disease will cure itself, without any effort of his own, and there is no help for him, is a fool. Every grave mistake is followed by its penalty. Men do not respect their bodies as they should; they do not make conscience of regarding physical law. They think that they can want only transgress it without sin.

It is a shame to deface and defile, to despoil and ruin, so beautiful and wonderful an instrument as the human body. Reader what use are you making of the body God has given you? Are you needlessly marring or destroying His workmanship? If so, can you call yourself a Christian while you are doing that?—Exchange.

EQUALITY.

One day the pacha said to the sultan: "All men are equal before the Prophet. Why, then, have you a throne, while I have only a divan?—an empire, while I have but a province?" "It may be that you are right," replied the sultan. "To-morrow you shall have my throne and empire, provided you can find the means of rendering all men equal.'

The pacha withdrew, enchanted at his good fortune, and immediately caused equality to be proclaimed among all the children of Mahomet. But at his door he encountered a vizier, who said to him: Why, then do you possess a province, when I have but a town?—a turban, ornamented with precious stones.'

And the vizer was rejoicing, when a captain said to him: "Why, then, have you an army, while I command but a company?—and why is your turban ornamented with tinsel, and mine but with silk?" "To-morrow," replied the viser, "you shall have my army and tinsel turban."

But a lieutentant said to the captain: "In the name of equality, I must have you command and decorations." And the soldier said to the lieutenant: "I must have your rank and pay." And the foot-soldier said to the horseman: "Give me your horse and sabre, and take my musket which is too heavy to carry." And each in turn replied, "You shall have them to morrow," for each wished to elevate himself to the grade of his superior, without reflecting that he left an inferior behind him.

But as all had still superiors above them, and as no one would remain in the grade of subaltern they unceasingly desired to rise in rank, in the name of equality. In this way a horrible civil war broke out; and, unable to come to an understanding, they destroyed each other, the vanquishers disputing among themselves the spoil of the vanquished, and equality always reappearing after each displacement. Those who survived were more furious and more miserable than had been those that had perished; when a poor slave, who had held fast by his condition, without envying that of others, thus addressed the dethroned sultans, pachas, viziers, without command, captains waiting companies, dismounted horsemen, and soldiers deprived of armies:

"Each of you thought himself happier than I was in point of fortune, and now I am happier than all you. Would you know why? Because there is a Prophet greater than your Prophet, who thus speaks in his book: "The cedar protects the top of the hyssop, and the hyssop nourishes the root of the cedar." They therefore stand equally in need of each other, and in that consists true equality. There will ever be poor among you, for the happiness of mankind is not of this world. Happy are those who weep here below; they will meet consolation above. Unhappy are those who take from, instead of giving to their fellow mortals; for it is more easy for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a bad rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. And this Prophet is my Divinity, added the slave, devoutly crossing his arms on his breast, and inclining his head humbly.

Wet Boots.

What an amount of discomfort wet boots entail, and how well we all recall the painful efforts we have now and then made to draw on a pair of hard-baked ones which were put by the fire overnight to dry! Once on, they are a sort of modern stocks, destructive of all comfort, and entirely demoralizing to the temper. The following plan, it is said, will do away with this discomfort:

When the boots are taken off, fill them quite full with dry oats. This grain has a great fondness for damp, and will rapidly absorb the least vestage of it from the wet leather. As it quickly and completely takes up the moisture, it swells and fills the boots with a tightly-fitting last, keeping its form good, and drying the leather without hardening it.

In the morning, shake out the oats and hang them in a bag near the fire to dry, ready for the next wet night; draw on the boots, and go happily and comfortably about the day's work.

Temple of Diana.

The Temple of Diana, about which there has been so much contention for so many generations among the learned, is now proved to be octastyle, that is, having eight columns in front. It has eighteen columns on the sides, and the intercolumniations of the latter are chiefly three diameters, making the temple diastyle. The statement of Pliny, as to its having had one hundred columns (externally) is correct, and as many as twenty-seven of these might have been the contributions of kings. Of the position of the thirty-six sculptured columns, I may obtain further proof before the excavations are completed. Allowing for the projections of the sculpture on these columns, which, in the fragments recently found, are as much as thirteen inches, and the diameter of the columns was about 5 feet 10 inches. The dimensions of the Temple given by Pliny, viz.: 220 feet by 425 feet, were evidently intended to apply to the raised platform upon which the Temple was built. The actual width of the platform, measured at the lowermost step, was 226 feet 2½ inches, English. The colonnade as to its length is laid as present to somewhere, and the dimensions given on my plan may have to be corrected when the western and eastern extremities have been more thoroughly explored. The dimensions of the Temple itself (four planets by planets, 7 out to one, one 100 feet 9 inches by 239 feet four inches. The height of the shaft from was 9 feet 5½ inches. The interior appears to have been adorned with two tiers of elliptical columns, Ionic, and Corinthian fragments of them having been found from the walls of the cellar.

Spurgeon for Prohibition.

In reviewing the Sword and Trowel for September, Mr. Spurgeon says:

"We do not believe that the Scriptures teach Christians to shirk their duties as men and citizens, under the idea that subjection to the existing government of this world is the plain and positive command, it would be the duty of Christians to exercise their influence for good under a government like that of England, where the law practically enjoins upon them to do so. It is constructive treason against a free government, where all govern representatively, to refuse to contribute our mite towards securing wise and salutary measures. If our House of Parliament should pass Acts encouraging drunkenness or perpetrating injustice, the blame of the Acts must greatly lie upon those who refuse to use their votes in the right direction. Abstinence from voting for the right produces the same result as voting for the wrong. * * * So long as we stay here we cannot escape from the responsibilities of liberty, nor ought we to wish to do so. God's Word can never teach injustice; and yet it would be practical injustice to accept protection for our own property and liberties, and to refuse co-operation in securing such protection. Granted that we are pilgrims and strangers, yet even such persons should seek the good of the people among whom they dwell. Surely Esther and Mordecai were right in seeking to amend or counteract the law of Ahaurrus by which their nation was doomed to die; had they not done so they would have been partakers in the sin of Haman. We mean to follow their example, believing that our Lord would have us love our neighbors as ourselves."

As a cure for poison by ivy, a correspondent of "The Ohio Farmer" advises the sufferer to dissolve a piece of sugar of lead as large as a hazle nut, in half a teacupful of warm water or sweet milk, and apply the solution frequently to the diseased parts, with a soft rag (as warm as can be borne) until a cure is effected. Where the ivy abounds, it might be well to keep a supply of this remedy prepared for immediate use.

By far the largest and most powerful steam hammer in the world is now in operation in Woolwich, England. The weight of the falling portion is within a few pounds of forty tons, and the force of the falling weight is accelerated many times by the use of steam to drive it down from the top. It is estimated that the use of top steam is equal to allowing the hammer to fall of its own weight eighty feet. It has been allowed a striking fall of fifteen feet three inches. The hammer is forty-five feet in height, and covers, with its supports, a base of about 120 feet square.

TO MEASURE THE HEIGHT OF TREES.—When a tree stands so that the length of its shadow can be measured, its height may be readily ascertained as follows. Set a stick upright, let it be perpendicular by the plumb line. Measure the length of the shadow of the stick. As the length of the shadow is to the height of the stick, so is the length of the shadow of the tree to its height. For instance: if the stick is four feet above the ground and its shadow is six feet in length, and the shadow of the tree is ninety feet, the height of the tree will be sixty feet (6:4::60) In other words, mutiply the length of the shadow of the tree by the height of the stick, and divide by the shadow of the stick.

A CORONER AND LUNATIC.

An inquest has been held at Omagh on the body of the lunatic, Patrick M'Alker, who was killed by another inmate of the Omagh District Lunatic Asylum named Patrick M'Shane. The Tyrone Constitution says—M'Shane, it appears, is a dangerous lunatic having a suicidal mania, yet he considers himself a man of lofty station and in a position to enjoy life, in fact no less a personage than the "Pope of Rome," as he with all meekness styles himself. He betrayed by, his countenance a cunning, deceitful, and villainous mind just the man whose lunacy might be expected to lead to such a deed of blood, and right well he performed his task, for the unfortunate "landlord's" head was literally smashed to pieces with the formidable weapon used so well, a large heavy poker over a yard in length. The jury having a desire to see M'Shane (the murderer), he was brought into the Court under charge. He seemed rather amused at the proceedings, and in no way annoyed at being questioned on the subject in hand. Coroner (Mr. W. O. Orr) to M'Shane—What is your name? M'Shane (with disdain)—I am the Pope of Rome Coroner—Why did you kill the "landlord?" M'Shane—I did not hear of anyone being killed at all. Coroner—Who did you call the "landlord" in this house? M'Shane—I did not hear of anyone being killed. Coroner—You are charged with killing the "landlord," and beating his brains out. M'Shane—I don't know, I never heard of it before. The weapon used by him with such effect was here produced, but he denied all knowledge of it, or that he ever saw it before. He did not know the "landlord," but he heard some person talk of something. Coroner—Did you hear that the devil is dead? M'Shane (eagerly)—Yes, I did. Coroner—Who killed him? M'Shane—I think the doctor—the doctor and other gentlemen on Sunday last were talking, and one of them said the devil was dead. I was not at the killing of him. The poor fellow was then removed.

An Irish gentleman having a piece of new board sent to him, proceeded to try these ink-bottle after a great deal of labor and pulling and twisting till, from the blisters on his hands, he could no longer continue the trial, he coolly declared, declaring that he perceived very clearly it should never get from him a red cent till he had proved a pair of eyes.

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 26, 1874.

REFORM.

The electors of the East Riding will do well to listen to none of the idle rumors in reference to Mr Stratton having resigned in favor of this man or that man. He well knows that when he has made up his mind to any course different from the wish of the Convention that selected him, it is his duty to communicate his views to the members of that convention and let them decide as to who shall take his place. In the absence of his having done so, and still more in the absence of any public declaration to that effect, the the electors of East Peterborough will act wisely in listening to no idle rumors. If they who selected him at any time think that it would be for the best interests of the party that another take his place, he will, no doubt, willingly give way to any one who may be selected by the Reform party, as his ambition will not stand in the way of the success of the Reform principles he holds paramount to every other thing In the absence, however, of any expressed desire, and while the most confident assurance of success reach him from all parts of the Riding, the silly gossip of those who have little else to retail, will not, we trust, disturb the electors of that Riding.

THESE HANDS ARE CLEAN.

It is not a little amusing to see how anxious the Liberal-Conservative Party is to fasten political impurity upon Reformers They, of course do not claim to be pure, nor yet to have been pure. They claim immunity from shame and blame, because they never professed purity. They should be allowed to retain this honorable(?) position. They did not profess to be honest, and consequently dishonesty in them is no crime. They did not profess to be innocent of bribery, therefore bribery in them is no crime. Sir John depended on the stones of war to retain power—to use the almighty dollar was not wrong in him. The least glimmering of common sense will detect the force of this kind of reasoning.

Reformers, in self defence, say to the Conservatives : You have sinned, in that like Jeruboam, the son of Nebat, you taught Israel to sin. You taught Reformers the use of money, and the abuse of it ; and still you cry, "These hands are clean."

How simple this kind of argument must appear to right-thinking men ! Both parties are now tainted—both have sinned—both have coveted the silver and Babylonish garments . the one to retain it, and the other to obtain it, and both have been doing wrong. Let them both acknowledge their sins, and seek to improve the present lessons the new Election Law is affording them. Reformers cannot say they are innocent of resorting to wrong means to oust their opponents ; and Conservatives are as deep in the filth as they can be. Let us hope that out of the combined errors, the people may arise ashamed of the part they have played, and purified by their affliction, and truly repentant, they may in future act a nobler, a holier, and more patriotic part, in building up a great Canadian nationality on this Continent.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION

The movement originating some time since with the Rev. Mr. Fish here, but we understand first commenced by the Rev. Father Stafford, of Lindsay, is continuing the work so favourably begun. The object is to limit the number of tavern ; to do away with Saloons and shops except two, and a third feature is to get rid of Billiard Rooms, as the chief curse of young men—and some of these who cannot be called Young Men.

Meetings are being held in the different Wards to induce the Ratepayers of each ward to bring out for Councillors for 1875, men who in addition to other qualifications will be pledged to limit the taverns to 16, shops to two, and do away with Billiard Rooms, and also raise the license fee.

The people are taking hold of the matter and if they do not meet the wishes in every respect of the friends movement some little change will be effected, let us hope for the better.

The limiting of the evil is a necessity, if we do not wish to see our young men led astray, and many old ones ruined forever. The fact that the people have been indifferent to the traffic has been the wonder of thoughtful persons.

The revenue from it blinded the eyes of the fathers and mothers, and philanthropists of the country. The legal respectability of the business shut the mouths of many more. The habit of drinking a little, had become so general and fixed that all classes of Christians have been looking upon it as a trifle, a mere failing or weakness, to be passed over without remonstances simply because, each one was as guilty as his neighbor or brother. A traveller from a distance who would visit Hunter Street, and be told that from the Otonabee Bridge to Aylmer Street, there are 20 to 23 places for selling intoxicating liquors, would be inclined to say, you must have many loafers here, if that word should in his vocabulary. There are 53 licensed houses in Town. Let us suppose the five individuals on, daily average, lose one hour a day in frequenting each of those places : that would average 265 hours, or, over 21 days labor lost every day. This is not one tenth of the truth that stares us in the face daily ; 21 days is surely a loss of $21 daily ; call it $20 and we have an annual loss of$6410, yearly this is not near the mark. There are several places in which each of them have more than five visitors What employer of labour does not lament the loss o time with hands who are accustomed to take their bitters, as it is playfully called.

The Billard rooms should be done away with at once. They are the haunts of amusement at first. They afterwards become the usual rendesvous of those who are in the incipient stage of becoming drunkards. They are open all night, as was testified in the Town Council on Monday evening. Men and boys go rolling home from them almost every day, and because they are licensed they are permitted to go on unmolested ? Yet here is the place where young men are made moderate drinkers, and afterwards become the sots. By all means do away with the Billiard Rooms ! and all the other rooms of that nature. But when all this is done there will be work for the temperance community till prohibition shall be effected, which must come sooner or later

Members of the present Council complain of the indifference of the Temperance community in reference to the License system in Town, when they stayed away from the Council Chambers, while the friends of the liquor traffic thronged it every night when they were discussing the license By-law. Let the hints have its effects

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening pursuant to notice by the Mayor.

Present, the Mayor, and Messrs. Hopkins, Toole, Robertson, Denne, Helm, Paterson, Romaine, Cahill, Dixon and Hamilton.

The Minutes of the last Meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from W. H. Scott, Esquire, Town Solicitor, recommending the legalizing of the By-Law granting $100,000 to the Huron and Quebec Rail Road, and submitting a draft of a memorial and Act to amend the Act consolidating the debt of Town.

From Dr. O'Sullivan and Dr. Burnham asking for a crossing on Brock Street ; referred to the Street Inspector.

Petitions were received from Mr. Crowley and Mr. O'Brien, for remission of Taxes.

Mr. Romaine, as chairman of the special committee in reference to the Band reported ; the report recommended collecting the Instruments and putting them in hands of the Trustees for the Council

On motion of Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Cahill, the proposition of Mr. ——— was referred to a special committee consisting of Messrs Romaine, Patterson, Dixon, Rutherford and the mover.

The Mayor stated that a gentlemen named Pease had propositions to make in reference to a Bird's-eye view of the Town. Mr. Pease addressed the Council and submitted the picture or map.

Mr. Patterson moved seconded by Mr. Hopkins that the taxes of W. Armstrong on a lot used as pound be remitted.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Cahill seconded by Mr. Helm, that the Street Inspector, put a crossing on George Street to Smith, Boyd & Co's office.—Lost

A By-Law to aid C. P. M. R. R. Coy. was read a first time.

On motion of Mr. Hamilton, the council went into committee of the whole, on the second reading of it, Mr. Rutherford in the chair. The By-law was read a and blanks filled.

The By-Law was ordered to be published.

Moved by Mr. Toole seconded by Mr. Rutherford. that the joint committee of County and Town, be appointed to examine the Boundary Line, between the Township of Douro and the Town, and be authorized to take such action in reference thereto, as they may be advised by the Town Solicitor.—Carried.

A memorial to the Lieut. Governor, was read praying for an Act to amend the Act consolidating the debt of the Town, and asking leave to borrow $12,000 for purchasing school sites, and erecting school buildings.

The memorial was read and passed.

Moved by Mr. Dixon, seconded by Mr. Robertson, that in case of the absence of the Clerk of this Municipality during the present Municipal year—absent or incapable through illness, to perform his duties, the said clerk be and he is hereby authorized under his own hand and seal, to appoint some other person who shall act in his b ehalf.—Carried.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

THE PRINCE OF WATES DEBTS

Amid all the discussion about the Prince of Wales' debts it is strange that no one has thought it well to point out that prince should live within their incomes like other men. Especially are they bound to do this unless they set a pernicious example. The plea that the Prince has to spend money vicariously for his mother is sheer nonsense. It is an insult to the Queen to suppose she places on him any such burthen. The Prince is extravegant and pleasure-loving—witness that most costly fancy dress ball recently given—and not unknown at the card table. His truest friends, the best friends of the monarchy, are those who countrain him. so far as advice and friendly offices can, to live quietly within his means and to keep of playing King of England in society until he has been crowned. Debt has brought low mightier ones than the Prince of Wales, and he will find it a millstone around his neck, which will bend to degrees him far below that elevation on which his wise mother stands so proudly in the loyal affections of her people.

THE COMING ELECTION

Yesterday at the Reform Convention held at Millbrook, Seth S. Smith Esq., was unanimously chosen as a candidate to represent the Reform interests in the Local House of Assembly for the East Riding of Durham at the coming election Although Mr. Smith did not positively pledge himself to accept the nomination, we believe there is not the slightest doubt but that he will do so ; and should this be the case, he will not only receive the support of the entire Reform body, but many moderate Conservatives have already promised their support and their influence. He is an able and earnest worker in the cause ; a gentleman well known, needing no eulogistic comments at our hands to recommend him to the electors.

The work of preparing for the coming contest is not undertaken one day too soon. With an extensive riding like ours, an immense amount of work is necessitated ; and we trust Reformers will bestir themselves. Without thorough organization nothing can be done. The Legislative Assembly of Ontario will meet about the second week in November, when at the conclusion of the session in general elections will immediately follow. From our numerous exchanges, extending from the extreme east to the west of the Province, we have evidence that the struggle willbe fought with real earnestness, for the preliminary measures are characterized by a degree of ardour greater than we are wont to see. It therefore behoves us to thoroughly organise in the first place ; then follow by zealous work, leaving no stone unturned, no legal means untried. to secure a triumphant denouncement.—Mr, Rosevar of Hope, is the Conservative candidate.—Port Hope Guide.

Port Hope.

WATER-WORKS TESTED.

PORT HOPE, Nov. 21.—The Port Hope water-works were partially tested this afternoon. Six powerful streams were set in operation simultaneously with only half the power, and they jumps applied. Streams were thrown over the highest buildings and the steeple of the Baptist Church. The trial was in every way highly satisfactory A public trial will take place in a week or ten days, when all the power will be applied.

OTTAWA

A DARING attempt was made to enter Pyke's furniture store on King Street, Brockville. The robbers appear to have been two in number and while one was attempting to gain entrance at the front the other was engaged in the rear. Mr. Pyke hearing the noise armed himself with a revolver and went down stairs to the shop, but the would-be robbers hearing him coming effected their escape. On examination six auger holes were found bored around the fastening of the shutters which they had endeavoured to take off. There is not the slightest clue as to the parties.

Mr. FOWLER, Mr. Strong, and Mr. Elliott, of the Huron and Ontario Railway, with Mr. Haggart, M.P., and Mr. J. Miller, are at Ottawa. They are obtaining signatures to a petition to the Ottawa City Council, praying that a by-law to grant a bonus of $25,000 towards the road be submitted to the ratepayers of Ottawa. They guarantee to transport freight for the rates which the Grand Trunk charge, and will carry dry cordwood at the rate of three cents per cord per mile The Richmond Council meet to-day to take into consideration a $2,000 bonus toward the road.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY.—A large deposit of fire-brick clay—the only one, it is said, in Canada—has lately been discovered at the head of Moore's lake and Gulf river on Lot No. 24, in the 6th concession of Letterworth. Mr. Thomas Leary, the owner of the property, is negociating with a party in Toronto to establish a fire-brick manufactory on the spot, and the negociations, we are glad to hear, are likely soon to be completed. Its superior qualities over other clay are that it contains neither lime, magnesia or iron, which renders it more refractory than any other clay. This is one of the most important discoveries ever made in the backwoods, and the supply of the material is believed to be practically inexhaustable.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

DESERTING HIS POST.

The Country has long since concluded that as a politician, Mr. M. C Cameron, present leader elect of the Ontario Opposition is a signal failure. Everybody acknowledges his ability and success at the Bar—but that is his sphere, not in politics. Indeed Mr Cameron himself seems to recognize this fact and, practically, takes little pains to conceal it. As Cabinet Minister or party leader in Canada has so persistently ignored his duty to his country and his party in these positions, in order that he might devote himself the more wholly and successfully to his own private business. Upon no occasion has he shown himself willing to sacrifice the interests of his profession for those of the public. A good fat fee has always sufficed to allure him from his post as Cabinet Minister or political head or no matter how important the occasion or great the necessity for his administrative or political services. True, Sandfield Macdonald sought him sharply to task once or twice for this dereliction, of public duty and for o time curbed his propensity for making big fees in court while drawing a large salary from the country—for doing nothing. But Sandfield's lesson has been lost upon him and he long since returned to his old way. Not even the debate upon the address on Friday last could restrain Mr. Cameron from posting off to London on professional business and thus leaving the task of exposing the Government's alleged "corrupt and disgraceful administration of public affairs" in the hands of such characterless incapables as Rykert, Lauder Boultbee & Co. Now it is true, as is represented by the Opposition press and party, that the country's affairs are in such a terribly deplorable conditions under the present Government, surely Mr. Cameron must be a very unpatriotic Canadian, if when so good an opportunity for exposure of the Gopernmental misdeeds presented itself, he could not sacrifice a few dollars personal profit in order to do battle against the wrongs of a misgoverned (!) country. He must either acknowledge that public affairs are not so badly mismanaged by a Reform Government, as he and his party represent, or else confess that he himself wholly neglects to do his duty. Whatever born of the dilemma Mr Cameron accepts will be satisfactory to his opponents, if not not to his own party. And to think of so selfish a man—one to whom public duty has always been of secondary consideration to private gain—becoming Premier of Ontario. The idea is simply absurd and is doubly so when we reflect that he would replace so unselfish, able, assiduous and thoroughly devoted a public servant as the present Premier of the Province, the Hon Oliver Mowat. Happily such a contingency is just now altogether too unlikely to be worthy of serious discussion. However, considering his position in the House he cordially agree with the venerable old Leader, that Mr. Cameron's absence therefrom during the debate on the Address "is only excusable on the grounds of illness, and we trust that he will repair this error by assiduous attendance in the House throughout the remainder of the session." —Woodstock Sentenel.

EAST NORTHUMBERLAND.

(From the Cobourg World.)

Most people will be astonished to learn that the Hon James Cockburn has become a candidate against Mr. Biggar in East Northumberland ! We are to presume, then, that the extensive business engagements into which he told his Conservative Association here that he was just entering, when they wanted him to run against Mr. Kerr one short month ago, have all been comfortably set aside and adjusted, and that he is now more free to enter the political lists. But that, we may be told, is none of our business. Perhaps not ; and we might not have alluded to it were it not in indignation at the direct insult which he cast upon his West Northumberland friends in spurning their invitation to run here, for reasons which he had no trouble in setting aside when he was immediately asked to run somewhere else. It must have been that. That his business engagements would not permit him to run he has already proved to be false. That he was afraid of another contest with Mr Kerr is a thing not to be thought of for a moment ; because, though his candidature would have subjected him to an investigation of his actions when a candidate before—that is nothing ; for a man whose heart's desire has always been to "purge the Riding of corruption," could fear no revelation of his own tricks. Therefore, these two reasons being set aside, there is only one other possible supposition to fall back upon. He had leisure to run—for he directly ran somewhere else. He could not be afraid of a contest ; for he declared his hands were clean ; and his own friends admitted that he could easily beat Mr. Kerr. Therefore, the sole remains, that he wished to insult his old friends here, by disregarding their invitation, and by forsaking them when they were in very bad straits for a candidate indeed Why, then, should we not be angry with him ?

But does he really think that East Northumberland is going to take him when it can get Mr Biggar ? Surely a constituency like East Northumberland is going to take him when it can get Mr. Biggar ? Surely a constituency like East Northumberland will hardly take our leavings, and him, too, a nonresident when they may have an upright, capable, and reliable member of their own ! Is it possible that Mr Cockburn thinks his record is already forgotten ? If he thought it was a light thing to act the partizan when he should have been an impartial chairman,—to cry down a defenceless member of the House when he was prepared with testimony which he had promised, and with which, in the people's interest, he was prepared to convict a man high in power of bartering those interests for a contractor's gold with which to debauch the electors of his own country,—surely he cannot expect the people of East Northumberland to regard it so lightly ! He might think it a clever trick to side with one of the political parties of the day, and, by conniving at and securing the prorogation of the House, shut the mouths of the people's representatives, assembled to discuss the country's affairs ; but he will never get an honest constituency to think so ! His is a square issue, if ever there was one. Mr. Sidney Smith could evade the Pacific Scandal outrage, but Mr. Cockburn cannot. It was done under his patronage ; and in his late contest in this Riding, he found this issue bravely, defending "Sir John" to the last. Therefore, if East Northumberland disgraces itself by accepting him, it must accept with him the stigma which attach es to the open defence of the most corrupt and infamous transaction which, in the Canadian political world, ever saw the light ! We hope and we have reason to hope that all reports to believe, that our neighbours to the east will wash their hands of this connection and vote for Mr. Biggar, as a more reliable and honest man.

A RARITY.—Mr. James Poulson, of Fenelon, while out deer hunting at Four Mile Lake, on Thursday of last week, shot adoe with horns, or, rather, with one horn ; the other having been broken short off. The one left was a single spike, seven or eight inches in length. As a horned doe is about as great a rarity as a bearded woman, it is fully as much entitled to a notice in print.—Ibid.

BY-LAW

GRANTING A BONUS TO THE COBOURG RAILWAY.

BY-LAW NO.

A By-Law to provide for the granting of a Bonus to the extent of Eighty Thousand Dollars in Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough., to the Cobourg, Peterborough and Marmora Railway and Mining Company to aid in the construction of the Railway of the said Company northward to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls or some other point northward or north-eastward of Bobcaygeon.

WHEREAS the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough have resolved to grant aid by way of Bonus to the Cobourg Peterboro' and Marmora Railway and Mining Company to assist them in extending their railway northward to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls by giving to the said Company Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to the sum of Eighty thousand dollars payable in the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned.

AND WHEREAS by an act of the Parliament of the late province of Canada passed in the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria entitled "An Act to "Consolidate the debt of the Town of Peter- "borough and to authorize the issue of "Debentures upon the security of town pro- "perty and for other purposes." It was enacted that for the purposes and in the manner therein particularly mentioned and set out and to the amount therein mentioned it should be lawful for the Commissioners therein named to issue Debentures under the Seal of the said Corporation to be signed by the Mayor countersigned by the Treasurer of the said Corporation and by the Secretary of the said Commissioners and that the Council of the said Town of Peterborough should annually upon the application of the said Commissioners raise upon the rateable property of the Town the interest and sinking fund requisite for the ultimate redemption of the said Debentures.

AND WHEREAS by an Act of the Legislature of the Province of Ontario passed in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy two entitled "An Act to "authorize the Cobourg Peterborough and "Marmora Railway and Mining Company to "extend its line of railway and to other "purposes." It was amongst other things enacted that it should be lawful for the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by a by law duly submitted to and approved by the Ratepayers of the Town in the manner required by law and notwithstanding the provisions of the Act hereinbefore recited, to grant aid by way of bonus to an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars to the said Company and to issue Debentures therefor which Debentures should be subject to the same provisions as those authorized under the said recited Act, and further that it should be lawful for the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by such By-law to impose such conditions upon which such aid should be granted as the said Corporation should deem expedient which conditions upon the acceptance by the said Company of the said so granted should be binding upon the said Company.

BE IT THEREFORE ENACTED by the Municipal Council of the Town of Peterborough—

1. That it shall and may be lawful for the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to aid and assist by way of bonus in the construction of the Cobourg, Peterborough, and Marmora Railway and Mining Company of an extension of their Railway northward to Chemong Lake Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls or some other point northward or north eastward from Bobcaygeon by giving to the said Company the Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to the extent of eighty thousand dollars and that for that purpose it shall and may be lawful to issue debentures of the said Corporation for the said sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars, such Debentures to be issued in the manner provided by the said recited Act of the twenty fourth Victoria and to be otherwise subject to the provisions of the said Act.

2 That the said Debentures shall be made payable in twenty years at furthest from the time or times they may be respectively issued as hereafter provided.

3 That the said Debentures shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from the date thereof which interest shall be payable half-yearly at the office of the Secretary of the said Commissioners of the Town of Peterborough.

4 That the necessary rate for payment of the interest and sinking fund for the ultimate liquidation of the said Debentures as required by the said recited Act or the twenty-fourth Victoria shall in additions to all other rates be raised levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the indebtedness created by the said Debentures.

5 That the said Debentures to the amount of Forty Thousand Dollars be issued by the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough and when required handed over by the said Corporation to the three Trustees hereinafter next named : that is to say Geo. A. Cox, William Hall and George Hilliard to be held by them to and upon and subject to the trusts and conditions hereinafter next named that is to say, to pay and hand the said Debentures over to the said Company or to whomever may be appointed by them to receive the same at the times and in the manner following : Monthly as the work on the said Railway from the southern shore of Rice Lake to Chemong Lake shall progress the said monthly payments to consist of such portion of the cost of the work here to be done on the said portion of the said road as will be in the same proportion of the whole cost of such work as the said Forty Thousand dollars shall bear to the whole cost of completing the said portion of such road provided that the said Trustees or the survivors or survivor of them shall themselves to the final and complete Judges as well of the cost of finally completing the said portion of the said road as of the Cost of the work done thereon from time to time and provided further that the said trustees shall not pay or hand over to the said Company any portion of the said Debentures until the said Company shall have given to the said Corporation security to the satisfaction of the said trustees on the survivors or survivor of them for the repayment of the amounts of all such debentures as may be handed over to the said Company under this clause of the By-law in the event of the said portion of the said road not being finally completed and in running order (including such a construction over Rice Lake as will be suitable for ordinary traffic until the completion of the permanent embankment over Rice Lake as hereinafter provided) on or before the first day of April one thousand eight hundred and seventy six provided that such debentures shall be paid and handed over to the said trustees in one month after the bona fide letting of the contract for the completion of the said portion of the said road.

6. That debentures to the further amount of the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars be issued and delivered to the said Company when the said Railway shall have been completed and in running order from the Town of Cobourg aforesaid to the Village of Bobcaygeon, provided that it be so completed and in running order by the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven ; and the remaining portion thereof, namely, to the amount of Twenty Thousand Dollars, when the said Railway shall have been completed and in running order from the Town of Cobourg aforesaid to the Village of Fenelon Falls in the County of Victoria, or to some other point northward or north-eastward of the said Village of Bobcaygeon and distant twelve miles therefrom provided it be so completed and in running order by the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy eight, provided further that the said two last-named respective portions of the said Debentures are only to be issued and delivered as aforesaid in event of the said respective portions being so completed and in running order by the times hereinbefore limited, and provided further that the completion of the Road above mentioned for the purpose of entitling the said Company to the said Debentures shall not include the embankment over Rice Lake hereinafter mentioned, but shall include such a construction over the said Lake as will be suitable for ordinary traffic over such Road until such permanent embankment shall have been completed as hereinafter mentioned. But it is nevertheless hereby further provided that the said two sums of Twenty Thousand Dollars respectively last above mentioned shall not become payable as provided by this By-Law and this By-Law as to the said sums shall become inoperative and void unless the said Company shall on or before the first of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five have entered into a binding agreement with the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, obliging the said Company in a penalty of the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars that the construction of the said proposed Railway northward from Chemong Lake shall be commenced, proceeded with and completed within the times and in the manner hereinbefore mentioned.

7. That the said bonus to to be given as aforesaid and in every portion thereof shall be and is hereby made subject to the conditions hereinafter next mentioned and subject to the said Company entering into good and sufficient contract with the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough before any of the said moneys shal become payable, to comply with the same that is to say :

(1.) That the said Railway Company shall run or cause to be run at least one train a day (a regular freight and passenger train) each way between Cobourg and the Northern Terminus for the time being of the said Railway.

(2.) That a solid embankment and Bridge shall be constructed over the Rice Lake within a period of five years from the passing of this By-Law according to the plans of Walter Shanly, Esquire, Civil Engineer.

(3.) That the said Company shall not nor will amalgamate with nor enter into any arrangements with any rival Company whereby a tariff shall be agreed to be mutually charged by both Companies or for the apportioning of the trade between them.

(4.) That a regular Passenger and Freight Station of the said Railway shall be maintained in the Town of Peterborough.

(5.) That the Mayor of the Town of Peterborough for the time being shall always be made a

Has been unseated and almost rendered ineligible for re-election

"Grip" Says:

The first Bill of the present session was introduced by Conservatives, being the member for West Peterborough.

A Nice Fall of Snow

On Tuesday enlivened our streets by bringing out a number of sleighs and cutters with the merry jingle of the bells accompanying them.

Fruit, Toys and Fancy Goods.

Mr. Lipsett has received a large assortment of Fruit, Toys, and Fancy Goods, of which he invites an inspection. Give him a call and see for yourselves.

The Chorister,

In another column we beg to call the attention of our readers to the Prospectus of the Chorister: a new Musical Monthly, published by C. H. Ashdown, of Amherstburg, Essex Co.

Northumberland Nomination.

Dr. Tupper was at the Nomination in East Northumberland at Brighton, on Tuesday. Mr. Cartwright was their also Messrs Biggar and Cockburn were respectively nominated.

West Peterborough

Mr. Scott has made his first speech at Toronto. It is just one of his orations during the late Campaign, cut down a little; therefore to republish it would only afford the people of this County an other opportunity of looking over his medley of figures.

LeHane's Motel, Lindsay.

Mr. T. S. LeHan has leased the large hotel opposite the grain Store Houses, and is now fitting it up for the comfort of guests. He has made his Emmamore Hotel, (now kept by Daly Bros.) a complete success; we believe he will do the same with his new house, and no doubt, many of his old patrons and friends in this Town and County will give him a call when visiting that city.

Ward No. 3.

There will be a meeting in Ward No. 3, in the basement of the B. C. Church, Murray Street, on Friday Evening, at 7:30 o'clock, p.m., to urge action in reference to the Liquor question which is now being agitated in Town The general programme should be published, so that the Ratepayers would understand what they are asked to consider. A printed programme would be better than indefinite speeches.

West Northumberland

The Election in West Northumberland passed off very quietly. The Town voted Kerr 300. Smith 300. The Townships gave Mr. Kerr a majority of 156. The World says that in three wards in the Township of Hamilton a Conservative assessor managed to make 60 new votes. That was carrying out the instructions of the Mail to see after Municipal matters, but it will teach the Reformers a lesson to see after the lists in time.

The Council

Has submitted a By-law to aid the Cobourg Railway Company, as the work on the Rice Lake Bridge progresses in the proportion of $40,000 to the cost of the whole work as it progresses; the Company to furnish the balance necessary and give a bond for the completion of the road, or pay back the $40,000. They have also memorialised the Government to legalize the By-Law granting aid to the Heron and Quebec Railway Company.

Accident

As Mr. Jas. McIntyre, of Dauro, was returning home from Lakefield, his horse became unruly and kicking over the dash board, struck his eldest son on the head, producing a dangerous fracture of the skull. Dr. Kincaid was sent for, and removed a portion of the fractured bone. The boy must have suffered great pain. He is improving.

$100. Reward

The Corporation of the Municipality of Orillia and Matchedash offer a reward of One Hundred Dollars, for the apprehension of Stephen Whitney, charged with murdering Alexander B. McDonald, at the Village of Washago, on Thursday, the 12th day of November, 1874. Description of the Accused. Medium size, Stooping Shoulders, aged about 50 years Greyish Hair, Small Grey Whiskers, Florid Complexion, Small Eyes. When last seen he wore a Blue-black Jacket, striped pants and long boots.

Amnesty.

Several papers are advocating an amnesty for Lepine and Riel, now that the law has been vindicated. The pity is that that there is any necessity for the exercise of Royal Clemency. The men who forced the Metis in rebellion ought to have settled the matter at once. They thought to rule the troubles of the unfortunate half breeds to keep themselves in power. Then when matters had gone to the extremes of rebellion and murder, they had not moral courage to deal with it. It was an elephant on their hands in the decline of their power, and the legacy was left to their successors. The matter requires wisdom, clemency and justice in the men who have to deal with it, wisdom to direct them so that their clemency and justice will be manifested in punishing the crime without undue severity.

St Andrew's Society

The St. Andrew's Society annual sermon will be preached in St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, on Sunday Nov. 29th, inst. at 6:30 p.m., by the Rev. J. M. Roger. The annual dinner will be on Monday evening 31st inst at Roddy's Hotel.

East Riding.

The Conservative Convention held at Norwood, on the 19th instant, nominated Peter Pearce Esq., to contest that riding in the approaching election while we cannot wish him success in the contest; we can wish him good health in the campaign, His selection was nothing more than an act of grace, well deserved by him, although some others may not relish being passed over.

The Old Burying Ground

The West Riding Agricultural Association have obtained a lease of the old burying ground in the Town of Peterborough for seven years, on conditions of fencing and improving it. This piece of ground should be in the control of the Town Council, and it is certain that eventually this will be the case It should also be improved as a place of resort during summer, and it should not be allowed to be used for any other purpose. Of course the Agricultural Show will do it no harm.

A Bird's-Eye View of Peterborough

Mr. C. C. Pease, agent for the publishers of a Bird's-eye view of this Town called on us last week to let us have a view of the picture. It is the work of a German artist, Mr. Brosius, and when lithographed will be a complete picture of every store, shop, dwelling, street, and public building in the town. Mr. Pease is now in town taking orders for it, and with a view also to make it perfect if any place seems to be left out, by the artist. Every citizen should take an interest in having it completed by ordering one or more copies of it. One at least for his own use and one or so for friends at a distance. The publishers have already completed, views of Port Hope, Cobourg, Belleville, St. Catherines, Brantford, and other towns, all of which have had a large local sale. They serve a two-fold purpose, that for home use, as a handsome picture, and as a means of bringing our town before those who may see the views at the residence of a friend or in some public place. We invite all our citizens who can afford it, to examine and order one. And as many of our merchants can well afford to take several copies, by doing so and letting a friend have one, they will be encouraging a work of art, and extending a knowledge of our thriving town.

SOUTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL.

The Municipal Council of the Township of South Monaghan met in the Council Chamber, Centreville, on Monday, 16th November, instant, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., pursuant to a call from the Reeve.

The members all present—the Reeve in the Chair.

Mr Rutherford presented By-Law No 189, being a By-Law for appointing a place or places in this Municipality for holding the nomination for Reeve and Councillors for the current year, and for holding the election in case a poll be demanded

By-law was read a first and second time, when it was moved that the election be held in the Council Chamber, Centreville—Blanks were filled, By-law read a third time and passed.

The Treasurer issued his order for the payment of several accounts,

Moved by Mr Rutherford, seconded by Mr Wood, that Mr Holden Crossley furnish John Waterman with goods to the amount fifty cents a week.—Carried.

Moved by R. Pue, seconded by J. Wood, that this Council do now adjourn till the 26th day of November, 1874, then to meet in the evening in front of lots 16 and 17 in the third concession, and inspect said crossway, and offer for sale a quantity of posts cut off the road allowance on said concession line.

Council adjourned.

The Notorious Townsend.

A MOST MURDEROUS CAREER.

We have received, says the Hamilton Times, the following account of the death and confession of a man purporting to be Townsend, who, some years ago, was a terror to the whole country. Our correspondent writes from Mazatlin, Mexico, under the date of October 22nd last past, and says: "An Englishman named Tom Adams, who for the past eight or ten years has owned a low tavern and dance house in this place, and gained a notoriety as a desperate character, died on the 15th inst, from the effects of a pistol shot wound received in a fight several months ago. Just previous to his death, when assured that his doom was inevitable, he sent for Capt. Verplant, the American commercial agent at this port, and intimated that he had some important disclosures to make, and desired they should be given publicity to in the Eastern States. Captain Verplant having consented to comply with his wish and take down whatever statements the dying man had to make in writing, he unburdened his conscience by confessing him self guilty of fourteen murders, all but one of which were committed in the United States and Canada. Adams commenced his narrative by stating that his proper name was George Worley, and that he was a native of Manchester, England. He commenced his career of crime by murdering the second mate of the American ship Californ, in the Liverpool docks, about the year 1854. After this deed he went to Canada and roved about through those Provinces for two years in pursuit of robbery. In the year 1855, at which time he was known by the name of Orton, he was engaged as a sailor on the lakes, and while lying in the American port, Oswego, he murdered a man, whom he understood to be a pointer, by throwing him over a bridge. He met his victim in a drinking saloon, whom he went to collect a bill of the proprietor, and followed him until the opportunity was favorable, when he struck him down with a sling shot, and disposed of the body in the way mentioned. After this Adams returned to Canada, and then assumed the name of Townsend. With two accomplices he commenced a campaign of robbery, and perpetrated four murders in the country west of Toronto, ending with the killing of a sheriff a few miles west of Niagara River. That country then became too warm for him, in consequence of large rewards offered for his arrest, and he escaped on board a schooner passing through the Welland Canal to the American port of Toledo. From that port he went to Chicago, and committed three murders in that place during the same summer. One of his victims was the captain of a vessel, whom he followed from the St Charles saloon; another was a German saloon keeper, whom he killed in his bed at night, in his place of business, which was situated near a railroad depot, and the third was some man unknown to him, whom he murdered after leaving a brothel. After these crimes he was arrested in Chicago, tried and convicted of a burglary, and sended a term of three years in the Illinois State Prison. On obtaining his release Adams went to New York, where he remained about one year, during which time he committed two murders, both of his victims being unknown to him. One was a countryman whom he enticed to the outskirts of the city, and obtained about $2,000 on his body. After leaving new York he was engaged in a series of robberies through the Southern States. He returned to Baltimore and murdered a prostitute in that city. Subsequently he committed a murder in Louisville and one in Memphis, but of the names of his victims he had no knowledge. Adams left New Orleans about the time of the breaking out of the war and went to Vera Cruz. From thence he went to the City of Mexico, and came to Mazatlin about ten years ago. Since his sojourn here he was widely known and generally feared, his place being one of the most notorious rendezvous of desperate character on the coast. He finally met his fate at the hands of a Spanish Gambler named Gonzales, in a drunken quarrel over a throw of dice. He leaves between $15,000 and $18'000 in cash cash or its equivalent as the result of his career of atrocious crime, which he has willed to a sister, supposed to be his only living relative, who resides at Sheffield England. The legatee needs to be devoid of any superstitious scruples to receive and enjoy such a such a blood clotted legacy.

Accident on the Grand Trunk.

FIREMAN SCALDED TO DEATH

(By Telegraph to the Globe.)

BELLVILLE, Nov. 24.—The Grand Trunk Railway express train coming from Montreal on Saturday night ran off the track at the west switch, Sidney, five miles west of Belleville The switch, which should have been closed when the train come up was, it is said, was left open by the operator, E J. Corson, who also acts as switchman. The engine and four cars got off the track, two of the cars and the engine being smashed to pieces. The only persons injured were the engine-driver and fireman the latter being so severly scalded that he died early this morning. His name is W. Jones. Carson, the operator at Sidney is under arrest, and there is to be an investigation to-day at Belville.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from a few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now, its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H Cole, of Iona, writes, "please forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out; it can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Ulverton, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for Send us a further supply without delay. Lemorne, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes,—"Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Plopr., N. Y., and

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

The CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparation. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phthisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superceeding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious choile, cholera infantum dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

PROSTATION, resulting from the effects of the intense heat of the summer months, is the exposing cause of so many of the diseases peculiar to hot weather. The stomach partaking of the loss of vitality pervading the whole system, is unable to complete digestion the food passing undissolved through the bowels, irritates the lining membrane, and Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, and when prevailing Asiatic Cholera, may be excited. Attention to diet, moderate exercise, bathing, and regular habits must be observed, To maintain the vital forces and prevent lassitude and exhaustion. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is unquestionably reliable, as it invigorates the digestive organs, and supplies material for generating nerve force.

You Know You Do.

When some one's soup comes up the walk,
Your cheeks take on a redder tone,
And then ye no others here this knock,
You know it well—you know you do!

And though it may be very wrong,
When ye is quite ignored for you,
You sing for him your prettiest song,
You cunning thing—you know you do!

And when he talks of other girls,
Of hateful Kate, and Jennie, too,
You fling at him your auburn curls,
You jealous thing—you know you do!

He blushes deep and looks afraid
To let them left along with you,
But your eyes tell there ne'er was maid
But thrill'd he turned—you know you do!

You peep at Some-one 'neath your curls,
Until with love you burn him through,
And make him hold all other girls—
In love for you—you know you do!

And when his arm steals round ye'r chair,
Your give a sp-ech-ed sqweam or two,
As if you didn't want it there,
But O, you do—you know you do!

You let him kiss your blushing cheeks;
Remember your lips meet his lips, too,
Your tongue tries, silly thing, to speak,
Your cheeks flit—you know you do!

His wish to make a wife of you,
With happy heart you answer yes.
You nothing flirt—you know you do.

Taken in Here.

Among the excitements often held out for working men to go into the public house, is one which assures them that such a paper is taken in here." It so happened, some time back, there was one published, entitled "The Working Man," and of course every publican was under the necessity of having a copy in his tap room or bar parlour, so that his customers might have the latest intelligence of their trades, and movements. So on a conspicuous part of the window in a certain town, we noticed, one day—displayed as an inducement for the working man to enter, the inviting announcement, in bright and glowing colors, "The Working Man taken in here." Yes, we thought, that's true in more ways than one, and would say to you my friend :—

1 If you are asked to step into a public house or beershop to have a look at the paper, remember it is only a dodge, for it means "taken in here."

2 Should they tell you there is a nice snug corner in the tap-room for a chat, say, "Yes, but it is provided to prove that you pay be "taken in here."

3 When the landlady puts on one of her best smiles as she sees you coming near the door, it means that she is throwing a sprat to catch a flat, for you will be "taken in here."

4 When the Landlord tells you that you are a "brick," and he is proud of having such a customer say, 'It is only another version of "taken in here."

5 When you hear a man say he has so little comfort at home that he goes to the public house to find it' to be sure he will discover that he is "taken in here."

6 If you are told that when a man has worked hard all day, he needs enjoyment, and should seek it in a public house rather than in his home, remember the warning "taken in here."

7 If they try to persuade you to go to a public house, to talk about working men's rights, tell them it is there men lose their rights by being gulled and "taken in here."

8 If you want to be pure in thought, and holy in life, don't think of making companions in a tap room, for as sure as you do so you will be "taken in here."

9 If you would like to have a good wife or a good husband, and a happy home, don't go courting in a tap-room, or you will find to your sorrow that you are "taken in here."

10 When you see a man, who has spent his last penny, turned out of a public-house, to be picked up by the police, does it not plainly teach you that he has been "taken in here."

11 If you doubt the truth of these remarks, ask any of the best customers of the publican, and they will confess that many a time they have acknowledged and felt that they are "taken in here."

12. If, when on a dying bed, you wish to have a good hope of going to heaven, be assured that the public-house never has been nor ever will be the place to prepare you for such a state, for millions of ruined souls declare that they have been "taken in here."

Lord Palmerston.

A London, England, newspaper of a recent date thus sketches the character of the late Lord Palmerston—an Irish peer—for many years Chief Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and for some time First Minister of the Crown. Palmerston never had the slightest pretensions to be master of home policy; his instincts being too aristocratic to give him any sympathy with the popular spirit which is slowly killing the Whig element of British Liberalism. But he filled a great position as Foreign Minister, and he upheld with no unworthy hand those high traditions of British honor and influence which had been guarded by Canning, Pitt and Ghatham. If he had not the genius of these men, he had their masterful, and often their wilful spirit. Never had we a Minister more thoroughly British both in strength and in weakness. Abroad he was held to be the very incarnation of British pride, prejudice, and courage; and if he differed materially from his great predecessors, it was in the almost boyish pugnacity of his nature, a pugnacity which seemed to give him a positive relish for a diplomatic combat with such a swordsman as Guizot. His Irish blood revelled itself in the eagerness with which he flung himself into the fray, in the good-humoured ferocity with which he attacked his opponents and in their frankness with which he expressed his disgust or anger when he found himself beaten. He carried to the Foreign Office much of the temper which his countrymen brought to Donnybrook Fair, and the results were somewhat similar. While he directed the foreign policy, Great Britain was the most quarrelsome State in the whole world. Palmerston ever assumed that the most powerful of British arguments was a British fleet, and, in these meeker days, when the cheek is turned to the smiter, it is amusing to see how often he threatened to declare war against any power that did not happen to agree with him. He was always the warlike member of the Cabinet. He would have sent a fleet to the Spanish Ports in 1848 to demand an apology for Narvaez's insulting dismissal of the British Minister, Sir Henry Bulwer, after the negotiation of the Spanish Marriages. He would, even in his irresolute old age, have declared war against Prussia and Austria in order to defend Denmark, if France had not refused to join Great Britain. Had he lived long enough to conduct the Alabama negotiations, and had he continued to wield an immense an influence over the minds of his countrymen as he exercised at the time of his death, there can scarcely be a doubt, not only that the Treaty of Washington would never have been framed, but that the collision of the two countries would not have ended as it did. Palmerston's intellect was eminently of that direct, simple and combative order which disdains subtleties, and chooses the nearest way to its end, even when that way lies through a field of battle. Hence he was more feared and hated by foreign States than any other British minister of our time.

EXPRESS ROBBERY.

For some time past, reports of robberies in various parts of the province have been made, showing that there is a band of daring desperadoes in the country, who can both plan and execute a robbery with the utmost coolness. In nearly every case there is reason to suspect that these lawless characters visit us from across the line, and last night some of these Yankee theives, as is suspected, committed a bold express robbery, before which the others have been recently reported in these columns pale.

Last evening the Great Western train due to arrive in this city at 7 p.m., left Hamilton at 5 p.m. as usual. Shortly after starting from Mimico; the express messenger who was sitting with the baggageman in the express car, was startled by the sudden appearance of five stalwart men, wearing masks and white smock blouses. Before they offer any resistance, they were overpowered and their hands forced behind their backs and securely handcuffed. It was not the work of a second, and almost before the two men could raise a cry, gags were thrust into their mouths and they were thrown into one corner of the car helpless and silent. One of the robbers then approached the express messenger and took his keys from his pockets and opened the boxes and despatch cases in his charge. The contents were quickly appropriated, and when the train stopped at Queen's wharf, the deed had been accomplished and the men slipped out of the cars and fled in the darkness. It was not until the arrival of the train at the depot that the state of affairs was discovered. Then information was given to the police, who took steps to pursue the thieves.

The exact amount of the robbery is not yet known, but Mr. Irwin, Manager of the American Express Company in this city has reason to believe that the loss will amount, he believes, between thirty and forty thousand dollars. The telegraph wires have been brought into requisition, but as no description of the men can be given, so carefully were they disguised, the chances are that they will succeed in making good their escape with their rich haul.

A FIENDISH REVENGE.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH BY A DISCHARGED DOMESTIC.

(From the Paducan Kentuckian.)

Some weeks ago a woman calling herself Bridget Maloney, applied to Dr. Jackson, of Columbus, Ky., for the place of cook. Employment was given her, and for a while she gave satisfaction. A few days ago the Doctor noticed some irregularities in her life and notified her that she must look out for another home. This appeared to infuriate her beyond control; the pent-up devil in her nature burst forth in a fury of passion that sent the Doctor scampering for the police and the family for an asylum of safety. When he returned Bridget had departed leaving his mirrors and furniture a wreck. It appears, that, from a mistaken kindness, she was not prosecuted, but allowed to depart unmolested. From his residence she went to the hotel or boarding house kept by an estimable German Catholic namey Switzher, near the Mississippi and Ohio Railroad. She easily imposed herself upon the good nature of this lady, and was permitted to stop with her, paying her board in work. She behaved badly again and Mrs. Switzher discharged her. Instead of going off, however, she went up into Mrs. Switzher's room (it was immediately after breakfast) and sent for this lady from the dining room. When she got into her presence she commenced to abuse her in a frightful manner. Mrs Switzher tried to quiet her, and expressed sympathy for her. Bridget told her she had better sympathize with herself, and made at her. Mrs. Switzher rushed down stairs, leaving her three little children, consisting of a little boy four years old, two daughters aged respectively, six and ten, in the room. The oldest says that the two children were in bed with the mosquito bar fastened down around it, and Bridget deliberately took the lamp and saturated the bed and children with coal oil and fired it.

Before assistance could reach them the passage was a solid sheet of flame, and the two children were burned with the house and most of the furniture. The fiend is in prison, and the poor mother is nearly distracted with grief at her terrible loss.

THE LEPINE VERDICT.

The trial of Ambrose Lepine for the murder of Thomas Scott has resulted in a conviction. We may fairly congratulate the people of Ontario and the people of Manitoba, not because the vulgar thirst for revenge has been satisfied, but because the crying demands of justice have been answered. It is an omen of promise for the North west that, with a mixed jury, and in a society where the passions of race and religion are morbidly active, twelve men have dared to do their duty. In Quebec the verdict will not be favorably received, from motives which perhaps honest, but certainly mistaken. If our French fellow-citizens would tighten the reins of passion, and pause for reflection, they would hardly complain because the juror's oath has overcome the prejudices of nationality and religion. The fact that there were men of French origin on the jury, in that influence was powerless to warp them from the line of duty, is a proudet triumph for the race than the proclamation of an amnesty. Of the guilt of Lepine there was no doubt. The only question was as to the measure and the legal significance of it. So far from thinking with the Government organ that he was a tool in the matter, we believe him to be have been one of the chief, if not the chief of the actors. Riel's apologists have always defended him by casting the blame upon Lepine and his court-martial. However this may be, one thing is certain, Lepine presided at the death, and dropped the handkerchief as a signal for the volley which sounded but did not kill the unfortunate Scott. We do not recall these facts with any revengeful view. The jury have recommended Lepine to mercy; even if we demurred to the recommendation, and we do not, their forthright's patient attention to the evidence, and their honest verdict, could of themselves be decisive in its favor. We want no executions at this distance from the event. The punishment must be exemplary; but it may stop short of the death penalty.

WE CLAIM A FOR OUR PRECIOUS VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorad Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affection, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glow and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a
HAIR DRESSING,
nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends; and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Headaches, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disordered action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and removing effect on the digestive apparatus.

County of Peterborough.
GENTLEMEN:—It is now some four years since addressed you through the columns of the paper, and I now adopt the same method, and as there has been many changes since that time both political and otherwise and as most of you are aware that I sold out my business in Norwood to Mr. Ackerman two months ago, and my agreement with him prevents me from starting in the Village or Township; therefore I must return you my most sincere thanks for the liberal support you have accorded to me for these last 12 years. And at the same time I beg to inform you that having engaged a Large and Commodious
Shop at Wigmore's Corner,
Where I intend to carry on the
HARNESS BUSINESS
In all its branches, and from my long experience in the trade, I flatter myself that I can give you a better article in my line, stock and workmanship considered than you can get elsewhere. My motto will be "Quick sales and small profits."
I also propose having apart one day in the week, viz. Saturday, when all small jobbing will be done free of charge.
I hope to see all my old customers, and as many new ones as may feel disposed to patronize me, feeling assured that they will save money by unrolling a visit further, as I intend to undersell all in the trade.
Repairing done with neatness and dispatch.
Collars made to suit any Horse in the country. Saddle padded to the satisfaction of all.
P. S.—As I have been to a good deal of expense in the way of building, all parties indebted to me will please call and settle without further notice.

LOVE AND LABOR

We die no: all; for our deeds remain
To crown with honor or mar with shame
Through endless sequence of years to come,
Our lips shall speak when our lips are dumb.

What though we perish unknown to fame,
Our tomb forgotten, and high our name,
Stern weight is vested in heaven or earth,
And nothing dies to which He gives birth.

Though life be joyous and death be cold,
And pleasures pall as the world grows old,
Yet God has granted our hearts relief,
For Love and Labor can cure all grief.

Love sheds a light on the gloomy way,
And Labor hurries the weary day,
Though death be fearful and life be hard,
Yet Love and Labor shall win reward.

If Love can dry up a single tear,
If life-long Labor avail to cheer
A single web from before the troubled,
Then Love and Labor have won their day.

What though we sorrow, we can comfort gain;
What if we die, on the truth be plain:
Shall Hatred others and grave a fire.

We are not worthy to work the whole;
We have no strength which may save a soul;
Enough for us if our life begin
Successful struggle with grief and sin.

Labor is mortal and fades away,
But Love shall triumph in perfect day;
Labor may whither in earth the seed,
But Love lives over, for Love is God.

SKETCHES OF TYNESIDE INDUSTRIES.

(From the Tyneside Examiner.)

Situate about a couple of hundred yards westward of Messrs Palmer's works, are the extensive lead works of Messrs Foster, Blackett, and Wilson. The entire area of land leased by the company is about 12 acres, though little over one third of that area is occupied by the works. Like the majority of the Tyne side manufactories, these works have a convenient landing ships keels, &c. The lead is brought to the works in bars or pigs, conveyed in keels and barges from ships down the river, which bring it chiefly from Spain, but considerable quantities are brought from London, Swaledale, Arkendale, and the Derwent mines. When a cargo of lead arrives in the Tyne arrangements are made for its purchase, but no settlement as to price is made till the quality of the bars is tested. If the cargo is made up of lead from different mines, each bar is marked with the name of the mine from which it came, and the number of bars from each mine is also marked on each bar. In discharging the ship into the lighters, and in all the subsequent shiftings, each lot is carefully kept by itself. On arriving at the works it is hoisted from the wherries by a steam crane stationed on the wharf, placed on bogies, and drawn up an inclined railway by a powerful steam engine. It is then taken away to the neighbourhood of the calcining furnaces, where it is weighed and stacked, but as each bar is weighed a small piece of about an ounce in weight is cut out for the purpose of being assayed or tested to ascertain what percentage of silver there is in a ton of the lead. This is ascertained by first melting all the pieces—and these frequently number three and four thousand—into one bar, which is cut lengthways into two pieces, each piece bearing the name and number corresponding with the marks on the bars from the pieces of which the bar was made. One half of this bar is sent to a public assay office, the other is retained in the works for testing. The assaying of lead is a highly interesting process: and required to be performed with much nicety, as the market value of the lead depends principally upon the percentage of silver it contains. The assay office at Mr. Foster, Blackett, and Wilson's works is fitted up with everything necessary to perform the operation in the most exact manner possible. The testing process is carried on as follows:—The assayer cuts off one ounce of lead from the half-bar already mentioned as having been retained in the works; this is weighed with great exactness, and placed in a small vessel made of bone ash, called a cupel, and placed in the assaying furnace, where it is subjected to such a heat as melts the bars without entirely melting the silver. A current of air is kept passing over the metal, which oxidises the lead and carries it off in fumes, leaving the silver in the bottom of the cupel. This silver is carefully weighed in beautiful scales, so finely balanced that they will weigh from one grain to the one-thousandth part of a grain. The half of the bar sent to the public assay office—Mr. Pattison's, of Newcastle—is assayed in the same manner. If the silver extracted by both assayists shows an equal percentage, the price of the silver is at once agreed upon, but should there be a material difference, a second trial is made, when, should there be still a considerable difference, a third party is called in to decide, and all cases the silver is valued according to the market value of silver on the day on which the price is settled.

After the bars are weighed and stacked, as already described, they are put in quantities of about fifteen tons at a time in calcining furnaces, which consist of large cast-iron pots, about 12 feet long by 6 feet broad. As the lead melts a scum collects on the surface. A little lime is thrown into it, which hardens this crust, and enables it to be taken off with greater case. When the lead is sufficiently purified from dust and slag it is run off into pigs, and handed over to the desilverisers. There are six or eight of these calcining furnaces. One man works two at a time, except when tapping, when each helps the other. The desilvering department is an exceedingly interesting one, and well repays a visit. There are several methods of extracting the silver, but that process adopted at the "Tyne" works is known as "Pattinson's process," of which the following is a description:—

Pattinson's Process.—Ten or twelve cast-iron pots, each capable of containing about ten tons of melted lead, are arranged in a row, set in brickwork, and each provided with a separate fireplace underneath. The required quantity of lead is introduced into the middle pot, melted, and thoroughly skimmed, so that its surface may be perfectly clear. The fire is withdrawn, the damper put down, and the ash pit door closed. The lead is thus allowed to cool very slowly, care being taken to break off and mix with the liquid mass, from time to time, any portion that may congeal on the sides of the pot. When the temperature descends to a certain degree, small solid crystals begin to form, chiefly on the surface, which, if left undisturbed, would cohere into a solid crust. The whole mass of metal is continually stirred with an iron rod (which the workmen term a "slice"), and the crystals thereby sink to the bottom of the pot and consequently in considerable quantity. A large perforated ladle is now introduced, and after being immersed in the crystallising mass of lead, a skim connected with it crab is attached to the handle. By working the crab the handle is brought downwards, and forwards on to a crane, which revolves round a conical pillar. After allowing the crystals to thoroughly drain off the liquid lead, they are transferred to the next pot on the right hand. When about four-fifths of the metal has thus been removed in crystals, the concentrated argentiferous alloy is ladled out into the next pot on the left hand, and the empty pot is charged with a fresh portion of lead, which is subject to a similar treatment. When the pots to the right and to the left have in this manner received a sufficient quantity either of poor or argentiferous lead, it is subject to a similar operation; the concentrated argentiferous portion being passed off continually to the next pot on the left, whilst the crystalline or poorer portion is handed over to the next pot on the right-hand side. The last pot to the left thus at length becomes filled with lead, which may contain 400 ounces of silver to the ton; the lead which accumulates in the last pot on the right-hand side does not contain more than half an ounce of silver in the ton. This poor lead is much improved in quality by the operation which it has undergone, and is at once cast into pigs for the market, or for the manufacture of sheet, pipe, and red and white lead. The ladles used in this process are broad and shallow, each capable of holding five cwts. of drained crystals. The dross contains from 80 to 85 per cent of lead. This is taken to the reducing furnace, a large furnace 18 feet long, built of fire-brick, and strongly bound together with iron. This furnace has a slightly sloping bottom, which enables the lead, as it melts, to run to one end, where it is tapped off. The dross from this furnace still contains a percentage of lead, which is extracted in a cupola, the useless particles evaporating in fumes.

Refining and Cupellation.—The rich argentiferous lead from Pattison's process is now subjected to refining and cupellation. The process is founded on the circumstance that lead, if exposed at a high temperature to a current of air, absorbs oxygen rapidly and is converted into a fusible oxide, while silver does not become oxidised, but is left behind in the metallic state. The litharge or oxide melts at a high temperature, and flows off the convex surface of the metal, thus continually exposing a fresh surface of lead to the action of the air. The cupellation is performed in a low-crowned reverberatory furnace. The fire-place is large compared with the body of the furnace, which is short. The space between the fire-bridge wall and the flue wall is entirely open from front and back, and in these walls are scarcely fixed two wrought iron bars, upon which rests an oval ring, termed a "compass ring," also of wrought iron made equal and similar to each other, each having two projecting pieces to serve as supports. The upper surface is covered with brick-work, plastered over with fire-clay which entirely surrounds its inner edge, except at the front end, where an opening is left. At the back of the furnace is an opening through which passes a blast pipe. This opening is an a plate of cast-iron, which covers the whole of the upper half of the back. At the front is a similar piece of cast-iron, having a fire door, and a door contiguous to the breast of the test, where the molten litharge flows over; and below is a cross-bar of weight-iron, which serves as a fulcrum for tools. The test consists of a frame of wrought-iron filled with bone ash. This frame is an elliptical wrought-iron ring, having a bottom formed of four transverse bars of the same kind of iron, placed parallell to, and at equal distances from each other; the ends of these bars are turned up at right angles and rivetted to the ring. There are also two bars of wrought iron, called strap bars, rivetted on the first transverse bar and on the ring. The filling material is composed of bone ash, moistened with water containing pearl ash. This mixture is rammed solidly into the test frame, by means of an iron hammer. A cavity is then scooped out the required shape and depth by means of large knives. The portion between the flat end of the cavity in the test, and the ring at the end, is about ten inches; this part is called the breast of the test. A channel about two inches wide and one-eighth deep, is made to allow the molten litharge to pass over into an iron pot placed to receive it. In working, this channel becomes too deep on account of corrosion, and must then be stopped by a plug of tempered bone ash. A second channel is then made, which also becomes too deep in a like manner; then a third is made, and when this becomes too deep, the test itself is no longer serviceable, or it will be filled with silver which must be left to solidify. When sufficiently cold, the test is removed and the silver detached.

Mode of Conducting the Process.—A new thoroughly dried test having been fixed in its place in the furnace, the fire is lighted, and gradually heated to bright redness—say to a temperature above the melting point of litharge, but considerably below that of silver. The lead is now introduced into a molten state into the cavity of the test, a blast of air is made to play over the surface of the melted metal. Oxidation proceeds regularly and the molten litharge on the surface of the lead is blown towards the breast through a channel, previously cut, and the dross into an iron pot placed to receive it. A constant supply of fresh lead is added to replace that which is oxidised. As soon as the litharge pot is full it is wheeled away and another is substituted, and so on in succession. When the litharge, in a pot, is solidified, it is turned out in a cake, and as it cools it swells up, exfoliates, and falls to pieces. The process is thus carried on until the lead in the test has become enriched, say from 400 ounces to 3,000 ounces per ton, when it is then tapped out from the pot by drilling a hole in the bottom of the test, and cautiously so. After tapping, the hole is filled up with the same material as the test and operations continue as described above. The concentrated lead is refined on another fresh test. Towards the completion of the process, the fire is strongly urged, and the air over no account allowed to solidify until every trace of lead has been removed by oxidation. After the surface has become more or less set, it is suddenly thrown up at various points, forming little volcano-like craters some several inches in height, through which oxygen escapes with violence. To prevent loss of silver by this spirting, the surface is, from time to time, pricked to allow the gas to escape quietly. When sufficiently cool, the test with its cake of silver weighing from 5,000 to 5,500 ozs. is taken out, the cake detached, cleaned, and sent to market. The market for silver being the London bullion brokers, and the price at which it is sold is generally a little over 5s. per ounce.

Manufacture of White Lead.—White lead is made of what is called first fusion lead, and is the purest made from the Patterson process. The purity of the lead is the parity of the bar lead. The value of the white lead increased. The principle part of its manufacture is performed by women and girls; the men being chiefly employed on the fires grinding and melting the lead. The first part of the process is the melting of the bars or pigs which have been run through the fire from the desilvering house. When melted it is ladled out into thin moulds about fifteen inches long and four broad, or into circular forms, about [illegible] inches diameter. The pieces from the former moulds are called wickers, and the latter stars. This is done by women called smeehors. These wickers and stars are arranged in pots containing about a dozen each, placed on bogies and taken to the stack, which is a building or chamber, 24 feet long, 12 feet broad, and thirty feet high. The floor of this stack is covered with tanner's bark to the depth of 15 inches. On the top of the bark is arranged a number of earthenware pots, about four inches in diameter and about the same depth, these are packed closely together and filled with acetic acid or vinegar. The bundles of wickers are then packed closely together on the top of these pots. At each side, and at intervals along the area of the stove are rows of larger pots which reach from the tanner's bark to the top of the wickers; these large pots are partly filled with vinegar, the upper portion being filled with stars, which rest on a large to keep them from being immersed in the vinegar. The whole is now covered with boards, the ends of which rest on the larger pots and prevents them from pressing upon the lead, another layer of tanner's bark is introduced, then a layer of pots and vinegar then the wickers and the stars and the boards. These layers are repeated till the stack is built up. The lead remains in the stack for three months, during which time the following chemical changes have taken place. The warmth given out during the putrefaction of the tan volatilizes the vinegar, and under the united influence of the air and acid fumes, plumbic oxide is formed upon the surface of the lead, this oxide re acts upon the acetic acid which rises in vapour from the vinegar, and a basic plumbic acetic is thus formed. The appearance of a stack on being opened is so different from what it was three months previously as to be quite unrecognizable, instead of the clear shining wickers of lead each wicker and star is transmogrified into something the nearest approximations to which, in appearance, is the flakes of whiting that come off a frequently-whitewashed wall. There are twenty-two stacks in one range, and the part of the works in which they are erected is 200 yards long by about fifty yards broad. Before the introduction of tanner's bark the material used for raising the heat was horse manure, but in consequence of the presence of certain gases in the manure the lead produced by it was full impurities, and the tanner's bark is now all but universally employed. The bark used at the Tyne works is brought principally from London in ships. It may be mentioned that the "stacks" are built by women, who do the work by the piece,

PETERBOROUGH, DEC. 3, 1874.

THE LOCAL LEGISLATURE.

This is expected to be a short session, perhaps will be through before the Christmas holidays. The government appears confident of return their to their places again; and hence, they are not anxious to crowd business on the House that would require longer time for consideration. They therefore cannot be accused of forcing measures on the country, just on their retirement to meet the Electors.

Mr. McMcKellar's charges against Mr Rykert for taking money for his Parliamentary influence has been referred to a Committee of three members from the government side of the House, and two from the Conservative side. The fact of his receiving money has been proved, but he says it was for his "Legal (?) Services" The legal services of a member at Parliament for Parliamentary influence is hardly the square thing, but he may have had precedent for it. If so, more is the pity I is ferreting out these things, other members are coming in for their share of the blame.

Mr. Mowat is about to introduce the Ballot into Municipal Elections.

He is also extending the power to Municipalities, to invest the Municipal Loan Fund Surplus, as may be considered best by the Municipality.

Mr. Scott has not not yet secured his representation of minorities, nor is it likely to become Law this Session.

A Bill has been introduced to annex the Village of Lakefield to the West Riding, but it is not yet known whether if so annexed the vote would be in that Riding this year.

It is not yet known whether the back country will remain as it is, but in all probability it will.

Popular Lectures.

We understand arrangements are in progress for securing the services of well-known public men to lecture in our community, on their special subjects to which they have devoted their attention, and which have been received with favour already by the public. Some of the lecturers we refer to are men of eminence whose visit to our town will mark a new era in social and literary history. We shall supply fuller particulars, when the time of each lecture is near.. In the meantime we are authorized to state that our entertaining author "Grip" has promised to give one of his instructive and pleasing entertainments, on an early evening in January. Judging from the great favour into which he has been received in other places, we would advise all our reader to embrace the opportunity that will soon offer of seeing the sketches and hearing the comments of our Canadian Punch, on public men and measures.

Bazaar.

The Bazaar under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Association, in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist Church, on Wednesday and Thursday last was very successful. The ladies spared no pains or expense in getting up costly and useful articles, and the sale realized, after paying all expenses in connection with the affair, over $680. This speaks favorably for the enterprise of the ladies in assisting the Building Committee to supply funds for the Church.

Heavy Pork.

Mr. John Sullivan, of Otonabee, sold three dressed hogs yesterday, to Mr. W. Beal, of this town, which weighed 1466 lbs. nett. One weighed 634 lbs., another 467, and a third 365 lbs., the total being 1466 pounds. Who can beat this in the peak line? The price received was $6.50 per cwt., or $95.82 for the three. Mr. Sullivan sold a hog three years ago that weighed 720 pounds. The same year he got $160 for two hogs. These are the largest porkers we have heard of.

ST. ANDREW'S FESTIVAL

The Anniversary of St. Andrew's Day, or rather of Scotia's Patron Saint, was duly celebrated this year by a sumptuous dinner at the Stewart House. Mr Roddy, the excellent caterer got it up in splendid style There sat down between fifty and sixty Scotchmen, sons of Scotchmen and their friends.

The President, A. Moir, Esq., ably filled the chair. On his right were Geo. Barlee, Esq., President of the St. George's Society, Geo A. Cox, Esq., Mayor, J Bertram, Esq., M.P., and John Moloney, Esq., as a representative Irishman. On his left sat Sheriff Hall, Dr Kincaid, and R. W. Smythe, Esq., of the Bank of Commerce.

John Elder, Esq., ably filled the First-Vice Chair, and D. McGregor the Second Vice Chair.

The most ample justice having been done to the feast of fat things as well and abundantly provided, not forgetting the haggis, which was deservedly praised, the President solicited all to fill their glasses.

The first toast was the "Queen," which the President gave in fitting terms. Every one, he said, admired and loved her, and Scotch men were ever ready to do her honor as the Queen of England and as the Scotchman's Queen; she was decservedly honored, and the nobility of her life was such as to make her name almost a household word in every country. The toast was enthusiastically received.

The National Anthem was then sung by all, Mr. Gallelly leading.

The President then read letters of apology for not being present from Rev. Maclennan, and John Carnegie, Esq., and from Jas. F. Dennistoun, Esq.

He then gave the "Prince and Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," which was also duly honored.

The President also gave "The Governor General." All knew that he is an Irishman, and a pretty good Irishman too. Since his coming amongst us he has taken every opportunity to make himself acquainted with the country, and the working of the country. He has done his part to make the country known at home where his name will ensure the attention of the best men. He wondered that we should get several Irish Governor-Generals and goods too. But so long as we got Scotch Prime Ministers, Scotchmen would allow them to have an Irish Governor,

This toast was also duly honored, and then follows, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Next in order was the Army and Navy and the Volunteers of Canada.

The Army and Navy of England, he said, have never been used as the instruments of wrong, but often for righting wrongs and securing justice. The Volunteers might reasonably be called the Army of Canada, and not far behind the Army and Navy of Great Britain, as they have shown in many places in defence of our country and of its rights; and he knew all would heartily join in this toast, as all were convinced that they were ready again to defend our homes and principles and to maintain them at the cost of their lives.

Dr. Kincaid was called to respond. He expressed regret that some one better qualified to do this toast justice had not been selected The toast, he was glad to see, was well received, and he was proud it was so. He felt his position as the only representative of the Volunteers present—and although not an old man, he was the oldest one there and would be failing in duty if he did not do something in their honor. At a former period he had spoken against the then state of things, and was then taken to task for what he had said He was accused of saying what he did to suit the Clubs, but he did not do so often to please any one. He was hissed by one who may not perhaps need a pill from him soon. He was afterwards told he had spoken the truth, but not at a fit time. He referred to the successors of Sir George Cartier, who not long after said he was not favorable to the then state of the volunteer force, and he, Dr. K., was pleased to find that the volunteers are being placed on better footing. They were being remodelled by a British officer who is being placed over them to remodel the whole system, and he trusted he would do so with a view to building up a volunteer force worthy the nation of the Dominion, and calculated to do honor to it. Col. Fletcher had reported in favor of the "West Point" system, but he (Dr. K.) had two years knowledge of it and he must condemn it because based on political influence. It was a bad policy to have politics in the system, and he instanced the dismissal of General Maclellan (as a part of that policy) who was hounded down because a Democrat—General Grant—was instanced as a child of fortune. At the head of 275,000 already equipped to put down a paltry rebellion, and led by General Lee with an insignificant army. The rebellion was put down, but by General Terry, who struck the blow that put an end to the whole thing.

The Doctor joccosely referred to the matter of promotion as depending largely on the whiskey bottle, and he concluded by recommending the proper remodelling of our volunteer force, so as to secure the best men for the high and honorable position in the army and volunteers. Mr. Cool Burgess was then introduced by the President as a descendant of a Scotchman, and a Canadian not far from Eldon in Victoria County. He was received with cheers.

"The day and a' wha honor it," was given by the President coupled with name of Mr. Bertram, He said:—

Mr. Vice-President and Gentlemen.—

I have now very briefly to propose the next toast upon the programme which is "They Day and a' wha honor it." The Association connected with the celebration of St. Andrew's day, are many, and varied in their character. To many persons who have not had the good fortune, I may say, of having been born in Scotland, it may appear somewhat strange that these Scotch men should, as a rule, be so enthusiastic in honoring St. Andrew's day. If it were possible for such person to enter for a moment into the hearts of these, Scotchmen who, living as they are beyond the borders of the old Motherland, and who, to-night, are gathered together in merryland when Scotchmen are to be found, the wonder would as quickly disappear.

We honor the day, not merely for the sake of St. Andrew who may have been a very good fisherman, and who may, also, have been a better apostle; but we honor it as a memorial of this; we honor it because of those great historical traditions that have made Scotland famous, that have helped not only to mould the destinies of this Empire, but the destinies of other Empires as well. Every nation has a legacy to leave to its expatriated sons in foreign lands, and it is the richness of the legacy Scotch men have been left which makes them prize it so highly. Gather round the Scotchman on such a night as this brings to their minds many reminiscences of the old land they have left. They think of her lakes, and glens, her swift and lovely streams, her high and lofty hills, her wild and savage mountains; they think of her grassy knowle the milk white lambs, and far all which is fairer. Her statesmen, men of literature, and of science, classic first and foremost in the ranks and have contributed largely to the advancement of the age in which we live.

The "Land o' Cakes" is continually sending forth her sons and her daughters to all parts of the world, and many of them giving a good account of themselves and some of her poorest sons rising from her poorest ranks to very high and honorable positions. We require to go no further than our own Dominion for evident proof of this. But a word of the Land o' Cakes itself, with its beautiful landscape views, its rugged shores, its hills and its dells, its mountains and its glens, its lochs and its rivers, and bonnie Burns', with its heather when in full bloom giving a fragrance to the whole land, let us ever cherish and ever remember the Land o' Cakes.

The toast which I have the honor to propose is the Land o'Cakes.

Song; "Scotland Yet," by Mr. Gallelly.

When Mr. Telford, the Bard of the Society, read his annual address, which we regret we did not obtain for this week's issue.

Sheriff Hall proposed "Canada, our Home." After referring to the day, and the object of the celebration, and to the land to which they all looked with admiration, he said they had here set up a home for themselves in Canada, and he expressed a hope that in the new home they would make the best traits of the scotch character, and endeavour to be guided by principle rather than expediency in forming a new nationality.

Mr. Hall also proposed, "Our Sister Societies and Guests," in appropriate terms to which Mr. Barlee replied.

Mr. Moir gave the "Dominion and Local Legislature," to which Mr. Bertram replied.

Mr. Smylie proposed the "Learned Professions," to which Dr. Kincaid replied:

Mr. Stratton proposed "The Agricultural, Manufacturing, and Commercial Interests," to which Mr. Wm. Tully, and Mr. W. Beal replied.

Mr. D. McGregor proposed "The Mayor and Corporation," to which Mayor Cox replied.

Mr. Gallelly proposed "The Ladies," to which Mr. Burgess and the President responded.

The President then gave "The Press," which was duly acknowledged.

The evening was very pleasantly spent. The speech was good; the speeches were also good, and these with songs and merry glees made the evening one of the pleasantest yet spent at a St. Andrew's celebration.

Cool Burgess was present by invitation, and sang several songs in his best and funniest style.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

The Board met on Monday evening. Present, the Chairman, and Messrs Davis, Edmison, J. M. Smith, Rutherford, McClelland, Toole and Edwards. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Applications for the Auburn School were read from Mr. W. L. Johnston, and Mr. John W. Dixon, and also from Miss Nellie Macready. Referred to the Committee on appointments.

From Mr. Christie, resigning his position as teacher in the Collegiate Institute, and from Mrs. Lasseurs asking to be appointed Janitor for the South Ward School.

The Secretary submitted a statement showing $1.09 in hands of the Treasurer.

Mr. McClelland moved, seconded by Mr. Robertson, that Miss Mitchell be paid an account due her for teaching music when Miss McCarrol resigned. He said the amount was about $23, and should have been paid long since, but was not because the fees appeared uncollected, but it was now found that several parties whose names appeared on the books, had not acted to the school that quarter; Miss Mitchell was not bound to collect the fees, and was not well treated in having to lie out of her pay so long. It was referred to the Finance Committee, with instructions to pay it if found correct.

An account from J. Stratton was submitted and referred to the Finance Committee also.

Mr. Edmison enquired if the Committee on appointments had power to make appointments without submitting the names to the Board, and was informed that all appointments had been submitted to the Board before final arrangements.

The appointment of Janitor for the South Ward School was referred to the Committee on appointments with power to accept the most advantageous arrangements.

The Chairman of Finance, Mr. Edwards, reported.

REPORTS.

Mr. McClelland, Chairman of the building Committee reported, by submitting the following report from Mr. Belcher, Architect, and the accompanying report of the Committee:—

REPORT OF MR. BELCHER.

Gentlemen:—I beg to report that Mr. Thomas M. D. Crotey, your contractor for the erection of the South Ward School House, has now fulfilled the conditions of his contract in the erection and completion of the building, and it gives me great pleasure to add that he has executed the work in the most satisfactory manner, and that during their progress has ever evinced the greatest wish to follow instructions and give me entire satisfaction. The period allowed by the contract for the completion of the building has expired on the 15th day of August last, but there were difficulties which arose in obtaining brick of a sufficient good by quality after the contract was signed last fall, which accounts for the delay in the erection of the work, and which delay I respectfully suggest should be overlooked by the Committee taking into consideration the excellence of the work.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obd't. servt.,
JOHN E. BELCHER,
Archt. and C. E

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

The Committee appointed to carry out the erection and completion of the South Ward School, beg to submit the following report:—

That in company with the Architect they met this morning for the purpose of inspecting the School Building, and that we take much pleasure in adding to the report of the Architect that the work has been carried out in the most substantial and satisfactory manner. Your Committee would respectfully recommend the adoption of said report.

The Contractor has been paid the sum of $3,300, and there yet remains the sum of $1,200 in full of contract.

Your Committee desirous of pushing on the work as fast as possible, have let by tender the furnishing of seats and desks, and they are being fitted up with as little delay as possible. We also found it necessary to have the lot graded and leveled, but there yet remains an amount of filling up to be done in the front of the building to make the lot uniform. The work of fencing, sheds, closets, etc., is nearly completed, and when finished will be found satisfactory.

Your Committee are of opinion that the best and most economical plan of heating the building would be the Rattan's Heater and Ice Air Ventilators.

And your Committee think it desirable to appoint some one as soon as possible as caretaker for the said buildings.

JOHN McCLELLAND,
Chairman Building Committee.

Peterborough, December 1st, 1874.

Mr. Toole moved for the adoption of the report.

Mr. Edmison thought before the adoption fuller information should be before the Board. The contractor and superintendent should be at any rate, so as to enable the Board to understand the whole matter before coming to a decision

Mr. Toole defended the action of the Committee and read the report of the Architect should satisfy the Board of the work, which he said all knew was well, and satisfactorily done.

Mr. McClelland said the Mr. Edmison could have seen the contract at any time, but he had a synopsis of himself of this. The work he was glad to say was well done, and the building would be a credit to the town, indeed, he was prepared to say that the Contractor, Mr. Crotey, had done the work most substantially and neatly, and deserved credit for so doing.

Mr. Edwards thought the Board had nothing to do but adopt the report. He was glad to learn that the work was satisfactorily performed, and he had no doubt, but that the Committee had done all they could to discharge their duties, and he would support its adoption on the strength of the Architect's certificate as well on the good faith of the committee

Mrs. Stevenson and Rutherford said they had seen the work and believed it was very satisfactory.

Mr. Rutherford thought the Committee deserved praise for getting the building completed without extras, which was the first case of the kind he ever heard of. The cost of construction, seats, fences, and levelling the ground, &c., would be within $5000 while it was believed it would have cost $6000. He thought the Committee deserves praise for this.

The Chairman submitted tenders for stationery for the Board, these were referred to the Finance Committee to report.

Mr. Smith asked if there were not yet some necessary additional expenses, and whether the committee would not go on and do the work without consulting the Board, as it they could expend $40, without the Board they could and might expend $1000 He thought everything should be submitted to the Board before action.

Mr. McClelland stated nothing had been done without the instruction of the Board, and when he had asked for instruction he was told he was in the hands of the Committee, and he should follow his instructions. The seats had been tendered for, and Mr. James received the contract at $2.60 and $2 30 per desk. After explanations and discussion the report was adopted.

Mr. Rutherford asked if it was known that that part of the Asburn School Section in Douro, had not been taxed for support of the School. He had learned that it was not, he thought it should be seen to.

On motion the Chairman and the Inspector were appointed to see whose duty it was to levy the rate on that portion of old School Section No. 11. Douro, and to get it done

Mr. J. M. Smith moved, seconded by Mr. Edmison,—That teachers resigning be required to give three months notice, so as to enable the board to supply the vacancy without loss of time, he instanced the short notice of a practicing as sufficient to enable the Board to take all the necessary steps to supply the place of a teacher.

After discussion some defending one month, and others in favor of three months, Mr. Smith accepted two months as a mean, when the motion was carried requiring two months' notice when leaving The notice to be mutual on the part of the Board also.

Moved by G. Edmison, seconded by J. M. Smith,—That the resignation of Mr Christie be accepted, and that the thanks of this board be tendered to him for the very efficient service rendered by him as teacher of the modern languages in the Collegiate Institute since his appointment and that the Secretary be requested to him a copy of this resolution.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

Financial Position of the Province

We have heretofore referred to the very satisfactory state of the public Treasury, but in order that a clear and thorough understanding be come to, it will be necessary to recapitulate or briefly refer to some of the statements which have already appeared. It must be borne in mind that before the financial policy of the Government can be fairly estimated, the present administration has had a series of heavy payments to make which Sandfield Macdonald had not, nor will any other Government that follows the present one have to shoulder. The present Government has had the expenditure of between five and six million of dollars on two important measures—aid to Railways and the settlement of the Municipal Loan Fund. These happy payments have dissipated to a great extent that former surplus; yet there is now left a larger one than ever Sandfield Macdonald accumulated. The exact amount of assets and liabilities as taken on the 30th September, 1874, are as follows:—

ASSETS.

Investment in Dominion securities	$2,747,805
On deposit in sundry banks	1,583,348
Cash in hand	185,676
Municipal 5 per cent drainage debentures	83,448
Rent charges on municipalities for drainage works	190,284
Municipal Loan Fund new debentures	1,530,481
Town of Niagara debt	14,203
Arrears of old debt	39,181
Special fund held in trust by Dominion at 5 per cent	2,699
Ontario share in Ottawa Library	105,407
Premiums on Dominion securities	267,451
Total assets	$9,462,486

LIABILITIES.

Balance unpaid on half yearly payments of Railway Subsidy Fund	214,500
Surplus distribution still payable	2,391,081
Balance on Railway Fund	1,100,552
Total liabilities	$3,706,133
Assets as above	9,462,486
Showing a Surplus of	5,756,353

There may be also some few other items which should come under the head of liabilities; but which can be easily provided for out of the surplus annually accruing from the ordinary income of the Province. Thus, exclusive of the value of public buildings and other Government works, the indispensable fact remains that we have a happy surplus of about $5,000,000. Before any part of the surplus will have to be used, there is an ordinary revenue of the Province of $2,600,000 to be expended; and as the annual expenditure is only $1,900,000, there is more reason for our calculation of an addition to the surplus than our having to resort to direct taxation. The fact is, this cry is nothing but an Opposition phantom, conjured up to scare people into giving the Tories another lease of power.

Nor is it the healthy state of the Treasurer alone that our prosperity is shown. Our increased banking operations, and the rapid development of the railway system, are important illustration of general progress and the thriving condition of the county. In 1840 the banking capital in Upper Canada Bank amounted to only $2,000,000; in 1867 it amounted to $13,000,000; in 1879 it amounted to $16,167,240. At the same period the deposits were respectively, $736,060, $15,000,000, and $30,442,670. The railways completed now 2,445 miles, and 662 miles are now under construction. The amount expended upon lines, representing 1,110 miles, completed since July, 1867, has been $26,282,709. Thus has the Government every reason to feel proud of their past labors, and the country every reason to their confidence in them.—Port Hope Guide.

OUR CALIFORNIA LETTER.

STANFORD, Inter-Ocean Cosy Cottage, November 9, 1874.

DEAR EXAMINER:—Since the date of my last letter everything seems to go on quietly—no shooting matches have taken place. The usual yearly fair has been held at Los Angles, and lovers of the turf had a fair show and lots of fun. After the date of my last letter we had a very heavy shower of rain, and for some time afterwards the weather was dull and cloudy; we had another shower about two weeks ago, then again on the seventh instant about ½ of an inch more, so that the season bids fair for rain. Usually when rain falls so soon it hurts the dry feed lying on the ground. This year a wind sprung up after the rain quit and dried up the wet. People living on farms, or as they are called here Ranches, are now busy hauling their grain to the sea port and pulling corn, the yield of which is fair. We had five and a half acres of the round yellow corn, which in much the same as that grown in Canada, it yielded one hundred and forty-five centals for which I obtained in San Francisco $1 33½ per cental; the expenses were 23½ cents per cental for freight, commission, &c.,—commission charges were 2½ per cent. Our other horse-tooth corn did not yield so well—about fifteen hundred to the acre.

The Railroad will soon be an established fact as the grading has been completed to town. Strangers are again visiting up to spend the winter in our agreeable clime to escape the severity of an eastern winter. Always about the first of October the wild geese begins to arrive, they remain here till spring, when they again leave for the North. They generally stop on the Low Lands on the sea shore, yet they often visit us, and carefully wander on the stubble ground ground in search of food; they are smaller than the tame goose and the flesh is not so well flavoured. In town two fine brick stores are being erected. No fancy windows are here used in stores; in your stores where double counters are used there are generally two large windows and door in front; here with us in such shops three doors are used in front. It is very costly building here with either wood or brick, and labor is high—two dollars per day and board for laboring men—and the wages seem likely to remain high for some time. Farming here is not a money making business, especially when help is to be hired; it costs about twelve dollars per acre to raise small grain and leave it in the sack for market, (without anything for rent) nine of which is paid for reaping, threshing and sacks. We have a very good public school in town, employing three teachers, one male and two females; the wages paid the male teacher is about twelve hundred dollars per annum, the others are a trifle less This week all the schools in the county are closed, the teachers all are expected to attend the Teachers' Institute which meets at Los Angles, and remains in session five days. The county superintendent presides, and addresses are delivered by teachers and others on school matters generally. During last session of the State Assembly a law was passed to enforce attendance at school during a portion of the year; it seems so far here, at least, to be a dead letter. we have at least succeeded in obtaining the services of a minister for the Presbyterian Church here, he is from Michigan and is a fine speaker, and gone into the pockets of his hearers so deeply as to draw therefrom a salary of $1,600 a year; our greater hope is that he may go still deeper into our hearts. He preaches twice each Sabbath here, and once at a place about five miles distant. This latter place is called Orange, and has been settled since we came here; land at that time was selling at $20 per acre. The owners being men of enterprise saw that water for invigorating purposes was necessary, went to work and by a large outlay of money brought water from the Santanna River, a distance of at least 12 miles, having to go up the river to a point where it enters the plain. Well, they succeeded, and to day I hear of a sale of property for $75 per acre and very little improvements made on it, the same being bought about 2 years ago from the original owners for $25 per acre. The settlers are all more or less gone into the orange, lemon, and lime raising. I observe by yonder distant mountain that winter is there again holding his stern away, and I dare say before this reaches you that his icy fingers has again shorn the trees of their green foilage, and that his cold breath has been felt on every cheek, and it may be that the chime of the merry sleigh bells is already heard on your streets. I must however close, and wish you good-bye for the present.

J. HUNTER.

We do not propose to discuss the question concerning the recommended commutation of Lepine's sentence, but merely stop to note the laughable inconsistency of a tory print contending that it is "an outrage on the loyal people of Canada" to allow one of the convicted murderers of Scots to go free." A Tory paper is supposed to uphold the Tory leader. The Tory leader, as Archbishop Taché swore at the Lepine trial, solicited his lordship strongly to get Lepine out of the country, and yet the Tories do not cry out that Sir John thus outraged the "loyal people of Canada by allowing one of the convicted murderers of Scots to go free." That same Tory leader gave another murder of Scott, one Riel, one thousand dollars of the public money as a bribe to leave the country, and still the Tories do not cry out that Sir John "outraged the loyal people of Canada by allowing one of the murders of Scott go free." This, it seems, in the Tory eyes, was defensible conduct on the part of a Tory Minister sworn to faithfully administer justice—conspiring with murderers to cheat Justice of her prey. Not a word of reproof comes from Tory lips; but only clamors for the blood of men whom Sir John not long since shielded with his official arm.—Kingston Whig.

Lecture

A Lecture on the Manners and Customs of the Jews will be delivered by the Rev. Andrew Schuster, a converted Jew, in the Bible Christian Church, Murray Street, on Tuesday, the 22nd Dec. at half past seven, p. m. This lecture has been highly spoken of, and we hope to see a good attendance.

Burleigh

James Colborne, Esq., Reeve of Burleigh, has visited Toronto, and succeeded in securing a grant of $1,000 for the Burleigh Road. The Commissioners of Public Works having proposed to place the amount in the estimates this year. So much for Mr. Colborne and the road. He deserves credit for his interest in the Settlement.

The Life of Jesus Christ.

This is the title of a book published by the National Publishing Company, and edited by the Rev. John Fleetwood, D. D. It contains a large amount of information difficult to obtain. It contains a history of the Jews, and also the chronology of important events. Mr. James Wood is agent for Peterboro, and is taking subscriptions for it.

We hope to be able to say next week that it was a grand success, which, no doubt, it will be.

DIARIES for 1875. The largest and best assortment of Office and Pocket Diaries will now be found at MATHIAS' Bookstore.

East Riding.

Mr. James Stratton, editor and proprietor of the Peterborough Business, was chosen, a few days ago, at a convention of the Reformers of East Peterborough, as their candiate in the approaching election for the local legislature. Mr. Stratton has for many years been a warm and persistent advocate of Reform principles, and we are glad to see that his services have at length met with appropriate recognition.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

East Riding Election.

Reports have been circulated to the effect that Mr. James Stratton had retired in favour of another Candidate, but we are credibly informed that he will be the candidate of the Reform party of this Riding, and consequently the opponent of Mr. Pearce, Mr. Stratton is a thorough and consistent Reformer, and a strong man, and both gentlemen being on the most intimate terms, we look forward to an amicably, though perhaps stubbornly, fought contest during the campaign. May the best man win.—Norwood Register.

Another Old Settler Gone.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fowler, wife of Mr. James Fowler, Senior, of Smith, quietly departed this life, on Tuesday, at the advanced age of 86 years. Mrs. Fowler and her husband were natives of Scotland, and came to this country when in a rough state, over 55 years ago, settling in Smith, where she lived till her decease. She leaves her husband and several sons and one daughter to mourn the death of who was dearly beloved by them.

The greatest show of Toys ever brought into Peterboro' is now to be had and seen at MATHIAS' Bookstore.

Beautiful Snow!

We can now enjoy in the luxury of splendid sleighing. The merry bells are heard everywhere, and the people are coming in to see the merchants. A little rise in the prices for fur would have a further good effect.

Personal.

The Rev. T Dyall, Baptist Minister, of Smith, has received a unanimous call to Paris, Ont., and will remove there in a few days.

Xmas Presents, etc.

Mr. Mathias has received a very extensive stock of holiday presents for Christmas and New Years time, consisting of splendid Books, Albums, Toys, Writing Desks, and other articles. He has also received a new stock of Stationery, etc., and reminds the patrons in this weeks' Examiner of the opportunity to buy any of the articles at small profits. Give him a call, and see if you cannot get something useful and pleasing.

DOLLS. 500 Dolls now received at MATHIAS' Bookstore. Speaking Dolls, Crying Dolls, and every description of Dolls from 2 cts. to $5. each.

LAKEFIELD.

The Chippewa and her pickerel scow has been placed high and dry for the winter.

The Mills are closed down for the winter, and the hands are employed on another season's work, although on a smaller scale than usual.

The people speak highly of their teacher, their new teacher; under his management everything seems to be getting along nicely.

Mr. Samuel Sherin has erected a very neat brick Division Court Office, and at a large additional expense has built in it a fire-proof Vault for papers connected with the Office. Those papers are of public interest, and their loss by fire would entail great trouble on those compelled to do business in the Court. As Mr. Sherin gets no rent for his office for Division Court business, would it not be right for the County Council and the the Village perhaps too, to bear the expense of the vault? The importance of it to the people cannot be overrated to those in that Division Court Circuit, and as it is for the benefit of the people ought not the people to bear the expense of the vault? Mr. Sherin has never made an application for assistance to build the vault, nevertheless his generosity ought not to prevent justice being done in this case.

Mr. F. Beamish is carrying on his stave works with great energy as a visit to his Mill will testify. He manufactures about ten cords of elm and oak mixed, daily, into staves ready for the mechanic; and also a heading machine which turns out a large number of heads daily when in operation. He works the stave mill about 160 days in the year, and therefore must use about 1000 cords of elm and oak, (principally elm) during a season; and as the timber used by him is not fit for square timber use prior or cost of the timber used by him is a complete saving to the country, independent of the money advantage to the hands employed.

Mr. R. Graham, Merchant, appears to be doing a healthy business in Dry Goods, Groceries, Millinery, Boots and Shoes, &c., and his pleasing and obliging manner must secure him a large patronage and many friends.

Mr. Chiphart is driving an extensive business in the Merchant Tailoring.

Mr. John Sherin is also doing an extensive business in Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots and Shoes, &c.

Mr. Clarke is also doing a good business in Boots & Shoes, and Mr. W. C. Sanders has an increasing business in Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots and Shoes, &c.

Dr. Fraser, although in Lakefield but a few months, has an extensive practice, and his general success in attending to the physical ailments of those who patronize him.

The Village is improving rapidly, several very neat dwellings are being erected and also several new brick stores. The Incorporation of the Village will take effect at January, and then the people get control of their own affairs the place will assume even still a more improved appearance. Mr. Samuel Sherin has been appointed to hold the first election for councillors. There is considerable talk as to the qualification of the first councillors. The law fixes the qualifications at $600 real estate, or $1,200 of Leasehold; and in these proportions when both classes of property is held. If, however, there be not ten persons thus qualified on the roll then any elector can be elected a councillor. and as the law of 1873 fixes electors in the townships at a valuation of $100 real estate any one assessed for that amount (100) will be an elector by sections 71, 74, 78, 79, of the Municipal Institutions Act of 1873.

The names of Mr. Hull, Mr. J. Sherin, and Mr. Robt. C. Strickland are spoken of as the probable candidates for the Reeveship; and all three gentlemen are highly spoken of citizens In all those cases the best men should be chosen.

In the matter of assessments for 1875 something should be done to compel assessors in the townships and villages to assess property at its cost value. The wisdom of this must recommend itself to everyone. It would entail no more taxation and would insure an honest and fair system by which every man would pay just in proportion to what he possesses. All the Municipalities should unite to ensure this desirable object. As it is the villages pay more in proportion than townships, being generally assessed high in proportion to real value.

At another day we hope to give a fuller account of this rising village, and of the history of its settlement and progress.

Window Shades and Room Paper Cheap, at MATHIAS' Bookstore.

Temperance

A public Temperance Meeting will be held in the Music Hall, on Saturday evening next, 5th inst. at half past seven o'clock. Thomas McNaughton, Esquire, of Cobourg, Agent of the Temperance League, and others, will address the meeting. On Sunday afternoon a religious Temperance Meeting will also be held in the Music Hall, commencing at half past three p. m., when appropriate addresses will be delivered by Mr. McNaughton and others. The questions now pending will be fully discussed, and it is hoped there will be a good attendance at both meetings.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS' ECLESIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from at few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the moore skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 dos. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its given me truly wonderful." Wilhelmina Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H Cole, of Ions, writes, "please, forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out, I can't be equalled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Thorneville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electric Oil. I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Ulverton, P. Q., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoyne, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes,—Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Propr., N. Y., and

BY-LAW

GRANTING A BONUS TO THE COBOURG RAILWAY.

BY-LAW NO.

A By-Law to provide for the granting of a Bonus to the extent of Eighty Thousand Dollars in Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, to the Cobourg, Peterborough and Marmora Railway and Mining Company to aid in the construction of the Railway of the said Company northward to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls or some other point northward or north-eastward of Bobcaygeon.

WHEREAS the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough have resolved to grant aid by way of Bonus to the Cobourg Peterboro' and Marmora Railway and Mining Company to assist them in extending their railway northward to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls by giving to the said Company Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to the extent of eighty thousand dollars upon the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned.

AND WHEREAS by an act of the Parliament of the late province of Canada passed in the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria entitled "An Act to "Consolidate the debt of the Town of Peter"borough and to authorize the issue of "Debentures upon the security of the pro"perty and for other purposes," it was enacted that for the purposes and in the manner therein particularly mentioned and set out and to the amount therein mentioned it should be lawful for the Commissioners therein named to issue Debentures under the Seal of the said Corporation to be signed by the Mayor countersigned by the Treasurer of the said Corporation and by the Secretary of the said Commissioners and that the Council of the said Town of Peterborough should annually upon the application of the said Commissioners raise upon the rateable property of the Town the interest and sinking fund requisite for the ultimate redemption of the said Debentures.

AND WHEREAS by an Act of the Legislature of the Province of Ontario passed in the year of our Lord on thousand eight hundred and seventy two entitled "An Act to "authorize the Cobourg Peterborough and "Marmora Railway and Mining Company to "extend its line of railway and for other "purposes." It was amongst other things enacted that it should be lawful for the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by a by law duly submitted to and approved by the Ratpayers of the Town in the manner required by law and notwithstanding the provisions of the Act hereinbefore recited, to grant aid by way of bonus to an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars to the said Company and to issue Debentures therefor which Debentures should be subject to the same provisions as those authorized under the said recited Act, and further that it should be lawful for the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by such By-law to impose such conditions upon which such aid should be granted as the said Corporation should deem expedient which conditions upon the acceptance by the said Company of the aid so granted should be binding upon the said Company.

BE IT THEREFORE ENACTED by the Municipal Council of the Town of Peterborough—

1 That it shall and may be lawful for the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to aid and assist by way of bonus in the construction of the Cobourg, Peterborough, and Marmora Railway and Mining Company of an extension of their Railway northward to Chemong Lake Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls or some other point northward or north eastward from Bobcaygeon by giving to the said Company the Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to the extent of eighty thousand dollars and that for that purpose it shall and may be lawful to issue debentures of the said Corporation for the said sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars, such Debentures to be issued in the manner provided by the said recited Act of the twenty fourth Victoria and to be otherwise subject to the provisions of the said Act.

2 That the said Debentures shall be made payable in twenty years at farthest from the time or times they may be respectively issued as hereafter provided.

3 That the said Debentures shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from the date thereof which interest shall be payable half-yearly at the office of the Secretary of the said Commissioners of the Town of Peterborough.

4 That the necessary rate for payment of the interest and sinking fund for the ultimate liquidation of the said Debentures as required by the said recited Act or the twenty-fourth Victoria shall in addition to all other rates to be raised levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the indebtedness created by the said Debentures.

5 That the said Debentures to the amount of Forty Thousand Dollars be issued by the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough and when required handed over by the said Corporation to the Cobourg Peterboro' and Marmora Railway and Mining Company hereinafter next named. That as to the remaining Forty Thousand Dollars to be issued by them to and in favor of the said Railway Company as the construction of the said Railway progresses and conditions hereinafter mentioned that is to say to pay and hand over the said Debentures or so much thereof as may from time to time be required by them to be handed over to the said Railway Company as the construction of the said Railway progresses and whenever from the requirements of the said Railway Company it may be necessary to receive the same or any portion thereof in order to enable the said Railway Company to complete the said Railway or any portion thereof on the completion of the whole or any portion of the said Railway as the case may be and the issue of which certificate by the Engineer of the said Railway shall be binding upon the said Trustees and Corporation of the Town of Peterborough in the issue of them shall the said Trustees hand over the said Debentures to the said Company upon the production of the Engineers certificates until the said Company shall have given to the said Corporation security to the satisfaction of the said trustees on the survivors or survivor of them for the repayment of the amounts of all such debentures as may be handed over to the said Company under this clause of the By-law in the event of the said portion of the said road not being finally completed and in running order (including such a construction over Rice Lake as will be suitable for ordinary traffic until the completion of the permanent embankment over Rice Lake as hereinafter provided) on or before the first day of April one thousand eight hundred and seventy six provided that such debentures shall be paid and handed over to the said trustees in one month after the bona fide letting of the contract for the completion of the said portion of the said road.

6. That debentures to the further amount of the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars be issued and delivered to the said Company when the said Railway shall have been completed and in running order from the Town of Cobourg aforesaid to the Village of Bobcaygeon, provided that it be so completed and in running order by the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven; and the remaining portion thereof, namely, to the amount of Twenty Thousand Dollars, when the said Railway shall have been completed and in running order from the Town of Cobourg aforesaid to the Village of Fenelon Falls in the County of Victoria, or to some other point northward or northeastward of the said Village of Bobcaygeon and distant twelve miles therefrom provided it be so completed and in running order by the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy eight, provided further that the said two last-named respective portions of the said Debentures are only to be issued and delivered as aforesaid in event of the said respective portions being so completed and to running order by the three hereinbefore limited, and provided further that the completion of the Road above mentioned for the purpose of entitling the said Company to the said Debentures shall not include the embankment over Rice Lake as hereinbefore mentioned, but shall include such construction over the said Lake as will be safe for ordinary traffic over such Road when such permanent embankment shall have been completed as hereinafter mentioned. And it is nevertheless hereby further provided that the said two sums of Twenty Thousand Dollars respectively last above mentioned shall not become payable as provided by this by-law and this By-Law as to the same shall become inoperative and null unless the said Company shall on or before the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy five have entered into a binding agreement with the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, obliging the said Company in penalty of the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars that the construction of the said proposed Railway northward from Cobourg aforesaid be commenced, proceeded with and completed within the times and in the manner hereinbefore mentioned.

7. That the said bonus to be given as aforesaid and in every part thereof is hereby declared and is hereby granted subject to the conditions hereinafter recited and subject to the said Company entering into good and sufficient contract with the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough for the doing of the said many things hereby required to be done by the said Company and upon the due performance of the said contract and upon the completion of the said Railway to the satisfaction of the Engineer of the said Railway and upon the production of his certificate to that effect and upon the said Company executing the mortgages hereinbefore mentioned and upon the said Company executing the mortgages hereinbefore mentioned and upon the said Company executing the mortgages hereinbefore mentioned

OLD IRELAND.

BY JOHN EARL.

West of Britain's Island, with the Irish Sea close by,
In the great Atlantic Ocean old Ireland do lie;
It is noted for the beauty and greenness of its fields,
And the rich prod antions it so beautifully yields.

It is 320 miles in length and 170 wide,
Surrounded by the Queen and washed by every tide;
Divided in four Provinces and Counties thirty-two,
With some majestic rivers so proudly passing through

It has some lofty mountains, and lakes of beauty rare
With which none in the world are able to compare;
For architectural and natural beauty Dublin can't be beat,
As the Capital of the Island, and in Leinster has its seat.

It was first settled by the ancient Celts, then invaded by the Danes,
Who in his time almost whole possession gains;
But they soon after were expelled, and to Ireland bid
adieu,
It was then annexed to the English Crown in 1172.

St. Patrick visited Ireland the Gospel for to preach,
And the poor benighted heathen Christianity to teach;
His labours were successful and soon he did succeed in getting the whole nation for to embrace his creed.

It was in the 5th century this great work was performed,
When in every department the people were reformed,
From darkness they were translated into the glorious light,
And soon became a nation that shone with honour bright.

For learning, Old Ireland did soon become the seat,
And produced some famous scholars that never could be beat;
Statesmen and Generals and Soldiers, a whole pile:
Among Orators have done honor unto the Emerald
Isle.

For Britain she has fought many battles brave and true,
We behold on Irish Wellington on the fields of Waterloo;
She has helped the great Republic her Independence
for to gain;
Her sailors are the smartest that float upon the main.

What could the world do if there were no Irishmen?
They take the lead of nations both with the tongue
and pen;
Our railroads, in America, by Irishmen are made,
They are able for to handle the Shovel, Pick or Spade

They dig out our canals, and fix our telegraph wires,
They are the support of Republics, Kingdoms and Empires.
We find them in the north, south, east and west:
All nations, with Irishmen, by Providence are blest.

Hurrah! hurrah! for Ireland and her lovely fields of green,
Among the Islands of the Sea she deserves the name
of Queen;
She has a fertile soil and a sweet salubrious air—
God bless the beauteous Emerald Isle shall ever be my prayer.

TYNESIDE INDUSTRIES.

horse power engine, supplied with steam by boilers on the spot, and was erected by Abbot and Co., of Gateshead. In addition to this there are several others in connection with the works. One fine engine of 50 horse-power, by Norman and Co, of Glasgow, for driving the white lead rollers and millstones supplied with steam from a two furn aced Galloway tube boiler. Their is also a fine old 20 horse-power beam engine, by Hawthorn, supplied with steam from three large boilers. This engine drives the red lead machinery and the mill for mixing the oil and white lead. There is also a 20 horse-power engine for lesting down and drawing up material to and from the wharf.

In connection with the works there is an extensive cooperage in which all the casks required by the firm are made and a joiners shop where several hands are kept constantly at work. There is also a house where the white lead is ground and mixed with linseed oil. This is what is most commonly known as white lead, being what painters, and plumers and others get in small casks or tins. There is also an ample store house where an abundant stock of beer is kept for the work people's use also soap, candles, towels, brushes, &c., &c, every workman being required to clean himself before leaving the works. There is a large appartment fitted up as a dining room for the women, containing ovens, pots, tables, forms &c, and immediately adjoining is a lavoraty for their use. The accomodation afforded by these conveniences will be better understood when we state that there are one-hundred females employed at the whom live in Newcastle, shield, and Jarrow, their rate of wages being from 12s to 25s per week. The officers being conveniently situate at the enterance gate and adjoining aaay office. The numbet of men employed is about 200 the majority of whom are piece men, and have in a great measure, the regulating of their own time. In working the desilvering pans, two men are expected to work three pots in eight hours and at all hours of the day and night some workmen are going to and from their work. In the roasting furnaces a few minutes advantage gained at a particular time may secure an addition to the workman's wages of 50 per cent. One of the most striking features in connection with these works apart from their admirable arrangement is the absense of anything like waste throughout the entire operation. So near perfection is the Pattinson process of desilvering that not more than ten or eleven cwts of silver is left in a ton of market lead, not only so, but when the stacks are being taken down, should any of the carbonised lead fall amongst the tan it is gathered up, tan and all and carried to the "buddle" house, where by a process of washing every particle of the lead is recovered. The whole of the works are roomey, airy, and lightsome, the desilvering department being 250 feet long 150 broad, coloring ovens 100 feet long by 40 feet broad, and all the other places in proportion. All of the partners are practical lead manufacturers Mr Blackett in particular, manifesting the greatest interest in the manufacture, being a daily visitor at the works, and paying the most minute attention to everything connected with their management. The resident manager is Mr Walton, a gentleman highly esteemed in the district, not more tor his general unbanity of disposition than for his devotion to the duties of his position. the assayar, in connection with the manufactory, is Mr George Foster, a valued servant of the company. The principal offices for the commercial department of the firm are in Lombard street Newcastle which carries on a corresponded throughout all parts of the world.

DECIDEDLY COOL.

About two o'clock on a December night when the thermometer stood in the neighbourhood of zero, a party of wags hauled a farm house in a very boisterous manner. The farmer sprang out of his bed, drew on a few a articles of clothing, and ran out to see what was wanted, when the following interesting dialogue occurred:

"Have you any hay, Mr—?"
"Plenty of it, sir."
"Have you plenty of corn?"
"Yes."
"Any oats?"
"Yes."
"Plenty of meat and breadstuffs?"
"Yes."
"Well, we are glad to hear it; for they are very useful things in the family!"

The party drove off, leaving the farmer to his reflections.

An absent-minded man entered a Troy shoe store the other day and wanted his boy measured for a pair of shoes. "But where is the boy?" asked the dealer. "Thunder!" said the man, "I've left the boy at home. I'll go and get him;" and off he started for his house, six blocks away.

A ferryman was asked by a timid lady whether any persons were ever lost in the river over which he rowed. "Oh! no," said he, "We always find 'em the next day."

"Jury," said a Western Judge, "you kin go out and find a verdict. If you can't find one of your own, get the one the last jury used." The jury returned a verdict in the ninth degree.

A Toronto editor went hunting the other day for the first time in twenty-two years, and he was lucky enough to bring down an old farmer by a shot in the leg. The distance was sixty-six yards.

A man at Andover, Mass, does not believe in a fall in prices, because he has just sold for fifty cents a pocket knife which he bought for that price in 1800, and has used steadily for sixty-four years.

When Major Pauline Cushman arrived in San Francisco lately, she wanted to lecture, but couldn't afford to advertise. So she just cowhided a man in public, and is now one of the pearls of the platform.

Mistress (at kitchen stairs).—"Susan, a little less noise if you please," Susan (from below stairs).—"Law, Missus, I was only singing psalms." Mistress.—"I have no objections Susan, if you have no hymns."

A bunch of shingles fell from a waggon on the Troy ferry-boat recently, and struck fairly upon the head of a colored woman, who said, "Y' oughter b' shame to miss a cullud woman's har dat way. I wish de shingles fell ovah board."

"It is a very large church, but they can hear distinctly in the back pews," said a friend, speaking of a sanctuary. "So is my church very large," replied Dr. S——; "but the trouble is I don't talk to the back pews, as there is never any body in them."

Irascible old party.—"Conductor, why didn't you wake me as I asked you? Here I am miles beyond my station." Conductor,—"I did try, sir, but all I could get out of you was 'all right Maria: get the children their breakfast, and I'll be down in a minute.'"

A gentleman, in search of a man to do some work, met on his way a lady not as young as she once was, and asked her, "Can you tell me where I can find a man?" "No, I cannot," she replied, "for I have been looking these twenty years for one myself."

A very prudent man in Danbury provides himself with an extra hat for the month of November. He carries it in his coat tail pocket, and when the wind like the one from his head he straightway jams on the other, and then puts after the first, and thus not only saves much caffing from the unregenerate, but actually gets credit as a philanthropist, the general impression being that he is in pursuit of somebody else's hat.

A Western journal, probably wishing to do the handsome thing by the local doctor, recently announced that "Dr. Crawford was called in, and, under his prompt and skillful treatment, the young man died on Wednesday afternoon." This, the Detroit "Free Press" calls the puff oddjute, and says, "We don't know what the Doctor says to that, but if the editor of that newspaper is taken sick, we advise him not to call in Crawford."

A parson who was not over promptly paid by his parishioners, on entering the church one Sabbath morning, met one of his flock and asked the loan of a sovereign. "Certainly," said the man, at the same handing over the coin. Dominie put it into his pocket, and preached his preach in most capital style, and, on coming down, handed the identical sovereign to the man from whom he had borrowed it. "Why," exclaimed the lender, "you have not used the money at all." "It has been of great service to me, nevertheless," replied the parson: "I always preach so much better when I have money in my pocket." The hint was taken, and the rest of his salary was got together the following afternoon.

War and Commerce.—It is urged by some that English trade has gained largely by the Franco-German war, and that she has been serving both belligerents to the great advantage of her commercial interest; but official statements prove that such has not been the case. But it is true that the sales of the Canadian Pain Destroyer are greatly increasing, and gaining the confidence of the public, for curing coughs, colds, rheumatism, neuralgia, bowel complaints, &c. For sale by all druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per bottle

Don't Know What to Do. We some times hear persons say, "my horse is sadly out of condition, and I cannot tell either what is the matter with him, or how to get him into better order;" they appear to be ignorant of the fact that there is within their reach a remedy safe, sure, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and testify that its effects are most satisfactory One horse dealer informs us that his horses condition and appearance are so much improved by its that they sell more readily and for higher prices. The article is Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy. Nothing else is equal to it for the same purpose. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Health is Strength.—To prevent or conquer disease is one of the grandest attainments ever aimed at by man; and Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers will as sure cure coughs, colds, tickling in the throat and pulmonary complaints, as war and pestilence will destroy. Severe colds if not attended to sooner or later lead to incurable consumption, and the strength of the strongest soon fails if neglected. The readiest and best means known for the cure of these complaints is Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, which have been thoroughly tried for the last twenty years, and have never been known to fail. Singers and public speakers will also derive great benefit from the use of them. Sold by all medicine dealers at 25 cents per box.

General Debility. James H. Johnston, Esq., Montreal, wrote in August as follows It affords me great pleasure to bear testimony to the benefits received from using Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites. I found it a nervous tonic of great power and efficacy, curing me in a short time from General Debility and Nervous ness, and I have become robust and vigorous under its influence, and gained considerable in weight withal.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL
R. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS

[illegible] proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Toxic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glow and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It is wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found as desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a pleasant, reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; therefore here need not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositon. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any mineral drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continually taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and removing effect on the digestive apparatus.

to the Free and Indedendent
ELECTORS OF THE
EAST RIDING
Of the
County of Peterborough.
GENTLEMEN:—It is now some four years since addressed you through the columns of this paper, and I now adopt the same method; and as there has been many changes since that time both political and otherwise, and as most of you are aware that I sold out my business in Norwood to Mr. Ackerman two months ago, and my agreement with him prevents me from starting in the Village or Township; therefore I must return you my most sincere thanks for the liberal support you have accorded to me for these last 12 years. And at the same time I beg to inform you that having erected a Large and Commodious
Shop at Wigmore's Corner,
Where I intend to carry on the
HARNESS BUSINESS
In all its branches, and from my long experience in the trade, I flatter myself that I can give you a better article in my line, cheaper and more workmanship considered than you can get elsewhere. My motto will be "Quick sales and small profits."
I also propose coming apart and day in the week, viz. Saturday, when all would jobbing will be done free of charge.
I hope to see all my old customers, and as many new ones as may feel disposed to patronize me, feeling assured that they will save money by enrolling a sale ledger, as I intend to undersell all in the trade.
Repairing done with neatness and dispatch.
Collars made to suit any Horse in the country. Saddles polished to the satisfaction of all.
P. S.—As I have been to a good deal of expense in the way of building, all parties indebted to me will please call and settle without further notice.
A most healthy Boy wanted to learn the business

OUR VILLAGE

Along the old accustomed paths with musing steps we go,
The green trees arch above our heads, and every bough we know;
The meadow has its tale for us, the June its storied hour,
Companions in each hedge we half, a friend in every flower.

The headstones by the grassy graves bear old familiar names,
Each, as we glance them idly o'er, its flash of memory claims;
There, a sweet touch of pathos wakes, here loving laughter calls,
On some quaint lamp recorded tomb, the record as mushrooms dwells.

The little child that gazes up, with wide blue wistful eyes
Unconscious of what clear a fire for us in their soft hazes lies,
Will answer with her mother's smile, or in her father's voice,
And in the accents of whose ring our hearts can still rejoice

The cottage doors are shut that ne'er close I to our steps of yore,
Beside the evening hearth there talk of us and ours no more.
Oh, sad and strange, and hard it seems, there are so few to greet,
As slow and silently we trace the winding village street.

Yet, isn't forgotten as we stand, amid the haunts of youth,
The golden path seen as for us its strength of love and truth,
Though other pathways woo us now, and other bonds may bless,
The home that childhood's halo crowned claims myparate tenderness.

—All the Year Round.

[Original.]
SNOW-BOUND
BY KATRINA.

It was in the Fall of '53 that my studies at the Academy of Music, at which I had been a pupil for a number of years, were completed. My Diploma had been gratefully received, amid the congratulations of many warm friends, to whom I had in my four years intercourse become greatly attached. The hour of separation drew near, and bidding my school-mates and teachers a tearful good-bye, I took my seat in the coach that was to convey me to my home.

The pleasure contained in the thought of again meeting my loved ones, from whom I had so long been separated, dispelled much of the chill of parting, and the long wearisome journey was rendered more endurable by the sweet anticipation of soon seeing their welcome faces.

Through the kindness of my esteemed tutor, I had received a call as teacher, he having written in my behalf to the Principal of a Female College in one of the Western States, at which place also was the home of a married sister. So here was a double incentive why I should accept the proffered situation—a home with my sister, and a very good salary: hence my stay at home would necessarily be short,all too short, for had I not deprived myself of the accustomed yearly visit during this last course, and applied myself closely to my studies, in order more fully to merit the reward awaiting me? nor did I work in vain.

I had accepted the situation, and in answer had received an urgent request to make no delay, as a vacancy was about to occur—by the marriage of the present teacher.

My visit home was of short duration, and packing up my newly-replenished wardrobe, and procuring a through ticket and checks, I placed them carefully in my portmonaie, and again I bid a tearful adieu to my loved ones; and as the train moved on, their loving counsel and kind admonitions still sounded in my ear, mingling with the busy ringing of bells, and the puffing of the great engine, bearing its human freight away, slowly and cautiously, until it passed the precincts of my native city: then faster, and still faster, and soon my loved home fast receded from my strained vision.

Removing furs and wrapping, I took a hasty survey of the occupants of the coach,, hoping, perchance, I might discern a familiar face; but no! all were quietly settled, some looking vacantly out of the window, no doubt thinking of some being far beyond their mortal vision—others trying to catch a glimpse of some object that attracted their attention as we flew swiftly past, while others again were so deeply immured in the volume they were so intently perusing, as to render them as dead to surroundings as were the few that were locked in the embrace of old Morpheus.

I was indeed alone!

What were my feelings I will not attempt to define. I was leaving home for an indefinite period. Heretofore I had never had a care, save to strive to excel in my studies: now I was launching out into the unknown future, relying solely on my own resources for success. My kind, indulgent parents had expended much of their small income to satisfy my longing for a musical education, and they had told me, with kind, parental pride, that I had far exceeded their most sanguine expectations. What greater encomium could I desire! Fain would they have kept me with them, but I had resolved to go abroad, with the hope that I might, in a measure, remunerate them, in a pecuniary sense, for their self-denial in granting my request. How well I succeeded, you will hereafter see. We are but selfish mortals at best—too oft our "best-laid schemes gang aft agley."

Although fully equipped with all the necessary paraphernalia requisite for comfort on this tedious journey, yet I felt that I lacked so much. Companionship was what I craved. Not one familiar face could I see, save that of the conductor, who, being an old friend of ours, kindly offered to look after me to the extent of his route; and so often as he could, he sat himself down by my side, and by a recital of several humorous incidents, whiled away many of those weary hours, driving back many an unbidden tear that had arisen in its temporary absence.

When again left alone, I looked out of the window to take the dark land in. Nevertheless my thoughts were homeward, with fling of which I had parted in my mind, and was desirous to be with them once more. How often I pictured each of those I had left behind, and fancied I could hear their merry voices, and see their bright faces, as they gathered around the cheerful fire, and spent many pleasant hours, with nothing to interrupt their pages, with nothing to interrupt their a brief call occasionally from the conductor, and a hurried brushing past of eager passengers as they made their ingress and egress while stopping at city or town, during which time I found much to attract me, watching the hurry and confusion attendant on travelling.

Upon arriving at the city of T——, I found I had there to change cars, as well as depots. The conductor kindly attended me, and arriving at the Great Upper Depot, I ascertained that I had ample time to take a stroll through its spacious apartments. Glad was I for the opportunity to recuperate my weary limbs from my long sitting. I had ridden since early morning, and it was now the middle of the afternoon. I availed myself also of a good wash, and this, together with the exercise of walking, was most invigorating. The conductor could attend me as far as B——, and then I should be left quite alone. Oh, what a drear prospect was before me! for, although I should have to make one more change, yet I dreaded the long tiresome journey still before me. I had striven hard to keep up good cheer, but now the long, lone night was drawing on, and I involuntarily sighed, as, hugging my furs and wrappers more closely about me—for the air was very chilly.—I took the proffered arm of the conductor, and hastened to the cars.

After taking my seat, I was busying myself watching the mottled crowd at my opened window, through which the cool breeze was blowing, imparting a rosy flush to my cheek, and an exhilirating breath of pure air, so unlike the close, pent-up atmosphere within, when my eyes encountered the form of a young man standing in the doorway of the general waiting-room, apparently conversing with some one inside. The fine proportions and gentlemanly bearing of this individual caused me to bestow a more than casual glance at him, when, turning hastily around, he encountered my gaze.

Hastily averting my face, I seemingly did not notice him, as I furtively cast my eyes around; yet I knew, yes, felt, that he was still looking at me. Was it human magnetism that told me this? for I knew instictively just when his gaze was withdrawn. I saw his gloveless hand extended towards his friend—heard his hasty good-bye—then drawing on his glove and snatching up his valise, he ran past and I saw him no more.

As the cars moved away, I fell into a reverie. Reader, would you knew my thoughts? Well, here they are unveiled: I was thinking of my Beau Ideal. Yes! although I was scarcely out of my teens, yet I had my Beau Ideal. Every one has one, and I was not an exception to the general rule. I had just seen him—not in fancy, but in blessed reality. This being had dawned upon my vision like a meteor, so suddenly, and as suddenly vanished from my sight, creating in the one short moment an undefinable something within me totally unknown before, leaving a void unfilled, a longing unsatisfied.

What could it be?

I had often read of Love at first sight, but had passed it by with a scornful turn of the lip, as absurd, preposterous, and thus have I brought into use many strong adjectives, denouncing the possibility of such a thing, yet how was I labouring under a new and undefined sensation. Was it love? or was it infatuation? be it what it may, I could not drive him from my thoughts. I closed my eyes, and there before me, stood the embodiment of all that was perfect, face and form in perfect unison, every feature was marked with an indelible stamp upon my memory. I saw nothing but the figure in the doorway in "bold relief," heard nothing but the deep, rich, mellow tones of his voice, felt nothing but the undue throbbing of my heart. True; I had often met with those who had elicited my admiration, for some good quality they possessed, but here was a person of whom I knew nothing, who held me captive; could the face, the voice, the form, the index of the mind, the inner man, then were he worthy the feeling he has elicited within me, and of which I had no power to dispossess myself of, and I felt that although I should never see him again in all probability, yet I felt that none other could impress me so, the lone feeling I expressed at the thought, caused me involuntarily to regret that I had ever seen him, and I already experienced a void in my life that none other could fill.

Call this foolish infatuation, or whatever else you please, but I believe firmly, that this peculiar unexpressed feeling is felt but once in ones life time, other emotions may have a semblance to this real "Heaven-born emotion," but never creating that same ecstatic feeling which pervaded my whole being, "I knew I loved him." Oh! what a revelation! and yet how foolishly absurd was I. I had not a ray of hope of ever seeing him again, and then if I should, what hope had I of reciprocity of feeling; even though no other obstacle should intervene, and I resolved to banish, or strive to banish all thoughts of him, and to forget if possible all that I had felt in this brief hour.

The task before me was not so easily performed, and I found the more I strove against this power which held me enthralled, the more implicated I became in its meshes.

So deep was my reverie, so lost to all around me that I noticed not the shutting of the door, and had I not been startled by a hand laid gently on my shoulder, I know not how far into fancies realms I might have wandered.

"A penny for your thought," said the conductor, as standing down he said he had good news for me, or at least he hoped it would prove so. He had found in his last beat, an old friend on board the train, who was bound for the city to which I was going, and would gladly take the place of "Chaperon," that is if agreeable on my part, and to me I could place the greatest confidence in, when I was left to the charge of entire strangers.

With this friendly announcement I gladly consented, for well I knew that his chaperonage would not appear in the least obtrusive, for he would merely see me safely to the door of my destination, and then leave me to the care of those I was going to meet, and then his duty would be ended.

Soon after the conductor arose, saying he would present the Professor soon.

Le[illegible] the dark leaden sky, the musky clouds grew darker still, portending a severe snow storm, not a beast stirred the few vasignated leaves that still clung to the parent stem, not a sound disturbed the stillness save the low rumbling of the heavily laden train. A feeling of great loneliness crept over me; the company of a dog would have been a relief to me, a sort of safeguard. Then was it all strange, that I should be pleased with the conductor's communication, and again I fell to thinking, this time 'twas not my "beau ideal," but of the Professor with whom I was shortly to meet.

Who could he be! What sort of a looking personage was he? were queries in my mind, I had a very imaginative one, which often led me from the sublime to the ridiculous with one bound. I often wondered whose fault it was. I could never blame myself, (if, indeed, it was a fault.) My father was as staid as a deacon, who looked upon fun and frolic as sinful, while my gentle, loving mother would be, when occasion required, as gay and joyous as the lark, joining with us in our childish sports and gay repartee, though always tempered with that unnamed "something," which made her so "loved" and "loving." These transmission of qualities, had made me what I was, and led me often to say, (when remonstrated with with regard to my hilarity.) "It is as it is, and it can't be any 'finer.'" The first professor that popped into my mind was a tall, majestic looking man, of whom it could be said, 'breathed awe and reverence in every tone, and gesture, giving one a feeling of littleness and insignificance, while listening to his cultured, high-flown language, causing the listeners to shrink within himself, thereby hiding whatever talent they themselves might possess. My next was a corpulent, middle-aged man, with a very red nose, and a face like a full-blown moon, whose pomposity accorded well with his monstrous appearance,— this individual couldn't laugh, his was a chuckle. The next individual that stalked along, was a thin, long-legged, slab-sided, bean-pole necked Yankee, who had danced himself into a stovepipe "tripping the light fantastic toe," bearing the cognomen of Mr. so and so, "Professor of dancing." Then again a "Ventriloquist" who could converse with Bridget in the cellar kitchen, and at the same moments be flirting with Maggie the chamber maid, or maybe he was a diminutive fop, who flourished a gold-headed cane, and stared at every one through his eye

"Which shook when he coughed like a bowl full of jelly,"

Peterborough Examiner.
PETERBOROUGH, DEC. 10, 1874.

Adjourned Convention.

MR COX ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM.

At the adjourned meeting of Reformers of West Peterborough, Mr. Edward Kerr, of South Monaghan, was called to the chair, and Mr Geo. Edmison acted as Secretary.

Mr. Kerr called on Mr. Cox to give an answer to the convention as to his acceptance of the nomination. Mr. Cox amid great applause, announced his acceptance, and his determination to use all legal and reasonable means to secure his Election and asked all present to take means for immediate organization of Committees so that success may be doubly certain. His remarks were cordially received, and nothing now remains but to take his advice.

Mr. Dumble was then loudly called for, and took the platform amid loud cheers, and expressed his pleasure at the nomination of Mr. Cox. He said that as Mayor he had faithfully and honorably discharged his duties, and as a citizen Mr. Cox had done more than any man in town to build it up, improve and beautify it, by spending his means, money, and influence to that end. His character was unblemished, and his business tact and energy made him a very acceptable and strong Candidate. Mr. Dumble also called on all his friends to rally round Mr. Cox, and not by over much certainty as in his case, allow indifference to defeat him and permit a man who had no right to the place, take a seat in the Legislative Assembly. Mr. Dumble during his remarks was frequently cheered and applauded.

Mr. Bertram was also called for and on taking the platform said it afforded him great pleasure to learn that Mr Cox had accepted the nomination, and he was sure that he would be elected, By a little indifference and through a row in Ennismore at last election, Mr. Scott had been permitted to take a seat at Toronto, but he (Mr. B) had no right to be there. He was not the choice of the people and only got in by a course of action reprehensible and worthy of condemnation. He had no more right to be there than Mr. Cluxton had to go to Ottawa, and he (Mr. B) was certain Mr Scott would not go again.

Messrs J. W. Fitzgerald and W. Tierney followed, each of those gentlemen expressed a strong desire to have a Catholic candidate in the East Riding, as a guarantee of sympathy with them by the reformers.

Mr. Stratton was then called for and after expressing his great pleasure that Mr. Cox had accepted the nomination, he advised all to get to work at once, and see that he shall be elected when the time comes. He explained his course as regards the approaching contest, and also the position of reformers towards their Roman Catholic fellow electors, and his readiness to work for the Reform party in all reasonable ways.

The meeting then broke up with three cheers for the Queen, three for Mr. Cox, and three for the Chairman.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE WEST RIDING OF PETERBORO

The candidates are now fairly before the Electors. Mr. Cox has accepted, and is at work every day. He relies on the united support of the Reform party, and, with that success is certain. He is well known as a progressive man, and has done more to build up the town than any man in it. His enterprise is well known to all the Electors, and his liberal views are a guarantee that he will deal fairly with all classes of the people.

Reformers would do well to get to work earnestly and early, and with a view to organization, and getting out the votes when the day comes. It is true, the time of the election is not known, but it will be at an early day in the New Year. The time is short enough for a general canvass, and should not be wasted.

Mr. Scott now holds his seat by virtue of disorder at a certain polling place; and seeing that he was willing to take the seat well-knowing this, the Electors of West Peterboro' should see to it that he does not again be allowed to do so.

Shall men of the Rykert fraternity be allowed to again obtain control of our provincial affairs? Do the Electors wish to return to power men of the Boultbee, Lauder & Rykert calliber? shall they get the support of the people, when they know that they have been guilty of bringing a stain on the name and honor of the people, and when they have assurance, not only of their bribing others, but of their being guilty of taking bribes? Shall men who value their paltry services at the rate of $100 up to $1000, as they can get an offer; and while they are bartering away the highest and noblest trust the people can bestow—shall these men receive the vote of a single man of honor or honesty in the County? Electors of Peterborough, stand to your good old principles and send Mr. Cox, who will go, if elected, to support the Mowat Government—a government that has served the country well; that is seeking to establish our [illegible] on an equable basis: that [illegible] the Surplus to build up [illegible] trade and prosperity of the country; and seeking to maintain its position by an upright discharge of their duties, and by a due regard to the wants of the country.

The despicable plight of Mr. Rykert and Mr. Carling in the House, at present, should be a warning to the people not to return men to take their places—in all the arts of trickery which a long lease of power taught them. Send Mr. Cox, to vote for good measures. A man who will deal with questions on their merits, and not on money value of services that ought not to be rendered, a value always in proportion to the length of the purse of the person offering.

THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES

There is a strong desire on the part of our Roman Catholic fellow citizens of this county to have a co-religionist for a representative in the Local or Dominion Parliament. They claim that they are a respectable minority, which has assisted in electing a Protestant representative for many years, and hence, now only ask a reciprocal feeling on the part of the majority. The desire is not an unreasonable one, nor should the majority be averse to it, when a reasonable opportunity presents itself. It is claimed as the following correspondence to the Irish Canadian sets forth that the Reformers of the County should show their magnanimity by assisting them to elect one in the East Riding. Very few Reformers have any objections to this, but they assert that their Roman Catholic fellow electors have not been cordially with them in any election during 24 years, and hence a feeling of coldness prevents that entire unanimity on the matter calculated to ensure success, and they instanced the case when Mr. O'Donohue ran for the East Riding. At that time Protestant Reformers worked hard to elect him, but failed through the opposition of his own co-religionists, and in every election since nearly three Catholics votes have been given to the Conservative candidate that were given to the Reform Candidate. These things do not lessen the distance that twenty years of Opposition had made, and until greater harmony prevails, many predict defeat, if a Catholic Candidate should be put in the field. The sooner the religious phase of politics is got rid of, the better will it be for the country. The time should be past when a man's religious should debar him from any position for which he is qualified, and Reformers are not unmindful of this, as may be seen in North Renfrew, in Toronto East, last general election, and in electing Mr. Murray over Mr. White lately unseated. For our own part we desire to know no man's religion or business, or politics, and have endeavored to bring this about in this county, and if we have not succeeded, the barrier of twenty years of opposition, will sufficiently explain the reason just now.

LETTER TO THE "IRISH CANADIAN."
PETERBORO, Nov. 27, 1874.

To the Editor of the Irish Canadian.

DEAR SIR—Politics being the order of the day at present, I beg leave to claim a small portion of your space for a few observations on the all-engrossing subject anent the situation in this County, East and West.

You are doubtless aware that a Convention took place a short time ago for the purpose of selecting candidates for both Ridings in the Reform interest. As usual in such cases, the action of the Convention has not resulted in all parties being satisfied.

Mr James Stratton, of the Peterborough Examiner, was chosen as the standard-bearer of the Party for the East Riding; and it is admitted on all hands that, if elected, he would make a worthy and most valuable representative. It is also admitted that Mr Stratton's long and faithful services to the Reform party fully entitled him to the distinction now tendered him. Among those, however, who are dissatisfied with the arrangement as it stands, are the Catholic electors of the Riding; not that they have any objection to Mr Stratton personally. On the contrary there is not perhaps a man in the Riding who, under other circumstances, would secure so thoroughly the support of our people.

The trouble arises from the fact that, whether from motives of party expediency, or as a matter of fair play, the belief has been very generally cultivated for some time back that a Catholic Reformer would be nominated in East Peterborough for the election shortly to take place; and now that this expectation has not been realized, Catholics feel that their Protestant Reform friends have broken faith and are merely toying with them. It is now rumoured, however, that Mr Stratton has expressed a desire to give way in favor of a Catholic. Should this rumour turn out to be true, the difficulty no do doubt will be overcome, and Mr Stratton will have displayed a degree of generosity and fairness not often found among aspirants for Parliamentary honors.

Mr James Hogan, merchant of this town, is spoken of in the event of a Catholic being nominated; and having resided in the Riding all his life, and being well and favorably known, it is believed he can be elected by a large majority. Now that our people have shown a desire to rally around the broad banner of Reform—when they ought always to be found—and exercise the franchise in favor of honest government, it is believed that the election of a Catholic will so unite and consolidate the Reform party that Reform victories will become a rule in this country instead of the novelty that they have been for some time past.

Mr David Dumble was the candidate in the Reform interest at the last election for the West Riding, and would certainly have beaten his opponent had it not been for over-confidence on the part of some, and a lack of zeal on the part of others, from whom better things were expected. A more fitting representative than Mr Dumble the County of Peterborough could not have. A lawyer by profession, and well acquainted with the routine of the Crown Lands Department, his services both to the new and old portion of the County would be simply invaluable.

Against Mr Cox, who has many friends, nothing can be said personally. He is active and enterprising, but from the nature of his many engagments it is impossible that he could render the same service as a representative that Mr Dumble could. Mr Dumble, it is well known, has been indefatigable as a Reformer, and has made many sacrifices; and his friends are most indignant at the idea of he being overlooked on the present occasion. Mr Dumble is as Irishman to the core, and is very popular with Catolics; in fact it is doubtful if any other man can command so large a vote among our body. If nominated, and the Reformers go heartily to work there cannot be the least doubt of his election.

About Mr Cox, although an active and respectable young man, there is but little known politically. It may be said, however, without injustice to that gentleman, that, so far as known, his political antecedents and connections are not such as to commend him very highly to Reformers. Mr Dumble has been all his life a hard-working Reformer—he has hosts of staunch friends, and is certain to receive a much larger Catholic vote than Mr Cox can possibly expect; and a grave mistake will be committed if he is not placed in a position to contest the Riding again at the next election. RATEPAYER.

The late distinguished mathematician, Professor Hamilton, of Aberdeen, was notorious for his absence of mind. Running hastily one day from the arched gateway at King's College, he stumbled against a cow which chanced to be passing. In the exactness of the moment, the professor raising his hat, exclaim, "I beg your pardon, madam!" Walking on Union Street, a few days afterwards, he did accidentally stumble against a lady who was walking in an opposite direction. In sudden recollection of his former severance he cried out, "Is that you again you brute!"

EX-MINISTER GUILTY

Mr. Rykert, formerly of the western district, [illegible] the Hon. Mr. [illegible] with a vehemence and determination to fight things rarely met with in politics or warfare. At length Mr. McKellar, [illegible] that sort of thing and repudiated, charging Mr. Rykert with taking bribes for his parliamentary influence, and offering to prove it if a Parliamentary Committee were asked for the purpose. Mr. Rykert, in a bluff game, asked for a Committee, and to this Committee Mr. McKellar has substantiated his charges, proving that Rykert had bartered his seat and sold the rights of the people for money.

The dreadful state of bribery appears to have permeated all branches of our Parliaments, at Ottawa and Toronto under the Regime of John A. MacDonald, and then extended itself into every county and hamlet in the Dominion. But their sins found them out, and now they are about to reap the reward in complete expulsion from power and trust.

Mr. Rykert, it appears, got $100 from the Toronto Street Railway Company for his parliamentary influence; $100 more for assisting to get Tilsonburg incorporated; $1000 for aiding the Great Western R. R. Coy in its legislation, and other sums for Insurance Companies. Of course he tries to explain them as legal services, but no one believes this.

Then comes honest John Carling called to throw light on the expenditure of $2,430 spent in bribing newspapers, but honest John refuses to tell to whom he paid those sums—suffice it to say, that $1000 was given to a Mr. Belford, now an editor on the Mail staff, and $1000 more went to another newspaper in Toronto or to its editor, and slight suspicions point to the Leader, but as honest John will not tell, this is only a surmise. The remainder, $430 was spent in Hospitalities, in other words champagne, wines, brandies, &c. This sum, John Carling, a Cabinet Minister, spent to bribe the people's representatives to support legislation which he was promoting, and which at first Mr. Rykert opposed but afterwards supported to his utmost. After being made right with an agent of the companies concerned sitting at Charley's right hand to control him.

To what a pass our public men have brought things, when they had to stand purse and bottle in hand to retain the support of their supporters, as John Carling acknowledges, and what cause for thankfulness that better men have taken their places.

Electors will now be able to see how Conservatives were manipulated by Sir John and by John Carling when in power, and rejoice that they have been expelled from a position they abused, and to which we trust they will never again be elevated.

TEMPERANCE MEETING

On Saturday evening the friends of the Temperance movement held a meeting in the Music Hall. The Rev'd Mr. Fish occupied the chair; and also addressed a few words to those present. The Rev. Mr. Rose followed, and dwelt on the evils caused through the traffic wherever it existed.

Mr. McNaughton, Esq of Cobourg, then delivered a touching address, appealing to the audience to use their influence to lessen the evil, if they cannot at once get rid of it. He was not sparing of those Christians who, not in the traffic, rented their property for the purpose, and considered them little better than those who were directly engaged in it.

On Sabbath afternoon there was another meeting in the Music Hall, when Col. Haultan took the chair by request. After reading a passage from the New Testament, and singing a hymn, Mr. Fish opened with prayer. The Chairman then addressed the large audience on the great evil now agitating the minds of the people Mr. McNaughton again delivered an eloquent address, founded on the words of Isaiah, "Woe to to the drunkards of Ephraim, &c, from which he showed that the sons of the children of Israel distinguished from the children of Judah were pride and drunkenness, and that these two national crimes brought on them the destruction of their nation by the Assyrians, and hence, they are to this day spoken of as the ten lost tribes.

Mr. McNaughton is an earnest and effective speaker, and was earnestly and attentively listened during his address.

The Rev. Mr. Fish then followed in a warm and touching appeal to the people of the town not to rest till they had lessened the evil, if they could not at once get all they desired, namely Prohibition. He again dealt severely with the sin of aiding and obetting the curse, as he termed it, of the Town and country of the family, and of the world. The sin of building houses and renting them to those who traffic in the blood misery and degradation of their fellows. The Rev. gentleman made an affecting appeal to the people to stand in the breach and assist in doing what they can to abate the direful effects of the use of strong drink, by stamping it out as soon as possible.

At the close of this meeting it was agreed to hold Sunday afternoon meetings, commencing at three o'clock precisely, for two or three Sabbaths with a view to arousing the public mind to a sense of the responsibility of the trust reposed in them by the use of their franchise, to elect only men who will do what they can to remove or limit the effects of the use of intoxicating liquors.

EXEMPTING CHURCH PROPERTY FROM TAXATION.

The Illinois Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which assembled last week at Mattoon, appointed a committee to consider and report upon the question whether church property should be exempted from taxation. The majority of that committee made their report on Wednesday last, taking strong ground in favour of taxation, and supported their view by a terse and logical statement of the reasons therefor. They argue, that as governments are instituted for the protection of the lives and property of the citizens, and church property is so protected, it should bear its share of the cost of that protection; that the Constitution forbids the State to aid any religious denominations, and that laws which exempt $362,000,000 worth of church property (its value according to the last census) from taxation, violate the letter and spirit of the constitution; that exempting one species of property increases the burdens placed upon other property, thus producing unequal taxation; that the objection that the infidels favour the taxation of church property is no valid objection as the question should be decided according to the merits of those who advocate it; that the Declaration of Independence, and the early history bring bad for those proposed exemptions; that when Europeans infidels, had time it would be poor logic to say that Harvey was right, and that the Declaration of Independence was wrong, because infidel opposed the former and advocated the latter; that the same arguement that would exempt church property would exempt school property; that the church should not stand in the attitude of asking favours of the State.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

President Grant's message to the Congress which met at Washington, on Monday last, was one of unusual good sense. Of course, to retain the title of a Republican, he must still call himself a Protectionist, for there is yet no hope of the notion coming to an end on the other side of the lines that "Loyalty and Protection are One," but, his protection is of the mildest form, and only points a hint at subsidizing liberally American Mail Steamers, as soon as they can be found to subsidize, the species being just now as extinct as the Dodo.

He notices the late severe and general depression in the trade of the continent, and sagaciously intimates that causes of unusual character must have been at work to produce such stagnation with the two main factors of commercial prosperity, labor, and capital—both present in comparative abundance. We say comparatively, for in England the wages both of labor and of capital, is lower than on this side of the Atlantic. As one of the chief causes the President points out the state of the currency and the fluctuations in the price of gold, and wisely argues that an early resumption of specie payments would restore no small amount of confidence to timid capitalists. With the resumption of specie payments he advocates the initiation of the Free Bank System; and emphatically insists on the fulfilment of the Natural liabilities and the upholding of the national credit.

Dealing with minor matters in a no less direct and vigorous style, he directs attention to the fact that the "gentle heathens" lately imported into the Western States, leave their native country under bonds and liabilities which render them little better than slaves in a professedly free country. He asks for legislation to prevent the manufacture of the fraudulent naturalization paper that cause so much trouble to the consuls and public servants generally of Uncle Sam in all parts of the world, justifies himself in the matter of the Louisiana troubles, and alludes pointedly to the riots and disturbances incident to the late elections. This is the weakest point in the document, for it gives his opponents an opportunity of alleging that the executive are seeking a place to interfere unduly with the conduct of the next election, on which, of course, the president for 1876 will depend. But the honesty and good sense of the message will not be thrown away upon the right minded and intelligent American elector, its moderation two commends it to Canadian acceptation for it asks of us no more San Juans and no more fisheries. "Let us rest, and be thankful."

REDISTRIBUTION OF SEATS

The Hon. Mr. Mowat submitted his bill for the redistribution of seats in the Legislature. The Bill proposes increasing the number of electoral divisions, from 82 to 88, several Counties now having but two representatives, will by the new bill have three, while Bothwell will be done away with, and a new county of Dufferin constituted instead. This new county will consist of portions of Wellington, Grey, and Simcoe.

This county is also to be changed. The West Riding has Harvey, Galway, Cavendish, and Lakefield attached to it, and Haliburton will be attached to North Victoria. This will leave the East Riding of this County to consist of Ashburnham, Asphodel, Belmont, and Methuen, Burleigh Road Townships, Dummer, Douro and Otonabee.

The reason for the changes may be forcible enough to convince Mr. Mowat of the desirability of making, although many will not be able to see in the same light. No doubt he has acted on the advice of some individuals from each Riding or county and we trust that he has consulted those who has been able to give him disinterest advice in the matter. If the government be led astray the blame should not be attached to them, but to their mentors.

Past contests are not good indexes of the political cast of any particular section of country as our own town, Ennismore, Otonabee, Asphodel, and other municipalities fully verify in the changed majorities from time to time.

Below is the Government scheme:—

The six additional members are to be distributed as follows:—

Parry Sound and Muskoka	1
New County of Dufferin	1
Huron	1
Grey	1
Kent	1
Lambton	1
Total	6

The county of Dufferin will consist of Mono, now part of the Parliamentary District of Cardwell; Mulmur, now in South Simcoe; Orangeville town, East Farafax, and Amaranth, now in Wellington; and Melanchon, in South Grey.

The population of Dufferin will then stand as follows:—

Mulmur	3,505
Mono	3,980
Melanchton	2 043
East Garafraxa	2,579
Orangeville	1,458
Amaranth	1,943
Total	15,5 8

Mr. Mowat remarked that while an equal division of the whole population of the Province, according to the census of 1871, amongst 88 members would give 18,438 of a population to each electoral district, there are, at the present time, no less than 23 constituencies with populations less than Dufferin will have when constituted as above proposed.

Huron will obtain a new member by the following re-arrangement:—

West Huron—
Ashfield	3,892
W. Wawanosh	2,748
E. Wawanosh	2,631
Colborne	3,429
Goderich Town	3,354
Goderich Township, north of Huron Road, and east line half of Township	1,808
Clinton	2,016
Wingham and Turnberry, west of Gravel Road	1,2[illegible]
Hullett, west of same road	735
Population of West Huron	21,43[illegible]
East Huron—
McKillop	3,866
Hullett, east of Gravel Road	2,043
Morris	3,963
Grey	3,855
Henrich	5,627
Turnberry, east of gravel road	2,001
Population of Huron East	21,976
South Bruce—
Tuckersmith	3,669
Stanley	1,393
Usborne	3,631
Hibbert	3,349
Stanley	2,594
Goderich, south of the line and Huron Road	1,891
Hay	3,287
Population of Huron South	23,766

The county of Grey will be divided as follows:—Markdale, as already mentioned, being included in the new county of Dufferin:

South Grey—
Bentick	5,858
Glenelg	4,889
Normanby	5,823
Egremont	3,902
Population of South Grey	18,822
East Grey—
Collingwood	3,876
Osprey	3,033
Proton	2,184
Artemesia	5,484
Euphrasia	2,998
Holland	3,750
Population of East Grey	10,325
West Grey—
Sydenham	4,011
Derby	1,946
Sarawak	680
Keppel	2,174
Sullivan	3,151
Owen Sound	3,360
St. Vincent	4 974
Population of West Grey	20,305

The electoral district of Bothwell, which is formed partly from Kent and partly from Lampton, is to be abolished Lampton will then be divided as follows:

West Lambton—
Sombra	3,891
Moore	3,998
Sarnia	3,438
Town	2,979
Dawn	1,116
Oil Springs	551
Enniskillen	1,528
Petrolia	2,651
Population of West Lambton	19,668
East Lambton—
Bosanquet	4,425
Warwick	4,677
Plympton	5,759
Brooke	2,538
Euphemia	2,290
Population of East Dumbton	19,289

The County of Kent will be divided as follows:—

West Kent—
Chatham	5,036
Town	5,873
Dover	3,315
Raleigh	4,081
E. Tilbury	1,846
Romney	711
Population of West Kent	20,862
East Kent—
Orford	3,113
Zone	1,083
Aethwell	995
Howard	4,513
Camden	4,095
Harwich	5,974
Population of East Kent	19,772

As a consequence of the changes occasioned by the formation of the county of Dufferin, a re arrangement of the counties of Simcoe, Wellington, and the electoral district of Cardwell is rendered necessary It will be recollected that, by the abolition of Bothwell, there is one more seat to be disposed of, and this is given to the county of Simcoe, which will in future; elect three instead of two members

The county of Simcoe will be divided as follows:—

South Simcoe—
Tossorontio	1,576
Essa	4,221
Innisfil	5,432
W. Gwillimbury	3,306
Bradford Village	1,130
Population of South Simcoe	15,437

North Simcoe is to be divided into two electoral districts, its population amounting in the aggregate to 43,719.

The electoral district of Cardwell will in future be constituted as follows:—

Tecumseth	4, 728
Adjala	2,878
Alcion	4,867
Caledon	4,784
Population of Cardwell	17,248

The county of Wellington will be divided as follows:

South Wellington—
Guelph Township	6,[illegible]78
Puslinch	2,255
Guelph Town	4,514
Eramosa	3,748
Population of South Wellington	16,105
Centre Wellington—
Erin	5,326
Nichol	2 227
Pilkington	2,308
W. Garafraxa	3,128
Fergus Village	1,646
Elora	1,498
Luther	1,702
Population of Centre Wellington	18,435
North Wellington—
Arthur	4,376
Minto	4,861
Maryboro'	4,418
Peel	5,744
Mount Forest Village	1,370
Population in west or north Wellington	20,769

The Attorney-General proposes to add to North Victoria for electoral purpose those municipalities formerly belonging to Peterborough, but which now from the provisional county of Haliburton. North Victoria has at present a population of 10,956 only. The following are the townships above named to be added: Snowden, Glamorgan, Monmouth, Cardiff, Minden, Dysart, Dudley, Harcourt, Stanhope, Guilford, Harbourn, and Bruton. They have an aggregate population of 2,111, which added to North Victoria, will give for that R iding a total population of 13,137.

The county of Peterborough is readjusted, and its two Ridings will in future be consituted as follows:—

East Peterboro—
Otonabee	3,992
Ashburnham Village	1,197
Douro	2,671
Asphodel	3,247
Dummer	1,951
Belmont and Methuen	1,575
Those Townships of North Peterboro which are now in the Provisional County of Haliburton, except Harvey, Galway and Cavendish, which go to West Peterboro	360
Total population of East Peterboro	14,993

West Peterboro has a population of 11,767. To its present townships it is proposed to add Harvey, Galway, and Cavendish, making a total population for West Peterborough of 12,348. The newly ipcorporated village of Lakefild will also be added to the West Riding.

The figures relating to the West Riding are very much changed. By the proposed division, the West Riding will contain over 16,000 persons—ED EX.

Brockville, now containing a population of only 10,475 is enlarged by the addition of Yonge Front, and Yonge and Escott Rear, from South Leeds, containing a population of 3,462, and giving to Brockville a total population of 13,937. This will leave South Leeds a population of 17,284; South Grenville and North Leeds and Grenville containing as at present, with populations respectively numbering 13,197 and 13,530.

Niagara, which at present has a population of only 3,663, is add to to be enlarged by the Addition of Stamford, Chippawa Fitzgo, and Clifton town. From Welland. Niagara will then consist of the following:—

Clifton	1,410
Chippawa	922
Stamford	2,399
Niagara	1,660
Niagara Township	2,660
Total population of Niagara	9,051

SUSPECTED FOUL PLAY.

Joseph Carmichael, of Millbrook, died suddenly about ten o'clock on Thursday morning. He had been working on board the Lakelet, and received his discharge on Thursday of last week. He stayed on the night of the 5th at the residence of his sister-in-law on Pine Street, and left her place next morning, stating that he was then going to Millbrook. When seen in the afternoon of the same day, he said that he had missed the train, and was then considered the worse for liquor. In the afternoon between four and five o'clock he came out of Crawley's Hotel and fell upon the sidewalk. Mr. Crawley called the hostler to assist him, and he was carried to the stable, and left there until seven o'clock. When the hostler went back to the stable Carmichael complained of being cold; the hostler then took him to his sister-in-laws, when he said he was suffering great pains, stating that he had been kicked at Crawley's. Drs. Powers and Dewar attended him, but in spite of their skilful attention he died on the morning of Thursday, about ten o'clock. An inquest was held on Thursday night, and adjourned for a post mortem examination until last night. The deceased was a widower, aged 46, and leaves two children unprovided for.—Port Hope Guide.

RYKERT IMPALED.

The inquiry into the charges made by Hon. Mr. McKellar against Mr. John Charles Rykert, establishes the plain fact that Rykert received $158 from the Street Railway Company, for services that could only be rendered by a member of the Legislative. If the money was paid for professional services, as the defendant claims, the service must have been irregular, for no payment was made for what Mr. Rykert did for the company in 1871; he never charged anything on his books, never made a memorandum of his retainer, and never presented his bill, though in that year he did the most of the work. In 1872 he did less work, and got $50 sent to him in an envelope, with no letter enclosed, he being warned by telegram that he might expect a communication. This was the only intimation he had as to where the money came from, and it is exceedingly significant that he never acknowledged the receipt of it. In 1873 he did hardly any work for the Keileys, as their bill passed without opposition; but for this he got $100. Had Mr. Rykert been as honest in the transaction as the firm of Morrison, Wells & Gordon, he would have refused even his legal services while he was a member of the House, as that firm, by the articles of their partnership, do not allow Mr. Wells any share of the money paid for work in connection with Legislative services. If Mr Rykert got the money for legal services, it is strange that he did not charge it in the usual way, instead of receiving it as a gratuity.

The evidence upon the charge relating to the Mutual Insurance bribe is more direct, and brings home the charge of corrupt motives, on the part of Rykert, in a way that cannot be controverted. The virtuous member for Lincoln is proved to have bid openly for a bribe. He was reported to be hostile to the cash premium clause, which the Insurance men wanted to get legalized; and it was therefore deemed advisable to secure his assistance, or at least stop his opposition, by buying him up. The matter was freely discussed at the Insurance caucus, and Mr. D C. McDonald employed Mr. Keiley (who had dealt with Mr. Rykert in a similar way before) to grease the itching palm of the little M. P. P. Keiley received $100 for this purpose, and he soon reported back to Mr. McDonald that "it was all right."

Again, the inquiry into the charges has provided that Mr. Rykert was paid $150 by Mayor Tilson, for assisting in the House to pass the Bill incorporating Tilsonburg. In this case Mr. R. was paid directly for his services as a member of Parliament. The legal part of the business was performed by Mr. Cattenach, of Toronto, and paid for; Mr. Secord drafted the Bill; and Mr. Oliver, M. P. P., had charge of it in the House; while Mr. R's assistance consisted of speeches and votes in its favor. For these he was paid $150. Here is a case which by no possibility can be twisted into a semblance of legitimacy on the score counsel's fees, or solicitor's retainers, or any other plausable pretence. And this is not the last; there is more to come yet.

What is that which ties two persons but only touches one? A wedding ring.

The Carlists deny that the seige of Irun is raised. Don Carlos did not say: I came, I saw, I run.

According to an Auburn, N. Y. paper, they are going to put up in that city an addition to their seminary, "to accommodate eighty-six students 200 feet long."

"What's the use, in these days, trying to be honest?" exclaimed a grumbler. "Oh, you ought to try it once and see!" retorted one of his companions.

A fop once bothered one of the Rothschilds by boasting of a set of malachite studs he had just bought, and asking the banker if he did not admire them. "Oh, yes," said Rothschild, "very much, very much—I've got a mantelpiece like that at home."

A policeman in Chicago, passing a house recently, heard a woman screaming, "Oh, Henry, Henry! come here—quick! Oh, Swan! mother! the baby!" Gallantly breaking in the door, and rushing up-stairs the officer found that the baby—had just cut a tooth.

During the commercial crisis, when there was a general rush on the banks for payment of deposits, a rustic in Aberdeenshire who had the sum of £100 lodged, hearing of the scramble hastened to the town, and presenting his deposit receipt at the bank office, demanded payment. It was tendered in the notes of the bank, Bundling up the notes he was heard to exclaim as he retired, "Ye may break noo when ye like."

The Ballot.—There appears as yet to be a good deal of ignorance amongst voters generally as to the mode of exercising their franchise under the new ballot law. The Cornwall Gazette has heard some curious details about the polling at the late election contest between Dr. Bergin and the brother of the Postmaster General. In the Township twenty-three out of eighty-eight, who voted at one polling place, could not write, and the Deputy Returning Officer had to make their mark. Several votes were "killed" through the ballot ticket being written upon. In some cases voters signed their names on the back of the ticket—some put in a blank ballot, and some put a cross opposite each Candidate's name, thereby showing confidence in neither and "killing" the votes. No doubt familiarity with the process of voting will come by practice; but it is desirable that all voters should make themselves acquainted with the modus operandi of balloting before going to the polls, otherwise their chances for disfranchisement are tolerably strong.

Correction

About three weeks ago we published a telegram from Montreal to the effect that a son of Dr. Davies, of London, was a defaulter to the Bank of Montreal. It now appears from authentic information that Doctor Davies had no son in the Bank of Montreal, and therefore the report was absolutely false. The real name of the defaulter is Davis. It is too bad that those furnishing telegraphic reports do not take care to furnish truthful reports.

Temperance

The question of limiting the number of places for selling intoxicating liquors is now before the ratepayers, and several meetings have been held to that end. It is an important question and should be fully discussed. The action of several clergymen is arousing public opinion to abate the evil, and let us hope that they may be successful, although we are not much in favor of half measures. The only limit we can advocate earnestly is to do away altogether with that which is doing so much injury to mankind, and the sooner the better.

Ashburnham

The Council met on Monday evening All the members present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The following accounts were passed and ordered to be paid: James Bellwood, for work done on Concession and Sophia Street, $150; William Romaugh, $4,00; James Stratton, printing, $24,06; W. Swanston. $5,70; Mr. Craig spent on road, $5,37½; Mr. Drake, $4,00; John Wood, postage and registry, $4,80. The Street Inspector was instructed to put a crossing from Mark to James St. The applications of several persons for abatement of taxes were laid over till next meeting. The Council adjourned.

Fourth Ward

The names of Messrs George Hilliard, Henry Denne, Duncan McDonald, and J. B. Dixon, are spoken of as Councillors for 1875 in the Fourth Ward. They are all good safe men to elect. We have not heard whether Mr. Robertson intends retiring or not, although we heard it hinted. We are pleased to find the people in the 4th Ward ignoring all political feeling. We know of no better man than Mr. Hilliard and Mr. Denne, although politically opposed to us,—we use the word political with regret in municipal matters, and trusting that it will not be used in the contest. Our citizens should remember that in all cases the best men are the best to elect.

BRIDGENORTH SOIREE.

The temperance meeting and soiree held at Bridgenorth, in connection with the Oak Leaf Temple, on Friday evening last, was quite a success. The soiree was held in the Town Hall, and after ample justice was done to the good things provided by the ladies' of Bridgenorth and surrounding country, which deserved great credit to them, the meeting adjourned to the Church, a short distance from the Town Hall, when Mr. McCaul was called to the chair, and he having made a few appropriate remarks, called on Rev. Mr. Scott, Methodist Minister Lakefield, Mr. Pentland, Peterborough, and Mr. Crook, Indian Village. who addressed the meeting.

Mr. Scott in a lenthy speech urged the people to stop drinking the curse of the world, and go in for prohibition, giving figures how much it cost the Dominion in one year for liquor, it cost more for liquor in one year than was spent in all other of the good works, in building Churches. building Schools, Ministers Salaries, Teachers Salaries, and many other things which might be enumerated.

Mr. Pentland then addressed the audience, telling them that he was glad to see such an interest taken in temperance by the people of Bridgenorth, and if they set themselves to work they could drive the sale of liquor out of the Township of Smith, including Lakefield, in less than two or three years, and he also gave figs showing how much it cost the Dominion in one year for the liquor traffic. and urged the people to elect their representatives strong temperance men. so as when they went to Parliament they would be of some benefit to them, in not allowing the trade to remain in this fair Canada of ours.

Mr. Crook then came forward, also urging the people to have a stop put to the liquor traffic, and telling a few short stories about it, one in particular was about a poor one armed Indian woman, who told an Agent who went to warn her about drinking, that so long as she had this one arm, and the birch tree was in the woods that she would drink liquor. He condemned some farmers who, when they hire the poor Indian boy give him liquor and make him drunk

An excellent choir rendered much toward's the evening's entertainment.

At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered to the Speakers, Choir and Chairman.

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

Three political conventions were held in this county last week, convened to nominate candidates for the ensuing election for the Local Legislature. The Conservatives of this Riding held their convention in this village on Thursday last. the different townships, except the back ones, being well represented, when Mr. Peter Pearce. of Norwood, and Mr. J. Carnegie, of Peterboro, were nominated. The former gentleman receiving a majority of the votes present, was delareed the nominee of the convention. Leaving politics out of the question, we think it is a well merited compliment to a thoroughly tried and faithful public servant, Mr. Pearce having filled, during his public career,—which has extended over a space of thirty years—many positions of trust and importance in this county.

In referring to the convention of the Reformers of this Riding, held last week at Ashburnham, the Review says Messrs. James Stratton, James Hogan, Thomas Scott and T. G. Choate were proposed. On the first ballot Mr. T G. Choate was found to have the lowest number of votes and his name was dropped; on the second ballot Mr. Scott was found to have the smallest number of supporters; and on the third ballot Mr. Stratton beat Mr. Hogan by twenty to seven, and declared the nominee of the convention, and accepted by him. —Norwood Register.

It is a well demonstrated fact that when a widow has once determined to marry any particular man, all young girls having designs in the same direction may as well retire at once. The widow will win nineteen times out or twenty.

Lines for the St. Andrew's Society

BY WM. KILPATRICK.

Sons of Auld Scotia that luv'd sport sae dear,
Am glad this nicht to see ye mony here;
Some here was born among her heathera hills,
Some in a cottage by her marmarin' rills;
Some here ance viewed the Scottish pheasant's coat,
A few keno nae hing o' the Scottish life,
They too are Scots by wedding a Scotch wife;
It struck me noddle as I took my pen,
That I micht tell them things they did'na ken
About Auld Scotia—how the poor folks live,
See I to them a simple sketch will give.
Weel, there was Jock, a mackle strappin chield,
Summer an' winter workin' in the field;
Steady an' carefu' he was a' his life,
Earnin' his beerbeen for to take a wife;
A lass cned Jennie lived ayont the hills,
Long Jock had lo'ed her an' he lo'ed her still,
Jock popp'd the question, Jennie answered yes
Soo they were married on the tenn day.
The weddin o'er, Jock slacked his leag purse strings,
An' off he goed to buy the bits o' things
To start housekeepin', but his purse was sma',
He bought things useful but nane verra braw;
Ten big box beds wi' shutters close an nabd,
To keep the bairns fra' tumblin' out at nicht;
A chest o' drawers—their front mahogany shade,
Where Jennie's linens can'd be nangin laid,
Sax chairs, a table, an' a cupboard square,
Four shelves therein to hood the crockery ware,
A bellet stule oraan an' muckle kist,
Yes—an' a cradle finished up the list.
A new day dawned, bricht shone the mornin' sun.
When Jock and Jennie's married life begun;
Jock gaed to work while Jennie kept the house,
Baith but an' ben sae tidy clean an' douse
Beneath sins the stream wherson no ripple spoors,
Long honeymoon that ne'er comes to a close.
The music starts—a quack—then cradle,
The family organ strikes the leg o' Jock.
The said wives feasted, feered, an' puked their fun
At Jock, about his first big sonsie son;
They bald him up, telt Jock to come an' see
The bairs—its fathers image to a T.
As months an' years their onward progress goes,
As fast in numbers Jacks an family grows.
At nicht when tired he sat to tak his ease,
Four bonnie bairns gaed toddlin' round his knees.
Time passed, their family was increasin' till
Jock had to work ten little mouths to fill,
Himself and Jennie claes an' meat wad need,
Sae that made twal he had to clatth and feed.
Jock off his braw the draps o' sweet did dicht,
He felt that trials were gatherin' round him ticht,
His wage was sma'—two shillings for a day,
De'ts rinnin' fast an' siller scarce to pay.
The winter came,—cauld stormy blasts did blaw,
Dykesides an' roads was drifted fa' o' snaw;
Jock bad nae work—he sought it far an' near,
Coals, meal, an' claes, and evera bite was dear.
'Twas nicht, the low fires burned dim within,
Jock sat his twa hands handin' up his chin;
Jennie sat knittin' but her heart was wae,
while round the house the thoughtless bairns did play.
Jennie's heart was fu', the tears ran as she spoke
Her words like magic raised the head o' Jock,
Guid man the coals is nearla done, she said,
Wase me the oatmeal in sma room is laid,
Our winters tatties is gaen fast away
An' tea we had nane for this lang day;
O see oor bairns sae badla aff for claes,
They hae na shoon to hide their wee bi- taes.
Jock gaed to bed that nicht his sleep was sma,
Next day he waded through the drifts o' snaw
In search o' wark—he gaed till wark he got;
Rale tired, but pleased, returned he to his cot.
The meal an' coals baith quickly were renewed:
On Sunday mornin' a drap tea was brewed.
The bairns were clad, new shoon got for their feet,
To kirk on Sunday they gaed clean an neat,
Wi mouth o' tates brose an' parritch too.
Their healths bairns to lads an lass's grew
To take the bannocks an' to boil the kail.
And help her mither; she was gettin' frail;
The others lass's hired wi' farmers round.
For ilka sexpence helped to mak' a pound.
The lads when sheeled some thought to learn a trade;
To labourin work some wi' their father gaed,
Ilka anes wages when they bame did come,
Put a' thgither mad' a guid big sum.
Trials disappeared, cauld paverty took flight,
In Jennies drawers lay a few soverigns bright,
When bairns they often far a piece did greet,
How changed—when they upon a Sunday meet,
At the tea table wi' its burden groans,
Shives o' fine bread, an' piles o' buttered scons.
As chickens grow, as shure the shell must break;
Jocks grown up family soon a change did make
Some they got married, some fell by disease,
Some pushed their fortune o'er the raging seas.
Tis' lang since Jock and Jennie ceased to toil,
Their ashes sleep beneath Auld Scotia Soil;
Twa o' their sprouts is now before your sight,
An' seldom absent on St Andrew's night.

BY REQUEST.

It's thirteen years if no ane mair,
I first St Andrew's feast did share,
An' let tha nicht be foul or fare
Nae weather stop me;
Tho' the frost rind hard on ma harr,
Or snaw flakes kept me?

Tho, nippin frost my legs did bite,
An' aft ma nose I had to dicht,
When driftin' snaw did stop my sight,
I ambled them clear
To celebrate St. Andrew's nicht,
I maun be here?

Eight years this night, I mind right weel,
It was hae tried St. Andrew's steel,
To wade the glar I had to feel,
I coud'na see;
Sae dark it wad hae gliffered the deel;
But coud'na me?

I got a lantern if you please,
An' rowed me breeks up to ma knees,
The candle whuffed out wi' the breeze,
Then dark as pitch;
Ma length I measured by degrees,
Slap! in the ditch?

SELWYN.

On Thursday last a number of the friends of the Selwyn Church met at the Parsonage, Smith, and after partaking of a very sumptions tea, and spending a most enjoyable time together in friendly conversation, Mr. G. Crook, in the name of the Church, read the following address, accompanied by a sum of money, to the Rev'd. T. Dyall who is leaving the Smith Church for Seaforth.

ADDRESS.

Dear Pastor:—Permit us, the members of the Selwyn Baptist Church, to avail ourselves of this opportunity of expressing the high respect and warm affection which we cherish toward you. When we take a retrospect of your faithful and persevering labors amongst us, of the success which has attended your ministry, and especially when we reflect that through your instrumentality many of us were brought to a knowledge of the truth and joined the church, our hearts are filled withgratitude to our heavenly Father that ever he sent you as an under shepherd amongst us. We can assure you it is with feelings of deep sorrow that we anticipate your removal from us, and yet it is our duty in this, as in all things, to submit to the will of God who doeth all things well, and is able to make both painful and pleasing circumstances work together for good to those who love Him. We pray that heaven's richest blessings may rest upon you, your dear partner in life, and your children, and that you may be made eminently successful in still winning souls to Christ in the field of labor into which you are about to enter. We shall ever remember you at the throne of grace, and we feel contired that you will unite with us in beseeching God to send a man after his own heart to continue the work in connection with His cause here, which you have so earnestly and perseveringly pursued. Before bidding you farewell, we have thought it our duty to manifest our esteem by presenting you with a purse of money, which, though small, we beg you to accept, ever praying that God may supply all your wants out of His own inexhaustible fullness.

(Signed on behalf of the Church.)

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN COLD.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures Catarrh, Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. The following are extracts from at few of the many letters that have been received from different parts of Canada, which, we think, should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ont., writes "send me 6 doz. Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now; its cures are truly wonderful." William Maguire, of Franklin, writes "I have sold all he agent left, it acts like a charm—it was slow at first but takes splendidly now." H. Cole, of Iona, writes, "please forward 2 doz. Thomas Electric Oil, I am nearly out; it can't be equaled. It is highly recommended by those who have used it." J. Bedford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Electric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing sell so well and give such satisfaction. J. Thompson, Woodford, writes, "send me some more Electre Oil. I have sold entirely out. Nothing takes like it." Miller & Reed, Tiverton, P. O., writes—"The Electric Oil is getting a great reputation here, and is daily called for. Send us a further supply without delay. Lemoyne, Gibb & Co. Buckingham, P. Q., writes,—Send us one gross Electric Oil. We find it to take well." Price 25 cents. S. N. Thomas, Propr., N. Y., and

BY-LAW

GRANTING A BONUS TO THE COBOURG RAILWAY.

BY-LAW NO.

A By-Law to provide for the granting of a Bonus to the extent of Eighty Thousand Dollars in Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough,, to the Cobourg, Peterborough and Marmora Railway and Mining Company to aid in the construction of the Railway of the said Company northward to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls or some other point northward or north-eastward of Bobcaygeon.

WHEREAS the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough have resolved to grant aid by way of Bonus to the Cobourg Peterboro' and Marmora Railway and Mining Company to assist them in extending their railway northward to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls by giving to the said Company Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to the extent of eighty thousand dollars upon the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned.

AND WHEREAS by an act of the Parliament of the late province of Canada passed in the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria entitled "An Act to "Consolidate the debt of the Town of Peter- "borough and to authorize the issue of "Debentures upon the security of town pro- "perty and for other purposes." It was enacted that for the purposes and in the manner therein particularly mentioned and set out and to the amount therein mentioned it should be lawful for the Commissioners therein named to issue Debentures under the Seal of the said Corporation to be signed by the Mayor countersigned by the Treasurer of the said Corporation and by the Secretary of the said Commissioners and that the Council of the said Town of Peterborough should annually upon the application of the said Commissioners raise upon the rateable property of the Town the interest and sinking fund requisite for the ultimate redemption of the said Debentures.

AND WHEREAS by an Act of the Legislature of the Province of Ontario passed in the year of our Lord on thousand eight hundred and seventy two entitled "An Act to "authorize the Cobourg Peterborough and "Marmora Railway and Mining Company to "extend its line of railway and for other "purposes." It was amongst other things enacted that it should be lawful for the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by a by law duly submitted to and approved by the Ratpeayers of the Town in the manner required by law and notwithstanding the provisions of the Act hereinbefore recited, to grant aid by way of bonus to an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars to the said Company and to issue Debentures therefor which Debentures should be subject to the same provisions as those authorized under the said recited Act, and further that it should be lawful for the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough by such By-law to impose such conditions upon which such aid should be granted as the said Corporation should deem expedient which conditions upon the acceptance by the said Company of the aid so granted should be binding upon the said Company.

BE IT THEREFORE ENACTED by the Municipal Council of the Town of Peterborough—

1 That it shall and may be lawful for the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to aid and assist by way of bonus in the construction of the Cobourg, Peterborough, and Marmora Railway and Mining Company of an extension of their Railway northward to Chemong Lake Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls or some other point northward or north-eastward from Bobcaygeon by giving to the said Company the Debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough to the extent of eighty thousand dollars and that for that purpose it shall and may be lawful to issue debentures of the said Corporation for the said sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars, such Debentures to be issued in the manner provided by the said recited Act of the twenty fourth Victoria and to be otherwise subject to the provisions of the said Act.

2 That the said Debentures shall be made payable in twenty years at furthest from the time or times they may be respectively issued as hereafter provided.

3 That the said Debentures shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from the date thereof which interest shall be payable half-yearly at the office of the Secretary of the said Commissioners of the Town of Peterborough.

4 That the necessary rate for payment of the interest and sinking fund for the ultimate liquidation of the said Debentures as required by the said recited Act of the twenty-fourth Victoria shall in addition to all other rates be raised levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the indebtedness created by the said Debentures.

5 That the said Debentures to the amount of Forty Thousand Dollars be issued by the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough and when required handed over by the said Corporation to the three Trustees hereinafter next named: that is to say Geo. A. Cox, William Hall and George Hilliard to be held by them to and upon and subject to the trusts and conditions hereinafter next named that is to say to pay and hand the said Debentures over to the said Company or to whomever may be appointed by them to receive the same at the times and in the manner following: Monthly as the work on the said Railway from the southern shore of Rice Lake to Chemong Lake shall progress the said monthly payments to consist of such portion of the cost of the work hereafter done on the said portion of the said road as will be in the same proportion as the whole amount of such work on the said Forty Thousand Dollars shall bear to the whole cost of completing the said portion of such road provided that the said Trustees or the survivors or survivor of them shall not be required to pay over such portion of the cost of the work done thereon as aforesaid until the whole cost of completing the said portion of the said road as aforesaid shall have been ascertained and the Contractor or Contractors for the said work shall have become entitled to the certificate of the Engineer of the said Railway for the time being that the said work has been completed and in running order from the Town of Peterborough to the Village of Bobcaygeon, provided that it be so completed and in running order by the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven; and the remaining portion thereof, namely, to the amount of Twenty Thousand Dollars, when the said Railway shall have been completed and in running order from the Town of Cobourg aforesaid to the Village of Fenelon Falls in the County of Victoria, or to some other point northward or north-eastward of the said Village of Bobcaygeon and distant twelve miles therefrom provided it be so completed and in running order by the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, provided further that the said two last-named respective portions of the said Debentures are only to be issued and delivered as aforesaid in event of the said respective portions being so completed and in running order by the times hereinbefore limited, and provided further that the completion of the Road above mentioned for the purpose of entitling the said Company to the said Debentures shall not include the embankment over Rice Lake hereinafter mentioned, but shall include such a construction over the said Lake as will be suitable for ordinary traffic over such Road until such permanent embankment shall have been completed as hereinafter mentioned: But it is nevertheless hereby further provided that the said two sums of Twenty Thousand Dollars respectively last above mentioned shall not become payable as provided by this By-Law and this By-Law as to the said sums shall become inoperative and void unless the said Company shall on or before the first of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five have entered into a binding agreement with the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, obliging the said Company in a penalty of the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars that the construction of the said proposed Railway northward from Chemong Lake shall be commenced, proceeded with and completed within the times and in the manner hereinbefore mentioned.

6. That the said debentures to the further amount of the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars be issued and delivered to the said Company when the said Railway shall have been completed and in running order from the Town of Cobourg aforesaid to the Village of Bobcaygeon, provided that it be so completed and in running order by the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven; and the remaining portion thereof, namely, to the amount of Twenty Thousand Dollars, when the said Railway shall have been completed and in running order from the Town of Cobourg aforesaid to the Village of Fenelon Falls in the County of Victoria, or to some other point northward or north-eastward of the said Village of Bobcaygeon and distant twelve miles therefrom provided it be so completed and in running order by the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, provided further that the said two last-named respective portions of the said Debentures are only to be issued and delivered as aforesaid in event of the said respective portions being so completed and in running order by the times hereinbefore limited, and provided further that the completion of the Road above mentioned for the purpose of entitling the said Company to the said Debentures shall not include the embankment over Rice Lake hereinafter mentioned, but shall include such a construction over the said Lake as will be suitable for ordinary traffic over such Road until such permanent embankment shall have been completed as hereinafter mentioned: But it is nevertheless hereby further provided that the said two sums of Twenty Thousand Dollars respectively last above mentioned shall not become payable as provided by this By-Law and this By-Law as to the said sums shall become inoperative and void unless the said Company shall on or before the first of July one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five have entered into a binding agreement with the said Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, obliging the said Company in a penalty of the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars that the construction of the said proposed Railway northward from Chemong Lake shall be commenced, proceeded with and completed within the times and in the manner hereinbefore mentioned.

7. That the said bonus so to be given as aforesaid and in every part and parcel thereof shall be and is hereby made subject to the conditions hereinafter next mentioned and subject to the said Company entering into good and sufficient contract with the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough before any of the said moneys shall become payable, to comply with the same that is to say:

(1.) That the said Railway Company shall run or cause to be run at least one train a day (a regular freight and passenger train) each way between Cobourg and the Northern Terminus for the time being of the said Railway.

(2.) That a solid embankment and Bridge shall be constructed over the Rice Lake within a period of five years from the passing of this By-Law according to the plans of Walter Shanly, Esquire, Civil Engineer.

(3.) That the said Company shall not nor will amalgamate with nor enter into any arrangements with any rival Company whereby a tariff shall be agreed to be mutually charged by both Companies or for the apportioning of the trade between them.

(4.) That a regular Passenger and Freight Station of the said Railway shall be maintained in the Town of Peterborough.

(5.) That the Mayor of the Town of Peterborough for the time being shall always be made a Director of said Company.

(6.) That the Tariff of the said Railway shall not in any case exceed the ordinary current tariff of the Midland Railway for the year 1871 and that the said tariff shall include a rate for the carriage of raw material from the front by the car load to Peterborough for the purpose of manufacture twenty-five per cent lower than the ordinary tariff.

(7.) That the line of the said Railway shall touch Chemong Lake at some point navigable for steam and other vessels and that the Company shall provide and maintain ample harbor and station accomodations for forwarding lumber, where the said line may so touch Chemong Lake.

(8.) That none of the said Debentures shall be so delivered or deliverable until a good and sufficient release to the Town of Peterborough of and from all liability under the By-law granting the sum of $40,000 to the Peterborough and Haliburton Railway Company shall have been given to the said Town.

(9.) The said Company shall never charge less for the conveyance of goods or passengers from any point south of Peterborough to any point north of Peterborough than from any such point south of Peterborough to Peterborough nor shall they ever charge less from any point north of Peterborough to any point south of Peterborough than from any such point north of Peterborough to Peterborough.

(10.) In constructing their railway northward from Peterborough the said Company shall if practicable so construct it as to touch Chemong Lake on that side thereof next the Town of Peterborough.

8. That unless work on the extension of such proposed Railway from Chemong Lake northwards be actually and bona fide commenced and thereafter continuously proceeded with on or before the 1st day of January, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Seventy-

FARM LIFE.

BY REV. MR. MURRAY.

Saw ye the farmer at his plough,
As joyous as a bird by?
Or ventured 'neath the noon-day toil,
When the summer sun was high?
And thought you then his lot was hard,
And you thank your God
That you and yours were not condemned
Thus like a slave to plod?

Come, see him at his harvest home,
Where garden, field and tree,
Conspire with flowing store to fill
His barn and granary.
His healthful children gaily sport
Amid the new-mown hay,
Or proudly aid with vigorous arm
His mates as best they may.

The Harvest Giver is his friend,
The Maker of the soil:
And earth, the mother, gives them bread
And cheers the patient toil;
Come join them round their wintry hearth,
The heart-enlightening tear;
And you can better judge how blest
The farmer's life may be.

SUMMER'S DONE.

Along the wayside and up the hills
The golden rod flames in the sun;
The bright-eyed gentian nods primly by
To the little and brooks that run;
And so Summer's done, said I,
Summer's done!

In yellowing woods the chestnut drops,
The squirrels get galore.
Through bright-eyed lads and little maids
Rob blue-jet half his store;
And so Summer's o'er, said I,
Summer's o'er!

The maple in the swamp begins
To flame in gold and red,
And in the elm the fire-bird's nest
Swings empty overhead;
And so Summer's dead, said I,
Summer's dead.

Effects of the Election

People are so accustomed to see law framed after a great agitation and earnest effort, for purpose of reform, turn out entired inoperative in many of their provisions, that it has struck the country as a pleasant surprise to find in our new Election Law a machine which runs of itself, and operates with the most marvellous and almost unfailing effectiveness. Whatever politicians whether parliamentary or suburban may think of this law, it is safe to say that the people are vastly pleased with it and witness in Jack the Giant Killer feats with every new delight. There is, however, always a very general regret when a great man falls. It is painful to see one who, by his ability and opportunities, was on the highway to stand beside the greatest on earth, revealing himself as a pot-house ranter, and in dangerous companionship with those who were plying the lowest arts of corruption in his favor, and with those upon whom such seductions were availing.

Among the most prominent advantages the Election Act is doing away, we hope forever, with that saddest of manifestations of human weakness, the Parliamentary Election Committee, on which men, chosen from the people as the best they could find, and sworn to judge righteously, almost invariably voted in the interest of their party, showing, either that party men cannot see things in their true light, or that they prefer party interests to honest judgement.

This law will, we hope, prove fatal to the hitherto controlling influence of election roughs or bullies who have been in the habit of selling our wards and electorial divisions, to the highest bidder, without the slightest interest in the public issues involved. One would think that the introduction of the ballot would greatly weaken such men as these, and put power into the hands of men of a higher class, intellectually and morally, and whether this is really accomplished we will be able to see for ourselves at the coming elections in Montreal.

HOW TO BE HANDSOME.

Most people would like to be handsome. Nobody denies the great power which any person may have who has a good face and can attract you by good looks, even before a word has been spoken. And we see all sorts of devices in men and women to improve their good looks—paints and washes, and all kinds of cosmetics, including a plentiful anointing with dirty hair oil.

Now all cannot have good features. They are as God made them; but almost any one can look well, especially with good health. It is hard to give rules in a very short space, but in brief these will do :—

Keep clean—wash freely and universally with warm water. All the skin wants is leave to act freely, and it will take care of itself. Its thousands of air holes must not be closed.

Eat regularly and sleep enough. The stomach can no more work all the time, night and day, than a horse; it must have a regular sleep.

Good teeth are a help to good looks. Brush with a soft brush, especially at night. Go to bed with clean teeth, it is needful to let tobacco alone. Every woman knows that. And any powders or wash for the teeth should be very simple. Acids may whiten the teeth but they take off the enamal and injure them.

When the mind is awake the dull, sleepy look passes away from the eyes I do not know that the brow expands, but it seems to. Think, read—not trashy novels, but books that have some thing in them. Talk with people that known something; hear lectures and learn by them.

According to a Cleveland paper, the following is the way accidents occur in that part of the country: An unusually thoughtful farmer, residing near enough to this city to do his trading here, went into his cornfield last week to hoe his corn; and, in order to give a crow or two a salute should he see any, strapped his double-barrelled shot-gun to his back. As he warmed up to his work he caused his hoe-handle to circulate with more than its wonted rapidity about him; and, finally, the end of the hoe-handle hitting the trigger of the gun, touched it off. The old farmer felt a grill or two of shot pass through his scalp and hat; and, supposing he had been shot at by an assassin in the rear, he, though wounded, seized his gun, and wheeling suddenly around, blazed away at the supposed shooter. He was still more surprised not to see a man, but his dog writhing in the agonies of discolation. He fi out, "Sic, hooing cock again; but his head is covered with bandages and plaster, and his dog does not frisk about his heels as formerly.

"Why is dat hat like the United States?" said Pompey to Squash, holding up his dilapidated beaver. "Cos—cos—dunno, nigger." "Well, cussish subject to a crown."

A milkman may have a habit of ing daily near the brook, and not ; but when we find him fishing for minnows in the we have our doubts.

Twenty-one freshmen were lately suspended from an English college because a professor couldn't find out who placed a leu ounce tack in his chair. He, however, knew all about who sat down it.

A little boy carrying home some eggs from the grocery, dropped them. "Did you break any?" asked his mother, when he told her of it. "No," said the little fellow, "but the shells came off some of 'em."

An exchange says the proper thing to "throw a bouquet and a card of thanks to serenaders when you cannot invite them in. But if they hesitate about leaving, throw a brick or an old boot."

A fellow with a pistol bullet in his left side, one inch above his heart, a six inch slash on his head and a broken leg, crawled into a Bangor, Me., doctor's office "to get fixed up," as he pleasantly put it, the other morning. He said "they'd been havin' some fun over to a house," but he declined to designate the domicile more particularly; and possibly they are too well used to these comic eccentricities down in Maine to inquire very closely. They do this sort of thing to perfection in the Indian country, out West, where a man who hankers after bullets can get his stomach full at any time; but then it isn't done for sport, there's always malice in the clean of the knife, and murder in the voice of the pistol. But this Maine chap is evidently a fellow who can take a joke and bear no grudge against the giver.

What is the matter? Your hair looks dry and dead, it breaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away these things, go buy a bottle of Bearine which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better at once.

War and Commerce.—It is urged by some that English trade has gained largely by the Franco-German war, and that she has been serving both belligerents to the great advantage of her commercial interest; but official statements prove that such has not been the case. But it is true that the sales of the Canadian Pain Destroyer are greatly increasing, and gaining the confidence of the public, for curing coughs, colds, rheumatism, neuralgia, bowel complaints, &c. For sale by all druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per bottle

Don't Know What to Do. We some times hear persons say, "my horse is sadly out of condition, and I cannot tell either what is the matter with him, or how to get him into better order;" they appear to be ignorant of the fact that there is within their reach a remedy safe, sure, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and testify that its effects are most satisfactory One horse dealer informs us that his horses condition and appearance are so much improved by its that they sell more readily and for higher prices. The article is Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy. Nothing else is equal to it for the same purpose. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

Health is Strength.—To prevent or conquer disease is one of the grandest attainments ever aimed at by man; and Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers will as sure cure coughs, colds, tickling in the throat and pulmonary complaints, as war and pestilence will destroy. Severe colds if not attended to sooner or later lead to incurable consumption, and the strength of the strongest man fails if neglected. The readiest and best remedy to use in the cure of these complaints is Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, which have been thoroughly tried for the last twenty years, and have never been known to fail. Singers and public speakers will also derive great benefit from the use of these Wafers. For all voice troubles call at 24 Colborne Street.

General Debility. James H. Johnston, Esq., Montreal, wrote in August as follows: It affords me great pleasure to bear testimony to the benefits procured from using Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophos phites. I found it a nervous tonic of great power and efficacy, curing me in a short time from General Debility and Nervous ness, and I have become robust and vigorous under its influence, and gained considerable in weight withal.

VINEGAR BITTERS

Our Motto: A Remedy for the People proclaims VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and even advanced stages of Pulmonary Complaints, where the case seemed almost hopeless, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to perfect health by the use of Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking small and frequent doses of Cherry Pectoral.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, but will assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, and Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodic, or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure—and when taken according to the directions, it will not fail to Cure, Chill and Fever, Ague and Fever, or any other form of Fever, which originates from the Fever and Ague poison, in any locality of the United States, or the British Provinces, with which the climate, in part of the year, is filled. Many people who reside in such localities, are liable to have their systems thoroughly poisoned with the Fever and Ague poison, and not know it. The first symptoms of the disease will be found to be Dullness, Drowsiness, Headache, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, Nausea, Heartburn, Belching of Wind, Pain in various parts of the body, Clammy Perspirations, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Back, Side, and Limbs, sometimes mistaken for Rheumatism. The patient will have frequent attacks of Chills, alternating with Flashes of Heat, and finally the Liver and Spleen will become enlarged, the Stomach inflamed, and Bilious Fever, Congestion, or Inflammation will set in, and the patient will die unless the poison is expelled from the system. For this purpose, take

Ayer's Ague Cure.

It counteracts the effects of the poison, and leaves the system in such a condition that no further trouble need be apprehended. Although not absolutely necessary, it will be found advantageous to take, after the Ague Cure, a dose or two of Ayer's Cathartic Pills, to remove any morbid matter that may remain in the bowels.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical Chemists, LOWELL, MASS., U. S. A.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstruction which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.
